THE CARPENTER

A Monthly Journal for Carpenters, Stair Builders, Machine Wood Workers, Planing Mill Men, and Kindred Interests.

VOL. XIV.—No. 4.
Established 1881.

PHILADELPHIA, APRIL, 1894.

{ Fifty Cents per Year.
Single Copies, 5 Cts.

ODDS AND ENDS.

BUILDING Trades Councils have been formed in Battle Creek, Mich., Providence, R. I., and Bellaire, O.

THE Lumber industry of this country amounted to $586,349,127 the past year. This is a greater interest than that of iron and steel, and it is growing larger annually.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—We had a great Labor meeting here at the State House, March 22. General Master Workman J. R. Sovereign spoke. Union 292 is holding its own.

ORGANIZATION by workingmen is an effort to get what they earn. Throwing the bomb of religious bigotry among them is the sure method of the monopolist in keeping what he didn't earn.—Justice.

WILKESBARRE, PA.—Branch 4 of the Lace Curtain Operatives of America have been on strike since last September against a reduction of 30 per cent. They appeal for financial aid. Address, F. J. Klein, 34 Hill street, Wilkesbarre, Pa.

THE American Federation of Labor is making an energetic protest against the proposed Chinese treaty now awaiting action of the United States Senate. The treaty overrides and destroys the protective labor features of the Scott and Geary laws.

AFTER June 1 the Board of Walking Delegates of the Building Trades of New York city will enforce a rule not to handle, use or put up any foreign made, or pauper or convict made building materials. The Unions in New York are up in arms on this subject.

AT ONE of the recent processions of the unemployed in Chicago a placard was carried bearing this inscription: "The triumph of the nineteenth century: Fifteen thousand American sovereigns shoveling snow all day for two bowls of soup and sleeping room on the bare floor."

JOHN MCBRIDE was re-elected President of the United Mine Workers, at Columbus, O., this month. On and after April 21, 1894, it is proposed to have a universal strike of Coal Miners in the soft coal fields, extending from Western Pennsylvania to Colorado. The wages of Coal Miners have been tending downward. This general movement is expected to give wages an upward impetus all along the line.

GOOD CHEERING NEWS.

THE UNIONS BUILDING UP AGAIN.—WORK STARTING BRISKLY AT MANY POINTS.—THE UNITED BROTHERHOOD STARTING A LIVELY AGITATION.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—Things are looking better for us than they have for a year past.

AUSTIN, TEX.—Union 300 is initiating new members and bringing back some of those who dropped out.

E. ST. LOUIS, ILL.—This city is now no less a thorough union city for carpenters despite all the hard times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—We are in need of considerable official supplies. Our Union has taken renewed growth.

SANDUSKY, O., Kansas City, Mo., report carpenter trade improving, with more than sufficient workmen for all jobs.

FAIRMOUNT, W. VA.—Union 428 is far from dead, and notwithstanding the depression we are on the upward tendency.

LUDINGTON, MICH.—We are pushing ahead, and are bound to agitate the union cause. Send us appeals and agitation cards for outsiders.

YONKERS, N. Y.—The last dispensation granted us by the G. S. gained us in one month twenty-one new members. We will gain more.

VINCENNES, IND.—We are getting along first rate. Several new members of late, and old members paying up back dues in cases where they fell behind.

SEATTLE, WASH.—These dull times have stirred up the men to the need of thorough union. A good many will join Union 351 as soon as they get the money.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—Just now a man who lives here and does not belong to the Union might as well crawl off and die, for he can't make a living unless he is a union man.

PATERSON, N. J.—Union 325 initiated twenty-three new members recently. This is due to the dispensation for a reduced initiation fee granted from headquarters recently.

NEWTON, MASS.—On March 21, the three Unions in this district held a mass meeting in City Hall, West Newton. Result: immense gains in membership for all three Unions. Business is now beginning to brighten.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Non-union carpenters are now more in favor of the U. B. since we got our agreement ratified by the bosses this spring. They now promise to join as soon as they have money. If they don't join then they are deep-dyed suckers.

HERE are a few of the Carpenters' Unions which have had new initiations the past month to the number mentioned: Oneonta, N. Y., 33 new members; St. Joseph, Mo., 15; Montreal, Can., 324; Paterson, N. J., 23; Yonkers, N. Y., 21; Chicago, 580; Jacksonville, Ill., 20, and Lynn, Mass., 21.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS.—The contractors are good organizers for us here. They thought they had the men where they could pinch them. A twenty per cent. reduction in wages was to be forced on the men. We called a mass meeting, the carpenters turned out to a man, and are crowding in scores back to the Union. Thirty-five new members in one night. Hurrah for the U. B.!

LOCAL Unions not receiving sufficient journals should drop us a postal as to the number desired.

PASSWORD and blanks for current quarter have been mailed all Locals in good standing. If not received send us a postal.

THE General Executive Board met April 2 and were in session nine days. Next month we will publish their proceedings.

WHY not try and get us an Advertiser in your locality? Do you not know a hardware dealer or business man? Rates furnished by writing this office.

SEND in your ideas on mechanical subjects connected with the trade. Write on one side of the paper only in sending correspondence to this journal.

OUR Indiana Unions are urged to elect delegates to attend the next convention of the Indiana State Federation of Trade and Labor Unions. For particulars address the Secretary, H. E. Crossfield, 723 Chestnut St., Muncie, Ind.

HOLD public meetings, stir up the carpenters to organize, grant liberal terms to ex-members to come in, be active, vigilant and energetic in pushing the movement. Now is the time! The carpenters are once more arousing to the importance of unity.

ON April 2d all the Union bosses in Bangor, Pa., and Battle Creek, Mich., conceded the nine-hour day without a dispute with the men.

THE mill men of Galveston, Tex., have achieved the nine-hour day, and the carpenters of Houston, Tex., have heard from the Builders' Exchange that the latter wishes to have an agreement with union carpenters to get rid of piece workers and jack-leg bosses and recognize union rules.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—The Builders' Exchange has renewed an agreement with us for eight hours a day and union rules until first week in February, 1895. Now we propose, with the help of other Trades Unions here to get the big Milwaukee boss brewers to adopt the same rule on all buildings erected by them.

GENERAL SECRETARY McGuire has been quite ill with influenza and catarrh this whole month past. In fact he has not been free from it save only at odd spells for months back. This has debarred him from travel and public speaking. It has also seriously interfered with his accustomed energy and activity in the performance of his numerous official duties.

O. A. PATTISON, South Bend, Ind., has been commissioned District Organizer of the U. B.

H. J. SKEFFINGTON, Boston, Mass., for a number of years General Secretary of the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union, has been appointed Immigration Officer at the Port of Boston.

L. R. CARL, of Union 453, Auburn, N. Y., delivered a stirring address, April 3, at a public meeting of Carpenters in Rochester, N. Y. As a specimen of the low political morality which Capitalism has brought on us, Brother Carl referred to the name of Breckenridge of Kentucky which was loudly hissed.

IN the interest of carpenter strikes impending, Brother McKAY visited Montreal, Canada, and Brother Kent went to Rochester, N. Y., and Buffalo.

JOHN R. O'DONNELL, an old-time trade unionist, a staunch reliable worker, and a member of Typographical Union No. 6, of New York, is being urged as a Labor candidate for Mayor of that city. We heartily second the choice.

MAJOR MCGOWEN, Union 274, Albany, N. Y., and Mr. J. E. Roach of the Albany Iron Moulders, addressed the carpenters of Schenectady, N. Y., at a rousing meeting, March 19.

ARTHUR VINETTE, formerly Financial Secretary of Union 56, Los Angeles, Cal., for several years, is Commander of the Second Regiment of 300 men of the Industrial Army, which started April 2 from Los Angeles for Washington.

W. J. SHIELDS, Union 33, Boston, Mass., has been accomplishing grand work among our New England Unions. His meetings in Lynn, Mass. and W. Newton were rousers.

THE speech made by Bro. M. L. DELANO at Lynn, Mass., was telling and instructive.

MATTHEW MAGUIRE, a journeyman machinist, editor of the Paterson, N. J., Machinists' Journal, this month was elected on the Socialistic Labor ticket as Alderman of the Eighth ward of Paterson. "Mat." is an old member of the "Spread the Light Club," of Brooklyn, N. Y. L. A. 1562, K. of L., and for several years was Secretary of the Central Labor Union of New York. He has ever been a faithful untiring worker in the cause. Would that we had thousands like him.

TO-MORROW.

High hopes that burned like stars sublime,
Go down the heaven of freedom,
And true hearts perish in the time
We bitterliest need them.
But never sit we down and say
There's nothing left but sorrow;
We walk the wilderness to-day,
The promised land to-morrow.

Our hearts brood o'er the past, our eyes
With smiling futures glisten;
Lo! now its dawn bursts up the sky—
I lean out your souls and listen.
The earth rolls freedom's radiant way,
And ripens with our sorrow;
And 'tis the martyrdom to-day Brings victory to-morrow.

'Tis weary watching wave by wave,
And yet the tide heaves onward;
We climb like corals, grave by grave,
And beat a pathway sunward.
We're beaten back in many a fray,
Yet newer strength we borrow:
And where our vanguard rests to-day
Our rear shall rest to-morrow.

Through all the long, dark night of years,
The people's cry ascended;
The earth was wet with blood and tears
'Ere their weak sufferings ended.
The few shall not forever sway,
The many toil in sorrow;
The bars of hell are strong to-day,
But right shall rule to-morrow.

GERALD MASSEY.

MILLIONAIRES AS VIEWED BY BELLAMY.

If a small boy should be found with a roll of $1,000 in his possession the presumption would be that as he could not possibly have earned so large a sum he must have stolen it, and he would be immediately and unceremoniously taken by the coat collar and made to give an account of how he came by the money. We respectfully submit that when a grown man is found with $1,000,000 in his possession, it is equally safe to assume that he did not come by so large a slice of the national wealth by any proper means, and that society should therefore take him by the scruff of the neck and make him give an account of how he secured what he has. We undertake to say that no man can justify his possession of $1,000,000 on sound ethical grounds. It is as much out of the power of a grown man fairly to earn that sum as it is beyond a boy's power to earn the thousandth part of it.

STAND TO YOUR COLORS.

Trade Unionism may not be exactly what you desire in management, but stand to your colors! It may not be accomplishing results as fast as you desire, but stick to your crowd! Its leaders may not be as brilliant nor do exactly as you wish; but give them your aid and encouragement, and continue to battle for your rights. Nothing of human invention has ever been perfect; nothing ever will; but stick, persevere and be steadfast to the end. It may require personal sacrifice of opinion; but you have done that often for a less worthy cause—stick! It may demand inconvenience and labor of you; but "the gods help only those who help themselves"—work! The enemies of organized labor may try to shake your faith, discourage and demoralize you—be firm and steadfast! Adverse criticism may induce you to lessen your ardor—hold the fort! Let plutocrats, hirelings, the flesh and the devils do all in their power—get together, stick together, fight together and you will rejoice together in the victory. You are bound to win. God is just and the right will prevail.—Weekly Advocate.

POINTERS FOR WAGE-EARNERS.

Did you ever stop to think how people really cared for you, only so long as they can use you to further their own selfish ends?

Did you ever stop to think that society has the same love for you it has for a lemon—to be squeezed until dry and then thrown to the hogs, and a fresh one taken in its place?

Did you ever stop to think that you must be your own captain in the battle of life, and you must carve your own fortune or go without?

Did you ever stop to think that the victory obtained by the forefathers was the result of united action on their part, and that the battle is usually with the strong?

Did you ever stop to think that laboring men, as individuals, are weak, but united in a body they can move the world?

If you have not thought of these things it is time you did. Sit down and do a little reading after your day's work is done, and after you have read for a while, sit still and do a little thinking. Think for yourself; don't allow any one else to do it for you. Think what co-operation has done for the rich men, and you must see what co-operation will do for the poor. Think what nonsense it would be to fight a duel with an opponent—you to use a dirk knife and he a shotgun—distance ten paces. But that is just the way you have been fighting capital, and just so long as you continue the uneven fight, so long will you get the worst of it.—Exchange.

NEARLY EVERYTHING CONTROLLED BY TRUSTS.

A man wakes up in the morning, looks at a watch made by a watch trust, gets up and puts his feet on a carpet made by a carpet trust, takes off his night shirt made by a cotton trust, puts on his drawers and socks made by a woolen trust, puts on his shoes made by a leather trust, washes his face in water furnished by a water trust, in a bowl made by a queensware trust, uses soap made by a soap trust, dries his face and hands on a towel sold by a dry goods trust, puts on a shirt made by the cotton trust, buttons made by a button trust, a suit of clothes made by a clothing trust, and kneels down and puts his trust in the Lord, takes a drink of whisky made by a whisky trust, out of a glass made by a glass trust, and is ready for breakfast. The meal has been prepared on a stove made by a stove trust, with heat from the coal trust, in utensils made by the hardware trust, served in dishes from the queensware, glassware and silverware trusts. He sits down to a table made by the furniture trust, thanks the Lord for all His bountiful mercies, and falls to and eats what is set before him. His wife serves him with coffee, the price of which is fixed by the coffee trust, sweetened with sugar made by the sugar trust, oatmeal from the oats trust, bread from the flour trust, crackers from the cracker trust, and beefsteak from the big four combine. He rises from the table, puts on his trust overcoat, and trust hat, and rubber trust overshoes, kisses the only woman he can trust, steps out on a porch furnished by the lumber trust, and goes forth to skin his fellow-man, and trusts to luck to get trusted for something to eat for his dinner.—The Toiler.

IT IS NOT A GOOD THING

To discuss union business in public places.

To oust an efficient officer "just for a change."

To lose an opportunity of strengthening the Union.

To attempt the solution of business problems on a sentimental basis.

To assist in the election of a good though incompetent fellow to office.

To withhold support from entertainments designed to benefit the Union.

To subordinate the welfare of all to the prejudices of one in determining union questions.

To begrudge union dues while uncomplainingly squandering thrice the amount in a questionable manner.

To refuse to recognize actual conditions basing action on what should be rather than what is.

To permit religious, political or other extraneous influences to sway one in the selection of officials or determining any union question.—The Journal.

TRULY A STARTLING STATEMENT.

Here is a multi-millionaire whose annual income requires the labor for one year of 1,000 men to produce. Here is another whose income requires the labor of 10,000 men. And there is another whose annual income requires the annual labor of 20,000 men. There are in this land of the free and home of the brave about thirty thousand multi-millionaires whose profits necessitate the labor of every workingman, woman and child within its borders. Any society which will permit such an appalling condition in their domestic affairs cannot be civilized, let alone Christianized. The man who does not cry out against unlimited property rights, either wears a number 5 hat and a number 13 boot, or else he has a heart the size of a flax seed. In either event there is nothing manly, honest, or good about him that predominates.—Western Laborer.

CERTIFICATES OF COMPETENCY.

Trades unions are accused of inhumanity because they strive to cut off from the means of earning a livelihood tradesmen and other workers who do not belong to the unions. But do not the "learned professions" do the same thing? A man is not allowed to earn a livelihood by the practice of law unless he has been formally made a member of the bar. A physician is not permitted to practice the art of healing unless he can show a diploma from some approved medical school. A preacher is refused license to minister in the churches of any denomination unless he has been duly authorized by the church authorities. In other callings there is a like exclusion of persons who have not been authorized to perform certain functions. A candidate for the office of teacher in our public schools is rejected without examination if he cannot show his license to teach. And the law of the State enforces the restrictive rules in all these cases, save perhaps in that of the unqualified religious teacher, pains and penalties being available when required. But the trades union has no countenance of the law for the enforcement of its rules as to the exclusion of non-unionists from trade occupations. Indeed, trades unionism has only grudgingly been allowed by the law, and there remain many traces of the ancient statutes which punished with fine, imprisonment and flogging tradesmen or laborers who presumed to form combinations for self-defense against employers.—Twentieth Century.

PROTECTIVE FUND.

Below is a report of all the Protective Fund received by the G. S. during the month of February, 1894.

All moneys received since February 28, will be published in next month's CARPENTER. Whenever any error appears notify the G. S.

MECHANICAL

HIP AND VALLEY ROOFS OF UNEQUAL PITCH.

BY OWEN B. MAGINNIS

Fig. 1 is the projection of the roofs completed, and it will be noticed that they are of different pitches and widths. A B C D E F G M H K I J, Fig. 3, is the plan of the building. A B is a gable end, and A N is the length of the common rafter; also D E is a gable end. D O being the length of the common rafter each has a ridge L N X and P O Y. The main roof is hipped, having four principal hip rafters with jacks. The intersection of each of the L's on the building with or rather in the main roof gives three valley rafters and creates the framing problem which is to be worked out.

Proceed to lay out the plan of the plates, hips, valleys and ridges as shown on Fig. 2 and join I G and H Q giving the peak R; also draw the dotted lines K R F and M R X in Fig. 3. To obtain the length of the main hip rafters square up from R and set off on the square line the pitch height R C equal to E T. Join H S which will be the exact length of the hip rafter, with the bevel S for the top cut and the bevel H for the bottom cut.

To find the lengths of the jacks set a pair of compasses or a rod at H and with H S as radius sweep the arc S V. Join V where the arc cuts the line R F and H, also draw the jack rafters square to the plate K H until they reach the line V H, and this line will determine their length and the bevel U will be the cut across the top of each against the hip, that at I being the plumb cut. Reverse cuts are made to go against the hip I R and G R, from the plates K I and G F.

To find the lengths of the jacks placed on the plate G M H, proceed to raise up from R square to G R, the pitch R Z; join Z G and with G as centre and radius G Z sweep the arc Z X, cutting M R N L in X; join X G. Set off the jack rafters

L N and drawing out square as 1, 2. The point 2 will be the point where the ridge L N will enter the main roof. This must be transferred over to cut the ridge X; and J X, C X will be the seats of the valleys.

FIG. 1—ELEVATION OF ROOF.

To find the valley rafters, square up from X, which will be the line X 5, on it set off the pitch N L, and join J 5 which will be the exact length of the valley rafter with the top and bottom bevels as indicated on the diagram. It will be here seen that I have prolonged one valley from X till it cuts the centre line of the main roof, and at the point where it cuts raised up the whole pitch of

FIG. 2—PLAN OF ROOF.

T E, as 6 A. This is done for the purpose of determining the lengths of the jack rafters, and is necessary to find the angle. C 6 F is the angle. To find the short jacks reaching from the hip Q R to the valley C X, join C F and divide it into two equal parts as 6 7. Now with C as centre and C 4 as radius, sweep the arc 4 8, cutting 7 6, produced at 8 and join C 8; next draw the jack rafters from R Q to the dotted line C 8, which will be their lengths and the bottom cuts across the top edge of each jack, nailing against the valley rafter 6 C, will be the bevel 9.

The jacks from the ridge L N X to the valley J X, are found similarly by setting the compasses to radius J 5 and sweeping the arc, cutting the line X R; in the manner shown, reaching from the plate G M H to the line G X and their lengths will be thus found. The bevel W will be the cut across the top edges of jacks in getting the cut to fit against the hip. It will also be the bevel reversed on the opposite to fit against the hips standing over Q R and R I.

In framing the valleys to stand over the seats X C and X J, first find out where the ridge will penetrate the main roof. This may be simply done by setting off on the line E T, the half pitch height then by joining this point with J by the dotted line seen to the left of the valley, the jacks may be drawn as before.

For the valley F Y raise up square from Y the pitch Y Y equal to P O, and join Y F for the length of valley. The jacks are found by the process described before and the bevels are clearly seen. Each hip and valley rafter should be gotten out separately to avoid confusion, and the diagram closely studied as the system is simple and easily understood.

However should there be anything not readily grasped, I will be pleased to make it clear to anyone who may write for further information.

THE CARPENTER

CO-OPERATIVE COLONIZATION.

By the tone and drift of our journal, THE CARPENTER, it is evident that necessity has forced us all to a more "radical" way of thinking. Organization to-day has dormant powers within it, on one branch of which I wish to make a few remarks, hoping to enlist your favorable co-operation. A plan of procedure is already in operation by which workers of all branches of industry are united in an effort to bring about the co-operative commonwealth.

A society in Australia has acquired land in South America, and engages in taking families of workers, that have passed a proper examination as to "fitness" to co-operate, in their own ship to the place. The co-operator has by his own means, or the advance of his organization $300 as a means of employment, consisting of either cash, tools, machinery or furniture, or part of one or all.

What has been undertaken by them with the aid of rules governing them, is also feasible right here, on the following plan: To establish a colony of 100 workers where a miniature business world is reproduced, there are required about 30 farmers and 70 tradesmen of various description. By using the unit of a day for a day as a means of exchange for all workers, and equal rights to all, with one vote and one share, the means of employment can be doubled every six months. So that, after getting the first co-operators started, the number of co-operators can be doubled every six months by their own exertion, and by others to come in on their capital, which is their labor. For example, there are called for, say five carpenters beginning so that by capitalizing the first five men or families, say with $1500 by the carpenters' organization, in five years they have had the privilege of getting 5120 on an independent self-supporting basis, thereby not only relieving the labor market of the many made superfluous by the labor-saving machinery being private property, but will teach a wholesome lesson of how to live humane, and incidentally break the back of the greed of private capitalism, that is wiping out the bloom of American manhood and womanhood.

MONTHS. FIVE YEARS.

5 | 6 | 12 | 18 | 24 | 30 | 36 | 42 | 48 | 54 | 60
10 | 20 | 40 | 80 | 160 | 320 | 640 | 1280 | 2560 | 5120

In a space of less than ten years we will have passed through the most complete evolution, from beastly competition to an era of a higher civilization, where no poor and suffering are used to produce rent, profit and interest for deadly drones, where ignorance is the result of laziness, where labor is a pastime, where greed and want are unknown to the useful members of society, where art and science will be on such a high and better plane, that we can have but dim conception of, where justice holds full sway, where cranks are no more, for ignorance and prejudice are at an end, for the love of money is no more; where we can look back and compare the present, the giant engine of progress and emancipation from wage-slavery as the product of intelligence and courage brought about by co-operation, with the past, where the product of labor was a curse, because of private ownership of the means of production and the ignorance and selfishness of mankind.

I venture to say, that one co-operative colony of 100 to start with, can in three years build co-operative railroads, and as a consequence be able to run out of existence every private profit concern, because men will not work for another's profit, if they can be owners themselves, and then a railroad will be but an elephant on the hands of stockholders, and of no value until the people take it in hand. This is one of the dormant qualities of organization, and should be discussed, understood and acted on at the earliest opportunity.

Fraternally yours,

GEO. RUDY.

GENERAL GOSSIP ON MANY POINTS.

MR. EDITOR:—Members are invited to discuss labor questions and the good of the U. B., I therefore need make no apology for using a limited space in the journal.

In the February issue under "Discuss Social Problems," the intention of electing members of Congress and the Senate from our own ranks is well meant and strictly proper. And further under the same head it is argued we can do so if we only get the members of our Unions educated as to their true duty to themselves and their offspring. Then we shall not have labored in vain. Now just here is the vital point: How can we educate the members to comprehend their duties? Can we elect men to public office who have no knowledge of the history of our country, its constitution and laws, and who have not a fair share of education?

The autocrat and millionaire has not naturally any better opportunities than those less wealthy. But, early in his career he finds out by instinct or is taught the advantage of an education, which he soon acquires by diligence and often by self-denial. He knows there is room on top and does not miscalculate the distance from below. Further I find that when a young man, who has a moderate education and shows some ambition to excel or teach others, especially the older men (who by the way have learned everything and have left nothing worth knowing for anyone else to learn) something, which they have never used, seen or ever heard of before, he (the young man) is at once called down and ridiculed. Can learning be disseminated in this way, to morally elevate a large class of men?

Can we cure this evil by compulsory education or letting everything take its own course? Shall we allow small boys and girls to work as soon as they can keep in balance on their feet; or will we send them to school, and see that they attend, until they are able to think and act for themselves, and not be sent to work until fully sixteen (16) years of age and forbid the hiring of children under that age? This is something which ought to receive more attention. We will not have labored in vain when all are alike educated. Thanks to the public schools and Guttenberg and his disciples that learning may be so readily diffused.

In regard to the communication from Santa Barbara, Cal., as to Chinese Labor everybody must admit the facts stated. But we cannot tolerate class legislation even to foreigners or unnaturalized citizens. We must treat all alike. We can refuse a landing to all who can not read and write the Roman or English (as we have adopted the Roman) characters in their own language at least. And further to also refuse a landing to such as come to this country to live, or exist as in many cases, and hoard away their earnings to leave us again, to live in some other country on the wealth they have accumulated here. This class is not confined to the Chinese. Let us welcome those who come with the honest intention to become loyal law abiding, peaceable and worthy citizens of this republic, without regard to nationality or color.

If our members have followed reading "A Rough Sketch of a Rough Struggle" it will be noticed that workmen have been at all times and are now the flower of a nation. To make workmen loyal to their country as well as to their own kind is to perpetuate "a Government by the people and for the people." Thus we see we are back again to electing members of Congress and Senate from our own ranks.

I am glad to note "A Word to Workers" from a "Mechanic" in February's issue, and only feel sorry that it will not be heeded as it ought to be. Let this not discourage a "Mechanic," for the only way to accomplish anything is by keeping at it.

Before I conclude I must ask all workmen to stay true to the cause of trade unionism, for only a firm determination will lead us to victory. In the language of an old poem, "The Will and the Way:"

There was a noble Roman
In Rome's imperial day,
Who heard a coward croaker
Before the battle say:
"They're safe in such a fortress;
There is no way to take it."
"On! On!" our hero cried:
"I'll find a way or make it."

OPEN YOUR DOORS FOR PUBLIC DISCUSSION.

The history of our labor conferences at Colorado Springs and the lessons therefrom, and the part played in them by Union No. 515, of Colorado Springs, Col., may prove a useful lesson for the readers of THE CARPENTER.

The first public labor conference was called by the Carpenters' Union of that city, and after an interval of more than a year the Trades Assembly invited all of the city clergy to deliver a sermon from their pulpits on the Labor Problem, most of whom readily complied.

Some months later, in the autumn of 1892, the Rev. Mr. Carrington delivered an address before the Ministers' Association on "The Attitude of the Christian Ministry toward the Leaders of Secular Thought," with special reference to those in the domain of social and industrial reform.

A committee of two—the Revs. Messrs. Carrington and Kieffer—were at once appointed by the association to request the Trades Assembly to give the ministers of the city an opportunity to hear some of its debates. This action, which was taken, in part at least, to return the compliment paid the clergy by the Trades Assembly in inviting them to preach on the labor problem, was cordially reciprocated by the assembly, and an invitation was heartily extended to the ministers to attend its fortnightly meetings.

At least seven of the clergy then residing in the city accepted the invitation and attended some of the meetings.

It was then decided in March a year ago to hold a series of labor conferences every two months, and a committee consisting of a representative of each labor union in affiliation with the Trades Assembly and four clergymen—the Rev. Messrs. Carrington, Kieffer, Tucker and Bull, was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

In the meantime an anniversary banquet was given by the Carpenters' Union, and all of the clergy were invited to be present, several of them accepting the invitation.

In the latter part of April the first in this series of Labor conferences was held in Durkee Hall—the subject of discussion being—"The Ethics of Unionism and Non-Unionism," and opened by the Rev. Dr. Montague and the Rev. Mr. Carrington, and participated in by some of the professional men and mechanics present.

On the 29th of July the second conference was held under the auspices of the Summer school, at which Professor Richard T. Ely, Ph. D., delivered an address on "Natural Monopolies."

The third and last of these conferences was held on Oct. 20th in Weber hall—the subject of debate, "What Methods are Necessary to the Solution of Our Present Industrial Problems?" Mr. I. N. Corbin of Denver, the editor of the Union Pacific employees' magazine, and the Hon. Owen Prentiss of Cripple Creek opening the discussion, followed by seven other speakers—the Messrs. Thornton, Silverberg and Scott, the Rev. Drs. Gregg and Slocum, Mr. Ehrich and the Rev. Mr. Kieffer, in the order named.

It is unnecessary to refer to all these events further than to call attention to the unusual sight and the significance of the fact that there were met together on a common platform for a frank and intelligent discussion of the leading issues of the day, the Knight of Labor and the employer, the Christian Socialist and the Philosophic Anarchist, the clergyman and the lawyer, the capitalist and the wage-earner, the professor and the farmer—that not a word was uttered to mar the harmony of the meeting, and but little said that was not endorsed by almost all present.

Furthermore not a bitter or unkind word was spoken against either the capitalist or employer, although two speakers—the one the member of a prominent labor organization and the other an employer—did allude to what they considered the evils incident to the present system of organized labor.

As to the lessons taught by these various conferences.

In the first place they show how eager and anxious the union laboring men of this locality—men as a body more strongly influenced by a sense of justice towards their employers it would be hard to find anywhere as I know from actual contact and personal knowledge—are to meet the non-wage-earning class for the discussion of questions of vital interest to both classes and concerning which there is a sincere and widespread difference of opinion. For these conferences were inaugurated by the workingmen in conjunction with a few clergymen who sympathized with their aim and object; the Rev. Mr. Carrington, earnestly seconded by the Rev. Professor Tucker, having first suggested the idea.

The expense of these meetings comes out of the pockets of the workingmen themselves.

In the second place they reveal the fact, long since recognized by the writer, that many intelligent wage-earners have broader and wiser views on the labor problem and a truer conception of what is needed to solve it than a large majority of the capitalists and employers, including those we term the educated classes, and that these classes have much to learn from as well as, if you will, much to impart to the working classes.

Thirdly, they provide an opportunity for the Christian Church, and especially

BEVELING HIP RAFTERS.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 10, 1894.

For some months past I have noticed some very sad mistakes—to put it mildly—sent to your valuable little paper by some members of our Brotherhood. I think when a brother undertakes to enlighten an apprentice or improve he should do so in the simplest manner possible. In January issue I noticed two diagrams showing the method of beveling hip rafters, and though having a fair knowledge of six books of Euclid, I confess that those diagrams are Greek to me.

I honestly believe that if the brothers should ask the apprentice or improve about the generation of the hyperbolic paraboloid he could as easily answer it as he could solve the problem of these two diagrams. For instance, Bro. McKinlay scoffs at old-time style. He forgets that many hundred generations are past and gone since Euclid demonstrated problems that are beyond the comprehension of nine-tenths of the present generation. He also forgets that the different styles of architecture such as the Gothic, Doric, Corinthian, etc., are old styles and new at the same time.

To return to the hip beveling, I enclose the above old style and at the same time very simple diagram, showing the method of beveling hips which I am confident is within the comprehension of the youngest apprentice.

Yours fraternally,

J. C. MOLLOY.

BATH-ROOM WORK.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 28, 1894.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

1 IN. TO 1 FOOT.

In looking over the January issue of the CARPENTER I noticed on page 3 under the heading "Bath-room Wood work," some perforated seats, of which the construction is all right, but the shape of the perforation I do not like. Enclosed find a sketch of my method of laying out one.

ADAM C. HAROLD.

FRAMING HIP RAFTERS.

LAWRENCE, MASS., Jan. 19, '94.

To the Editor of the CARPENTER:

In looking over the January issue of your paper I notice on page 3 a communication and diagram under the heading of "Framing Hip Rafters" by Bro. Ross, of Dayton, Ky., and another by Bro. McKinlay, of Union 62, Englewood, Ill.

Now as Bro. McKinlay is speaking about learners I send this diagram for their interest, as I think they will find it more easy to understand than Bro. McKinlay's Fig. 1 or Fig. 2 in the January CARPENTER.

Let A B be half the width of the building and B D the run of hip. Take A D for the radius and strike the plate E. E F will be the rise of the rafter; E G will be the run of rafter. From G F lay out the main rafter; from B F lay out the hip rafter, leaving the same depth over the notch of the hip as over the notch of the main rafter. To get the backing of the hip take the piece cut out of the hip rafter at the plate, leave the long cut on any square corner and mark it underneath. Now set a bevel to the lines of the piece and longer still be the backing no matter what the run or rise is. The length of the hip rafter wants to be half of the width of the cut at the ridge longer. Take the thickness of the hip rafter for the cut to strike the ridge pole; mark it parallel with the down cut, now set a bevel to the outside corner which is the cut.

Yours truly,

JAMES ECCLES.

Union 111, Lawrence, Mass.

THE firm of PACKARD & RONEY who claim to be contractors and builders in Hot Springs, Ark., are a very unfair concern. They take work at such low figures that it is impossible for them to pay union wages. They also take sub-contracts and let out work by price in an endeavor to come out even. Both Packard and Roney were members of 469 until last fall when they withdrew. They made the Union some very fine promises when they withdrew which they have so far failed to fulfil. Union 469 is doing its best to down piece-work.

FRED. R. MEYERS, a contractor in Tarrytown, N. Y., has victimized members of the U. B. of wages due. He is taking work at half-price and then cheating everybody out of wages honestly due.

THE Gutzkow BROTHERS, contractors and carpenters, Milwaukee, Wis., do planing mill work and factory work and ship considerable of their goods to other cities. This firm is a big scab concern. We warn union carpenters everywhere not to use any material from this firm.

A. N. GUTTERMUTH, Rochester, Pa.—Would it not be a good idea to get up a bill and present it to Congress and the United States Senate, making eight hours a day's labor and have it become the law of the land? In my opinion that is the only way we can reach the eight-hour day.

ANSWER.—Congressmen are too busy taking care of capitalists' interests to bother their heads about any desires of workingmen. They are tinkering with the tariff and squeezing our currency down to a single standard contraction basis. The very stringent Eight-hour law now on the statute books of the United States is violated right and left by Department officials. These violations were brought last year and again quite recently to the attention of the Administration, but nothing is done to right these violations. To ask the Federal Government to recognize Labor interests will amount to naught until Labor unites and takes complete charge of the Government.

O. L. LINTZ, Oneonta, N. Y.—There are some changes that ought to be made at the next Convention, and one is the limit of age. I think 50 years bars out a good many very good men, especially in smaller towns. We have here several men that are 50 years and up to 55 years that are first-class men, but it is hard work to induce them to join our Union as they are debarred from full benefits. In large cities the 50-year limit no doubt is a benefit to the organization.

ANSWER.—The 50 year limit of age is set to protect our funds from being drained too heavily by our benefits. Very few fraternal or benevolent societies admit persons over 50 unless the candidate pays a large initiation fee as a premium, and then it is graded in most cases in proportion to age. The Amalgamated Carpenters set the limit at 40. Under our laws, a man over 50 when he joins is entitled to an allowance of $50 funeral benefit.

W. C. CHILCOAT, Corsicana, Tex.—If a member paid his dues for December 1893, would he be three months in arrears March 1, 1894?

ANSWER.—No; he would not be three months in arrears until April 1, 1894. Then he would owe dues for January, February and March.

MANY CORRESPONDENTS.—We have not received any acknowledgment for our Fin. Sec'y report.

ANSWER.—When a F. S. report is sent in with remittance of money for tax, we invariably acknowledge receipt of the report. Otherwise we do not. From time to time, however, we will hereafter publish a list of all Fin. Sec. who fail to send reports on time.

L. M., BELLEVILLE, ILL.—Can we place THE CARPENTER on file in our city library or public reading room, and is it advisable to place the journal in the hands of non-union carpenters?

ANSWER.—To both queries we unhesitatingly say. Yes.

It suits a tyranny to reduce its subjects to poverty.—Aristotle.

GRAND WORK IN COLORADO SPRINGS.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL.—Rev. Wm. L. Bull came to this place in 1890, and in a short time was known to all labor men as a staunch, true trade union advocate in every respect. That fall he returned again to his home near Philadelphia and again came here in November 1892, and was a resident here for fully a year. It was due to his efforts that the Trades Assembly of this city invited the Ministers' Association and the latter sent four delegates to our Trades Assembly. The Rev. Drs. Carrington, Kiefer, Tucker and Bull were the delegates. The Rev. Mr. Bull is an honorary member of Carpenters Union, No. 515.

It is due to Brother Bull that such a strong union sentiment prevails in this community. Public opinion is being moulded at public meetings. Theories, however just and righteous, will never be shaped into practical results except public opinion is first educated and moulded up to a proper standard of justice and righteousness. Public opinion and sentiment are too often neglected and overlooked in the study of economic questions. These are factors that should not be overlooked; and furthermore can not be forced nor developed at a moment's notice, but must grow, slowly, steady and sure, and be cultivated rightly and nourished by substantial arguments and kind words.

This is the kind of seed Brother Bull has sown, and is already bearing fruit, inasmuch as this town during the late business depression has upheld union wages and hours, although work is scarce, perhaps not half of the members of 515 employed.

No. 515 recognizing the value of these services, and being anxious to tender Brother Bull a token of its recognition of his merits and practical work, presented him, prior to his departure from this city, an autograph album containing a set of resolutions with the signature of officers and seal of Union attached, besides the members individually leaving their well wishes and signatures on the different pages.

The Rev. Mr. Bull was also presented with a neat gavel, the handiwork of Brother E. H. Taylor, and our former brother, now contractor, Peter Schmitt, ingeniously devised and skilfully executed, consisting of 285 pieces of different kinds of wood. After the presentation a number of short speeches were made.

Last winter Mr. L. R. Ehrick and the Rev. Buchanan Riley visited Union 515 and addressed a largely attended meeting. The former is a heavy land owner and speculator converted to the theory of single tax, as well as being convinced that our present social and industrial system is morally wrong. The latter is at present in charge of Rev. Kiefer's church. The Rev. W. S. Priest of the First Christian Church, and other clergymen have given us good labor sermons this winter. This shows we are pushing ahead here in the "Wild and Woolly West."

A CORRECTION MADE.

In January issue we published an item that the National Furniture Workers' Union had placed a boycott on the firm of Brunswick, Balke & Collender. Carpenters' Union 620, Stamford, Conn., assures us that the firm has adhered to the nine-hour day in its factory in Stamford, Conn., ever since it made an agreement to that effect with Union 620. And further it is the only wood-working firm in Stamford which observes the rule of nine hours a day and eight hours Saturdays.

BRITISH WORKMAN'S BALLAD.

George R. Sims has written a satirical poem dealing with the English elections and the workmen. The verses form a parody on Kipling's "Tommy Atkins." These are the lines:

I walked in a percesshin with a banner and a band,
And they said I was a noosance in 'Igh 'Olborn and the Strand;
I spouted at a meeting which was in Trafalgar square,
But they sent the slops to charge me and to clear me out of there.

Oh, it's "Dammygog" and "Sochulist," and "Damn the lazy lout,"
But it's "Bless the British workman" with the ballot box about.
The ballot box about, my lads, the ballot box about;
Oh, it's "Bless the British workman," with the ballot box about.

I struck for better wages, and they said I was a fool,
A d the crafty hagitat'r merely used me as a tool;
And when the kids was starving and we hadn't sup nor bite,
They only shrugged their shoulders, and they said it sarved me right.

For it's "Ruin to the country," and it's wickedness and crime,
But it's "Sacred rights o' labor" just about election time.
Just about election time, my lads, just about
election time;
Oh, it's "Sacred rights o' labor" just about election time.

I'm lazy and I'm 'ulking, and a noosance and a cooss,
And I sits on trade and commerce like a blessed inkybus,
I'm a-draggin down the hempire and a swelling of the rates,
And a 'orny 'anded 'umbug what the hupper classes 'ates.

For it's "Workin' men are duffers," and "They're never worth a groat," But it's "British bone and sinew" when they wants your blooming vote.
They wants your blooming vote, my lads, they wants your blooming v. te;
Oh, it's "British bone and sinew" when they wants your blooming vote.

A ROUGH SKETCH OF A ROUGH STRUGGLE.

BY HUGH MCGREGOR.

HE number of communes established from the eleventh to the thirteenth century was very great, but they were not all of them instituted so peacefully as that of Noyon, nor when instituted were they maintained without the expenditure of much blood and treasure. A striking illustration of the strength and tenacity displayed in defence of the recommencement of trade unionism is to be found in the struggle to maintain the commune of Laon; a struggle fraught with incidents of most thrilling interest, extending over a period of 189 years. Laon was an episcopal city, whose bishop was one of the six ecclesiastical peers of France. The bishop, named Gaudri, had been one of the Norman conquerors of England, but having obtained the appointment to the See of Laon, he recrossed the Straits of Dover and took possession of his rich benefice in 1106.

Strange stories are told of Gaudri, who appears to have been more fitted for a soldier than a priest. It is said that in imitation of semi-barbarous crusaders he kept a black slave whom he employed in deeds of vengeance. He is accused of putting out the eyes of a serf on suspicion of his having agitated among his fellows for a bettering of their condition and of conniving at the murder of another in the very cathedral.

The serfs of the town soon began to manifest discontent with their new master, and during the absence of the bishop, while on a visit to England, they offered the clergy and knights who ruled in his stead a large sum of money to grant them a charter. An agreement was arrived at and a commune similar to that of Noyon was proclaimed at Laon. When the bishop heard of this he was very wroth, but the serfs managed to raise such a large sum of money for his benefit that his anger was appeased. The bishop then accepted the commune and swore upon the gospels to respect it. Following the precedent set by the good bishop of Noyon, the king was requested to affix the great seal of the crown to the charter; which he did, upon receipt of a rich present and a promise of sixty livres to be paid him every year.

For three years the new citizens of Laon were happy and proud of the freedom they had purchased. But in the spring of 1112, the bishop invited the king to Laon to keep Easter. The citizens however, found cause for suspicion in this visit, and mistrusting the sincerity of their bishop, they augered danger to their newly acquired liberties therefrom. So, upon the arrival of the king, they presented him with a magnificent purse of 400 livres, thinking to impress him with the fact that he had more to hope from the generosity of freemen than from the taxes wrung from unwilling serfs. The bishop, on his part, who probably knew the king's nature better than the citizens, made no present to the king, but promised him in the near future, the sum of 700 livres, in case of a certain arrangement. The cupidity of Louis the Fat was unable to resist the tempting bait though it involved his knightly honor. Accordingly, the charter bearing the seal of the crown was annulled, and the solemn oath of the bishop was violated. An order of the bishop and the king was issued for the magistrates to give up the seal and banner of the commune, to take down the great bell that rang out the opening and closing of the normal work-day and of the citizens' meetings and when this had been done the magistrates were to cease their functions forever.

When the heralds proclaimed this joint episcopal and royal order in the market place on the great plaza of the cathedral, the sullen silence with which the citizens received the proclamation alarmed the king. At nightfall he quit the hotel where he was lodged and sought refuge in the episcopal palace. But whether he mistrusted the strength of the palace wall, or was ashamed of his treacherous conduct, he left Laon before daybreak, with all his train, without waiting for the celebration of Easter Day and its message of "peace on earth and good will to man."

After the departure of the king no citizens appeared on the streets and the taverns remained closed; everybody was shut up at home. The solemn Easter procession passed through deserted streets. The next day the usual procession to the church of St. Vincent was protected by a body of knights who wore armor under their robes. The following day a rumor spread that the bishops and knights were calculating how much each serf had paid for the establishment of the commune and how much could be exacted from them to supply the sum promised to the king for the annullment of the charter. The citizens yet remained shut up in their homes, no shops were opened and no sound of a tool could be heard in the city. But by this time the bishop felt so re-assured that he dismissed the force of serfs that he had summoned from his domains for the protection of the palace. Guibert, the bishop of Nogent, who tells the story of Laon, says: "I repaired to the bishop's palace and prayed him to beware of violence.

"What do you suppose," said he to me, "those fellows can do with all their outbreaks? Why, if my blackamoor John were to pull the nose of the boldest of them, the poor devil dare not even grumble. Have I not forced them to give up what they call their commune?"

Three days later the bishop with his archdeacon, Anselm—who, by the way, was born a serf, and was sorely grieved by the bishop's perjury—were engaged in discussing the amounts to be levied upon the citizens. All at once they were startled by the tramp of bands of townsmen, armed with bows, lances, swords, axes, hammers and clubs, who were marching to the assault of the palace. A band of knights in full armor charged the mustering forces, but although they did some execution, they were soon pulled from their horses, and being unable to rise from the weight of their armor, were speedily dispatched. The palace walls were stormed; and the bishop taking advantage of a subterranean passage fled from the palace, which was now in flames.

At this juncture there appeared upon the scene a man of gigantic frame armed with a formidable pole-axe. He was soon recognized as a serf of the domain, who some years before had resisted punishment, and escaping to the forest had from that time led the life of a bold outlaw. "The Wolf! The Wolf!" was the cry that greeted the outlaw as he led the burghers toward the cathedral. The new leader ordered the insurgents to search every bin and sound every cask in the cathedral vaults. One of the casks standing on end rang hollow under the blows that were rained upon them. It was forthwith overturned and a figure clad in a serf's smock was discerned in the dim light of the vault. "Who have we here?" cried the outlaw, forcing his way to the centre of the throng. "Only a poor serf imprisoned here," was the faltering reply of the trembling wretch. "Ha! ha!" exclaimed the forester, as he caught the figure by the hair and turned the face toward the light, "so it is you, Gaudri, you who made me a wolf!" The bishop clasped the knees of the outlaw and begged him to spare his life, offering to swear on the gospels, to abdicate the bishopric, to give the citizens all the money he possessed and return to England, if they so desired. "Thy oath upon the gospels!" cried the enraged insurgents, "Didst thou not swear on all the gospels to defend the Commune of Laon?"

The archdeacon Anselm went the next day to beg of the insurgents permission to bury the body, if only because it had once borne the title and insignia of bishop. The corpse was hastily buried, but at church there was performed none of the rites prescribed for one of his exalted rank.

The assassination of Bishop Gaudri resounded throughout Europe. The king of France took the field with all the forces he could induce to follow him. Terrible were the threats of vengeance levelled against all who were concerned in the revolt. But repressive measures and fulminations did not have the expected result, for in 1128 the Commune of Laon was recognized by a general assembly of the lords and clergy, and the king, Louis the Fat, again ratified the charter he had annulled.

The city of Laon was not yet out of her troubles, but the charter of the Commune of Laon had as many imitators in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries as the constitutional and parliamentary institutions of England and America have had in the nineteenth. And now having traced the general movement for personal freedom, we must turn our attention to the special organization of the several trade unions.

VII.—THE MEDIEVAL UNIONS.

EVEN hundred years of time and toil, from the fifth to the twelfth century, were required before

Western Europe sufficiently recovered from the effects of the invasions to recommence emancipations, to re-establish municipal liberty, and to extend the voluntary organization of labor. We have already traced the process by which slavery was merged into serfdom. How the rural serfs individually acquired fixed tenure of the lands they cultivated. How they gradually commuted the produce tax and then the labor into the money payment called "rent." We have also seen how by the formation of communes the urban serfs collectively acquired freedom, and gained with the old freedmen the privilege of municipal self-government. Therefore it is now in order to investigate the extent and character of the trade unions at this period of their evolution.

Just as we are indebted to the national archives of France for the oldest and most precise record concerning serfdom, so we are indebted to the same valuable source for the oldest and most complete record of the unions that everywhere in the Middle Ages succeeded and superseded the Roman unions. In the year 1258, Saint Louis, Viscount of Paris, and King of France, ordered his provost, Etienne Boileau, to make an official investigation of the customs of the Parisian trade unions. The investigation thus ordered occupied the nine years from 1258 to 1267. The result of this vast inquiry was the compilation of a "register of the trades and merchandise of the city of Paris," containing the traditional rules and customs of one hundred unions of as many trades and occupations existing in that city, which were then committed to writing probably for the first time.

The building trades are credited with no more than four unions, viz.: the masons, stonecutters and plasterers, carpenters, and painters.

The wood-workers, other than the carpenters, have five unions; the carvers of images of the saints, writing-desk makers, box and case makers, saddle-tree makers and coopers.

The leather-workers appear with eleven unions: the tanners, curriers, saddlers, harness makers, Saracen tapestry makers, scabbard makers, purse makers, gloves, boot makers, shoe and slipper makers, and cobblers.

The textile trades are represented by thirteen unions: the fullers, dyers, heavy silk and light silk spinners, woolen, silk, silk tissue, tapestry, thread and silk net, and thread and silk fringe weavers, hemp and thread, linen and canvas merchants.

The clothing trades, other than those given in leather-workers, have eighteen unions: the silk and velvet drapers, mercers, tailors, breeches makers, hosiers, furriers, felt hatters, cotton hatters, cap or bonnet makers, feather head-dress makers, flower head-dress makers, artificial flower makers, shoe-buckle makers, coral bead makers, amber and jet bead makers, bone bead makers, button makers and pin makers.

The metal-workers are well to the front with twenty-five unions: the armors, cross bow makers, furbishers of arms, blacksmiths and iron-workers, nailers, farriers, locksmiths, edge-tool makers, cutlers, horse bit makers, dish and cup makers, lamp makers, brass founders, lead and tin casters, tin plate

But the greenbacks do not drain the people of their substance in the shape of interest, while the bank notes do, eh? Thus making it harder for the people to meet their obligations. This a great system.—Tacoma Sun.

PHILADELPHIA, APRIL, 1894.

THE COKERS' strike in Pennsylvania still wends along its track of riot and wild fury! Now the cheap labor operators and coke companies are getting their costly dose. Wild, lawless men, imported here some years ago by the coke syndicate, are not so very tractable. Disorganized, frenzied mobs run rampant. With organized trade unionists it is not thus.

WORKINGMEN everywhere, and carpenters in particular, have had a costly and impressive lesson the past nine or ten months as to the value of organized effort in upholding wages. Wherever they have neglected their Unions or let them lapse wages have fallen 20 to 25 per cent. They are hopelessly down at the mercy of greedy or short-sighted bosses.

FOR THE past month we have granted charters to eleven new Unions, viz: Union No. 317, Evanston, consolidated, 723, Newark, N. J. (German); 726, Yonkers, N. Y.; 730, Lake View, Chicago; 741, Jefferson, Chicago; 745, Mt. Washington, O.; 748, La Grange, Tex.; 752, Monmouth, Ill.; 757, Taylor, Pa.; 760, Grand Rapids, Mich.; 763, Camden, Ark.

TOWNS WHERE CARPENTERS ARE ABUNDANT AND WORK SCARCE.

We are informed that the crowding in of travelling unemployed carpenters has been very hard the past year in many towns. But it has been particularly severe in Louisville, Ky.; New Orleans, La.; Syracuse, N. Y.; East St. Louis, Ill.; Johnstown, Pa.; Bridgeport, Conn.; Helena, Mont.; Savannah, Ga.; Salt Lake City, Utah; E. Liverpool, O.; Springfield, Mo.; Shreveport, La.; Williamsport, Pa., and Shelbyville, Ind.

To start and publish all the towns and cities that are in the condition named above, to suit some it would be best for us to print the entire map of the United States and Canadas. But we forbear, as there are numbers of places where work is improving and the building trades are assuming a livelier and more welcome activity.

Of course in the larger cities, where structural iron now enters largely into the construction of buildings and replaces wooden beams, joists, pillars, girders, etc., and where galvanized iron, etc., has been substituted for wooden cornices, bay windows and front trimmings, the work of a carpenter is certainly growing less and less to a very marked degree. The volume of work is likewise further decreased by the practice of getting out the trimming and much of the woodwork in planing mills at a cheap cost, while in former years such work was laid out, made ready and done in the carpenter shop by hand at good wages. This all helps to crowd the ranks of the unemployed carpenters year after year. It should urge on us all the more the importance of making every sturdy effort to secure the Eight-Hour day for carpenters. The sooner the eight-hour rule becomes universal, the sooner all the unemployed carpenters will find jobs at the trade.

NO MATTER OF BURLESQUE.

The industrial episodes of the past month are fully pregnant of thought and suggestive of something more than mere burlesque. They can not be tabooed by newspaper satire. Coxey's Army and its contingents from Philadelphia, Boston and numerous points indicate a sporadic movement which may mobilize in time the tramping, thundering forces of something more appalling than the present "Army of Peace."

With four well organized detachments from California now on their march to Washington, with a united band of unemployed men from Texas going from city to city in search of work, with nearly three millions of unemployed and despoiled workers in penury in all sections of our land, with Congress at Washington listless and indifferent to the appeals of the masses, with Wealth and Capital seeking to grind the face of Labor still more by reductions in pay, with wild riot in the coke fields of Pennsylvania and the threatened general strike of 200,000 coal miners on April 21, with labor troubles in abundance all around us, and prospects of more of them, these are truly incidents, earnest and thrilling, and beyond the realm of ridicule or virulent opposition.

These conditions must be met in the searching spirit of an honest desire for remedy. They must be studied and dealt with in the alembic of fairness and justice, and cannot be frowned down by force or adjusted by political jugglery. Nor can the masses be much longer captivated by political promises and the gew-gaws and fanfarronade of our inequitable social system. They are thinking deeper thoughts than now find utterance.

It is in no fleeting fit of humor or of fantastic fun that hundreds of men in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento and other cities of California have formed "Regiments of the Industrial Army." To traverse thousands of miles across a continent by weary marches and stolen rides in freight cars is no day-dream. The men who are in that California movement are of stern stuff and heroic mould. This and the weary tramp of Coxey's men and the hundreds of strikes and ebullitions denote the organic symptoms of that deep unrest which will hasten the day of Industrial Emancipation.

AN AWAKENING OF RAILWAY MEN.

On May 27 and for two days thereafter a great Convention of Railway Employees will be in session at Lenox Lyceum, New York. 150,000 railway employees will be there represented by delegates from the six leading organizations of railway men, including Engineers, Conductors, Firemen, Trainmen, Telegraphers and Switchmen. The purpose is to unite these bodies in one compact body to protect the mutual interests of all branches, and to make such united front as to compel the corporations to consent to arbitration in labor disputes instead of strikes. This is a step on the right road, and will prove a formidable movement if the American Railway Union and other Orders of railroad workmen likewise combine in it. Then the next step is to effect a unity of these railroad bodies with the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor, and all orders and unions of organized labor to be in one compact body. Such an alliance of the industrial forces would drive terror to the heart of every moneyed despot!

AMALGAMATED CARPENTERS.

The March report shows the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters has 634 branches and 41,839 members. In the United States they have only 41 branches in 29 cities and 1,502 members; in Canada they have 9 branches in 7 cities and 229 members. The balance of their membership is in Great Britain and the British Colonies—only 4½ per cent. of their membership is in America.

Of their present membership 92 are in Brooklyn, N. Y., 209 in Philadelphia, 219 in Chicago and 372 in New York city. In August last they had 485 members in New York and 369 in Chicago, and that month they had 1902 members all told in the United States and 252 in Canada. From these figures it is evident the amalgamated is losing in membership in America, though numbers of their members have been making the contrary claim and have been decrying the U. B. The figures above quoted are from the official reports of the Amalgamated. We present them to our members so they may be posted in any discussion with Amalgamated men.

We are desirous of seeing every legitimate trade or labor organization prosper, and to that end have given due recognition to the Amalgamated as a sister society. But if the present insidious tactics of leaders of the Amalgamated in America are not abandoned, we will take vigorous and retaliatory measures to protect the U. B.

THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY MAKING HEADWAY.

LYNN, MASS.—Union No. 108 is the first Carpenters' Union in New England to institute the eight-hour day.

BERLIN, March 29.—Emperor William has been so favorably impressed with the experiment of the eight-hour day at the Government shops in Woolwich, England, that he will try the same innovation in the fire-arms factories at Spandau.

WOOLWICH, ENGLAND.—The eight-hours Government day commenced in the Royal Arsenal, at this city, a few weeks ago and has been attended with gratifying results. Its provisions are being extended to a number of Government factories.

LONDON, March 29.—Mr. William Mather, member of Parliament, and senior member of the firm of Mather & Platt, Salford Iron Works, has made a report of the experience of his firms in the first year's experiment of giving his employees an eight-hour day instead of nine hours, without any reduction of wages. Mr. Mather reports that the experiment has proved in every respect a complete success. The output of the works has been greater than ever before, without an increase of expense, despite the reduction of hours. The 1200 hands employed have worked cheerfully in double shifts during times of pressure upon the works due to large orders, but they have never expected overtime, the reduction of the regular hours and the retention of the regular wages offsetting that. Converts to the eight-hour system, Mr. Mather says, have invariably been permanently won over. Mr. Mather has furnished the Government with full details of the working of the experiment and recommends its adoption, even tentatively in the Government arsenals, dockyards and other public works.

In the present Parliament house, of Great Britain, there are ten newspaper men, six printers, four tailors, three stationers, two butchers, three hotel keepers, six farmers, one coal merchant and one cab driver. These are in addition to the well-known labor leaders who take a prominent part in English politics.

MECHANICAL SUGGESTIONS.

BY OWEN B. MAGINNIS.

This month I set before readers of THE CARPENTER some very interesting figures to strike out. They are of Gothic character, and struck from geometrical figures of equal sides. All the tools necessary to lay them out are a pair of compasses with a pencil point, a rule, square and lead pencil, and they can be laid out on a clean board.

FIG. 1.

Fig. 1 represents a "trefoil," or figure with three foils or leaves drawn from an equilateral triangle. A B and C are the centres for the foils or inside arcs, and the centre for the outside circles, which touch those inside as shown, is found by dividing the side of the triangle and joining the point of division with the opposite angle.

FIG. 2.

Fig. 2 is an illustration of a quatrefoil or four-foil figure or window which is set out from a square in this manner: H B C D is the square, A B C and D being the centres for the foils, and E the centre for the outer circles. The square should be made about 4 inches on the side, and the inside circles or foils struck with a radius of a little less than 2 inches. Care should be taken both in this and the previous figure (1) to stop the foils at the sides of the square or interior principal origin of the quatrefoil.

FIG. 3.

The third illustration, or Fig. 3, is a Gothic figure with six foils, and is struck out directly from a hexagon or six-sided figure, the vertices or points of the hexagon being the centres for the foil arcs.

CONSTITUTION FOR BUILDING TRADES COUNCIL.

ARTICLE I.

SECTION 1. This organization shall be known as the Amalgamated Council of the Building Trades.

SEC. 2. This council shall be composed of delegates duly chosen from all societies in the building trades, who shall, before being admitted, produce credentials signed by the president and recording secretary of their society, and shall have the seal of their union attached.

SEC. 3. In case of a secret society, the seal of their lodge attached shall be a sufficient guarantee of their genuineness.

SEC. 4. The officers of this society shall consist of a chairman, vice-chairman and recording secretary, corresponding secretary, financial secretary, treasurer and sergeant-at-arms.

SEC. 5. The chairman and vice-chairman shall be elected at each meeting, and shall be nominated from delegates of different societies, nor shall any chairman sit in judgment on any case affecting the union he belongs to.

SEC. 6. The recording secretary, corresponding secretary, financial secretary, treasurer and sergeant-at-arms shall be elected quarterly; the recording secretary shall receive such salary as this council shall deem advisable.

ARTICLE II.

SECTION 1. The executive functions of this council shall be vested in the officers and delegates while in session, and in such committees as this council may find necessary to conduct its business under this constitution.

SEC. 2. The objects of this council shall be to centralize the united efforts and experience of the various societies engaged in the erection and alteration of buildings, and that they may form one common council, and with common interest to prevent that which may be injurious, and properly perfect and carry into effect that which they may deem advantageous to themselves, and for the common good of all.

SEC. 3. All trades and labor societies represented in this council, when desirous of making a demand for either an advance of wages or an abridgement in the hours of labor, shall, through their delegates, report the same to this council, prior to the demand being made, when, if concurred in by a two-thirds vote of all the societies present, at any stated meeting, the action shall be binding. This section shall not prevent any society from acting on its own responsibility.

ARTICLE III.

SECTION 1. No trade shall be entitled to more than three votes on any question that directly affects the material interests of any trade society.

SEC. 2. All trades or societies represented shall be entitled to three delegates.

SEC. 3. Any society having three or more branches shall be entitled to one delegate for each branch.

ARTICLE IV.

SECTION 1. Any trade society represented in this council that may desire material aid, shall state their case to this council, and, if approved by the delegates, shall bring the matter before their respective organizations for immediate action.

ARTICLE V.

SECTION 1. It shall be the special duty of this council to use the united strength of all the societies represented therein, to compel all non-union men and "scabs" to conform to, and obey the laws of, the society that they should properly belong to.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of any trade or labor society to use every lawful means to induce all non-union men or scabs to become members of their respective unions and any trade society failing in their just efforts, shall bring the matter before this council through their delegates, with all the facts in the case, with the names of the men, if possible, where employed, and the name of the employer, the same to be presented in writing with the signature of the president of the society affected, when this council shall take immediate action in the matter, and, if deemed advisable, this council may, by a two-thirds vote of the delegates then present, forming a quorum, order a withdrawal of any or all trades or societies who may be on any building where said non-union men or scabs may be employed. This order shall be carried into effect through the agency of the walking delegates of the various societies.

ARTICLE VI.

SECTION 1. All societies represented in this council shall pay the sum of two dollars each per month.

ARTICLE VII.

SECTION 1. On demand of a union represented, a general strike shall be ordered to reinstate a member or members who have struck and are refused employment on that job that was struck.

SEC. 2. Any walking delegate or delegates of any society ordering a strike without the consent of this council, the trade he represents shall be held responsible for the wages of the men on strike. This shall not prevent a delegate from ordering a strike of the members of the society he represents to adjust its own internal affairs without the assistance of this council.

SEC. 3. Members of a union seceding from a parent organization and forming a separate union shall be excluded from this council.

SEC. 4. All branches of a union shall demand the same wages and the same hours of labor.

ARTICLE VIII.

SECTION 1. When the members of two unions represented in this council work at the same trade, it shall be unlawful for one to take the place of the other when on strike.

ARTICLE IX.

SECTION 1. No society or branch of a society shall be allowed to strike more than one employer at a time, unless there are two or more employers on the same job.

ARTICLE X.

SECTION 1. Two-thirds of all the trades represented in this council shall form a quorum.

SEC. 2. It shall take two weeks' notice of motion and two-thirds majority to alter or amend any article of this constitution.

CARPENTERS' TRADE STRUGGLES
THIS SPRING.

THE STRIKE IN NEW YORK SETTLED—STRIKES NOW GOING ON IN CHICAGO,
INDIANAPOLIS, CINCINNATI.

SPRINGFIELD, O., carpenters are resisting a reduction of 2½ cents per hour.

BELLE VERNON, Pa., was on strike several weeks against a reduction in wages.

STATEN ISLAND, N. Y. District and Omaha, Neb., propose to enforce the eight-hour day May 2nd next.

TAMPA, Fla.—We propose to organize a co operative Building Association of members of Union 696 to take work at contract against the bosses who are cutting us.

WILMINGTON, Del.—We are in a fight with the Wilmington Steamboat Company for giving its Gordon Heights job to C. J. Swayne, a scab contractor. He pays only $1.50 to $2.00 per day. Union men will not work for him.

MONTREAL, Canada, on May 2, will insist on the nine-hour day, and on same date Belleville, Ill., and Richmond, Ind., will enforce a new schedule of trade rules. There may likewise be trouble on that date in Muncie, Ind., and Zanesville, O.

ROCKLAND, Maine.—On Feb. 1, 1894, the nine-hour rule went into effect here. This was in accordance with agreement we effected after a ten days' strike last spring. Union 339 is doing splendid work and this is now a solid nine-hour city.

HILLSBORO, Tex.—Union 711, which is only a few months organized, has secured an agreement with all the builders to inaugurate the nine-hour day May 7 next without any trouble. We will soon capture the entire fraternity of "chips" in this town.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—On April 2 our men struck for the renewal of the old agreement. The contractors proposed a reduction of 40 cents per day. Our men came out and are holding firm and staunch. More than half of our men have gained the demand.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—At a joint meeting with the bosses, Union 515 agreed to charge 40 cents per hour where members take jobs, so as to charge same price as the bosses. In return the contractors will hire none but Union men. Trade dull all over Colorado; the general desire is to cut wages.

COVINGTON, Ky.—Fourteen contractors of this city notified us this month that they propose to work independent of the Carpenters' Union and union rules. We propose to stand by our Union, come what may! Carpenters should not come to Covington while we have any prospect of trouble.

OTTUMWA, Iowa.—Contractors dream of downing the Union and are standing us off on our demand for a nine-hour day and a minimum rate. We have formed a Building Association among our members and will appoint one of our members as contractor for us to take work and fight the bosses.

THERE is prospect of trade troubles this coming month among carpenters in Paducah, Ky.; Burlington, Ia.; Davenport, Ia.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Norwalk, Conn.; Wabash, Ind.; Rochester, N. Y.; Northampton, Mass.; Rochester, Pa.; Dublin, Ga.; Cortland, N. Y.; and a number of other places. The fighting qualities of our brother chips have not been exterminated by the hard times.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The carpenters of this city last season consented to a voluntary reduction of 20 cents per day to secure the eight-hour day. They got it without a strike. Now the contractors propose to return the nine-hour day and keep the wages. There is possibility of trouble. Men, stay away from Washington.

LYNN, Mass.—Union 108 is pushing ahead and is the first Union to secure the eight-hour day in New England. We sent out a committee to visit the contractors and almost every one agreed to establish the eight-hour day for carpenters on Nov. 1, 1894, without further trouble and to give the preference to Union men. We now have an active committee of 25 of the best workmen members of Union 108 to visit every non-union man and bring him in.

CINCINNATI, O.—The mill men have been on strike since February 5, 1894, in a number of the mills under jurisdiction of the Employers' Association. One hundred and fifty-one journeymen and ten apprentices are out over ten weeks; $7,086 strike benefits have been paid the men from our General Office. A little over one-half of the union mill men have remained at work in union shops at union terms. The movement of the mill-owners was to restore the ten-hour day and reduce wages. All the indications point to a speedy settlement, as the men are very staunch and firm. There is also a prospect of trouble with the outside bosses. They propose to follow the example of the mill bosses.

CHICAGO.—With the financial assistance of the General Office we have been very successful this spring in getting our union scale of wages and union rules restored on numbers of jobs. The builders had been cutting wages for some time back. On the Stock Exchange building and a number of other jobs after strikes of several days we came out victors. This has irritated a number of the most unprincipled contractors to combine and arrange for a general lockout of all the building trades. This may happen any hour or any day. We are fully prepared for it and our men are welded together as never before. Some jobs even now are on strike. We propose to proceed in court against the employers for "conspiracy" in locking out our men.

NEW YORK.—For nearly two weeks recently our members of the U. B. in this city were in trouble on a number of large jobs owing to a difficulty with the Board of Walking Delegates. Finally the dispute was adjusted by having a conference between the Board and Bros. McKay and Kent of the G. E. B. and General Secretary McGuire. At one time over 200 of our members were thrown idle. Our Walking Delegates are reinstated in the Board and are recognized on the jobs. We can not forbear saying that in this trouble the members of the Amalgamated Carpenters took our men's jobs wherever they could get the chance. So did the United Order and Progressive Carpenters. The G. E. B. stood by us manfully in this struggle. Hereafter our members should make it a point to work in Brotherhood carpenters everywhere they can. Foremen in particular should do so. When the other societies of carpenters try to make us a scapegoat we should look out for Brotherhood men first, last and all the time.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN.

If any man must fall for me to rise,
Then seek I not to climb. Another's pain
I choose not for my good. A golden chain,
A robe of honor, is too poor a prize
To tempt my hasty hand to do a wrong
Unto a fellow-man. This life hath woe
Sufficient, wrought by man's satanic foe;
And who that hath a heart would dare prolong
Or add a sorrow to a stricken soul
That seeks some healing balm to make it whole?

My bosom owns the brotherhood of man;
From God and truth a renegade is he
Who scorns a poor man in his poverty,
Or on his fellow lays his supercilious ban,
THOMAS MCKELLAR

EACH MAN OWES IT TO HIMSELF.

The greatest duty each workingman owes to himself and those depending upon him is to unite with the Union representing his trade. The benefit to be derived by this act cannot be counted in dollars and cents alone, for to this we must add the many educational and social distinctions to be gained. It will give him a better insight to the cares of his fellow-workmen and will tend to broaden his mind and make him more generous in his judgment of the opinions of others. The Union will prove to him, if conducted by intelligent and conservative officials, the great desideratum for the amelioration of abuses and injustices now heaped upon his unprotected head. Let him stand alone in a dispute with his employer concerning some unjust demand made upon him and his arguments are unheeded, but with the Union back of him, he will find his appeals listened to, and himself courteously and fairly treated. The Union is like the bundle of sticks; tied together they can resist all efforts to break them, but taken separately they are as reeds in the hands of the weakest child. Get into the fold. It will do you good.—The Unionist.

THE FEW CONTRASTED WITH THE MANY.

The rich are becoming richer and the poor poorer. The few revel in wealth beyond the dreams of ambition, and the many "toil and moil" for a bare subsistence. Monopoly rules, and the masses suffer from corporate greed. The small storekeeper has been swallowed up by so called syndicates, and the army of wage earners is becoming larger every day. Progress is the latest parrot cry of the age, and in its name labor is made to suffer.

We are belabored with platitudes about "progress" and the interest of commerce. Fine terms surely. Did they not steal the bread from the children of toil and add thousands to the immense army of the unemployed who walk our streets in the painful apathy of enforced idleness, while the dear ones at home, are in need of the necessities of life?

Progress is a gigantic and hollow sham, which has raised cheating and swindling and lying to the dignity of arts. The laborer who helps to elect a man to office, and that man uses his position to hurt labor is cheated by the polished hypocrite who wields his power to injure those who gave it to him.—Ex.

THE Government is spending millions each year on war vessels. Not a word of complaint is made that it is paternalism for Government to spend countless millions for these and other agencies of human destruction. But just say one word about spending a few millions to build a railroad for the benefit of the people, and listen at the prolonged howl of paternalism that goes up from all sides.—Populist Tribune

WHY NOT CONTROL MACHINERY?

If the members of Unions were wise enough they would be rich enough to control the machinery.

Civilization means the control of all natural forces in the interest of the people. If the masses of the people do not know enough to control their forces for the common good, the few will control them for the good of the few. The first thing for a Union to control is the amount of time that should be sold as a day's work. Things are sold by standards, and such standards should not be changed but for very strong reasons. But under the present industrial system, in which the standard of wages varies every ten or twenty miles from trade centres, and changes so quickly and so absolutely, the wage-workers of all kinds must control the output of hours of work or go to the wall. The number of the unemployed and the irregularly employed must be greatly reduced. Let not the robbery of the poor by the poor continue. Let not the union man increase the ranks of the non-union forces by withholding from them their share of the hours of work. The unemployed are on strike against you. They knock down your wages. Knock off one-fifth of your working time and the whole army of the unemployed are captured as willing prisoners, to be allies in fact, as soon as they are allies in interest. Stick to your Union! Fill your treasury with money, your hearts with love and your heads with knowledge; join hands to lift up all union men, and win the non-union men to your ranks by making their interests yours.—George E. McNeill.

ARE ALL MEN SOCIALISTS?

The question is often asked: "What is socialism or nationalism? Is it not anarchy?" To have a real live socialist in town and not have the town full of bombs seems to some people paradoxical. Those who have encyclopedias should look it up and see. The people are practicing socialism every day, and the man who would dare to speak ill of its institutions would find a cool reception. The public school system is socialism. All have to contribute to its support according to their ability or the property they have, yet all use it with equal freedom. The poor children, whose parents have no property and pay no tax, receive the same benefit as the rich man's children. The post office is socialism. The poor man who sends but one letter a year pays no more than the business firms that send thousands of letters daily, nor is his letter crowded out to make room for his rich neighbor's. The courts are run on a socialist basis, except where the rich own them. The streets are a sample of socialism, being free to all on equal conditions. The fire department, the police department, the court house and other public buildings are instances of socialism applied. The man who would advocate selling the postal plant to a syndicate, or closing of the public schools, or farming out the courts or fire departments, is not a socialist. Those who favor keeping them as they are and improving them are socialists, no matter how much they may deny it. All men are socialists, though they may not know it.

MILLIONAIRES DESIGNATED AS MURDERERS.

In a discourse on the text, "No murderer shall enter the kingdom of heaven," Father Thomas J. Duce, pastor of St Leo's Catholic Church, in New York, said:

"There is no place in heaven for those millionaires who have no compassion for their fellow-men in starvation. The vanity of women and the thirst of men for wealth have created conditions of the present age, and a revolution is imminent. Justice cannot be much longer delayed. The human race is dying out to-day on account of the vanity of women and the pride of men. They fear to see their families grow too large lest they might thereby lose some of their power and prestige, and the greatest of social sins is daily growing to be more common. What can be murder more foul than this? and I declare to you that no murderer shall enter into the kingdom of heaven.

"Not only is this great sin being daily committed, but poor, struggling women are constantly ground into a state of poverty by unscrupulous and designing millionaires that they may be forced into the great army of dissolute women.

"We cannot serve God, no matter to what religious denomination we belong, if we do not have justice, and there can be no justice where grasping, grinding capital takes advantage of distress and poverty to make the labor of millions contribute still more to the piling up of wealth in the hands of a few. It is murder! The wealthy man who disregards the distress of his brother commits more than the individual murderer. He commits a crime against society. Such a man may be a true husband and a faithful father, but he cannot hope to enter into heaven.

"Many a millionaire in our city employs men at $7 per week and expects them to support a family on the pittance. Yet that millionaire expects to enter heaven. It is a living lie! It is the murder of our brethren, and no murderer shall enter the kingdom of heaven."

LITTLE HONOR OR FOOD.

A civil case was tried recently before a British magistrate which caused indignant comments to appear in the London radical papers about Queen Victoria. A man employed as carter on her Windsor private estate was defendant in a civil action involving money and pleaded poverty the cause of his inability to liquidate the debt. Addressing the magistrate, he said "the Queen paid no better than other people, and her servants had to work harder." His wages were ten shillings per week and lodging, which did not leave him much to spare after feeding himself. "Ah!" said the magistrate trying the case, "you should think of the honor." The defendant sturdily replied, to the amazement of the court, that there was not much honor to be got out of ten shillings per week. The defendant might have added, without exaggerating his circumstances, that there was not much luxurious food to be got out of ten shillings a week, either.

WHAT WEBSTER SAID.

Daniel Webster in his day was a man whose words were thought to be the embodiment of wisdom, and he said: "In a country like ours, above all others, this truth holds good: 'If the people can obtain a fair compensation for their labor they will have good houses; good clothing, good food and the means of educating their families. Labor will be cheerful and the people happy. The great interest of this country is labor.'"

WHAT CONSTITUTES A GOOD UNION MAN.

The simple action of a man belonging to a labor organization does not make him a good union man. Paying dues is not all that is required. A member who does not look further than paying his monthly dues is certainly not a good union man. By paying his dues, but not attending the meeting of his Union, he is only showing to the public that he is on the roll of membership, but not in reality a member—only a figure head, in other words, a drone. Every member should attend the meeting, but, sorry to say it, many stay away, and as soon as the meetings are over you can see them congregated on some street corner discussing what should have been talked over in their meetings, and not be peddled out to the public; for when the public gets hold of anything like that it is used against your Union, and the next thing you know you will see the plutocratic paper take hold of it, and the officers of your Union who have been faithful must face the whole thing. Very often it will not stop there; it will be taken to their superior bodies and fault found there; then the ore that started the uproar will say to his fellow-members, "Did I raise a terrible fuss? but now I have made up my mind to attend meetings and say what I have to say in the meetings, and try and stop outside talk whenever I hear it." Brothers, please remember that when you talk ill about your fellow-members or officers, you are only retarding the progress of your union, and now ask them to take you back again and give you a welcome hand. Now, whoever this suits, please think over it and see how you have shown your unionism. There are Unions in this city that can tell of such happenings, and where are they to-day? Their charters have been revoked, and the good union members forfeited their membership. Now, brothers, let each one of us get to work and build up all Unions, not looking solely to our own organizations, but working together. Bury the little hatchet that has been cutting us in two for some time, and then we will prosper, and not until then.—Selected.

A BEAUTIFUL CREED.

The death of George W. Childs calls to mind a beautiful quotation which he was very fond of, and which contains much of what made him beloved of all men:

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak approving, cheering words while their ears can hear them, and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them; the kind things you mean to say when they are gone, say before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their homes before they leave them. If my friends have alabaster boxes laid away, full of fragrant perfumes of sympathy and affection, which they intend to break over my dead body, I would rather they would bring them out in my weary and troubled hours, and open them, that I may be refreshed and cheered by them while I need them. I would rather have a plain coffin without a flower, a funeral without an eulogy, than a life without the sweetness of love and sympathy. Let us learn to anoint our friends beforehand for their burial. Post-mortem kindness does not cheer the burdened spirit. Flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance backward over the weary way.

PRACTICAL CARPENTRY.

BY D. L. STODDARD,
(Of Union 299, Indianapolis, Ind.)

APPRENTICE.

With the advantages of publications we can almost learn in minutes what used to take months, and yet in many instances the apprentice of to day has a harder time to advance than in years gone by.

The day was when the apprentice looked to his employer as an instructor, and the employer took an interest and pride in doing all he could to advance his student.

on length. If you wish to bevel top of hip, take length and rise. Cut on rise.

OBSERVE ALL THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Now remember the same method applies to all pitches. Run the same; simply change the rise to whatever rise the roof is to the foot. This applies to cornice as well as rafters.

Do not be satisfied with this knowledge, but study the use of the square and go further, as there is no limit to what can be accomplished with it.

PRACTICAL USE OF SQUARE AND RULE.

Study and fully understand the eight illustrations in this one little cut, and you will find, by thought and applications, as run being 11, 11, and the rise 7, 3; place the rule on them, and we have 14 ft., Illustration 5.

If you are buying lumber for \$13 a M, and you wish to know what 700 ft. cost, place the square on 10 and 13, bring it down to 7 on the tongue, and we will find we have $9\frac{1}{10}$ on blade or \$9.10 answer as Illustration 6.

If you wish to strike a circle and have nothing but a rule apply as Illustration 7.

One noon a large crowd of workmen was asked by the Foreman (Joe Strong, of Colorado Springs) how to cut a $\frac{1}{2}$ pitch rafter so it would lay on $\frac{1}{2}$ pitch roof. It seemed to me to lay off $\frac{1}{2}$ pitch and then from that $\frac{1}{2}$ pitch line lay off $\frac{1}{2}$ would cut is better. The vanishing points are found by running parallel with building, starting from station point and going until you strike picture plane, and then square down to horizontal line. With a determination you can study out this little cut so as to be able to put up a nice and costly perspective.

Now the question may arise: After I learn to do ordinary carpenter work, and can handle all kind of framing, make drawing complete. In fact, can make the plan, perspective, specifications, build the house from the sills to the finish, can I find employment? It seems ridiculous such a question should be asked, and yet there are grounds for some.

But you would hardly hear an employer speak of an apprentice as a student now. Therefore he must look some where else for instruction.

To advance rapidly he should be a faithful student and observing—notice how every new piece of work is done, and get some good work on the subject. (I owe much of my knowledge to "Hodgson's.")

One of the first things to learn is to keep a jack knife in good condition—next, chisel, plane, etc. Last, but not by any means least, the proper care of the saw should be taken into serious consideration.

With a determination it will not take long to be able to do a day's work sheeting, shingling, flooring, siding, and even framing, where some one lays it off, and with a few minutes' serious study on the subject you can learn how to do all ordinary framing.

ROOF FRAMING.

In the cut I have illustrated a $\frac{1}{2}$ pitch hip roof, 16x24 feet, rafters 16 inches apart.

MAIN RAFTER.

One-third pitch rises 8 inches to the foot, and as 8 feet is half the width of the building, the run must be 8 feet. Therefore put the square on 12 and 8 eight times, and we have the length and cuts (as illustrated). Notice how it is squared up at heel, and inches allowed for ridge.

HIP RAFTER.

As the diagonal of a foot is 17 inches, take 17 inches on blade in place of 12, and we have hip rafter (as illustrated).

Now these methods are not new or original, as they have probably been used for ages, yet it is surprising how few carpenters know them.

JACK RAFTER.

My method for Jacks is an original idea to me, yet it may have been used before I was born. I submitted it to the Carpentry and Building in 1890.

I simply lay the square on the same as for common rafter. If you wish them 16 inches apart, move the square up to 16 inches; if 18 apart, move up to 18, etc. The side cut is the length and run. Cut the occasion requires, you have learned a great deal, as you will readily learn more.

If you have a board 7 inches wide and wish to divide it into four equal parts, turn the rule until it strikes 8 inches, and mark at each 2 inches, as Illustration 1.

I use that almost daily not only in ripping up boards but in drawing, etc.

If you happen to wish to square a board and do not have a square, take a rule and apply as Illustration 2.

IN LAYING OFF RAFTERS.

Some may not like to place the square on once for every foot of run, as I illustrated in another cut. Also, if it is to go to a given height may not wish to stop to figure the exact rise to the foot, figuring out the fraction, etc. Take a roof to be 7 ft. 3 in. high and run 8 ft. 5 in. Put your rule on $7\frac{3}{4}$ and $8\frac{5}{8}$, and you will have $11\frac{1}{2}$ or 11 ft. 2 in. length of rafter, as Illustration 3.

If you wish to hip the same roof as it is 8 ft. 5 in. to the deck, the run of hip must be the diagonal of 8 ft. 5 in. which is 11 ft. 11 in., as Illustration 4. The

it. I tried it and we were all surprised to find it O. K. Illustration 8.

ARCHITECTURE.

The carpenter often thinks the architect a wonderful being. When in reality the architect only suggests an idea, and makes a sketch, while the carpenter makes the Mansion. Yet it, of course, requires a good deal of knowledge to be a good architect. A person can make a life work of it and yet learn all the time.

"There is room at the top," and the higher you get, the more work and more pay you will get, if you earn your "Bread by the sweat of your brow."

But there is not room in this free country for such an army of unemployed as there was this winter. And that is a line that should take much of our attention.

In fact the conditions are such that we are compelled to spend much of our time thinking how we can continue to exist. It is a shame to a nation that a man is compelled to drop all thought of advancement for himself and humanity, and take up the terrible thought how are we to procure bread. And yet the country is so full of wheat it is almost worthless. When times are comparatively good let us keep this in mind and avoid, if possible, another panic such as 1873 and 1893.

I am confident that nearly every one that reads this article carefully can grasp at least one new idea. If they consider it a valuable one, and it advances any one in any way, I shall be well paid for my time producing it.

LABOR PAPERS DESERVE SUPPORT.

Every member of organized labor should contribute something to the support of a labor paper in his special locality. While men are combining, and justly, too, for living wages for themselves, they should remember that the publishers of papers devoted to the advancement of efforts which they themselves are urging, must need also living wages to carry their side of the burden. A labor paper man cannot live on starving wages no more than can the oppressed mechanic or citizen of any class, and while the latter are seeking the aid of all others in combining for an establishment or sustenance of fair pay for fair work, they should extend a fair share of help to the local labor paper that it may be enabled to live and prove a stronger factor in obtaining the fruit of their desires.—Ex.

WHY HE GOT IN.

At the gate stood Peter, resting. He'd had a very busy day,
For a mighty batch of sinners he'd been forced to turn away,
Of all the throng that entrance claimed, but very few got in,
For Peter had a record of their wickedness and sin.

There were plumbers by the dozen and ice-men by the score;
Policemen, duds and bankers, that kept coming more and more;
A gang of politicians, who'd enjoyed stolen sweets;
An enormous crowd of others waiting to walk the Golden Streets.

But few had gained admission Alike had high and low
Been given rapid transit to regions down below.
The eventide was falling on that heavenly abode,
When a single dusty traveller came tramping the road.

He reached the gate, and trembling stood, with weariness and fear,
As Peter sternly queried "What business have you here?"
And thus the pilgrim answered, as outside he took a seat,

"I died of sheer starvation, publishing a labor sheet."

"Enough! Enough! Poor toiler, you are welcome," Peter cried
As he yanked the gate wide open and hustled him inside.

It gives us boundless pleasure these facts to here record,
As it proves it sometimes happens virtue gains its just reward.

BUY UNION MADE GOODS

It is an old, well-established principle of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters for members to buy UNION LABEL GOODS in preference to other articles. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others.

The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working conditions and union labor employed.

We here give a facsimile of the Union Labels so our members may know Union Label goods and make it a point to ask for them.

AMERICAN FEDERATION LABEL.

This Label is used on all goods made by Union men connected with Unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, where such unions have no distinctive trade label of their own. This label is printed on white paper.

UNION BREAD.

This is the label of the Journeymen Bakers and Confectioners, under their International Union. It is printed on white paper in black ink and is pasted on each loaf of bread. It means death to long hours and low wages in bakers' slave pens underground.

UNION BOOTS AND SHOES.

This is the joint Label of the Boot and Shoe Workers' International Union and of the Lasters' Protective Union and all other union men in the Boot and Shoe trade. It is printed in blue ink and pasted on every boot and shoe made by Union men. It guarantees the boots and shoes are not convict or prison made.

UNION PRINTERS' LABEL.

This Label is issued under authority of the International Typographical Union and of the German Typographia. The label is used on all newspaper and book work. It always bears the name and location of where the printing work is done.

RETAIL CLERKS' LABEL.

This is a fac-simile of the badge worn by all members of the Retail Clerks' National Protective Association of the United States. See that all salesmen and clerks wear this badge and you may be sure they are union men.

Open Your Doors for Public Discussion.

its ministers, to make themselves felt in this world-wide work of industrial reform by becoming acquainted with its underlying principles; by offering a channel through which their intelligent sympathy can be expressed, and lastly by presenting them with the occasion to inculcate the great moral principles of Christianity as absolutely essential to the permanent and satisfactory solution of the labor problem.

Finally, in this work of public agitation and education scarcely too much credit can be given to Local Union No. 515, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America—a Union which was founded so recently as March, 1889.

It was owing to its generous action in the spring of 1890—an action subsequently imitated by the Trades Assembly of this city—in opening its doors to speakers other than those who were members of the Union, that proved to be the first step which has resulted in the series of conferences first described.

The first speaker invited was a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, who was at the same time a Knight of Labor. On subsequent occasions he has been followed by three other clergymen, a lawyer, and a prominent capitalist and a sometime large employer of labor—all of whom, with one exception, were either permanent or temporary residents of Colorado Springs.

By this action a spirit of mutual confidence and respect has been fostered—a spirit essential to the success of any movement tending to the drawing together in closer relations the wage-earning and non-wage-earning classes of the community for either the public or private discussion of those great questions in which both are or should be equally interested.

I therefore urge upon the various Local Unions of the Brotherhood throughout the country the wisdom of adopting the same broad-spirited policy displayed by Local Union No. 515, by inviting to address them, from time to time—those non wage-earners in their respective communities who express a sincere sympathy with and intelligent conception of the needs and demands of the working classes for their mutual edification and benefit.

Furthermore, I should like to see adopted in all of the labor centres of the land the public conference plan as outlined above, believing, as I do, that a public discussion of the problems which confront us in their various aspects is positively necessary to their intelligent and peaceful solution. For if there be one lesson the present industrial crisis teaches the various labor organizations, and especially the trade unions, when not a single union, however well organized it may be, can procure for its members a single day's work in many trades and localities where there is no work to be had on any conditions, it is the lesson that there is a far more important question than merely how to best shorten the hours of labor, to obtain an increase in wages, or to insure against loss, and that is the question how to secure to all men the universal recognition of the fundamental right of every man to the opportunity to work.

A fact which proves the imperative necessity for the trade-unions everywhere to broaden the scope of their usual subjects of discussion, which is far too narrow it seems to me, if they are to be something else than close corporations, which many of them virtually are, and if they are to exert the power they possess when combined to mould public opinion, and to secure the enactment of such legislation as shall promote the welfare not only of their own members but of society at large, whose interests in common with their own are vitally concerned.

(FOR OUR FRENCH MEMBERS.)

"L'UNION FAIT LA FORCE."

Il n'existe pas sur cette planète, aucun être raisonnable, à quelque classe qu'il appartienne, à quelque degré de civilisation qu'il soit arrivé; sans qu'il admette la vérité de ce principe affirmé par des siècles d'expérience.

Ou a vu pendant plusieurs siècles, la noblesse, composée de gens honnêtes et d'autres méritant les galères, régner en despote sur la classe ouvrière, faisant des pauvres leurs esclaves et vivre royalement, sans tenir compte des sueurs versées par ceux qu'il appelaient dédaigneusement leurs serfs; quoiqu'ils fussent leurs égaux par le droit naturel.

Je ne raconterai pas ici l'histoire des révolutions ancienne et moderne, quand le peuple ou les serfs, (comme la noblesse d'alors désignait les producteurs) se voyant privé de tous leurs droits les plus sacrés, comprirent qu'il fallait s'unir ensemble pour obtenir une liberté à laquelle ils avaient droit et secoué le joug despotique que les tenait dans l'ignorance et la servitude.

C'est alors que nous avons vu ces gens, qu'on en croyait pas être capable de lever la tête, contre ceux qui les faisaient ramper dans la boue, se lever en masse et écrire en caractères de sang dans les pages de l'histoire, "L'Union fait la force." Les libertés dont nous jouissons, à présent, en sont la preuve indéniable.

Faut-il s'arrêter à contempler le passé, oublier le présent et ne pas penser à l'avenir? Je dis non.

Il est vrai que nous si avons pas à lutter contre les nobles ou ceux qui en portent le nom, mais nous avons un autre ennemi aussi dangereux à combattre, mais plus facile à vaincre, considérant les circonstances actuelles et les moyens à notre disposition si nous sommes unis. . . . C'est là notre point faible, nous canadiens, le courage ne nous manque pas, mais la jalousie nous paralyse.

Aussitôt que nous sommes complètement organisés, qui nous avons qu'à faire un dernier effort pour atteindre le but, un ou quelques unes de nous oublient le serment solennel d'allégeance à Union, qu'ils ont prêté sagement et ne craignent pas de renier les principes qu'ils ont précieuse avec tant d'ardeur; cela pourquoi? Pour de simples raisons personnelles. Heureusement, je constate que le nombre de ces gens là diminue rapidement, ils sont clair—seurés, surtout ici, dans Holyoke, mais si peu nombreux qu'ils soient, ils sont toujours trop pour leur propre avantage personnel.

Si j'ai fait allusion aux luttes sanglantes des temps passés, remarquez que ce si n'est pas mon intention de dire qu'il faut se servir du même remède. "Omnia tempus habet." Chaque chose a son temps.

Nous passéons une arme, plus puissante que la dynamite, et qui ne tue personne. C'est le vote de l'ouvrier. Comment devons nous voter?

Avant de répondre à cette question, nous allons voir où est l'ennemi.

Est-ce celui qui fait tout ce qu'il peut pour nous organiser afin d'être unis et obtenir du capitaliste des gages suffisantes pour élever décemment nos enfants?

Est-ce celui qui ne craint pas de dépenser son temps et son argent pour aider la cause du parti socialiste des travailleurs?

Non confrères, il faut jeter les yeux ailleurs; l'ennemi c'est celui qui dit qu'un dollar par jour est autant qu'un journalier devrait avoir pour élever sa famille.

C'est l'harpagon qui, profitant de la crise financière qu'il a fait son possible pour crier en retenant tout l'argent sur lequel il pouvait mettre la main en le volant à l'artisan, et le lui prête à 15, 20, 25 et même plus par cent,

Il me fait plaisir de pouvoir dire que nos "Trade-Unions" de Holyoke ont fait de grands progrès depuis l'an dernier. Il est à présager que les prise seront satisfaisants et qu'il y aura beaucoup d'ouvrage Holyoke va continuer à porter le nom de "Banner City of Trade Unions of New England." Gare aux scabs.

Je vais vous aiter quelques phrases courtes mais contenant de grandes verites par George E. McNeill.

Le mouvement du parti socialiste est la marche ascendante des masses de la pauvreté à la richesse.

Les millionnaires seront nécessaires aussi longtemps qu'il y aura des millions de fous.

Vous ne pouvez avancer en demeurant stationnaire; en marchant à reculons vous n'atteindrez jamais le but qu'il y a devant vous.

Si vous êtes demandé pour choisir entre une journée de 8 heures ou un plus gros salaire; choisissez la journée de 8 heures et vous aurez avant longtemps le gros salaire par dessus le marché.

C'est celui qui n'a jamais gagné un centime et ses propres mains et ayant hérité quelques milliers de piastres d'un parent qui peut les avoir gagnés honnêtement ou malhonnêtement, continue à augmenter ce capital, dix fois plus que suffisant pour vivre honnêtement en privant ses employés d'un salaire légitime et leur donnant des gages à peine suffisants pour les plus pressants besoins.

C'est celui qui avec un gros salaire payé par le peuple pour s'asseoir sur les sièges de notre Maison Blanche à Washington, D. C.; soit comme sénateur, membre du congrès ou simple député fait grasse chère et vit dans l'opulence en attendant que les capitalistes lui dictent comment réviser un tarif, qui tient la chaise ouvrière dans la misère, afin de la rendre plus misérable pour favoriser le capitaliste.

Ce sont les gens qu'il nous faut combattre à l'urne électorale. Ils existent dans les deux partis démocrates et républicains qui luttent pour se partager les dépouilles.

Que devons-nous faire? La réponse est simple: Nous avons d'abord le droit de notre côté, ensuite la force numérique; il s'agit simplement de rester unis, comme nos ancêtres l'ont été, lorsqu'il s'est agi de briser les chaînes qui tenaient dans l'esclavage et l'ignorance forcés le meilleur sang patriotique qui coule dans les veines des fils d'une nation dont ils sont fiers de porter le nom; et voter tous ensemble comme un seul homme pour les candidats choisis parmi nous, appartenant à l'Union et ayant fait leurs preuves comme étant dévoués à notre cause sacrée.

Nous trouverons ces hommes dans les rangs du parti Socialiste "Social Labor Party," que je vous souhaite de tout mon coeur.

the truth of the motto, "United we stand, divided we fall." They organize for their mutual benefit and protection. Employers, or capitalists form their unions, or combinations, for mutual protection and benefit. On the principles laid down the action of the employer and employee are equally right and just.

One has as much right to protection as the other, both have the same reason for organizing, and if each only received from the organization what even-handed justice would give him as his own all would be well and good, and all distinctions and comparisons, all cries of classes and masses, of capital and labor would cease, and the time would not be far distant when the now opposing unions would be merged into one, and the employer would be at his counsels, side-by-side with the employee, conferring with him for their mutual welfare. Then visionary writers have so longed to see.

The reason that time does not come is because of man's distrust of his fellow-man. The employer, secure in his belief of his own personal greatness and the more powerful greatness of his capital, forgets at times the common principles which led him to organize and instead of using his power simply for protection makes it an instrument of subjection. He has overstepped the bound of equal rights, and the workingman retaliates, his weapon the strike. Principles are lost sight of and a warfare of passion and prejudice follows. A guerilla campaign is instituted and its results can only be guessed at, never accurately measured.

A little flow of the milk of human kindness, a little spreading of the oil of common sense and reason on the troubled waters and these struggles may be done away with. But capital must realize that its duty is to come half way, and not leave all the journey to labor.

DOES CHEAP LABOR PAY?

This question presents itself to us frequently, but with greater force when around a building or shop where there are many carpenters employed. The carpenter is the most skilled mechanic in the building trades, furnishes all his tools, yet is paid by far the least money. He comes in contact with the cheap labor more than others; he is affected to a greater extent by it. To the contractor engaged in the building trades more particularly is the query applied. A contractor in South Nashville, a very intelligent young man, claims that it does not pay to employ cheap labor. He argues that the material wasted and time spent by himself directing a cheap man, which could be more profitably employed, would amount to more than the difference paid to a high-priced mechanic, say nothing of the trouble and vexation spared. It would seem that upon reflection this would be the verdict of all. Pay the carpenter better wages.—Journal of Labor.

Work like a slave, live like a dog, look like a beggar, save like a miser, sneeze when the political boss takes snuff, and vote like a fool. Stick to your party if you die a pauper. This is keeping out of politics.—National Watchman.

THE QUESTION THAT

The question before us is not, shall the government now begin to interfere with the railroads? No railroad has ever been able to draw the breath of life in any other way than through government favor. No railroad has ever been able to get its right of way in any other way than by means of the right of eminent domain bestowed upon it by the government of the sovereign people existed.

Ever since railroads have existed there has been nothing but government interference with railroads and railroad interference with government. By nothing we can now do can we increase either. Both are now at their maximum. With every public official in the land bribed with railroad favors to be the hireling of the railroad magnates the question is, how shall we put an end to railroad interference with the government? The question is, shall the railroads rule the people, or shall the people rule the railroads?—Exchange.

POSITION OF WOOD AND ITS DURABILITY.

The problem has troubled many why two pieces of wood, sawed from the same section of a tree, should possess very varied characteristics when used in different positions. For example, a gate post will be found to decay much faster if the butt end of the tree is uppermost than would be the case if the top were placed in this position. The reason is that the moisture of the atmosphere will permeate the pores of the wood much more rapidly the way the tree grew than it would in an opposite direction.

Microscopical examination proves that the pores invite the ascent of moisture. Take the familiar case of a wooden bucket. Many have noticed that some of the staves appear to be entirely saturated, while others appear quite dry. This arises from the same cause—the dry staves are in the position in which the tree grew, while the saturated ones are reversed.—Tid-Bits.

WHY LABOR ORGANIZATIONS ARE STRONG.

In all forms of existence different phases or periods can easily be noted and determined. We have the experimental, or beginning, the sentimental, or that which attracts attention and sympathy to the object, and finally having passed these stages we have the useful or practical. Until this feature of development has been reached no element of permanency has been attained and no prospect of a survival can be hoped for.

Trades unions in this and other civilized countries have passed through the first two eras or epochs in their existence, and now reveal a strength and power for good, not alone for their membership but to all humanity as well, that is truly marvelous. Practical and business-like, they appeal to the economist; standing as they do for everything that is good in existence, it is but natural that the spread of morality and intelligence find their widest field for development within their fold.

As the predominant element in our national life is the practical, it is possible that a low standard may be created, and the great truth that man is more than the money he creates may be lost sight of. Labor organizations, by diffusing intelligence, teach the precept that knowledge should be acquired for the love of learning and not for the love of lucre. Thus the growth and future of these safeguards of civilization—trades unions—seem indeed bright and permanent in character.—Eight-Hour Herald.

Bummler und Parasiten die Versorgung mit Arbeit für ihren eigenen Anhang monopolis-ferten und die Mitglieder der Arbeiter-Orga-nisationen, welche die Agitation zu Gunsten der Leidenden ins Werk gesetzt hatten, mußten sich mit dem Zusehen begnügen — ganze
25 „Tickets“ wurden der Central Labor
Union überwiesen, in welcher angeblich 80,000 Mann repräsentiert sind und den Vertretern der Konferenz für die Arbeitslosen, welche die von über 20,000 Personen besuchte
Massenversammlung im Madison Square Garden arrangiert hatte, gab man ganze 50
„Tickets“, welche zur Anstellung bei den Nothstandsarbeiten berechtigten. Aber da-mit noch nicht genug der Verhöhnung der organisirten Arbeiter: Als Vertreter der Carpenters und Painters von der Part-
Commission verlangten, sie solle in diesen Gewerken den Unionlohn von $3.50 per Tag bezahlen, erhielten sie die Antwort, es sei eine „niederträchtige Gemeinheit,“ in Zeiten, wo Jedermann froh sei, überhaupt nur
Arbeit zu finden, Unionlöhne zu verlangen!
Hoffentlich werden die New Yorker Arbeiter sich das für alle Zeiten hinter die Ohren schreiben und in Zukunft dafür sorgen, daß Unionleute zu Mayors und Commissären gemacht werden, damit ihnen eine solche nieder-trächtige Gemeinheit nicht wieder passire.
Hätten sie früher daran gedacht, daß Kapita-listen als öffentliche Beamte nicht anders als kapitalistisch denken und handeln können, würde es nicht nöthig gewesen sein, Konferenzen einzuberufen, Petitionen nach Albany zu schicken und Bettelstuppen-Pfennige von Politikern und Pfaffen anzunehmen!

* * *
Gutes ist indessen durch die Agitation der Arbeitslosen gewirkt worden, dem hat einen tüchtigen zeigte sich nämlich, daß,
New York für Straßentehauser täglich $1.50 be-schwer arbeitenden Leute nur ten, weil die Kontraktoren und ihren Richtern und Sheriffs klar gemacht wird, es gehöre zu ihren Bürgerpflichten, das Maul zu halten und draußlos zu schanzen, auch wenn ihnen der Boß weniger wie $1 den Tag anbietet und ihnen zumuthet, mehr als 12 oder 14 Stunden zu arbeiten, dann werden sie vielleicht doch endlich zur Besinnung kommen und energische Schritte thun, daß diese Art von Bürgerpflichten und diese Art von amerikanischer „Freiheit“ so schnell wie möglich durch die Gesetzgebung der Welt getilgt werde. Vorläufig hat die

Chefs der Eisenbahnarbeiter-Organisationen, wie der General-Verkeimesser der Knights Labor, von denen die meisten auch noch tief in Harmoniebusel stecken, öffentlich und in nicht mißzuverstehender Sprache er-klärt, daß sie sich den Teufel um Richter Jenkins' Entscheidung lehren und mit ihren Leuten streiten werden, auch wenn sie deshalb auf Lebenszeit ins Zuchthaus geschickt werden würden. Hoffentlich kommt es recht bald dazu, daß einer dieser Herren beim Wort genommen wird, denn auf diese Weise würde der Sturz des kapitalistischen Sklavensystems ein wenig beschleunigt werden.

Eine andere Entscheidung, die ihre Wir-kung vielleicht auch nicht verfehlen wird, wurde dieser Tage von dem New Yorker Richter McAdam gefällt, welcher erklärte, „gewöhnliche Tagelöhner,“ könnten nicht auf rückständigen Lohn klagbar werden, auch wenn sie von ihren Vossen durch Kontrakt-bruch entlassen werden. Viel hübscher wäre es allerdings gewesen, wenn dieser McAdam gesagt hätte, ein „gewöhnlicher Tagelöhner,“ der nichts hat als seine Fäuste und die paar Lumpen, welche er am Leibe trägt, sei überhaupt kein menschliches Wesen und der Mensch fange erst beim Hausbesitzer oder beim Fabrikboß an. Aber, was nicht ist, kann ja noch werden!

* * *
Daß die amerikanischen Arbeiter trotz der schrecklichen Winters und der gemeinen Nothlage noch nicht ganz zu in New York ebenfalls zu einem Zusammen-stoß mit der Polizei gekommen ist.

Die Achtstundigen-Agitation im eigenen Ge-werk ist durch die Konventionen in verschiede-nen großen Städten auch wieder kräftig in Angriff genommen worden und es steht zu erwarten, daß ich in meinem nächsten Monats-Brief über eine Reihe von Erfolgen berichten kann. Das Baugewerk fängt überhaupt an, sich wieder zu erholen und im Hinblick darauf rechne ich sicher auf die Beilegung aller Zwei-stigkeiten, die hier und dort noch bestehen mögen. Ich möchte auch noch darauf hin-weisen, daß wir den Wood Carvers helfen sollten in ihrem Bestreben, importirte Schnitzeilen und Dekorationen zu boycotten, denn die Carvers sind viel zu Arbeitslosigkeit verurtheilt worden, weil die Millionäre, deren
Paläste sie verschönern helfen, geschnitzte Waare aus Paris und Statten importiren, nur, um ein paar unnütze Dollars zu sparen und obwohl die amerikanischen Holzschnitzer und Dekorateur ebenso tüchtige Arbeiter und Künstler sind, wie ihre europäischen Kollegen.

Also, auf ans Werk und binnen der näch-sten vier Wochen tüchtig agitirt und organisirt, damit von den Carpenters gesagt werden könne, daß sie in der Armee der amerikanischen Proletarier in der Avantgarde mar-schiren!

Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, held Aug. 6-11, 1883, the following rules in relation to apprentices were approved, and the Local Unions are urged to secure their enforcement:

Whereas, The rapid influx of unskilled and incompetent men in the carpenter trade has had,
of late years, a very depressing and injurious effect upon the mechanics in the business, and has a tendency to degrade the standard of skill and to give no encouragement to young men to become apprentices and to master the trade thoroughly; therefore, in the best interests of the craft, we declare ourselves in favor of the following rules:

SECTION 1. The indenturing of apprentices is the best means calculated to give that efficiency which it is desirable a carpenter should possess, and also to give the necessary guarantee to the employers that some return will be made to them for a proper effort to turn out competent workmen; therefore, we direct that all Local Unions under our jurisdiction shall use every possible means, wherever practical, to introduce the system of indenturing apprentices.

SEC. 2. Any boy or person hereafter engaging himself to learn the trade of carpentry, shall be required to serve a regular apprenticeship of four consecutive years, and shall not be considered a journeyman unless he has complied with this rule, and is twenty-one years of age at the completion of his apprenticeship.

SEC. 3. All boys entering the carpenter trade with the intention of learning the business shall be held by agreement, indenture or written contract for a term of four years.

SEC. 4. When a boy shall have contracted with an employer to serve a certain term of years, he shall, on no pretence whatever, leave said employer and contract with another, without the full and free consent of said first employer, unless there is just cause or that such change is made in consequence of the death or relinquishment of business by the first employer; any apprentice so leaving shall not be permitted to work under the jurisdiction of any Local Union in our Brotherhood, but shall be required to return to his employer and serve out his apprenticeship.

SEC. 5. It is enjoined upon each Local Union to make regulations limiting the number of apprentices to be employed in each shop or mill to one for such number of journeymen as may seem to them just; and all Unions are recommended to admit to membership apprentices in the last year of their apprenticeship, to the end that, upon the expiration of their terms of apprenticeship, they may become acquainted with the workings of the Unions, and be better fitted to appreciate its privileges and obligations upon assuming full membership.

Roof Framing

By
G. D. Inskip

This Work is specially prepared and written for the Mechanic. By the use of tables he can compute any length of Rafter, Hip or Valley, with ease and accuracy, from 1/8 of an inch to 150 feet. It is in two volumes. Vol. I is handsomely illustrated with diagrams, conveying to the mind of the reader the practical way of cutting Roof Members. It takes in all manner of Pitches, Degrees and Minutes, or any possible Plan of Roof, and gives all measurements full size. Scale measurements are dispensed with, and the steel square is used only as a bevel and is of no moment in acquiring lengths and intersections.

GREAT BARRINGTON, MASS.—This place should be mentioned in THE CARPENTER as an eight-hour town. All skilled workers enjoy the eight hours since April 1st, last.

CORSICANA, TEX.—We secured the eight-hour day on September 1, 1903, without any trouble and the contractors and our union are on the best of terms. Please enter Corsicana, Tex., as an eight-hour city.

* * *

PORTLAND, ORE.—Trade is very dull here at this time and so it is on the Sound—in fact, all over this region of the Northwest. We would urgently request traveling brothers to avoid Portland pending a revival of business.

* * *

WHEELING, W. VA.—Having gained the eight-hour day last spring, we are entitled to a place on our list of eight-hour cities. Carpenters, both inside and outside men, work but eight hours since that time. Work is very dull here this season.

* * *

REDLANDS, CAL.—This place is an eight-hour town and has been so for over a year past. The name of Redlands being omitted on the eight-hour list published in the October issue of THE CARPENTER, you will please insert it in the next publication.

* * *

GRAND MERE, ONT., CAN.—Our local union is now well organized and we have good reason to believe that we shall do still better in the near future, as other trades appear to awaken from their lethargy. We shall have three unions here of different trades shortly.

* * *

COLORADO CITY, COL.—Owing to the mill and smelters and the miners' strike in the Cripple Creek district, business here is at a standstill and work very dull. The Citizens' Alliance is using every effort to break up our Building Trades Council—they seem to concentrate all their forces to that end. All the federated trades held a rousing massmeeting last night and decided, as a unit, to stand by their Council and fight for their rights. We would warn all carpenters and building tradesmen in general to steer clear of Colorado Springs and neighboring districts while the warfare is on.

* * *

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—In looking over the October issue of THE CARPENTER, we fail to find New Bedford on the eight-hour list. This city is and has been an eight-hour city ever since June, 1902. Please have the name published in the December issue of our journal.

* * *

ITHACA, N. Y.—We were granted the eight hours on May 30th, this year; all trades, with the exception of the tinners, are working the same number of hours, and desiring that Ithaca be known as an eight-hour city, you will please place us on the eight-hour list in THE CARPENTER.

* * *

VALEJO, CAL.—Our local union here is prospering nicely. There is considerable of building going on, but we have more than enough men to do the work, and as surplus of help gives the employers the advantage of the men we would request all carpenters to remain away from Valejo, Cal., until further notice.

* * *

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—The majority of our bosses are unfair and since January last have shown their antagonism towards organized labor in every way. There is very little work going on here at this time and the unfair bosses have most of it. Our members find it difficult to obtain a job under fair conditions. Keep away.

* * *

NORTH EASTON, MASS.—Please state in THE CARPENTER that North Easton is an eight-hour town; it may save us lots of trouble, as very frequently men from outlying districts are coming here under the impression that they can work nine hours. They may think that we are dead—but they soon find out that we are very much alive and insist on the observance of the eight-hour rule.

* * *

BERWICK, PA.—Certain contractors of our city are still advertising for carpenters notwithstanding the fact that they are laying off the men in their employ and there being an abundance of good mechanics walking the streets. Winter drawing near, conditions will become still more unfavorable and we would most earnestly request all carpenters to keep away from Berwick until conditions have improved.

NORFOLK, VA.—Trade is very dull here and we have more resident carpenters than the trade can stand. Please insert Norfolk on the dull list in THE CARPENTER, and advise traveling brothers to stay away. Owing to deplorable trade conditions we have decided to proceed very quietly and cautiously in the enforcement of our working card, hoping that when next spring season's work opens up we shall be in a position to enforce the card on all jobs.

* * *

TACOMA, WASH.—The building trades here have been locked out by the Contractors' Association because of their refusal to disband their central body and to handle scab material on the jobs. The contractors have rejected all overtures of the trades for amicable settlement of the controversy, their only position being to discourage labor. As a result of this warfare going on, work is almost at a standstill and this being the rainy season, Tacoma is a good place for all building trades men to avoid. Especially carpenters are urged to stay away.

* * *

SPOKANE, WASH.—This city is overflowed with carpenters coming in by the dozen on clearance cards and misled by advertisements in the daily papers, stating that work is abundant and men wanted here. While it is true that we have enjoyed a good summer season, the fact remains that work is closing down and indications point to a general lay-off within the month of November. There will be little doing until about April 1st. We expect at least one-third of our men to be on the street idle and would advise all carpenters to give this city a wide berth until further notice.

KREBS, IND. TER.—This place is a mining camp and we are glad to say that the miners and engineers are well organized and disposed to stand by us in the upholding of union principles and union rules. We had no trouble in enrolling all carpenters in this locality worthy of any note. Our Local Union, 1716, organized as recently as July 27th, turned out on Labor Day in regulation uniform and was joined in the parade by L. U. 986, S. McAlister, and other labor organizations. The parade was a grand success and will long be remembered as one of the grandest gala days of Krebs. The influx of outside carpenters has been so great this summer and fall that we are compelled at this time to cry out: Put up the gates! Prospects are not very encouraging; we have more men than work and carpenters will act wisely by staying away until conditions have changed.

PORTCHESTER, N. Y.—The mass meeting recently held here proved a success. We had a good turnout and Brothers Duffy and Sullivan, who were present, did justice to our cause. Still, we are up against a hard game. The master builders have promulgated an agreement to their own liking, of course, which they want all trades to sign. The masons declare that they will not sign the agreement in its present terms; other trades may come to the same conclusion, and serious complications being anticipated, we would call on all carpenters to keep away from Portchester until this trouble is settled.

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—As work here is rapidly drawing to a close and a great number of our members vainly looking for a job, we would desire all carpenters to take warning and remain away from this city. While we have always welcomed brothers from other parts, it has come to such a state that from now on every job secured by a traveling brother, means the loss of a job and a sacrifice to one of our own members, which does not encourage unionism. We have already placed a large number of men who left the employment of a large contractor who is unfair and taking every step to do us harm. Their jobs had been taken by outside men who came here in disregard of our telegrams requesting them to stay away. Now these brothers themselves have become dissatisfied and will gladly return home by Saturday. It means now that we must sink or swim; but we are determined not to sink, and trust that all true union men will refrain from coming here and taking what little work is left for resident brothers.

SPARTANSBURG, S. C.—Local Union 1456, organized last February, is progressing slowly but surely. You have no idea how anxious we are to see this locality thoroughly organized and more favorable conditions established. With a view to attain this result, we have now entered on a formidable educational campaign, hoping to get the non-union men to realize the efficiency of trade organization and to join our ranks. Once this is accomplished, many of them will undoubtedly make good members. We are at a loss to understand the continuous coming here of so many floaters, as the rate of wages paid certainly furnish no inducement for any competent mechanic. They are from $1.25 to $2.25 per day. We shall certainly be in a position to make an onward move in the early part of the coming year provided that we are not hampered in our efforts for better conditions by new-comers, while success will be very doubtful should the influx of outsiders keep on. There are more carpenters than the trade can stand. Remain away.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—Work is very dull here at this time and many of our men are walking the streets. The outlook for this winter's season is gloomy indeed and we would advise all carpenters to shun this place pending a revival of trade.

• • •

Localities Where Trade Is Dull.

Carpenters are requested to stay away from the following places. Owing to trade movements, building depression and other causes, trade is dull:

New York City Facing a Hard Winter.—Stay Away!

There is an unprecedented decrease in building in New York City this winter and business in the building line is almost at a standstill. This stagnant condition may partly be attributed to the protracted labor troubles here, but is, to a great extent, due to the fall of security and general condition of the money market, causing investors to hesitate in building enterprises. As a result, the number of our unemployed brothers and building trades craftsmen is somewhat enormous. After a resumption of work after the strike last summer, the house-smiths and bridgemen struck on November 7th, throwing our men again on the street with poor prospect to obtain employment before next spring. New York City and vicinity is a place to be avoided by all carpenters in search of employment this winter. Keep away!

Spot Him!

J. R. Pertell, of L. U. 1611, Wichita, Kans., has absconded, leaving his wife and child in destitute circumstances. He has been expelled from his local union and fined $100 by the D. C. for violation of trade rules. He is in want of membership in any union. Spot him!

Where is William Pletcher?

Any one knowing the whereabouts of Brother Wm. Pletcher will confer a favor by informing the Secretary of L. U. 106, Des Moines, Ia. Wm. Pletcher applied for and received a clearance card from this local union, saying that he was going to St. Louis, Mo. He left his wife and family in destitute circumstances and the clearance card coupons have not been returned. Any information

A Joyful Anniversary Celebration.

EDMONTON, ALBERTON, CAN.—Local Union 1325 of this city, recently gave a social in celebration of their first anniversary. The members defrayed the expenses entirely out of their own pockets, the treasury not contributing a single cent. The members, friends and the general contractors of the town with whom we are on friendly terms, were invited and present, and thus we had tables spread of 160 feet of cover space, which were filled three times with eatables and refreshments and there was plenty for all. The program consisted of brass-band music, selections on the piano, speechmaking, reading of a poem suitable to the occasion, singing and dancing. A great many of the people here heretofore had no use for unions; this joyful affair, however, has gained us many friends and they are now looking forward for the carpenters' next blow-out.

Jackson, (Miss.) Local Union in Good Shape.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Although the membership of L. U. 824 is at present not as large as it was at the start in February last, we have more staunch and older union men, and are in a better shape than ever before. Now, after we have turned out the winners in a little difficulty we recently had with one of the prominent employers, the interest of the non-union men in the union's undertaking has been aroused. They begin to realize the power of organization, and as a result we are taking in new members every meeting night. The difficulty alluded to arose through the firm of J. F. Barnes & Co.'s refusal to our demand for a reduction of the working hours to nine per day with ten hours' pay. The firm being notified of our demand, sent word to their men (ten in number) that they should present themselves at their office to be paid off. Thereupon the men quit work and twelve men working for the firm on a college building followed suit.

Being aware that Barnes & Co. was figuring on a contract for the Mississippi State House at the World's Fair in St. Louis, a committee from our local union waited on them and informed them that, being unfair to union labor, they could not drive a nail in St. Louis. This had a marvelous effect, for when the committee withdrew they had in their possession a document in Mr. Barnes's own handwriting, stating that he agreed to our demand.

This incident shows what may be accomplished by united efforts, and Mr. Barnes has certainly come to the conclusion that our organization amounts to something. R. C. McCLEAVE, R. S.
L. U. 824, Jackson, Miss.

From Muscogee, Ind. Ter.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Local Union 1072 is getting along fairly well. As soon as times are opportune and circumstances will warrant the success of such departure, we shall make a demand on our employers for the eight-hour workday. In the realization of our aspirations we shall endeavor to avoid any complications; but, believing that we are entitled to this privilege, we are making special efforts to obtain it and are preparing for the contest if such should prove inevitable.

At present work is rather scarce; no new buildings are being started, our members being solely engaged in the completion of jobs for some time under way. The city is overrun with men and the resident carpenters being more than sufficient to do all the work required until April or May, we would advise all carpenters to keep shy of this place pending a revival of trade, which we expect to set in after the new year has opened up. At this time, however, newcomers will undoubtedly be disappointed in their expectations to secure employment here.

We have a large building under course of construction which, being entirely done by non-union men, should serve as an object lesson for parties contemplating the erection of any building in this vicinity. Carpenters, plumbers and electricians have refused to work on the job (the bricklayers are all negroes) and the employment of an inferior class of men resulted in the retarding of the work to an extent that at this time of writing the building is not yet more than half completed. Had union labor been employed, it would now be ready for occupancy, enabling the owner to draw his rent. Under the circumstances, it will prove a costly affair to him—he is, indeed, paying dearly for his discrimination against union labor.

There is also a garment factory being erected here, whose owners, as we understand, are strictly union people.

Yours for unionism,

S. C. STEWART,

Muscogee, Ind. Ter. L. U. 1072.

From Peoria, Ill.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Trade conditions in Peoria have been fairly good this season and our members employed most of the time. Our wage scale, being 40 cents an hour, and a little higher than in other nearby localities, it seems to attract many floaters who, however, soon pass along, it being evident that the contractors prefer to employ resident carpenters known to them as reliable men.

The outlook for the immediate future is in no way encouraging; there is poor prospect for our craft to obtain employment here at the present time.

The participation of L. U. 183, of Peoria, Ill., in this year's Labor Day celebration, offered strong evidence of the spirit of solidarity prevailing among our membership. Two hundred and seventy, or about four-fifths of our members, reported for the parade and most of those not in line were absent from the city. The celebration was a marked success and the demonstration the most impressive and extensive one held in this State, excepting Chicago. Only floats representing any craft or industry were allowed in the procession, and the expenses born by the labor organizations, thus making the day a true Labor Day.

We had visiting delegations from Galesburg, Monmouth, Farmington, Kewanee, Kingston Mines, Peking, Chilli-coth and other cities. Champaign, Urbana and Bloomington had made arrangements to be with us, but being unable to obtain satisfactory rates from the Big Four Railroad they missed the opportunity. The weather conditions being favorable, the visitors fully enjoyed the festivities in the several beautiful parks of which our city is boasting.

While our Local Union had a good representation in the parade, a few of our members absented themselves without any cause, thus showing a lack of interest in the undertaking of their organization. Probably these brothers expected to see but a handful of their fellow members in line and now regret their absence in the parade. Altogether, Labor Day in Peoria was a day of success to be remembered with satisfaction.

Fraternally,

L. G. HUMPHREY, R. S. L. U. 183.
Peoria, Ill.

An Excellent Record.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Local Union 755 of Superior, Wis., was organized three and one-half years ago, starting out with 41 charter members. As soon as we had our organization in proper working order we demanded and obtained the nine-hour day and 30 cents per hour. The following season found us considerably stronger in numbers, and having met with the good will of the contractors (with a few exceptions) we made a demand for eight hours and an advance in wages of 5 cents per hour, which was granted without any trouble. Last spring our membership had increased to 160 in good standing, leaving our local union in still better shape. The living expenses then being considerably higher and feeling we were justified in asking for another increase in our wage scale, we notified the employers through the Duluth and Superior D. C., that on and after May 1st we demanded 37½ cents per hour. This demand was also acceded to.

At the present time practically all carpenters of this city have joined our organization and all contractors, with the exception of one, have signed an agreement providing for eight hours work and the employment of union men exclusively.

We employ a business agent who is diligently looking after our interests in the building line.

The plasterers and plumbers of this place greatly assist us in the enforcement of our trade rules and in reducing the number of non-union jobs.

The Building Trades Council and Labor Assembly are ever on the alert against intruders.

Work has been good this season, but is now nearly at a standstill and will presumably be so until spring. L. U. 755.

West Superior, Wis.

Still Forging Ahead.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Local Union 446, of Meridian, Miss., is still at the old stand and forging ahead. We are receiving applications for membership nearly every meeting night and the members feel like rallying around the union banner and marching to victory. Though this city is hard to handle and it is a steady fight, we have much to be grateful for. All, or most all of the members are and have been working nine hours per day since May 1st, while the colored Local Union 1366 has stood by us to a man, doing all in their power to further the union cause.

L. U. 446 has the honor and distinction of being the first union in this city being on record as having rendered substantial assistance to its members and having been successful financially. We may not have accomplished as much as we hoped for; some of our members fail to take the interest in the welfare of the organization, so closely connected with their own welfare, as they ought to do; yet we are still doing business at the same old stand and growing stronger every week. All union men have employment and through the untiring efforts of our union, wages are higher than ever before. In view of these facts, it seems strange that some men can not see the many advantages derived from organization. They are learning fast, however, and we hope at no distant day to place Meridian, Miss., in the front ranks of union cities. With best wishes for the success of our cause,

Yours fraternally,

GEO. E. WHEELER, R. S. L. U. 446.
Meridian, Miss.

In Flourishing Condition.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Local Union 1162, Suffern, N. Y., is in a very flourishing condition and initiating new members at every meeting. On November 11th a committee of three was appointed for the purpose of formulating demands to be made on the bosses next spring, eight hours being the main feature in these demands. We hope that by that time Suffern may be awarded a place on your eight-hour list.

We anticipate no serious trouble in our attempt to obtain this reduction of working hours, as fully 60 per cent. of the employers are favorably inclined towards our union and we are giving them early notice and ample time to make due allowance for the coming change in working conditions when figuring on contracts.

We notice an omission in your eight-hour list, and that is our neighboring town of Tuxedo, N. Y. L. U. 389 of that locality, secured the eight-hour day on the 1st of August, after a suspension of work of only two hours. Place Tuxedo on the eight-hour list. Tuxedo on our right and Paterson on our left, both figuring on the list, it will have a tendency of strengthening our position and encouraging our members to stand firm in their just demands. We are determined to obtain what we are asking for—eight hours and strictly union conditions.

Fraternally yours,

THOS. HOPKINSON, L. U. 1162.

Trade Art for the Apprentice.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

In these modern times the trend in our craft seems to be to ignore the apprentice. The journeyman has no time to spend in instructing the apprentice and oftentimes no inclination. The young man is generally put to work at what he can earn most for his employer, and I believe that our journal should, if possible, set apart a page for the benefit of our craft, especially for the apprentice, for he is the journeyman of tomorrow.

Another Voice Demanding Enforcement of Sec. 116.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I was so much pleased with brother G. W. Webb's remarks in the October CARPENTER, denouncing the frequent violations by some of the Financial Secretaries, of Sec. 116, that I wish to congratulate him for having made mention of the subject in the manner he did. Being equally desirous of seeing that section more strictly enforced, I will say a few words as to my experience in the matter.

From Jan. 1, 1903, to Oct. 1, I have issued twenty-nine Clearance Cards from which I have not received the coupons. As you well know, the account of the members, having received the cards, must remain open on my ledger for six months after date of expiration of Clearance Card, they retaining their membership with my local union until the card is deposited, or until they owe six months' dues.

It has even occurred that members who had received a Clearance Card from me, returned to this locality equipped with a card issued by some other local union, while I had never received any notice of the deposit of the one issued by me.

Of course, it may be possible that some mail goes astray and that some cards are never deposited, but it does not seem likely that so many should be unaccounted for.

It is my most ardent desire that every F. S. would read Brother G. W. Webb's article in our October journal, as well as my comment and vow never to have to be accused of any violation of Sec. 116 or any dereliction of duty in that line.

Yours fraternally,

C. M. STAMM, F. L. L. U. 426.

Higher Per Capita and More Benefits.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I desire to offer a suggestion which I believe, if approved of by the rank and file and put into operation, would make our U. B. a fraternal and protective organization in the true sense of the meaning and add greatly to its efficiency and prestige.

I would suggest that we raise our per capita to the General Office from 20 to 25 or 30 cents per month and that we establish the benefit features in vogue among the organized crafts in Great Britain; all benefits to be paid from the general fund same as death and disability benefit. Most of our best unions exact a monthly due of 50 cents from their members, an amount about equal to the dues paid in Great Britain, and still the organizations of that country pay, outside of benefits also established in our U. B., traveling benefit, benefit for loss or theft of tools and a so-called superannuation benefit to all members 60 years of age and 20 years in good standing. Why can we not adopt the same benefits and inaugurate them in our U. B.? I say we could do as well as our British brothers, if we would only consider the matter properly. Just think of a brother belonging to the union for years, helping the common cause along all the while and when he becomes superannuated and unable to secure a job and earn a livelihood and can not pay his dues, he is left by the wayside; particularly if he has no children to take care of him or nothing saved up. I am certain of any fair-minded brother agreeing with me in saying there is something radically wrong.

We must find a remedy to right this wrong and hence I would suggest the increase of our per capita and the inauguration of a superannuation benefit feature. I also claim that the wife's funeral benefit is too small and inadequate and should be increased to 75 dollars, an amount which we could well afford to pay by adding to our per capita to the General Office 5 or 10 cents per month.

We hear a good many brothers make the assertion that by paying an increased amount of per capita of 25 or 30 cents a month out of the 50 cents per month dues, they could not run their local union and still they expect the General Office to run the entire organization and pay death, disability and strike benefit out of 20 cents per month. If this is so, why not increase your monthly local dues? Would it not be better for each and every member, since they all will become old and feeble and unable to work sooner or later, to pay a few cents more while they are young and have something to rely upon in their old age? Under our present system of organization, it is the young men who have the greater advantage of the union; they can join at pleasure and when they see that they are running no risk, they drop out and jump in again when they get cornered; while the older men, who belonged to the union steadily for years, generally stick to it under the most adverse circumstances. I now ask the brothers of the U. B., is this just and right? Is my suggestion not worthy of your most earnest consideration? Let me hear from you.

Do Your Fighting at the Ballot Box.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

In the September issue of our journal you published an article entitled "The Serious Side," by Hal. Scriver, that should be carefully read and taken to heart by every union man. The article contains sound doctrine and shows that our oppressors are preparing for an aggressive warfare to be waged against organized labor at the first opportunity. The present situation indeed requires the utmost vigilance on our part, and I say, let every man quit fighting one another—there is entirely too much of that going on. If there is any fighting to be done, fight the opposition, and a good way to do it is at the ballot box.

As the above mentioned article truly says, there have been very few laws enacted in the interest of the wage-working class; far more have been enacted against them. And there will be no change for the better if we keep on doing as we have in the past. Now is the time to get ready; begin at the primary elections, or even before that. Talk it over among each other and see to it that the right kind of delegates are elected to the conventions. Nominate a union man. The party be hanged—it is the man we want. This thing of voting for a yellow dog because he is of the party is getting too old. We must vote for a man, one in every sense of the word. Would we only make up our minds to go to the polls and vote as solidly together as we marched on Labor Day, we could elect a man of our own choice—not only one, but several.

In Reply to Sam. Gompers' Eight Hour Circular.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

The subjoined letter, which you will kindly publish in the next issue of our journal, was indorsed by the Greater New York District Council and the Secretary instructed to forward a copy to each member of the Executive Board of the A. F. of L.

D. F. FEATHERSTON,

Secretary-Treasurer of the Greater New York District Council.

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 28, 1903.

Mr. Samuel Gompers, President A. F. of L.:

SIR—We have before us a circular bearing date of Sept. 17th, and emanating from the office of the A. F. of L., Washington, D. C. Said circular was duly considered at a regular meeting of Local Union 774 (400 members) U. B. of C. and J. of A., an organization of which you may have perhaps at some time heard of as being very much in favor of an eight-hour workday and which has done much honest, earnest work, freely expending time and money in the effort to bring about the same. You ask us now to write to our Congressmen, Senators, and requesting them to favor the eight-hour measure about to be introduced in Congress and presumably fathered by the A. F. of L., and you claim to be honestly striving to secure the passage of the same. Just at this time we New Yorkers are deriving considerable amusement from the claims that are daily being made by people who would fain make us good and improve our general condition should we give them some coveted offices with adequate salary attachments.

The claims of Dowie, of Devery of Tammany, and the sainted citizens, all contribute to the general gaiety of the present lively time, but L. U. 774 considers the claim of your mutual admiration society and its well-paid officers of favoring an eight-hour workday, as an insult to their intelligence and your circular was received with indignation, as it justly deserved to be, by the meeting at which it was read. Did New York political parties select their candidates for Congress from sanitariums, or were the chief qualifications of Congressmen an utter ignorance of current events, we might make bold to address them in the manner you suggest. But were we to do so now, and they afterwards discover the treachery of the A. F. of L. to the eight-hour movement, as evidenced by your organization's actions in the mills of New York and vicinity, where men high in the councils of the A. F. of L. deliberately conspired to and succeeded to a too great extent in destroying the eight-hour day and supplanting it with a day of nine hours, why, we fear some of the Congressmen might move the appointment of a commission in lunacy to investigate the carpenters of New York City.

The A. F. of L. can not shirk the responsibility for the acts of the Amalgamated Wood Workers in the mills of New York and the feeling of resentment against the men or body of men responsible for destroying what it took us so long to build up, is far too strong to be appeased by the twaddling platitudes contained in your circular. When you have become honest in the movement of the eight hours, and show us some tangible proof that the revenues derived from bodies of organized scabs masquerading as union men is not of so much moment as the well being of old affiliated unions in the minds of the ruling powers in the A. F. of L.—then L. U. 774 will be glad to co-operate with you in any movement having for its object the improvement of conditions of our craft and all others, whether such improvement is to be secured by legislative enactment or otherwise.

Meantime look well to the Amalgamated Wood Workers and their dirty actions in New York City, and please stop Kidd—ing.

Very respectfully yours,
L. U. 774.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Enclosed please find copy of a letter sent by our local union to Samuel Gompers, President A. F. of L. You are hereby requested to publish the same in the next issue of our journal

Yours fraternally,

BENJ. FRIED, E. S. L. U. 309.

New York City.

United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local Union No. 309.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2, 1903.

MR. SAMUEL GOMPERS,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir—In reply to your circular letter dated September 7, 1903, requesting us to advise you of the action taken by our body, we have resolved to vote for neither capitalistic party, but we shall endeavor, with all our means, to obtain and capture the legislative, as well as executive powers, to spare the working class the degradation, as recommended by you: "to beg capitalistic politicians to help us to get what we deem are our rights."

It ought to be expected, that through your long experience as president of a large confederation of working people, you are convinced of the fruitless efforts of your tactics, which are susceptible to divest the workingmen of America of all self-esteem and independence and are certainly corrupting the fidelity of their political convictions.

We have always sacrificed much and stand ready to sacrifice more, for an eight-hour day for everybody, but we must state that much doubt exists as to the honesty of your exertions, as you and other officers of the A. F. of L. have granted privileges to the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union, to undermine our success in regard to the eight-hour day, as these scabs have not only occupied the places of our striking and locked out members, but also strive to enter into agreements with our bosses to work for them for lower wages and 54 hours weekly, where the standard of 44 hours has been established by our organization.

Therefore, the 1,300 members of this L. U. have assembled in a special meeting and resolved to lay your letter on the table until such time when the A. F. of L. will advocate such course, which will lead the working class of this republic out of its slavery, to an economical, as well as political freedom, to which the most useful members of our community are certainly entitled.

Yours respectfully,
BENJ. FRIED,
Secretary L. U. No. 309.

The Structural Trades Alliance of America.

The Structural Trade Alliance of America have organized for the purpose of bettering the conditions of the men in the building trade industry. For many years we have felt the want of an alliance of the building trades on such lines as would protect the several basic trades in the construction of buildings against the ravages that have been made upon their membership during the past few years, and the dismemberment of the same, causing endless strife, controversy, inconvenience and loss of time and money both to the employer and the employe alike.

The claims of jurisdiction, which can be settled only through an organization that possesses the power to protect its several trades against divisional or tributary trades forming separate and distinct local bodies, which are known to all familiar with the labor movement as injurious to the wage worker and the movement in general, have become so monotonous as to demand the instituting of a building trades organization on such broad, honest and definite lines as will preserve a just power and give to the rank and file of the affiliated trades what no other central body has ever given—direct sympathy and support to the men in the building trades.

It will guarantee the practice of that slogan of the labor movement, "One for all, and all for one," and insure its being made operative at all times on the building, carrying with it at all times fewer strikes, but of a certainty more successful ones, and it will mean, if conditions compel us to enter a sympathetic movement, that each and every local of the building trades will be a unit in that movement, and we shall receive the proper aid in establishing our rights.

It will place the entire industry of the building trades in a position to act as a unit in meeting wealth and might with right and justice; it will be the means of establishing within a few years, a permanent wage base in accordance with living conditions, whereby the thrifty mechanic can enjoy the comforts of a home of his own and set aside a portion of his earnings for his declining years, which is his earnest ambition, and to which every honest American citizen will grant he is entitled.

It will be recognized by all building trades employers as a just and true solution of the strike and lockout problem, and will arouse a confidence that this Alliance has been in the main instrumental in preventing delays, especially where agreements exist, since it will absolutely require both parties to live strictly to these agreements. It will mean that the building trades are in a position to demand their rights and to recognize and insure the rights of the employer, and to protect both from being imposed upon by designing or unscrupulous persons with whom they may be thrown in contact.

By the formation of this Alliance we have provided a plan whereby, if matters in dispute can not be settled by arbitration, our movement can be directed in a true statesmanlike manner, and whereby all trades working on the building will act as one regardless of their own particular craft.

It will put a stop to wild-cat strikes in the future, and at the same time give confidence to the public in proceeding with prospective work, knowing that if their contractors are fair and willing to treat their men honestly, this Alliance will stand as a bulwark to prevent and discourage trouble, insisting meanwhile on the completion of contracts where agreements are not violated or broken, and to stop, if needs be, the work of any contractor from ocean to ocean or from the Gulf to the Great Lakes.

Now that we have consolidated the building trades into one Alliance with equal powers, we have arrived at a point where we can urge arbitration, while in the past we stood divided, sometimes against ourselves, but I feel now since the organization of the Structural Building Trades Alliance, that strikes will be avoided, and in their place will be erected a monument on arbitration that will proclaim to the world harmony of action and a recognition of the rights of our affiliated trades, for our watchword is, "They who represent the building industry must be of good judgment, forceful character and worthy of confidence."

They will be men knowing the rights of Labor and willing to assert them. They must recognize the rights of Capital and be able and ready to respect them, and with justice to all, and malice towards none, the Structural Building Trades Alliance of America will go down in the history of the world as having solved the most difficult labor problems of the day.

The Bosses' Ten Commandments.

The old time honored Ten Commandments as handed down to Moses on the Table of Stone, have been warped and twisted by the factory bosses until they read something like this:

I. Thou shalt have no other boss but me.

II. Thou shalt not make to thyself any comforts or the likeness of anything to thine own interest neither on earth above or the pit below. Thou shalt bow down to me and worship me for I am thy boss and a zealous boss and I will show thee no mercy, but will endeavor to make thee keep my commandments.

III. Thou shalt not take the name of thy boss in vane, lest I discharge thee in two weeks from the time of so doing.

IV. Remember thou shalt work from 7 a. m. until 6 p. m., six days in a week with all thy might and strength and do all I ask of thee and on the Sabbath thou shalt stay at home and do no manner of work, but shalt do all thou canst to recruit thy exhausted strength for my services on Monday morning.

V. Honor thy boss that thy days may be short and few, for I shall not want thee when thou gettest old and have to spend thy days in the poor house, as I shall not care.

VI. Thou shalt not belong to any union or labor organization, whether it be for social purposes or not, for it is against my will.

VII. Thou shalt always speak well of me, although I oppose thee and continue to cut thy wages from 5 to 15 per cent. Thou shalt be content if I only find thee work and pay thee $1.00 per day and advise thee to save half of it.

VIII. Thou shalt go naked and starve, thou and thy family. If it is anything to mine interest, thou shalt earn money to pay my salary and furnish my house with costly furniture and my stables with sleek horses.

IX. Thou shalt hold no meetings to consider thine own interest or protest against a reduction of wages. Thou shalt not have a union paper in thy house, for it speaks the truth and is not afraid to say that my belly is filled with choice roast beef and plum pudding, while the poor are lucky to get codfish and water. Thou shalt read no newspaper of any sort, as I wish to keep thee in ignorance all the days of thy life.

X. Thou shalt not covet thy master's money or his comforts or his luxuries or anything that is his. Thou shalt not covet any overseer's room. Thou shalt not covet his money, although he gets $3.00 per day and thou $1.00. Thou shalt not object to anything, as I want to reign over and tyrannize over thee and keep thee in bondage all the days of thy life.

Who Can Libel Otis?

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Nov., 1903.

At a special meeting of the Employers' Association, held last week, it was decided to raise a fund of $5,000 for the purpose of prosecuting Arthur A. Hay, Special Representative of the International Typographical Union, for criminal libel. Having received sufficient warning of this desperate move on the part of Harrison Gray Otis, of the Los Angeles Times, who is the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Employers' Association, the Anti-Times Committee has made arrangements to furnish the necessary bail and fight the case in the highest courts of the land.

In one sense it is absolutely ludicrous to note this action of the gang of "Parasites." In one breath they challenge organized labor by screaming defiance, stating the "boycott is a boost," and in the next issue of the malodorous Times it insists that the unions are persecuting business men, and such lawlessness must be suppressed by Chief of Police Elton.

The specific charge to warrant the arrest of Mr. Hay is to be made on the grounds that that gentleman has criminally conspired with the labor organizations to the end that a certain local advertiser in the Times has been boycotted by the Labor Council.

It is unnecessary to state that in a community where the Mayor is as spineless as a jellyfish and the police department is the servile tool of the Employers' Association, the authorities will be more than pleased to do the bidding of their master—Otis.

Should some of the readers of THE CARPENTER chance to see a circular which is being mailed by the thousands, inviting working people to come to Los Angeles, where, it is stated, wages are abnormally high and opportunities for advancement are greater than in any other section of the country, it would be prudent to investigate. The surplus of mechanics in Southern California is greater this winter than ever before, and people who have been lured to Los Angeles and vicinity by these circulars, emanating from the Employers Association, have had reason to regret their action. The sole purpose of flooding this section with mechanics and unskilled laborers is to create an oversupply of wage-earners, thus reducing wages and attempting to disorganize the unions.

Anyhow, the local Anti-Times Committee is not losing any sleep over this last desperate move of the Employers' Association to send its members to the penitentiary for criminal libel, as it considers it a supreme stretch of imagination for any one to libel the warrior bold of the Los Angeles Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Oct. 27, 1903.

To all Local Unions of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Greeting.

At our last Biennial Convention, held in Atlanta, Ga., September, 1902, the question of amalgamating the two National Organizations of Carpenters, namely, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, was referred to the G. E. B., to draw up terms of amalgamation, whereby the two organizations could be merged into one.

The question was referred to the Convention of the A. F. of L. held at New Orleans, La., 1902, and that body passed a resolution that a committee of five from each organization should meet and select an umpire to try and make an agreement along those lines. After an unsuccessful meeting held at New York City, both organizations were prevailed upon to again try and adjust their troubles, and by agreement they met at Cleveland, Ohio, August 17, 1903, and decided upon Adolph Strasser, formerly International President of the Cigar Makers' International Union, as Umpire. Mr. Strasser accepted, and both committees proceeded to Chicago, where it was mutually agreed that the conference should be held. After both sides had thoroughly explained their case, the entire matter was left in the hands of the Umpire, who agreed to render his decision on October 20, 1903, a copy of which is attached.

In referring this to you for your consideration, we wish to impress upon you the necessity of its serious consideration, and therefore would request that your Local Union appoint or elect a committee of three or more of your members who are thoroughly qualified to digest every section, suggestion or recommendation made, so that they may be able to place the entire matter before your membership in an intelligent manner.

You will observe that a temporary trade or working agreement has been provided for, to go into effect on January 1, 1904, and as this decision has already been accepted by the G. E. B., and your General Officers instructed to comply with the requirements specified therein, a too thorough perusal of the contents of said temporary working agreement can not be made by your L. U.

The general plan of amalgamation will be submitted to the next General Convention of the U. B. at Milwaukee, Wis., September, 1904, for final disposition by that body.

Yours fraternally,

WM. D. HUBER,
General President.
FRANK DUFFY,
General Secretary.

DECISION OF UMPIRE ADOLPH STRASSER AND PLAN OF AMALGAMATION BETWEEN THE UNITED BROTHERHOOD OF CARPENTERS AND JOINERS OF AMERICA AND THE AMALGAMATED SOCIETY OF CARPENTERS AND JOINERS.

To the Officers of the U. B. of C. and J. of A. and the A. S. of C. and J.:

GENTLEMEN—In compliance with the request of the representatives of the U. B. of C. and J. of A. and the A. S. of C. and J. to act as arbitrator or umpire, I hereby beg leave to submit my report and decision.

From the testimony submitted in the city of Chicago by both delegations during three days in the latter part of August, 1903, it appears that at the last convention of the A. F. of L., held at New Orleans, La., in November, 1902, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners request that a committee consisting of five from each organization, they to select an umpire or arbitrator, to meet on or before the first day of March, 1903, for the purpose of amalgamating the two organizations."

In addition to this, the papers submitted contained the following: (Page 165, minutes of the last convention of the A. F. of L.)

"Delegate Duncan said he would like to have the delegates of the two organizations state if they would agree to cease hostilities."

"Delegate Duffy agreed."

"Delegate Thomas agreed."

The unfortunate and ill-advised struggles in the Borough of Manhattan and Kings, and in other places during the spring and summer of 1903, clearly proven a flagrant violation of the pledges given by both parties at the last convention of the A. F. of L.

The hostilities resumed amounted almost to a calamity, and it will take years to eradicate the disastrous results.

I deem it my plain duty in the solution of the problem assigned to me to prepare a plan of complete amalgamation within a reasonable time; and to submit a working agreement by which hostilities may be avoided, pending the discussion and the acceptance of the plan of amalgamation.

At the outset I desire to say that no "working agreement" can establish permanent harmony in any trade which is governed by two constitutions and two sets of rules.

The necessary and natural efforts to increase the membership in the respective organizations involve criticism of plans and methods, creating false impressions, which are bound to have injurious results in the course of time.

PLAN OF AMALGAMATION.

The amalgamation shall take place, and be in full force on and after January 1, 1905.

The organization shall be known as the "United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America."

DUES AND BENEFITS.

The membership shall be classified as follows:

Division A. paying 35 cts. weekly.

Division B. paying 20 cts. weekly.

Division C. paying 15 cts. weekly.

Division D. paying 10 cts. weekly.

The initiation fees now prevailing in both organizations shall remain in force until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the U. B.

Division A. Strike and Lockout Benefits.

Any member having contributed 35 cents weekly, for a period of six months, engaged in a strike or lockout, duly authorized and approved by the General Executive Board of the U. B. shall be entitled to the following benefits:

For the first 15 weeks, $5.00 per week.

For the second 15 weeks, $3.00 per week.

For the third 15 weeks, $2.00 per week.

Members in good standing for a period of three months, engaged in an authorized strike or lockout shall be entitled to the following benefits:

For the first 30 weeks, $3.00 per week.

For the following 15 weeks, $2.00 per week.

No member shall be entitled to any benefits unless said strike or lockout shall have been duly authorized and approved by the General Executive Board of the U. B. of C. and J. of A.; nor shall any member be entitled to any more than 45 weeks' benefit during the progress of any strike or lockout.

Division A. Sick Benefits.

Any member having contributed a weekly due of 35 cents for the period of one year, shall be entitled to the following sick benefits:

For the first 15 weeks, $4.00 per week.

For the second 15 weeks, $2.00 per week.

No member shall be entitled to more than 30 weeks' sick benefit in any calendar year nor shall the second calendar year benefit commence before two months shall have elapsed from the payment of the last benefit.

The following rules of the A. S. of C. and J. shall govern the payment of sick benefits, (excepting the amount of benefit, which is heretofore provided), and remain in force until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the Constitution of the U. B.

Rule 4, Clause 8.

Rule 18, Clause 18.

Rule 24, Clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.

Rule 29, Clause 8.

Rule 34, Clauses 13, 14.

Rule 39, Clauses 1, 2, 3, 4.

Rule 48, Clause 7.

Rule 50, Clause 1.

Division A. Out-of-Work Benefit.

Any member having contributed a weekly due of 35 cents for a period of two years, shall be entitled to the following benefit:

For the first 12 weeks, whether continuously or periodically, $3.00 per week.

For the second 12 weeks, whether continuously or periodically, $2.00 per week.

But no member shall be entitled to more than $60.00 out-of-work benefit, in any calendar year; nor shall any benefit be paid during the months of January and December.

Rule 18, Clauses 13, 15, 16.

Rule 34, Clauses 1, 3, 7, 10.

Rule 35, Clause 1.

Rule 37, Clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8.

Rule 48, Clauses 3, 4, of the A. S. of C. and J. shall govern the payment of out-of-work benefit (excepting the amount of benefit, which is heretofore provided), until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the Constitution of the U. B.

Division A. Funeral Benefit.

Any member having contributed a weekly due of 35 cents for the period of one year shall be entitled to a funeral benefit of $100.00; any member having contributed the same dues for a period of five (5) years shall be entitled to $200.00; any member having contributed the same dues for a period of six (6) months shall be entitled to $30.00; any member having contributed the same dues for a period of two years, shall be entitled, on the death of his lawful wife, to a sum of $40.00. No member shall be entitled to draw this benefit more than once.

Rule 21, Clause 4.

Rule 34, Clause 11.

Rule 43, Clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, of the A. S. of C. and J. (excepting the amount of benefit, as heretofore provided), shall govern the payment of the funeral benefit until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the Constitution of the U. B.

Division A. Accident or Disability Benefit.

Any member having contributed a weekly due of 35 cents for a period of 2 years, shall be entitled to the following accident benefits:

A. Totally disabled$700.00

B. Partially disabled 350.00

C. Temporarily disabled 175.00

Rule 40, Clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

Rule 50, Clause 1, of the A. S. of C. and J., shall govern the payment of the benefit until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the Constitution of the U. B.

Division A. Superannuation Benefit. (Pension for Life).

Any member having contributed a weekly due of 35 cents for a period of 25 years, shall be entitled to $2.50 per week during his natural life. Any member having contributed the same dues for a period of 18 years, shall be entitled to $2.00 per week.

Rule 29, Clause 7.

Rule 42, Clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, of the A. S. of C. and J. (excepting the amount of benefit, as heretofore provided), shall govern the payment of this benefit, until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the Constitution of the U. B.

Division A. Tool Benefit.

Any member having contributed a weekly due of 35 cents, for the period of one year, shall be entitled in case of loss of his tools by fire, water or theft, to a sum not exceeding $100.00; any member having contributed the same dues for a period of 6 months, shall be entitled to a benefit not exceeding $30.00.

Rule 34, Clause 8.

Rule 38, Clauses 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 (excepting the amount of benefit, as heretofore provided), of the A. S. of C. and J., shall govern the payment of the benefit until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the Constitution of the U. B.

Division B, paying 20 cents weekly, shall be entitled, under the same rules and restrictions, to the same scale of benefits as Division A, as follows:

- A. Strike and lockout benefits.
- B. Sick benefits.
- C. Funeral benefits.
- D. Accident or disability benefits.
- E. Tool benefits.

But no member of Division B shall be entitled to any out-of-work benefits, nor to any superannuation or pension benefits.

Division C, paying 15 cents weekly.

Any member paying 15 cents weekly dues shall be entitled to the same benefits and be subject to the same rules and restrictions as now provided for by the Constitution of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

In addition to the above, Division C shall be entitled, in case of a strike or lockout, duly authorized and approved by the General Executive Board of the U. B., to the following benefits:

For the first 15 weeks, $3.00 per week.

For the following 30 weeks, $2.00 per week.

The District Council or Local Union shall have authority to levy local assessments, and to solicit donations for the purpose of relieving distress pending a strike or lockout.

Division D, paying 10 cents weekly.

Carpenters over 50 years of age becoming members, and apprentices paying the above amount, shall be entitled to the following benefits:

Funeral allowance of $50.00, as provided in Section 98 of the Constitution of the U. B.

In case of an authorized strike or lockout, to the following benefits:

For the first 15 weeks, $3.00 per week.

For the following 30 weeks, $2.00 per week.

No member of Division D shall be entitled to any strike or lockout benefits, unless he has been a contributing member for at least three (3) months.

Any member desiring to be transferred from Division C to Division B shall give three months' notice, in writing, to the Financial Secretary; said member shall not be over 45 years of age, and after contributing 20 cents weekly for the period of one year shall be entitled to all benefits provided for in Division C.

Any member of Divisions B and C desiring to be transferred to Division A, shall give three months' notice, in writing, to the Financial Secretary; said member shall not be over 40 years of age, and after contributing 35 cents weekly for a period of two years, shall be entitled to all benefits provided for in Division A; provided that he has reached the age of fifty (50) years and shall have been a contributing member of the U. B. for 18 years before he can claim $2.00 per week superannuation benefit, and a continuous member of 25 years before he shall be entitled to $2.50 per week. Pending the two years he shall receive the benefits to which he has been previously entitled.

GENERAL RESERVE FUND.

On and after January 1, 1905, the U. B. of C. and J. of A. shall establish a General Reserve Fund, held in trust by Local Unions under the jurisdiction of the U. B. of C. and J. of A. as a guarantee for the payment of all benefits provided for in the Constitution. It shall be as follows:

- A. For every superannuated member$50.00
- B. For every member paying 35 cents weekly 12.50
- C. For every member paying 20 cents weekly 10.00

- D. For every member paying 15 cents weekly 6.00
- E. For every member paying 10 cents weekly 3.00

Whenever the General Reserve Fund shall fall below the amounts per capita provided for in this section it shall be the duty of the General Executive Board of the U. B. to levy an assessment of not more than 25 cents weekly until the deficiency shall have been restored.

Upon the amalgamation of both organizations, on January 1, 1905, the American District of the A. S. of C. and J. shall pay into the General Reserve Fund the following amounts:

- A. For every superannuated member$50.00
- B. For every beneficial member in good standing over one year paying 35 cents weekly 12.50
- C. For all members paying 35 cents weekly in good standing less than one year..... 7.50
- D. For all trade section members and juniors 2.50

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America shall pay into the General Reserve Fund the following amounts:

- A. For every member in good standing for a period of one or more years..... $7.50
- B. For every member in good standing less than one year 5.00
- C. For every semi-beneficial member 2.50

The funds held by the General Executive Board of the U. B. for the payment of benefits, etc., shall be a part of the General Reserve Fund.

Should the funds of both organizations on January 1, 1905, be insufficient to pay into the General Reserve Fund the above amounts, then a weekly assessment of 10 cents shall be levied on the members of the organization having a deficiency; the assessment to continue until paid in full.

On and after January 1, 1905, the General Reserve Fund shall consist of the following income:

Initiation fees, weekly dues, fines, interest on money, and assessments levied by the General Executive Board to replenish the deficiency in the General Reserve Fund.

The General Reserve Fund shall be the joint property of all members of the U. B. of C. and J. of A., and shall be held in trust by Local Unions for the payment of benefits and expenses specified in the Constitution. No Local Union shall have the right to make any donations or incur any expenses not provided for under the laws from this fund.

Local Unions shall have the right to expend in any calendar year from the general income for officers' salaries, committee expenses, office and hall rent, meeting room furnishings, printing, stationery, postage, fuel and light, taxes to district councils and trades assemblies the following percentages:

Unions numbering 30 members or less, 30 per cent.

Unions numbering 31 to 50 members, 25 per cent.

Unions numbering over 50 members, 20 per cent.

Any portion of the percentage not used in any calendar year shall remain part of the General Reserve Fund.

EQUALIZATION OF FUNDS.

The General Secretary shall, within three months after the close of the fiscal year publish in the official journal the Annual Financial Report. The annual report shall be compiled from the monthly reports returned by the Financial Secretaries of Local Unions,

The General Secretary shall equalize, every three years, the funds held by Local Unions, and establish the per capita fund each union is entitled to. He shall then direct the unions having expended less per capita tax for the benefits provided for in the Constitution to remit to those unions having expended a larger amount, until each union shall have its respective share.

Whenever the funds of a Local Union become exhausted by legitimate expenditure for the benefits provided for in the Constitution, the General Executive Board, upon receipt of notice thereof, shall direct any other Union to remit such amounts as may be deemed necessary.

All funds of Local Unions exceeding the following scale shall be deposited in State Savings Banks and National Banks in the name of the Union and three Trustees:

- Unions numbering 25 members or less, all amounts over...$ 25.00
- Unions numbering 50 members or less, all amounts over... 35.00
- Unions numbering 100 members or less, all amounts over.. 75.00
- Unions numbering 250 members or less, all amounts over... 100.00

The loss sustained by the failure of any bank shall be considered a legitimate expense by any Local Union; no Local Union shall be held responsible for such loss.

Local Unions shall be held responsible for any defalcation or embezzlement of their officers. Any loss sustained in this manner must be replaced within six months by local assessments. Defaulters and embezzlers must be prosecuted criminally.

Any member in Divisions A and B, leaving the jurisdiction of any Local Union or District and depositing his clearance or traveling card in any Local Union in the United States or Canada shall be entitled at once to all benefits guaranteed under the Constitution.

The benefits provided for in Divisions A and B shall not be reduced for a period of 15 years from the date of amalgamation.

All branches of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners desiring to continue in the same condition shall be granted a charter free of charge, bearing the date when originally organized. Also stating date of amalgamation. No branch having less than ten members shall be allowed a Charter, but shall amalgamate with the nearest union of the Brotherhood, by depositing a traveling or clearance card.

Strike out Section 55 of the Constitution of the U. B. and insert the following:

The General Secretary of the U. B. shall, with the consent of the General Executive Board, draw upon any Local Union not exceeding one hundred ($100.00) dollars at one time, for a sufficient amount to meet the legitimate expenditure of the General Office. Said amount not to exceed $5,000.00 over the actual expenses required monthly. Any Local Union failing to comply with this section shall, after due notice, be suspended by the General Executive Board, and not be reinstated until complied with.

All orders upon Local Unions for money to defray the expenses of the General Office of the U. B. shall be published in the monthly journal 30 days prior to the order being sent to Local Unions.

All benefits shall be paid by Local Unions, but no Local Union shall have the right to pay any claim for funeral expenses or disability benefits without the sanction and approval of the General President and General Secretary of the U. B.

The General Secretary of the American District of the A. S. of C. and J. shall be, commencing January 1, 1905, assigned to the position of first assistant of the General Secretary in the General Office of the U. B. for a term of three years at a salary of not less than $25.00 weekly. Part of his duties shall be to prepare blanks for monthly reports, uniform system of book-keeping, and to enter all monthly reports in books provided for the purpose and assist in issuing the annual report.

Three months prior to amalgamation the branches connected with the American District of the A. S. of C. and J. shall elect by popular vote a General Organizer, who shall be appointed to hold said office commencing January 1, 1905, for a term of two years. He shall receive the same salary and expenses as other Organizers of the U. B. His principal duty shall be to educate the members on the necessity of high dues and benefits, thus maintaining the efficiency of the U. B. in times of depression in the trade.

The rules of the A. S. of C. and J. governing arrearages of dues, etc., forfeiture of benefits and suspension of members shall remain in full force for all members enrolled in Divisions A and B until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the Constitution of the U. B.

All Local laws and rules of the A. S. of C. and J. in reference to duties of officers and committees, salaries, fines local management, etc., shall remain in force for all branches in locals having a majority of members enrolled in Divisions A and B until amended in proper form by said local.

All sections of the Constitution of the United Brotherhood of C. and J. of A. and rules of local unions not in conflict with the plan of amalgamation shall remain in force until amended in accordance with Sections 184 (a) and 184 (b) of the Constitution of the U. B.

The General Executive Board of the U. B. shall enter into communication with the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners of Great Britain and the National Unions of Continental Europe with a view to arranging the exchange and acceptance of traveling cards of all union carpenters of the civilized world.

The plan of amalgamation hereby submitted should be referred to the next conventions of both organizations to be held in 1904 for discussion, both conventions then to submit the same to a popular vote of the members for ratification.

All difference arising about the interpretation of any section or parts of the same in reference to the plan of amalgamation and trade agreement shall be referred to the Umpire rendering this decision for final settlement.

TRADE AGREEMENT.

This agreement shall remain in force for one year commencing January 1, 1904.

I. Each branch of the A. S. of C. and J. shall pay a per capita tax of not less than 5 cents, nor more than 25 cents per member per month to the District Council of the U. B. of C. and J. to which it is affiliated for every member in good standing on the books. Locals of the U. B. shall pay the same amount.

II. In places where no branch of the A. S. of C. and J. exists every member of said organization working in such districts shall pay to the nearest local of the U. B. 25 cents per month for a working card and comply with all trade rules of the District. For violation of any rules he shall be subject to fines and penalties, payable into the fund of the D. C. or Local Union.

III. One-half of all fines for violation of trade rules imposed by District Councils where a branch of the A. S. of C. and J. is represented shall be payable into the Treasury of the D. C. The other half to be retained by the branch or union to which the member belongs.

IV. Any branch or members of the A. S. of C. and J. violating the trade rules of a district in which there is a District Council of the U. B. shall be tried by that body, and if found guilty on a secret ballot by a two-thirds vote of the members present shall be punished in accordance with the rules to be adopted by the D. C. in the month of January, 1904. No appeal shall be permissible from any judgment rendered to a higher tribunal prior to the complete amalgamation of both organizations.

V. Any question affecting a change of wages or hours of labor, etc., under the jurisdiction of any D. C. shall be submitted to a popular vote of all Union Carpenters represented in the same, and if approved by a two-thirds majority on a secret ballot, shall be binding upon all branches, unions and members.

VI. On the last Saturday in December, 1903, a joint District Council shall be organized in all cities and towns where the U. B. has locals and the A. S. has branches for the regulation of wages and hours and for the adoption of other rules necessary for the protection of the trade.

VII. On and after January 1, 1904, all traveling cards issued by the A. S. shall be recognized by the U. B. pending complete amalgamation.

VIII. The District Council shall have power, by a two-thirds vote on roll call, to levy assessments, not exceeding one dollar weekly, three months prior to a contemplated strike or lockout; and pending an authorized strike, on every working member represented in the D. C. for the management of strikes and lockouts, and for the payment of benefits; the benefit not to exceed four dollars weekly.

IX. The A. S. of C. and J. shall have equal representation, in proportion to membership represented in the District, on all committees conferring or arbitrating with employers about the regulation of wages, hours, employment, trade agreements, etc.

X. Each organization shall deposit, as a guarantee for a faithful compliance of the trade agreement, the sum of twenty-five thousand ($25,000) dollars in Savings Banks, bearing interest, as follows:

In the city of Indianapolis, Ind., $5,000 each; in the city of Chicago, Ill., $5,000 each; in the city of Cleveland, O., $5,000 each, and in the city of New York, $10,000 each. The amounts to be deposited in the names of the President, Secretary and Treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, as Trustees of said Guarantee Fund. All amounts must be deposited prior to January 10, 1904.

XI. All claims for damages shall be filed within thirty days after the commission of any act, by either party, in violation of trade rules and trade union principles in general, with the General Officers of each organization. A copy of the same shall be filed with the President of the A. F. of L.

XII. A Court of Claims, composed of two representatives from each organization, who shall select an Umpire, shall convene on the second Monday in December, 1904, at the city of Cleveland, O., for the settlement of all claims, which shall be final. The awards to be paid within ten days from the Guarantee Fund deposited in the banks.

In conclusion, I desire to say that I have endeavored, to the best of my ability, to formulate a plan of amalgamation and to submit a trade agreement calculated to establish harmonious relations and unity of action in the trade.

At the same time I desire to say that no plan can be evolved which is not capable of improvement.

Trusting that it will help to advance the cause of labor in general, I remain,

Yours fraternally,

[Signed]

A. STRASSER,

Umpire.

Report of Gen. Pres. Wm. D. Huber.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Sept. 30, 1903.
To the General Executive Board of the U. B. of C. and J. of A., Greeting:

Much of my time for the last six months has been spent on the road in the interests of the organization. My absence from headquarters in that capacity is the reason no report was rendered for last quarter.

On June 1st, I left the office for Milwaukee, where my presence had been desired for some time. I found the locals in a fair shape, endeavoring to do all they could under the circumstances to build up their locals. Their membership being mostly German, it was their desire that a man be sent there in their interest who could speak their language as well as English. I appointed Brother Wilde who was proficient in both languages to try and give them such assistance as he could to build up their organization.

From Milwaukee I went to Grand Rapids, Mich., where the men were out on strike for better conditions. I stopped to the office, I found letters and telegrams urging me to go to San Francisco—that trouble was brewing there.

On the 21st of June, I left for that city. On my way there I stopped at Omaha where the boys had been engaged in a prolonged struggle for better conditions. I took them all by surprise, none of them knowing that I intended to stop. I found Brother Kent, our Organizer there, doing all that was possible for him to do to bring about a settlement, which was done later on. When I landed in San Francisco I found much prejudice existing and a great amount of it against your humble servant owing to the fact of false reports being circulated of what I was going to do. I found that most of the trouble was caused by personal spite and prejudice against those who were in power in the Building Trades Council, and also some controversy over an agreement which had been made with the Mill Owners through that body, but was informed that it had been abrogated and a new one entered into; also some controversy over the label which the D. C. had refused to adopt after it had been registered in the State. I had some trouble in getting the D. C. to adopt our label, owing to its not being practical in the way the laws say it must be used, the Building Trades Council having adopted a stamp, their laws calling that every piece of material in the woodworking line that goes into a building, should bear this stamp. After a thorough investigation being made, and I going through the different mills to satisfy myself whether our label was practical in the manner in which they insisted that it should be used, I was honest enough to admit that it was not practical. The mills there are different than elsewhere inasmuch as each mill has its own particular class of work, and only one or two being fitted up to do all kinds of work, which is done by most large mills in the East and elsewhere, and to insist upon our label being put upon every piece leaving the shop would be the height of folly indeed. I was given to understand the reason these laws were made to that effect was because some of the mill owners bought unfair material and worked it in along some of their own and claimed it as coming from their shop where they were only making a very small amount of it themselves, stamping a few pieces and claiming it was all right when most of it was all wrong.

The District Council finally adopted the label by a unanimous vote of that body with the understanding it would be recognized on material coming from and manufactured under the conditions specified, but I was to ask the General Executive Board for the privilege of that body in having a fac-simile made in a rubber stamp, which was done by me, requesting the G. E. B. by letter to do so, and you refused the request for reasons best known to yourselves. It was then agreed that both labels be recognized until such time as the laws were changed, making our label more practical universally. In that city the Building Trades Council controls all mills and yards with the exception of one, or did, when I was there, and the boys on the coast are to be congratulated on having such an organization that looks after the welfare of all crafts connected with it. While all was not accomplished in San Francisco that was desired, I am satisfied that the organization will from now on work more harmoniously than in the past, and I trust that it may act as a unit in looking for its own best interests.

I visited a number of locals in the vicinity of San Francisco and found most of them in a flourishing condition. There is some trouble existing in Oakland, which was finally adjusted to the credit of the locals there. I found Sacramento in fine shape—the most thoroughly organized city I visited in the West.

Portland, Oregon, owing to conditions in trade, was not in as good a shape as desired, but no doubt in the near future will gain much better conditions.

Tacoma is certainly alive to its own best interests, as far as trade organizations are concerned, there being quite a rivalry between that city and Seattle, which I found under conditions much better than I expected. The locals there own their own hall, which is fitted up in good shape and is a credit to the membership of that city.

The trip was one which was of much interest to me as regards the different labor organizations as well as our own, and I am pleased to state that all are up and doing and working harmoniously to the best interests of all. I left the coast regretting that I was not an extreme Westerner.

On August 18th I visited Cleveland, where it had been arranged that the committee representing the A. S. and U. B. should meet for the purpose of choosing the arbitrator or umpire to decide on the terms of the A. S. becoming a part of the U. B. as per resolution of the A. F. of L. The two committees chose Adolph Strasser, formerly International President of the Cigarmakers International Union, to act in that capacity. Owing to the fact of his not being able to come to Cleveland at that time, we agreed to meet in Chicago for a final deliberation over the matter. The matter is now in the hands of the Umpire, whose decision will be rendered somewhere about the 15th of October.

On the adjournment of that committee I went to Philadelphia, as per your instructions, in an endeavor to adjust the conditions there caused by the late strike in that city. Not having concluded the investigation by Labor Day, we adjourned to meet again on Sept. 14, when we concluded our investigation on the 18th, which report will be given in full by a committee chosen to make such investigation.

Respectfully submitted,

WM. D. HUBER, G. P.

Quarterly Report of First Vice-President.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Oct. 1, 1903.
Mr. President, Members of the General Executive Board and Brothers, Greeting:

I beg leave to submit the following report for the third quarter, ending Sept. 30, 1903:

In the early part of July I was sent to Schenectady, N. Y., to adjust a little trouble between L. U. No. 146 and the Trades and Labor Council in regard to seating delegates of a dual organization, and after a few days' consultation with all parties interested, we settled the matter to the entire satisfaction of L. U. No. 146. From there I proceeded to Elmira, N. Y., when, after a stay of only three days, I received orders to go to Rochester, N. Y., to handle the strike in that city. I found a very stubborn fight on in this locality, the employers having made up their minds to disrupt the Union, but they "Reckoned without their host," for our boys in Rochester are the staunchest we have in the organization, and determined to refute any attempt at deprivation of their rights, well knowing what the union had done for them, and realizing that the strife then going on in their city was of the greatest importance to them, and they would not recede from the position they had taken, namely—recognition of the Union.

The men offered to arbitrate the wage question and other conditions, but the employers were desirous, they said, of running open shops. We were well aware that it was not open shops they wished to establish, but scab shops, and they were told that if they would send their union cards back to the union, they, the employers, would give them 50 cents more a day than the union struck for. So the strife goes merrily on, and the lawyers are eating up the strike fund of the Employers' Association, and after the battle is over, this body will be wiser, but considerably poorer.

On the 23d of August I was ordered to Philadelphia, Pa., to serve on a Special Committee, to investigate the trouble in that city, but as yet we have not completed our report, and therefore can only report progress in the matter.

During the quarter just ended, I sent a circular letter to all the local unions and District Councils situated in the State of New York, and requested them to send delegates to the State Convention held in Schenectady, Sept. 14th, and over 40 delegates responded to the call. They held a session each day and talked over the benefits to be derived from a State Branch, and finally decided to form a temporary organization, and send letters out to all local unions to meet in Elmira, N. Y., September, 1904.

The following is a brief outline of the work:

1. The organization to be known as the "State Branch of the U. B. of C. and J. of A.

2. That a report of the following conditions be sent out weekly; each local union to be compelled to fill out blank and mail it to the State Secretary, who in turn is to compile the various reports, and mail them in bulletin form to the different local unions each week.

Report of 2nd Vice-President.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 10, 1903.
To the G. E. B. of U. B. of C. and J. of A.:

BROTHERS—I herewith submit my report as Second Vice-President for quarter ending Sept. 30, 1903.

The report must necessarily be short, that city several weeks previous in regard to organizing.

I stopped at Augusta, Ga., and found conditions in fairly good shape and visited a local in Atlanta. This was on my way home, and from what I could learn, Atlanta is not getting along very good, as they seem to be unable to get together in such a way as to insure success.

From there I went home where I remained until the following Wednesday night. I was informed while at home that Tuscaloosa, Ala., was anxious to be organized, so I went there, talked with quite a number of carpenters, but failed to discover any "burning desire" for organization.

However, I secured names of a couple of carpenters who I believe are interested enough to take hold and I will keep in touch with them until such time as they can arrange a meeting and I can be with them.

I received orders to return to Charleston, S. C., which I did.

Fraternally,
R. E. L. CONNOLLY.

Recording Secretaries, Attention!

This being the time for turning in new lists of officers to the General Office, we must call on all Recording Secretaries to fill out the postal cards, sent them for that purpose, properly and plainly, and not to neglect stating number of Local Union, locality and respective State. Names of officers and their full addresses must also be given in order to secure safe delivery of any communication or other matter sent to the Local Union by the General Office.

Millers' Strike.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., Oct. 17, 1903.

I think a little news of the great flour mill strike here in the flour city would be acceptable to a large number of our members, as it is practically the first battle of importance in the West between the new Manufacturers' Association and organized labor. About one year ago the millers, packers and nailers, engineers, firemen, oilers, sweepers and steamfitters in the various flour mills were granted the eight-hour day without strike and had their wages raised about 20 per cent. At that time the flour loaders took no action toward securing eight hours, but instead asked for $2 per day of ten hours, an increase of 25 cents per day, which was granted. Everything ran along smoothly until this last summer, when the loaders appointed a committee to wait on the mill owners and try and secure the eight-hour day. This committee and several later committees were turned down hard, and told that they would not have anything to do with common laborers. So finally the International Union of Flour and Cereal Mill Employes (of which the loaders are a part, being Local No. 3) took the matter up through their president, and he was given to understand that the answer given the last committee was final and "not to come again." But before ordering a strike he offered to submit the whole matter to a board of arbitration, but they had "nothing to arbitrate." Then he went to the mayor of the city and asked his good offices to try and get an understanding; offered to allow him to pick an arbitration board and abide by their decision, but he too, was turned down with "There's nothing to arbitrate." So there was no other course to pursue but to strike to enforce their request or else back down. The three locals voted almost unanimously to strike. The strike has been on for three weeks, or since the 24th of September.

They have secured over a hundred professional strike breakers and are shipping men from all over the country; have a regular stockade around the milling district and use one of the idle mills as a hotel. The scabs eat, sleep and enjoy themselves inside the fence. They pay the scabs $2.25 per day, board and free overalls and furnish entertainments on Sunday. There are also a large number of university students scabbing. They get $2.25 for six hours' work.

It's a great thing to have a State university so handy to furnish scabs in case of a strike. They did the same thing to the machinists in our last strike for the nine-hour day. They must be the men Prof. Eliot referred to or said "were a good type of American manhood." Great. And we poor fools pay taxes to support such an institution.

We out here in the Northwest consider this to be a test fight and will give the millers our earnest support and hope every union man will respond liberally and give at least one day's pay toward helping the men on strike. It is soon winter and there are many more expenses in the winter than in the summer, and I hope our union men in the Northwest will do their duty and help give Mr. Parry and his organization such a drubbing as they won't forget for some time to come.

The preceding article written by Robert Beggar, president of Local Union No. 91, International Union of Machinists, and published in October number of the Machinists' Journal, covers our case very clearly with the exceptions of a few minor statements, viz.:

The Packers and Nailers have only worked from eight hours to eight and one-half hours for a great many years and on Saturday, July 29, 1901, the Packers and Nailers were granted an increase of wages of twenty-five cents a day, raising the wages from $2.50 for packers, to $2.75; and the wages from $2.00, for nailers and sewers, to $2.25; some of the sewers, however, only received $1.75 and $2.00 per day.

The Flour Loaders received their increase in July, 1901, instead of Sept., 1902.

Today we start in on the eighth week of the strike and are still as determined as ever to win this fight.

We need the assistance of every union man in the United States, both moral and financial, and any assistance that can be given will be thankfully received by A. E. Kellington, Secretary-Treasurer, 406 Corn Exchange, Minneapolis, Minn.; Arthur Ogg, Secretary of Strike Committee of Locals Nos. 1, 2, 3, International Union of Flour and Cereal Mill Employes.

UNIONISM teaches its adherents to subordinate selfishness to the general good; to treat their fellowmen as brothers in a common cause.

IF THE union men everywhere would be true to themselves by demanding the union label whenever they make a purchase, thereby creating a demand for union-made goods, the merchants and retail dealers will do the rest.

It is through the manifestation of power that trade unionism has gained advantages in the past; and there is no other way by which it can make progress hereafter.

L. U.	City.	F. S's. Address.
Members in good standing.		Members in arrears.
Hours of labor per week.		Rate of wages per hour.
Shops using label.		Members out of work.
Help wanted. Night of meeting.	REMARKS: Under this head insert all changes of conditions, and all contemplated changes, also when same are going into effect.
WM. CHALIC, L. U. 72. Rochester, N. Y., Temporary Chairman.	THOS. PURCELL, L. U. 78, Troy, N. Y., Secretary-Treasurer.

After the State Secretary received the report from the various Local Unions, as stated above, he would compile same in bulletin form, and forward a copy to each and every L. U. and D. C. in the State, and by such means each local would be able to familiarize themselves with the conditions existing in a sister city a week previous to the issuance of said bulletin. All present at the meeting concurred in the adoption of such methods, and they also discussed the labor movement in general, and recommended to our local unions that they affiliate with the central body in their respective locality. They also took up the decision rendered by P. J. Downey in the recent controversy between our organization and the A. W. W. I. U., and it was the sense of the meeting that Downey was either a fool or a knave, as from one end of the earth to the other the union cry is Organize, Unite, and here we have a leader (?) who has the temerity to recommend a division of the labor movement, and if our next convention at Milwaukee would be so heartless as to turn over 30,000 men to a dual organization—to the merciless leaders of the A. W. W. I. U.—whose only design, it appears to us, is to "tear down what others have builded up," and to destroy the eight-hour day, as they have done in Mt. Vernon and the Bronx Borough, in order to create revenue enough to perpetuate them in office for all time to come.

This same Downey was aspiring to become President of the State Workingman's Federation, and the boys realized that in order to nip this movement in the bud, they must be up and doing and save all trade unionists from such a leader in the Empire State. They also realized, as did all other trades throughout the State, that the men who should be at the head of the movement, must be men of sound judgment, and forceful character; (something that Downey lacks) men worthy of confidence; knowing the rights of labor, and willing to assert and maintain such rights; men who believe in uniting labor, and not dividing it.

Well, after the vote was counted, and the labor organizations expressed their opinions, Downey was defeated and the obnoxious Downey Decision buried under an avalanche of honest unionists' votes.

Respectfully submitted,
T. M. GUERIN,

as I have been located in this city almost continuously since my last report, acting as deputy in charge of a lockout which was in effect at time of your previous meeting.

As I stated in my last report, the lockout was the result of the various building crafts forming a B. T. C., and the contractors fearing a concerted demand for an eight-hour day, they in turn organized a Master Builders' Association, posted placards on all their work notifying employes that all connected with the B. T. C. were discharged.

The fight waxed pretty hot for several weeks and we were getting decidedly the better of it, our committees meeting every train and either sending those who came here away again or bringing them to our hall, when the M. B. A. applied to the court for an injunction restraining us from picketing, soliciting, etc.—the same old gag.

It tied our hands for a time and the contractors secured some men in the meantime, but owing to the fact that there is considerable work going on throughout this section they were unable to import many good workmen, and as the public, as a rule, is opposed to organized labor in this city, there has been but little new work on the market this summer of any consequence.

At the beginning of this trouble we had a total membership of 350 and about 225 locked out, and at this time we have at least 450 and only about 40 or 50 answering roll-call.

A number of our men have gone to other towns to work, some have given up the trade temporarily and taken up other work, a few have taken out licenses and are contracting on a small scale, others are jobbing here and there wherever they can get a day's work.

After struggling with this affair for eleven weeks, attending meetings both day and night and developing a case of fever as well, I requested the G. P. to permit me to leave here for a couple of weeks that I might get to a somewhat higher altitude and also relieve my mind of the matter for a time.

My request was granted and Brother Ogletree was sent here to relieve me and he can no doubt give you all necessary details. Upon leaving here I went to Aiken, S. C., where I expected to organize a local, but upon my arrival I learned the work had already been accomplished. I had written two letters to

The Copper Trust Triumphant.

BY HAL SCRIVER.

NEVER has the power of capitalism been so plainly shown as by recent events in Montana. They do things in a more frank and direct manner in the West than in the older settled parts of the country, where the graces of hypocrisy have had a longer time to develop.

Briefly, this is what has happened in Montana: The Amalgamated Copper Company, more commonly known as the Copper Trust, a corporation with a capital of $155,000,000, and dominated by the Rockefellers and other Standard Oil interests, had certain litigation with other mining companies. A State court decided against the Amalgamated. The big corporation thereupon closed all its mines, mills, smelters and other works and notified the Governor that the shutdown would continue until he should call the Legislature in special session to pass a law regulating mining litigation in a way satisfactory to the Trust.

Governor Toole tried to save his dignity, tried to persuade the Trust to modify its arrogant demands; but the pressure was too great and he had to yield, contenting himself with a formal protest against such degradation of the State at a corporation's bidding.

Governor Toole is to be pitied. He was helpless in the presence of the Copper Trust. Why? Because the Copper Trust owns the means by which the principal industry of the State is carried on. The shutdown directly throws out of employment over 20,000 men—or about one-fourth of the adult male population of the State—by cutting off their wages, it took away their spending power, and so threw out of work many thousands of others engaged in supplying these 20,000 copper workers and their families with food, clothing and other commodities. In other words, the Copper Trust had the power literally to starve the whole State of Montana into submission. Of course, the Trust would get no profits from its Montana mines while the shutdown lasted, for it is labor and not capital that creates the profits. But this same corporation owns the richest copper mines in Arizona and a large part of those in Michigan, and the reduction of output would enable it to raise the price on the product from these other mines; moreover, the Rockefellers, Rogers, Stillmen, Flower, Bacon, and the few other Standard Oil magnates who control the copper industry, own and control also a large part of the iron, coal, gold, silver and lead mines, a large part of the railways, and a large part of the manufactures of the country; they are in no danger of "going broke," even though they should keep the Montana mines and smelters closed for a year. The 20,000 miners and smeltermen, on the other hand, would be reduced to want inside of three months; if they turned to other industries for employment, the effect of their competition would be to lower the wages of other workingmen and so swell the profits of those very capitalists who had forced them into such competition.

"He takes my house who takes the prop that holds my house; he takes my life who takes the means by which I live." The declaration of Independence will not fill empty stomachs. So long as the workers do not own their jobs, so long as they permit men to own the means by which they work and live, so long the organized capitalists will rule in spite of all forms and phrases of free government. They will not always be so frank and open in their methods of coercion as in this Montana case—more's the pity. But openly or secretly, with brutal frankness or with hypocritical cunning, the men who have the power of permitting or forbidding other men to work will always be able to control legislatures and courts and executive officers and bend constitutions and laws to their evil purposes.

But is it necessary that the class whose labor has created the means of production and whose labor operates them and produces all wealth should continue to let non-producers own them and control the workers' jobs?

Capital and Labor.

(Extract from Karl Marx's "Capital.")

How then is money converted into capital?

Capital is only possible in a society, which produces commodities, in which circulation of commodities takes place, that trades. These are the historical perquisites to generating capital. The modern history of capital begins with the creation of the modern world-commerce and world-marked in the 16th century.

Historically, capital, (contrasted to real estate landed property), everywhere makes its first appearance in the shape of money, money-property, merchant's capital and usurer's capital. The difference between money as such and money as capital can at first only be found in the different modes of circulation. For, besides the direct form of commodity—circulation, to sell in order to buy, (commodity—money—commodity), a not her form of circulation appears: to buy in order to sell, (money—commodity—money). Here we already see money acting as capital. While in the simple process of commodity-circulation, commodity is exchanged for commodity by the mediation of money; in the money-circulation, money is exchanged for money by the mediation of commodity.

It would be quite an absurd proceeding to exchange money for the same amount of money in this manner, f. i., $100 for $100; it would be much more rational to keep the $100 in the beginning. Such an aimless exchange, however, is never intended, but money is exchanged for more money, purchases are made to sell dearer.

In simple commodity-circulation the commodity that enters it first, as well as the one that appears last, falls out of circulation, and will be consumed; but if money is at the two poles of circulation the money which appears last can always repeat the same movement; it remains capital only as long as it does this. Only that possessor of money who circulates his money in this wise is a capitalist.

The value of use, then, is never to be considered the immediate aim of the capitalist, nor is it the single gain, but only the incessant movement of gaining. This absolute desire for riches, the passionate chase after the value of exchange is common to the capitalist and the money hoarder, but while the money hoarder is but the crazy capitalist, the capitalist is the prudent money-hoarder.

The tendency to purchase in order to sell dearer, is most apparent in commercial capital, but the industrial capital is endowed with quite the same tendency.

It is commonly accepted that the surplus value is created thereby that the capitalists sell their merchandise above its real value. But the same capitalists who sell must also purchase, and would in consequence also be obliged to pay more than the true value for merchandise; so that, if the foregoing postulate were true, the class of capitalists would never achieve their aim. If, however, we leave the class out of consideration, and only consider the individual capitalist, we find the following: One capitalist may exchange, f. i., $40 worth of wine for $50 worth of corn, gaining $10 by the transaction, but the sum of value of these two commodities remains $90 as before and it is but differently distributed. Had the one directly pilfered $10 from the other, the state of affairs would be the same. "War is robbery," says Benjamin Franklin, "trade is swindle." Surplus value is not created in this manner. Nor does the usurer, who directly exchanges money for more money, produce surplus value; he only draws existing value from other purses into his own. May the individual capitalists swindle each other to their hearts content; selling and purchasing alone creates no surplus value. This is produced outside of the sphere of circulation within which it is but realized, converted into money.

Money generates not, and commodities do not multiply, though they change hands ever so often. Then something must happen to the commodity, after it is bought and before it is sold again, that enhances its value; it must be consumed in the intermediate station.

To extract value of exchange from the consumption of a commodity, the possessor of money should have to find a commodity in the market possessed of the wonderful quality to transform itself into value during its consumption, and the consumption of which would consequently be creation of value. And, indeed, the money owner does find such a commodity in the market, namely, working power.

By working power or working ability, we comprehend all physical and mental faculties existing in man, and which he puts in motion whenever he produces value of use of any kind.

In order to offer his working power for sale as a commodity, man must, above all, be able to dispose of it; he must be a free person, and to remain such he must only sell it for a certain time. Should he sell it once for all, he would from a free man become a slave, from the owner of a commodity he would himself become a commodity.

A free man is compelled to fetch his own working power to market, as soon as he is unable to sell other commodities, in which his working power is already contained. If anybody wants to embody his labor in a commodity he must possess the means of production, raw material, utensils, etc., and also the necessities of life, to sustain him until his commodity is sold. Devoid of these things, it is utterly impossible for him to produce, and he can sell nothing but his own working power.

For the conversion of money into capital, the possessor of money must then find on the market of commodities the free laborer, free in the double sense: free to dispose of his working power as a commodity for sale, and free from all incumbrance of things necessary to ply his working power. In other words, the laborer must not be a slave, but he must also have no possessions except his working power, must be a penniless fellow, if the possessor of money shall find him forced to sell his working power.

This relation certainly has no foundation in the laws of nature, since the earth does not create, on the one side, possessors of money and commodities, and on the other side, possessors only of working power. Historical evolution and quite a series of economical and social revolutions have produced this relation.

The commodity, working power, has a value, which, like that of all other commodities is determined by the time of labor necessary to its production; in this case also reproduction. The value of the working power is therefore equal to the value of the necessities of life, requisite to the maintenance of its owner. By maintenance, permanent maintenance, which includes propagation, must be understood. Thus the value of exchange of the working power is determined; its value of use appears only during its consumption.

The consumption of working power, like that of any other commodity, takes place outside of the sphere of circulation of commodities, wherefore we must leave the latter to follow the money owner and the possessor of working power to the seat of production. There it will not only be shown how capital produces, but also how capital is produced.

Until now we have but witnessed the association of free persons, peers, who dispose of their own at pleasure, who purchase and sell. But now, as we leave these scenes and accompany the acting persons to the seat of production, we notice a remarkable change in their physiognomies. The former possessor of money takes the lead as capitalist, the possessor of working power follows as his laborer; the one smirking significantly and intent on business, the other shy and skulking, not unlike one who has carried his skin to market and has nothing else to expect—but—BEING TANNED.

LOCAL unions, in sending obituary resolutions to the General Office should not forget that they have to be accompanied by a fee of $2.00. The non-observance of this may cause a delay in the publication.

LOCAL unions and members should look over the List of Secretaries and Directory of Business Agents appearing in THE CARPENTER once every three months and observe whether the names and addresses are correct.

CLAIMS for death and disability benefits must be filled out complete and card of membership and doctor's certificate accompany them. If these matters are not properly attended to it causes delay in passing on the claims.

This Department is open for criticism and correspondence from our readers on mechanical subjects in Carpentry and ideas as to Craft Organization.

Write only on one side of the paper. All articles should be signed.

Matter for this Department must be in this Office by the 25th of the month.

The Elliptical Arch.

BY G. D. INSKIP.

IN order to get the proper shape or taper to the bricks in the rings of an arch, we have got to get it by some method. Let us lay out the arch. Let A B equal the span and C the rise. Make the distance C f equal to A C on either side of the line C. This point f is called the foci, and a piece of string like f V³ and V³ f is the same distance as f C and C f. Make two, three or four points like V, V², V³ and bisect them as shown, and through the bisections draw the lines. Line V³ cuts the perpendicular from C, V² cuts the line V³, and line V cuts line V², and A V cuts line V. Now, each of these points are centres and the arc that they describe stops between the lines, so that we may sum it up that an ellipse is an ever changing curve, but may be described with compasses to any degree of accuracy. If the ellipse is struck out by a trammel the centres can be gotten as above. We space off on the outside of our arch the brick thickness with joint and draw the radial lines between the points. This gives us the shape of brick.

Ellipses.

Editor THE CARPENTER:

If I should tell the readers of your journal all I know about ellipses, hundreds of carpenters would smile and say "If I couldn't tell more about ellipses than that, I wouldn't tell anything," which remark would undoubtedly be perfectly true.

But supposing all those carpenters do know more about it than the rest of us, what better off are we if they do not impart to us one jot or tittle of their knowledge?

Carpenters, in their work, often find themselves up against the ellipse problem, and are sometimes at their wits' end to know how to solve it.

A water pipe stove pipe or smoke stack must go through a roof or cornice at some angle different from a right angle, and the ellipse is the true shaped orifice to fit the case.

When an Irishman was asked to define an ellipse he answered, "An ellipse is a saircle that's not round." What's an oval, Pat? After a moment's hesitation—"Bedad, it's an ellipse that's different at both ends." Those definitions being correct (and Pat had them down pat without a doubt) it will be seen to be useless to think of drawing the figure with dividers, as it can only be done with different centers and radii and inaccurately at that.

The trammel is really the true tool to use in marking out an ellipse, while the steel square, which has such a vast range of work, with a small stick and two nails, often makes a very handy substitute.

Fifty-three years ago I saw a cooper mark out an elliptical water tub bottom with two nails, a string and pencil, and with all the improvements of the last half century, I doubt if there is a simpler device for doing that work in existence today.

The accompanying figure shows all there is of it. Draw a line—A B—the length of the minor diameter at right angles with C D, the length of major diameter. Procure a small thread or string that will not stretch, or better, a fine copper wire. Make it the exact length of C D with a loop in each end for the nail.

Measure from A or B one-half length of string to points on major axis line and there stick the nails. Hang on the string, place the pencil taut against the string, slide the pencil around the board and an ellipse will be the result of the drawing. Same rule applies to any shape or size.

Flooring.

BY G. D. INSKIP.

TO measure joists multiply the thickness, depth and length together for the contents. Thus a joist 10 in. wide, 2 in. thick and 12 feet long will be 2 times 10 equals 20 divided by 12 equals 1' 8" multiplied by 12 equals 20 ft. This is called board measure—1 in. thick. A board 1 in. thick and 12 ft. long will contain 12 ft.; a 4"x 6" 16 ft. long will contain 4 times 6 equals 24" or 2 ft. multiplied by 16 is 32 ft.; a 3"x10" is $\frac{30}{12}$ equals 2' 6" or 2½ ft., and so on.

To get the superficial contents of a floor: If a floor is 50' 4" long, 22' 6" wide, how many squares are there in that room? We can do this two ways, by decimals and by duodecimals.

By decimals:

4 inches is $\frac{1}{3}$ or 3) 1000

6 inches is $\frac{1}{2}$ or 2) 1000

.500

50.333

221665

100666

100666

1132 .6

It will be seen that .4925 is nearly one-half or six inches, 50' 4" multiplied by 6" equals 25' 2"

24 equals 2 inches.

6 times 50' plus 2 equals 302, divided by 12 equals 25' 2"; 22 times 50' 4 or 22 times 4 equals $\frac{88}{12}$ equals 7' 4"; 22 times

50' plus 7' equals 1107 feet. There will be 11 squares and 32½ feet.

To get the number of joist or studding multiply the length of building by 3 and divide by 4 for joist 16 inches on centres.

Thus a building 50 feet long will take 50 times 3 equals 150, divided by 4 or 37 this will take 39 joist; 49 feet long will take $\frac{147}{3}$ minus 37 plus one for a starting joist.

To measure an arched door or window take the height of door from the crown of arch to the bottom of sill and likewise from the spring of arch to the bottom of sill; then to this latter height add twice the former and multiply the breadth of door by the sum and one-third of this will be near the truth for practice. Example: A door or church window 14 feet high to crown 9 feet to spring and 6 feet wide.

Spring 9'. Crown 14 times 2 equals 28. Crown 2-28

74 feet.

GENERAL EXECUTIVE BOARD.

Proceedings of the Fourth Quarterly Session, 1903.

October 12th.

Members present: Meyers, Post, Wellman, Sullivan, Ogletree, Workman and Ainey.

The G. S. submits latest communications and documents relative to the controversy between the U. B. and the Amalgamated Wood Workers, as well as copy of his appeal from decision of Executive Council of A. F. of L. on demand for revocation of charter of Amalgamated Wood Workers for violation of the eight-hour rule in Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Papers carefully reviewed and action of G. S. endorsed.

Application of Chicago D. C. for financial aid for members of stock-yard L. U. 1597. The G. S. instructed to ask for further information and action deferred.

Applications of L. U. 983, Sioux City, S. D., 770, Amarillo, Tex., for our Union Label. The working conditions in these localities not being in conformity with the law, application disapproved.

Applications of Newark, N. J., D. C. and L. U. 235, Riverside, Cal., for Union Label. The law having been complied with in these cases, label is granted.

Circular letter, asking financial aid for a non-beneficial member, sent out by L. U. 174, Joliet, Ill., not having received sanction of G. E. B., the G. S. instructed to publish number and locality of local union in THE CARPENTER, as well as those of other local unions similarly violating respective G. E. B. decision.

Requests of L. U. 924, Manchester, Mass., L. U. 1410, Boston Mass., L. U. 962, Marblehead, Mass., L. U. 901, Gloucester, Mass., L. U. 950, Danvers, Mass., and L. U., Beverly, Mass., asking for exemption from payment of 50 cents assessment. Request refused.

Communication from the North Shore (Mass.) D. C., protesting against levy of 50 cents assessment as well as G. S.'s reply to same, read. The Board sanctions reply stating that assessment is levied on local unions and not on D. C.'s.

Requests of L. U. 387, New York, L. U. 1598, Baltimore, Md., L. U. 476, New York, and L. U. 396, Newport News, Va., for extension of time in payment of 50 cents assessment. Extension granted until January 15, 1904.

Request of L. U. 1387 for sanction of circular inviting local unions to purchase chances on a bed-room suit to be raffled by L. U., proceeds to be used for formation of a contingent fund. Request denied.

Protest of Pittsburg D. C. against members of G. E. B. doing organizers' work. Reply of G. S., stating that G. E. B. are not doing said work, read and endorsed.

Request of L. U. 1588, Wilmer, Minn., for sanction of circular to local unions appealing for financial aid for a deceased member's family. Request not granted.

Quarterly report of First Vice-President Guerin read and approved.

Communication from Santiago Iglesias, San Juan, Porto Rico, again applying for charter for carpenters of that locality. Board decides to submit this matter to a general vote.

Application of Greater New York D. C. for appropriation of $50,000 towards liquidation of indebtedness incurred in late strike. Application denied.

Application of L. U. 396, Newport News, Va., for appropriation of the sum of $100, their funds being exhausted through late strike. Application denied.

Application of L. U. 331, Norfolk, Va., for sanction of trade demand, to be enforced on October 5, 1903. Denied, and G. P. requested to send a representative to Norfolk to investigate conditions.

Application of L. U. 176 for appropriation of $3,000 in support of members involved in recent lockout. Application denied.

Request of L. U. 327, Cincinnati, for sanction of circular asking unions to subscribe in aid of a member, victim of an accident. Not granted.

Application of Monroe County D. C. (Rochester, N. Y.) for further financial aid in support of members locked out. The sum of $400.00 appropriated.

October 13th.

Communication from Washington, D. C., relative to benefits of former K. of L. members over fifty years of age. Board decides to stand by former decision, classifying these members as semi-beneficial.

Requests of L. U. 493, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., L. U. 1090, Philadelphia, and L. U. 503, Lancaster, N. Y., for extension of time in payment of 50 cents assessment. Time granted until Jan. 15, 1904.

Application of L. U. 533, Jeffersonville, Ind., for reimbursement of money expended during ship-yard strike. Application denied.

Application of Brooklyn Borough (N. Y.) D. C., for appropriation of a sum to be devoted to the organization of mills in this borough. Appropriation refused.

Appropriation of L. U. 536, Baker City, Ore., for sanction of trade movement. Action deferred awaiting further information.

Communications from L. U. 391, Hoboken, N. J., L. U. 4, Kansas City, Mo., L. U. 55, Denver, Colo., L. U. 701, St. Louis, Mo., L. U. 948, Sioux City, Ia., L. U. 112, Butte, Montana, L. U. 850, Leadville, Col., D. C. of East St. Louis, Ill., and D. C. of St. Louis, Mo., urging affiliation with National Building Trades Council, and communication of G. S. T. of National Building Trades Council in reference to resolution passed by last convention of this body as to the eventual affiliation of the U. B. Action deferred pending the arrival of further information.

Report of committee appointed by G. P. to attend meeting of structural building trades, held in Indianapolis. Laid over until a copy of proposed constitution is submitted.

Application of Newark (N. J.) D. C. for reimbursement of money loaned to local unions in late strike. Application denied.

Request of L. U. 1132, Dayton, O., for exemption from payment of 50 cents assessment. Not granted.

Report of G. P., covering last six months, read and action deferred.

Communication inviting U. B. to purchase lot situated in East Washington street, Indianapolis, suitable for headquarters. Action deferred.

October 14th.

Quarterly report of Second Vice President Connelly. Received and ordered published in THE CARPENTER.

Application of L. U. 940, Sandusky, O., for financial aid in support of members recently on strike, they not having received their share of money appropriated for L. U. 1207. In view of the fact that the local unions of the locality failed to form a D. C., as required by constitution, application is denied.

Application of L. U. 547, Cripple Creek, Col., for appropriation in support of members involved in Western Federation of Miners' Strike. The sum of $500 appropriated.

Appeal of L. U. 168, Toledo, O., from decision of G. S. denying disability claim of Brother Frank Schoble. G. S. sustained.

Appeal of L. U. 33, Boston, Mass., from decision of G. S., denying death claim of wife of Brother Kersten. G. S. sustained.

Appeal of L. U. 255, Knoxville, Tenn., from decision of G. S., denying J. H. Bradley death claim. G. S. sustained.

Appeal of L. U. 126, Brooklyn, N. Y., from decision of G. S., denying claim of Minnie E. Elminger. G. S. sustained.

Appeal of W. A. B. Perry from decision of G. P. in case of appellant vs. L. U. 1100, St. Louis, Mo., relative to the German language being used by a member in the local union's meeting. G. P. sustained and appeal dismissed.

Appeal of F. S. Bell and Robert Braun from decision of G. P. in case of appellant vs. L. U. 426, in reference to an appropriation of $50 for a float to be used in a parade. The L. U. failing to file their answer to appeal, G. P. sustained.

Appeal of L. U. 16, Springfield, Ill., from decision of G. P., declaring suspension of one of their officers illegal. The Board sustains G. P. and passes the following resolutions:

No officer or member can be suspended unless charges are preferred against him, or only for offenses specified in Sec. 167, or General Constitution.

When charges are preferred against officers or members they may be suspended by a two-thirds vote, as specified in Sec. 170.

In cases of legal suspension, salary can not be collected, but any officer illegally suspended from office is entitled to salary.

A President may suspend any officer without preferring charges against him, as per Sections 167 and 145 of General Constitution.

Appeal of Wm. Edmondson from decision of G. P., in case of appellant vs. L. U. 722, relative to fine imposed on former for failing to take out clearance card. G. P. sustained and appeal dismissed.

Appeal of Wm. M. Davis from decision of G. P., in case of appellant vs. L. U. 73, St. Louis, in reference to a disputed election of Treasurer. Appeal dismissed.

Appeal of John J. Becker from decision of G. P., in case of appellant vs. L. U. 76, New Orleans, La., relative to assessment levied by L. U., which appellant, he being employed as U. S. mail carrier, refused to pay. G. P. sustained and appeal dismissed.

Appeal of P. J. Phelon from decision of G. P., declaring fine imposed by Hudson County D. C., on appellant for refusing to show working card to business agent, legal. Appeal dismissed.

Appeal of Chas. H. Cave from decision of G. P. in appellant's claim on L. U. 264, Brockton, Mass., for sick benefit. Appeal dismissed.

Appeal of W. L. Gerideau from decision of G. P. in case of appellant vs. L. U. 224, Jacksonville, Fla., relative to charges for misdemeanor preferred by L. U. against appellant. G. P. sustained and appeal dismissed.

October 15th.

Appeal of L. U. 766 from decision of G. P. in case of L. U. vs. San Francisco (Cal.) D. C., relative to enforcement of trade rules. G. P. sustained.

Appeal of L. U. 476, New York, from decision of G. P. in case of Geo. Schaaf and others vs. appellants, relative to wages claimed by above brothers for time out on strike for the privilege of having beer in shop. Sworn copy of minutes of respective meeting of L. U. 476 is submitted. G. P. sustained and appeal dismissed.

Request of L. U. 77, Portchester, N. Y., for extension of time for payment of 50 cents assessment. Granted until Jan. 15, 1904.

Communication from same L. U., relative to attempt of Interstate Manufacturers Association to enforce reference card system. The G. S. instructed to give this matter publicity through THE CARPENTER.

Application of L. U. 1062, Santa Barbara, Cal., for sanction of movement to intercept lockout movement planned by Citizens' Alliance. Action deferred awaiting further information.

The auditing of books and accounts of General Office entered into and occupying remainder of session.

October 16th, 17th, 19th and 20th.

The auditing of accounts continued and occupies the entire sessions.

October 21st.

The G. S. submits bond issued by U. S. Fidelity and Guarantee Company, of Baltimore, Md., in the amount of $20,000. Approved and placed in custody of chairman G. E. B., Hy. Meyers.

Applications of L. U. 1022, Parsons, Kan., and Pittsburg (Pa.) D. C. for Union Label. Not granted. Conditions in these localities not being in accordance with provisions of Constitution.

Application of Memphis (Tenn.) D. C. for sanction of trade movement. Sanction withheld because of lack of interest shown in movement by membership as per vote recorded on schedule of inquiries.

Applications of L. U. 473, New York, L. U. 260, Waterbury, Conn., L. U. 227, Westerly, R. I., and L. U. 8, Philadelphia, Pa., for extension of time for payment of 50 cents assessment. Time granted until Jan. 15, 1904. An extension of 30 days applied for by L. U. 774, New York, also granted.

Application of L. U. 359, Philadelphia, Pa., and L. U. 1410, Boston, Mass., for exemption from payment of 50 cents assessment. Refused, but time granted until Jan. 15, 1904.

Is It Far?

"How far to the land of sweet content—
The promised land of final rest?"
I asked a joyous, happy bird
That lightly swayed in a slender tree,
Warbling a mystic melody.
The little head with reverence bent,
And gently swelled the downy breast,
As with eyes upturned and trembling wing,
He opened his mouth as if to sing,
But never a note was heard.

"How far to the peaceful, happy place,
That clime where death's unknown?"
I asked a gleeful, romping child,
Whose laughing eyes—so radiant bright—
Shone all aglow with heaven's light.
A change came o'er the angel face,
The winsome, tender smile was gone.
Rich treasures from listless fingers dropped.
She tried to speak, then stammering stopped,
And helplessly she blushed and smiled.

"How far to the end of this tollsome road,
Where the weary soul is satisfied?"
I asked of one at death's dark door.
Death's dews lay cold on the withered cheek
As shuddering he groaned and tried to speak.

"How long must we bear this grievous load?"
Once more to speak he vainly tried,
And listening low at the dying bed
I waited long but no word was said.
The storm-tossed traveler was no more.

"How far away is the healing stream Whose cooling waters banish pain?"
I asked at last of my inmost soul.
Then a long familiar voice was heard.
I saw the child, I saw the bird
And the dying sage as in a dream,
The inner light made all things plain.
I saw and blessed the hour I saw,
Where God had fixed His potent Law,
And why nor bird, nor child, nor sage,
Each free to read the sacred page,
Need ask, "How far to the final Goal?"

Push Right Along.

We may be discouraged by opposition, by the bitter assaults upon unionism, by the adverse action of courts, by the hostility of powerful combinations, or by the trickery of adversaries. But it is well to remember that the design of an assailant, opponent or obstructor can very often be thwarted by rightful and legitimate means. When the end can not be gained in one way, try another. When any given line of policy is lost, take a better line. When your tactics fail, change them. When you are outflanked, look after your strategy. When the enemy comes down in force, you may gain success by backing up against a stone wall. In any event, under any circumstances, there must be no discouragement for organized labor. Push right along.—John Swinton.

Les Bureaux de Placement.

PAR GEORGES GUÉNARD, PARIS, FRANCE.

J'avais déjà ébauché ma correspondance et me proposais de vous parler du sérieux mouvement gréviste qui sévit dans le Nord et tient encore aux prises patrons et ouvriers tisseurs, quand des événements d'une réelle gravité, se déroulant inopinément à Paris, me mirent dans l'obligation de changer de sujet et de renvoyer à une autre fois l'exposé de la grève d'Arménitières.

La Bourse du Travail brutalement envahie par la police, une lutte épouvantable, un terrible corps à corps dans l'immeuble municipal, un très grand nombre d'ouvriers et d'agents blessés, une quarantaine de travailleurs arrêtés, tel est, en résumé, le bilan de la journée du jeudi 29 octobre. Cause première: les bureaux de placement.

Qu'est-ce donc qu'un bureau de placement? C'est simplement une officine spéciale où, moyennant rétribution, on indique à ceux qui n'ont pas d'ouvrage les places qui sont à occuper. Suivant les corporations et la nature des emplois disponibles, les droits perçus par les placeurs revêtent différentes formes: tantôt ils sont fixes et vont de 1 franc à une somme relativement élevée selon l'importance de la place offerte, tantôt ils sont proportionnels au salaire annuel ou mensuel et oscillent, pour ces deux cas, entre 1 et 10 p. et 5 et 33 p. Cette "industrie" bizarre et bien moderne n'est pas une des conséquences les moins inattendues de cette liberté du travail, du commerce et de l'industrie si pompeusement proclamée en 1791 par la Convention nationale. Dès son apparition elle fut détestée, et ses abus devinrent tellement criards qu'un des premiers actes de la Révolution de 1848 la supprima radicalement. Son éclipse fut cependant de courte durée, puis qu'un décret du 25 mars 1852 lui donnait à nouveau droit de cité moyennant une autorisation préalable et en l'assujettissant à certaines formalités policières. Depuis cette époque, elle n'a cessé de prélever, sur certaines catégories de travailleurs en chômage, un impôt inique à tous les titres; mais depuis cette date également ses victimes ont engagé contre elle un combat opiniâtre et sans merci qui ne se terminera que par sa disparition définitive.

Bien que plus de 1,000 syndicats ouvriers et un grand nombre de sociétés de secours mutuels et de bienfaisance aient organisé des services de placement, bien qu'un certain nombre de municipalités pratiquassent également le placement gratuit, les bureaux de placement autorisés et payants se chiffrent aujourd'hui par 1,455 et plus de trente corporations ouvrières sont "obligées" d'y avoir recours, les patrons (de connivence avec les placeurs) ne pratiquant l'embauchage que par leur intermédiaire. Il faut payer la dime ou renoncer à travailler, voilà la vérité. Aussi depuis longtemps le Parlement a-t-il été saisi de propositions de lois tendant à la suppression des bureaux de placement. En 1900, on fut sur le point d'aboutir; mais l'obstination du Sénat à vouloir indemniser les placeurs supprimés fut une des causes que la question resta en suspens. Lors de la discussion des projets de lois à la Chambre, l'un des auteurs de ceux-ci affirmait à ses collègues qu'à Paris et dans le département de la Seine, sur 13,000 ouvriers boulangers, 3,500 à 4,000 restent en place environ plus d'un an; il y en a donc 9,000 qui alimentent continuellement par leur misère les bureaux de placement. D'après ses propres calculs, cette corporation verse bon an mal an une somme de 600,000 francs entre les mains des placeurs. Dans ce même département de la Seine, 23 corporations paient, à 292 placeurs autorisés, un tribut annuel de 7,500,000 francs. Pour la France entière, cette somme atteindrait 18 millions.

De son côté, le rapporteur de la loi n'était pas moins affirmatif il y a trois ans, et il déclarait qu'en ne la votant pas "on fait du droit au travail, c'est à dire du droit de vivre, un produit négociable et exploitable à merci. On laisse subsister des exploiters de la misère humaine et on maintient le droit de spoliation à une classe d'industriels qui ne laisse à ses victimes que le suicide et le vol pour se soustraire à la misère et à la faim..." Enfin le ministre du commerce, répondant aux adversaires de la loi, condamnait à son tour l'industrie du placement "parce qu'elle prélève ses bénéfices sur les ressources de ceux qui n'en ont pas, qui sont en quête de travail, et parce que ses bénéfices croissent précisément en raison de l'intensité du chômage, c'est à dire de la misère."

Fin novembre 1900, la Chambre décida que moyennant indemnités, les municipalités pourraient retirer les autorisations aux bureaux de placement deux ans après la promulgation de la loi; cinq ans après cette même promulgation elles auraient la faculté de le faire sans avoir à verser aucune indemnité. Comme je l'ai déjà dit, le Sénat refusa de sanctionner cette dernière disposition et le projet, modifié par lui, revint sommeiller dans les cartons parlementaires du Palais-Bourbon. Il semblait devoir y dormir longtemps, quand les corporations intéressées (boulangers, gérants de cafés, limonadiers, coiffeurs, etc.) résolurent de recommencer la lutte un moment interrompue.

La Fédération de l'Alimentation, qui se trouve être la plus éprouvée dans cette affaire, réunissait dernièrement en Congrès les syndicats qui la composent et portait à l'ordre du jour l'étude des moyens propres à faire aboutir le plus rapidement possible la suppression des bureaux de placement. Après discussion, des résolutions furent prises, une tactique déterminée, et on alla même jusqu'à donner au comité fédéral le droit de déclarer la grève générale des corporations de l'alimentation si satisfaction n'était pas obtenue. Des démarches furent donc faites auprès du président des conseils des ministres afin de lui transmettre les réclamations des travailleurs et une campagne de meetings s'engagea aussitôt. C'est ainsi que, pour examiner la situation créée par l'indolence du Parlement et les réponses évasives faites au ministère de l'intérieur, les ouvriers victimes des bureaux de placement avaient été convoqués à la Bourse du travail le jeudi 29 octobre.

A la réunion du matin, après avoir entendu plusieurs discours flétrissant les pouvoirs publics et condamnant l'action parlementaire, les manifestants acclamèrent un ordre du jour préconisant "l'action directe" contre les placeurs et commencèrent à évacuer la Bourse du travail en chantant "l'Internationale". Ils se heurtèrent aux forces policières que, sous prétexte de maintenir l'ordre, le préfet de police avait massées dans la rue. Selon la coutume, c'est le contraire qui se produisit, et le zèle intempestif des agents ne tarda pas à provoquer une vive bagarre. Les cavaliers chargèrent, les ouvriers se défendirent, et une véritable bataille s'engagea. Les ustensiles des cafés voisins servirent de projectiles et verres, carafes et chaises se mirent à voltiger pendant que les agents, sabre en main, fondaient sur les manifestants. La rue finit cependant par être débarrassée, mais de nombreux blessés durent être transportés dans les pharmacies voisines.

Ce n'était malheureusement là qu'une escarmouche, car des scènes plus tumultueuses encore devaient se dérouler dans l'après-midi. Une nouvelle réunion réunissait en effet, vers trois heures, plus de 3,000 ouvriers dans la grande salle de la Bourse et, après les discours d'usage, l'assemblée allait se séparer quand elle se buta de nouveau contre les agents de police, plus agressifs encore que le matin. On commença par encadrer les manifestants entre des agents pour les reconduire jusqu'aux barrages et les disperser; mais des injures ne tardèrent pas à s'échanger et les coups suivirent bientôt. Des fenêtres de la Bourse on riposta par l'envoi de projectiles divers. C'est alors que, perdant tout sangfroid, le préfet de police ordonna à ses agents de mettre sabre au clair et de pénétrer à l'intérieur de la Bourse pour la faire évacuer. Un tumulte indescriptible fut la conséquence de cet ordre maladroit et des actes d'une violence inouïe furent commis dans la grande salle des fêtes. A coups de sabre les agents chargèrent les ouvriers et ceux-ci ripostèrent avec tout ce qui leur tomba sous la main. Le sang ne tarda pas à couler. Tous ceux que les policiers faisaient sortir étaient reçus dehors à coups de crosse de fusil par les gardes républicains. La Bourse fut enfin fermée.

Comme bien l'on pense, l'impression produite dans tous les milieux ouvriers par les brutalités de la police, fut considérable aussi bien à Paris qu'en Province. Le jour même du conflit M. Chambon déposait sur le bureau de la Chambre son rapport sur le projet de loi visant la suppression des bureaux de placement, mais prévue, cette fois, avec une indemnité calculée d'après la valeur du fonds et selon la date à laquelle la suppression serait réalisée, cette suppression devant être effective pour tous les bureaux dans le délai de cinq ans. Dès le lendemain, à l'ouverture de la séance, le président de la Chambre des députés annonçait qu'il était saisi de plusieurs demandes d'interpellation sur les événements de la ville. Le président du conseil en réclama la discussion immédiate. Inutile de dire que le préfet de police fut fortement houspillé par les interpellateurs. Le chef du gouvernement, tout en regrettant l'invasion de la Bourse et les violences des agents, affirma qu'il allait ouvrir une enquête et que, si des faits répréhensibles avaient été commis, il ne manquait pas d'en faire supporter la responsabilité à leurs auteurs. L'ordre du jour pur et simple, qui prenait acte de ces déclarations, fut voté à une grande majorité.

Entre temps le préfet de police récoltait un blâme sévère au Conseil municipal de Paris et, le mardi 3 novembre, pendant qu'un fonctionnaire du ministère de l'intérieur poursuivait son enquête sur les événements du 29 octobre, la Chambre des députés votait enfin, avec de légères modifications, le projet Chambon qui réalisera la suppression des bureaux de placement dans le délai de cinq ans et dans les conditions déjà indiquées. Il est fort probable que le Sénat adoptera le texte accepté au Palais-Bourbon.

Il n'en est pas de même des ouvriers qui, dans les nombreux meetings qui se tiennent journellement, repoussent le projet voté par les députés et réclament la suppression immédiate des bureaux autorisés et cela sans aucune indemnité. L'agitation se poursuit donc autour de cette question et on parle fortement de l'intention qu'aurait la Fédération de l'alimentation de déclarer la grève générale des corporations groupées par elle, conformément à la décision du Congrès de Lyon. La lutte ira-t-elle jusque-là? Il serait téméraire de l'affirmer, et je penche, pour ma part, à croire que cette action n'aurait pas sur l'issue du conflit toute l'efficacité que ses promoteurs semblent en attendre. C'est sur quoi l'avenir nous renseignera et je vous tiendrai au courant dans ma prochaine correspondance.

Le Mouvement Syndical en France.

PAR GEORGES GUÉNARD, PARIS.

Parmi ces syndicats, la statistique révèle la création de 1,017 bureaux de placement, 932 bibliothèques professionnelles, 321 caisses de secours mutuels, 352 caisses de secours divers, 602 caisses de chômage, 589 caisses donnant le secours de route, 428 cours professionnels, 3 laboratoires d'analyses. 73 caisses de retraites, 45 caisses de crédit mutuel, 27 sociétés d'assurances contre les accidents, 42 sociétés coopératives de consommation, 27 sociétés coopératives de production, 1 champ d'expériences et 129 journaux ou bulletins. Cette rapide énumération indique que les syndicats français commencent à répandre leur activité un peu dans tous les sens et que, sans négliger leur but primordial qui est, comme partout, l'obtention de meilleures conditions de travail, ils n'hésitent pas à s'engager—timidement, il est vrai—dans la voie où les grandes organisations ouvrières de l'étranger ont trouvé le secret de leur puissance.

La plupart de ces organisations sont adhérentes à des Unions locales de syndicats divers connues sous le nom de Bourses du Travail, lesquelles se groupent elles-mêmes en une puissante Fédération qui constitue une des deux sections du groupement central des travailleurs français: la Confédération Générale du Travail. D'autre part, les syndicats de même profession sont en majeure partie groupés nationalement en Fédérations de métier ou d'industrie lesquelles composent la deuxième section de la Confédération. Je me propose de vous décrire quelque jour la constitution et le mode de fonctionnement de la Confédération Générale du Travail et de la Fédération des Bourses.

Je m'étais assigné comme but, aujourd'hui, de vous exposer aussi succinctement que possible l'état numérique des groupements ouvriers français, la composition de l'armée des travailleurs organisés, réservant pour une prochaine correspondance l'examen de sa tactique et de ses moyens d'action. Mais les renseignements que je vous communique seraient certainement incomplets si j'omettais de placer en regard l'état numérique et la composition de l'armée adverse: les organisations patronales, avec lesquelles nous allons avoir de plus en plus à compter.

Aussi bien que les ouvriers les patrons ont vu tous les avantages qu'ils pouvaient retirer de la loi sur les syndicats professionnels. La preuve en est dans le développement qu'a pris chez eux cette forme d'association qui ne comptait guère que 138 groupements en 1884, alors que l'existence de 1,004 syndicats patronaux était constatée en 1890 avec 93,151 adhérents. Ces chiffres étaient portés au 1. janvier 1903 à 2,757 pour les syndicats et 205,463 pour les adhérents. En général, la proportion des patrons groupés est plus élevée que celle des ouvriers.

General-Office, Indianapolis, Ind.,
27. Oktober 1903.

An alle Lokal-Unions der Ver.
Brüderschaft der Zimmer-leute und Bauschreiner!

In unserer letzten im September 1902 in Atlanta, Ga., abgehaltenen Convention wurde die Frage der Verschmelzung der beiden Organisationen unseres Gewerkes, der Ver. Brüderschaft der Zimmerleute und Bauschreiner und der Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, dem General-Executiv-Comite überwiesen und dasselbe instruiert, die Verschmelzung beider in eine einzige Organisation anzustreben.

Diese Frage wurde der im Jahre 1902 in New Orleans, La., stattgefundenen Convention der Am. Federation of Labor unterbreitet, und beschloß dieselbe, daß ein Fünfer-Comite von jeder der beiden Organisationen gemeinschaftlich einen Schiedsrichter erwählen, welche sich über einen Verschmelzungsplan einigen sollen.

Nachdem eine in New York abgehaltene Sitzung dieses Comites resultatlos verlief, wurden beide Organisationen dazu bewogen, einen nochmaligen Verständigungsversuch zu machen, und sie vereinbarten, daß die beiderseitigen Comites zu diesem Zwecke am 17. August 1903 in Cleveland zusammentreten sollten. Dies geschah und das gemeinschaftliche Comite erwählte Adolph Strasser, den ehemaligen Int. Präsidenten der Int. Cigarrenmacher-Union, zum Schiedsrichter. A. Strasser acceptierte, und beide Comites kamen überein, sich nach Chicago zu verfügen und dort in Conferenz zu treten.

Nachdem beide Seiten ihre Auffassung der Frage und Sachlage genügend dargelegt hatten, überließen sie die Entscheidung dem Schiedsrichter, welcher sich bereit erklärte, dieselbe am 20. Oktober 1903 den beteiligten Organisationen bekannt zu geben.

Indem wir den Lokal-Unions diese Entscheidung, die hier im vollen Wortlaute beigefügt ist, unterbreiten, machen wir auf die Nothwendigkeit einer ernstlichen Erwägung derselben aufmerksam und ersuchen wir um die Ernennung eines Dreier-Comites seitens jeder einzelnen Lokal-Union, dessen Mitglieder befähigt sind, über die Bedeutung jeder einzelnen Bestimmung oder Empfehlung der Entscheidung zu referiren, damit die ganze Angelegenheit den Mitgliedern in intelligenter Weise veranschaulicht und klargelegt wird.

Die Lokal-Unions werden aus der Entscheidung ersehen, daß dieselbe einen temporären Arbeitsvertrag vorsieht, welcher, da er am 1. Januar 1904 in Kraft treten soll, bereits von dem General-Executiv-Board acceptirt wurde. Und da derselbe die General-Beamten instruiert hat, den in der Entscheidung spezifizirten Anforderungen Genüge zu leisten, so können die in dem temporären Verträge enthaltenen Bestimmungen von den Lokal-Unions nicht eingehend genug diskutiert und erwogen werden.

Der allgemeine Verschmelzungsplan wird unserer nächsten im September 1904 in Milwaukee stattfindenden Convention zur endgültigen Entscheidung unterbreitet werden.

Wm. D. Huber, Gen.-Präs.
Frank Duff, Gen.-Sek.

Entscheidung des Schiedsrichters,
Adolph Strasser,

Und Plan zur Verschmelzung der Ver.
Brüderschaft der Zimmerleute und Bauschreiner von Amerika und der Amal-Society of Carpenters and Joiners.

New York City, 20. Okt. 1903.

An die Beamten der V. B. der J.
und B. und der A. S. of C. and J.:

Dem Gesuche der Vertreter der V. B. der J. und B. und der A. S. of C. and J., welche mich als Schiedsrichter ernannten, nachkommend, unterbreite ich hiermit meinen Bericht und meine Entscheidung.

Aus dem, von den Vertretern beiderseits, während der Ende August 1903 in Chicago stattgefundenen dreitägigen Conferenz vorgelegten einschlägigen Material geht hervor, daß die letzte im November 1903 in New Orleans abgehaltene Convention der Am. Fed. of Labor einstimmig folgende Resolution annahm:

Außerdem enthalten die unterbreiteten Dokumente Folgendes (Verhandlungen der letzten Convention der A. J. of L., Seite 165):

Der, während des Frühlings und Sommers dieses Jahres (1903), in Manhattan und Kings Boroughs und anderen Orten stattgefundene uneinige und schlecht berathene Kampf, war ein klarer Beweis der offenstündigsten Verletzung der gegenüber der letzten Convention der A. J. of L. seitens beider Parteien eingegangenen Versprechungen. Die wieder aufgenommenen Streitigkeiten wurden fast zu einer Calamität, und es wird Jahre bedürfen, um deren unheilvolle Wirkung aufzuheben.

In der Lösung der mir zuertheilten Aufgabe erachte ich es als eine mir zukommende Pflicht, einen Plan zur vollständigen Verschmelzung beider Organisationen innerhalb annehmbarer Zeit auszuarbeiten und einen Arbeits-Vertrag zu unterbreiten, welcher, während der Verschmelzungsplan der Diskussion und Annahme unterstellt ist, ferneren Feindseligkeiten vorbeugen soll.

Doch möchte ich von Vornherein erklären, daß kein Arbeits-Vertrag erdacht werden kann, der einem Gewerke dauernden Frieden sichert, so lange in demselben zweierlei Constitutionen und zweierlei Arbeitsregeln in Funktion sind. Das nothwendige und natürliche Trachten der betreffenden Organisationen, ihre Mitgliederzahl zu vergrößern, führt zur Kritik der dabei in Anwendung kommenden Pläne und Methoden, und es entstehen Mißverständnisse, die schließlich zu unheilvollen Resultaten führen müssen.

Verschmelzungs-Plan.

Die Verschmelzung soll am 1. Januar 1905 stattfinden und an und nach diesem Datum in voller Wirkungskraft sein.

Die Organisation soll den Namen „United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America“ führen.

Beiträge und Benefits.

Die Mitglieder sind in folgende Klassen eingetheilt:

Division A. Beitrag 35 Cts. wöchentlich.

"	B.	"	20	"	"
"	C.	"	15	"	"
"	D.	"	10	"	"

Die in beiden Organisationen üblichen Eintrittsgebühren sollen in Kraft bleiben bis in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der Ver. Brüderschaft eine Aenderung getroffen ist.

Division A. Strike- und „Lockout“-Benefit.

Ein Mitglied, welches während eines Zeitraumes von sechs Monaten einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 35 Cents entrichtet hat und an einem vom G. E. B. der V. B. autorisirten und sanktionirten Ausstände theilhaftig ist, soll zu folgenden Benefits berechtigt sein:

Für die ersten 15 Wochen, $5.00 per Woche.

" zweiten " 3.00 "

" dritten " 2.00 "

Ein Mitglied, welches drei Monate lang gutstehend und an einem autorisirten Ausstände oder „Lockout“ theilhaftig ist, soll zu folgenden Benefits berechtigt sein:

Für die ersten 30 Wochen, $3.00 per Woche.

" zweiten 15 " 2.00 "

Kein Mitglied soll zu Benefits berechtigt sein, wenn ein Ausstand oder „Lockout“ nicht von dem G. E. B. der V. B. autorisirt wurde und dessen Sanktion erhielt; noch soll ein Mitglied während des Verlaufs eines Ausstandes oder „Lockouts“ zu mehr als 45 Wochen Benefits berechtigt sein.

Division A. Kranken-Benefit.

Ein Mitglied, welches während eines Zeitraumes von einem Jahre einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 35 Cents entrichtet hat, soll zu folgenden Kranken-Benefits berechtigt sein:

Für die ersten 15 Wochen, $4.00 per Woche.

" zweiten " 2.00 "

Kein Mitglied soll innerhalb eines Kalenderjahres zu mehr als 30 Wochen Kranken-Benefit berechtigt sein, noch soll das Benefit des zweiten Kalenderjahres vor Ablauf der ersten zwei Monate, von dem Datum der Zahlung des letzten Benefits an gerechnet, beginnen.

Die folgenden Regeln der Am. Society of Carpenters sollen bei der Auszahlung des Kranken-Benefits Anwendung finden (ausgenommen der im Vorangehenden vorgesehene Benefitbetrag), und in Kraft bleiben, bis dieselben in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der V. B. amendirt sind:

Regel 4, Paragraph 8.

"	24,	"	1, 2, 3, 4, 5.
"	29,	"	8.
"	34,	"	13, 14.
"	39,	"	1, 2, 3, 4.
"	48,	"	7.
"	50,	"	1.

Division A. Arbeitslosen-Benefit.

Ein Mitglied, welches während eines Zeitraumes von zwei Jahren einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 35 Cents entrichtet hat, soll zu folgendem Arbeitslosen-Benefit berechtigt sein:

Für die ersten 12 Wochen, in unterbrochener oder ununterbrochener Reihenfolge, $3.00 per Woche.

Für die zweiten 12 Wochen, in unterbrochener oder ununterbrochener Reihenfolge, $2.00 per Woche.

Doch soll kein Mitglied innerhalb eines Kalenderjahres zu mehr als $60.00 Arbeitslosen-Benefit berechtigt sein, noch soll solches Benefit während der Monate Januar und Dezember verabsolgt werden.

Die folgenden Regeln der Am. Society of C. and J. sollen bei der Auszahlung des Arbeitslosen-Benefits Anwendung finden (ausgenommen der im Vorangehenden vorgesehene Benefitbetrag), bis dieselben in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der V. B. amendirt sind:

Regel 18, Paragraph 13, 15, 16.

"	34,	"	1, 3, 7, 10.
"	35,	"	1.
"	37,	"	1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8.
"	48,	"	3, 4.

Division A. Sterbe-Benefit.

Ein Mitglied, welches während eines Zeitraumes von einem Jahre einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 35 Cents entrichtet hat, soll zu $100.00 Sterbe-Benefit berechtigt sein. Ein Mitglied, welches den gleichen Beitrag während eines Zeitraumes von fünf (5) Jahren entrichtet hat, soll zu $200.00, und ein Mitglied, welches dieselbe Beitragssumme während eines Zeitraumes von sechs (6) Monaten entrichtet hat, soll zu $30.00 berechtigt sein.

Ein Mitglied, welches denselben Beitrag während eines Zeitraumes von zwei Jahren entrichtet hat, soll im Sterbefalle seiner ihm gesetzlich angetrauten Gattin zu $40.00 berechtigt sein.

Kein Mitglied kann dieses Benefit mehr als einmal ziehen.

Die folgenden Regeln der Am. Society of Carpenters sollen bei der Auszahlung des Sterbe-Benefits Anwendung finden (ausgenommen der im Vorangehenden vorgesehene Benefitbetrag), bis dieselben in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der V. B. amendirt sind:

" 43, " 1, 2, 3, 4.

Division A. Unfall- oder Arbeitsunfähigkeits-Benefit.

Ein Mitglied, welches während des Zeitraumes von zwei Jahren einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 35 Cents entrichtet hat, soll bei Unfällen oder permanenter Arbeitsunfähigkeit zu folgenden Benefits berechtigt sein:

A. Bei gänzlicher Arbeitsunfähigkeit, $700.00

B. Bei nicht gänzlicher Arbeitsunfähigkeit 350.00

C. Bei zeitweiliger Arbeitsunfähigkeit 175.00

Die folgenden Regeln der Am. Society of Carpenters sollen bei der Auszahlung des Benefits Anwendung finden, bis dieselben in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der V. B. amendirt sind:

Regel 40, Paragraph 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6.

" 50, " 1.

Division A. Alters-Benefit (Pension für Lebenszeit).

Ein Mitglied, welches während eines Zeitraumes von 25 Jahren einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 35 Cents entrichtet hat, soll zu einem Benefit von $2.50 per Woche (during his natural life), und ein Mitglied, welches dieselbe Beitragssumme während eines Zeitraumes von 18 Jahren entrichtet hat, soll zu $2.00 per Woche berechtigt sein.

Die folgenden Regeln der Am. Society of Carpenters sollen bei der Auszahlung dieses Benefits Anwendung finden (ausgenommen der im Vorangehenden bezeichnete Benefitbetrag), bis dieselben in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der V. B. amendirt sind:

Regel 29, Paragraph 7.

" 42, " 1, 2, 3, 4.

Division A. Werkzeug-Benefit.

Ein Mitglied, welches während des Zeitraumes von einem Jahre einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 35 Cents entrichtet hat, soll im Falle des Verlustes seines Werkzeugs durch Feuer, Wasser oder Diebstahl zu einer $100 nicht übersteigenden Summe, und ein Mitglied, welches dieselbe Beitragssumme während des Zeitraumes von sechs Monaten entrichtet hat, soll zu einem die Summe von $30.00 nicht übersteigenden Benefit berechtigt sein.

Die folgenden Regeln der Am. Society of Carpenters (ausgenommen der im Vorangehenden vorgesehene Benefitbetrag) sollen bei Auszahlung dieses Benefits Anwendung finden, bis dieselben in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der V. B. amendirt sind:

Regel 34, Paragraph 8.

" 38, " 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.

Division B. Einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 20 Cents entrichtend.

Ein Mitglied, welches einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 20 Cents entrichtet, soll unter den auf Division A anzuwendenden Regeln und Bestimmungen und zu derselben Benefitskala wie folgt berechtigt sein:

A. Strike- und „Lockout“-Benefits.

B. Kranken-Benefit.

C. Sterbe-Benefit.

D. Unfall- oder Arbeitsunfähigkeits-Benefit.

E. Werkzeug-Benefit.

Doch soll kein Mitglied der Division B zu Arbeitslosen-, noch zu Alters-Benefit oder Pension berechtigt sein.

Division C. 15 Cents entrichtend.

Ein Mitglied, welches einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 15 Cents entrichtet, soll zu denselben Benefits berechtigt und denselben Regeln und Bestimmungen, wie jetzt in der Constitution der B. B. vorsehen, unterworfen sein.

Division C soll im Falle eines Strikes oder „Lockouts“, der von dem G. E. B. der B. B. gesetzlich autorisiert und sanktioniert ist, zu folgenden Benefits berechtigt sein:

Für die ersten 15 Wochen, $3.00 per Woche.
" nächsten 30 " 2.00 "

Der District Council oder die Local Union soll autorisiert sein, innerhalb seiner, oder ihrer Lokalität, während der Dauer eines Ausstandes, zum Zwecke der Unterstützung der an dem Ausstande beteiligten Mitglieder, Ertragssteuern zu erheben oder um Geldbeiträge nachzuforschen.

Division D. 10 Cts. wöchentlich entrichtend.

Zimmerleute (Carpenters), die zur Zeit ihrer Aufnahme das fünfzigste Lebensjahr überschritten haben, oder Lehrlinge, welche obigen Beitrag entrichten, sollen zu den folgenden Benefits berechtigt sein:

Sterbe-Benefit im Betrage von $50.00, wie in Sect. 98 der Constitution der B. B. vorsehen, und im Falle eines autorisierten Strikes oder „Lockouts“ zu folgenden Benefits:

Für die ersten 15 Wochen, $3.00 per Woche.
" nächsten 30 " 2.00 "

Kein Mitglied der Division D soll zu Strike- oder „Lockout“-Benefit berechtigt sein; es sei denn, daß es drei (3) Monate lang Beiträge entrichtet hat.

Ein Mitglied der Division C, welches nach Division B transferiert zu werden wünscht, muß dem F. S. drei Monate vorher schriftlich hiervon Anzeige machen. Ein solches Mitglied darf nicht über 45 Jahre alt sein. Nachdem es während einer Periode von einem Jahre 20 Cents wöchentlich entrichtet hat, soll es zu allen unter Division B vorgesehenen, und während des Verlaufs dieses Jahres zu allen unter Division C vorgesehenen Benefits berechtigt sein.

Mitglieder der Divisionen B und C, welche nach Division A transferiert zu werden wünschen, sollen dem F. S. drei Monate vorher schriftlich hiervon Anzeige machen. Solche Mitglieder dürfen nicht über 40 Jahre alt sein und sollen, nachdem sie während eines Zeitraums von zwei Jahren 35 Cents wöchentlich entrichtet haben, zu allen unter Division A vorgesehenen Benefits berechtigt sein. Jedoch sollen solche Mitglieder das fünfzigste (50.) Lebensjahr erreicht haben und 18 Jahre lang Beitrag zahlende Mitglieder der B. B. sein, ehe sie auf $2.00 per Woche Alters-Benefit, und ununterbrochen 25 Jahre lang Mitglieder sein, ehe sie auf $2.50 per Woche Anspruch machen können. Während des Verlaufs dieser zwei Jahre sollen solche Mitglieder diejenigen Benefits ziehen können, zu denen sie vorher berechtigt waren.

Allgemeiner Reserve-Fond.

Die B. B. der J. und B. von Amerika soll an und nach dem 1. Januar 1905 einen allgemeinen Reserve-Fond schaffen, dessen Gelder als Garantie für die Auszahlung aller in der Constitution vorgesehenen Benefits in der Obhut der unter der Jurisdiktion der B. B. stehenden Local Unions sein sollen. Der Bestand dieses Fonds soll wie folgt sein:

- | | |
|---|---------|
| A. Für jedes Mitglied, welches Alterspension bezieht | $50.00 |
| B. Für jedes Mitglied, welches 35 Cents wöchentlich entrichtet. | 12.50 |
| C. Für jedes Mitglied, welches 20 Cents wöchentlich entrichtet. | 10.00 |
| D. Für jedes Mitglied, welches 15 Cents wöchentlich entrichtet. | 6.00 |
| E. Für jedes Mitglied, welches 10 Cents wöchentlich entrichtet. | 3.00 |

Wenn immer der allgemeine Reserve-Fond auf einen Bestand gesunken ist, der die oben vorgesehenen Beträge per Kopf und Mitglied nicht mehr aufweist, so soll es die Pflicht des G. E. B. der B. B. sein, eine wöchentliche Steuer von nicht weniger als 25 Cents zu erheben, bis das Defizit gedeckt ist.

Bei der am 1. Januar 1905 stattfindenden Verschmelzung beider Organisationen soll der amerikanische District der A. C. of C. and J. in den allgemeinen Reserve-Fond die folgenden Beträge einzahlen:

- | | |
|--|---------|
| A. Für jedes Mitglied, welches Alters-Pension bezieht | $50.00 |
| B. Für jedes mehr als ein Jahr lang gutstehende Mitglied, welches einen wöchentlichen Beitrag von 35 Cents entrichtet. | 12.50 |
| C. Für jedes der 35 Cents wöchentlich entrichtenden Mitglieder, welche weniger als ein Jahr lang gutstehend sind | 7.50 |
| D. Für jedes der Gewerks-Sektions-Mitglieder und der Lehrlinge | 2.50 |

Die B. B. der J. und B. von Amerika soll in den allgemeinen Reserve-Fond die folgenden Beträge einzahlen:

- | | |
|---|------|
| A. Für jedes Mitglied, welches ein Jahr oder länger gutstehend ist. $7.50 | |
| B. Für jedes Mitglied, welches weniger als ein Jahr lang gutstehend ist | 5.00 |
| C. Für jedes zu theilweisem Benefit berechnete Mitglied | 2.50 |

Die für Auszahlung der Benefits u. s. w. bestimmten, im Besitze des G. E. B. der B. B. sich befindlichen Gelder, sollen einen Theil des allgemeinen Reserve-Fonds bilden.

Sollten die Kassenbestände einer der beiden Organisationen am 1. Januar 1905 unzulänglich sein, um obige Beträge in den allgemeinen Reserve-Fond einzuzahlen, so soll dieselbe so lange eine wöchentliche Steuer von 10 Cents erheben, bis der Fehlbetrag gedeckt ist.

An und nach dem 1. Januar 1905 sollen die Einnahmen des allgemeinen Reserve-Fonds folgende sein: Eintrittsgelder, wöchentliche Beiträge, Strafgebühren, Interessen für deponierte Gelder und die zur Deckung des Fehlbetrages im allgemeinen Reserve-Fond durch den G. E. B. ausgeschriebene Steuer.

Der allgemeine Reserve-Fond soll Gemeingut aller Mitglieder der B. B. und der Am. Carpenters and Joiners und in der Obhut der Local Unions sein, zur Auszahlung der Benefits und zur Bestreitung der in der Constitution spezifizierten Ausgaben. Keine Local Union soll berechtigt sein, Geldgeschenke oder Ausgaben zu machen, die in den auf diesen Fond bezüglichen Gesetzen und Bestimmungen nicht vorgesehen sind.

Die Local Unions sollen berechtigt sein, aus den allgemeinen Einnahmen für Beamtengehälter, Comite-Ausgaben, Office- und Local-Miethe, Zimmereinrichtungen, Drucksachen, Schreibmaterial, Porto, Heizung, Beleuchtung und Beiträge und Taxen an District Councils oder Trade Assemblies den folgenden Prozenttheil innerhalb eines Kalenderjahres zu verausgaben:

|--|----------|
| Local Unions mit 30 Mitgliedern oder weniger | 30 Proz. |
| Local Unions mit 31 bis 50 Mitgliedern | 25 " |
| Local Unions mit mehr als 50 Mitgliedern | 20 " |

Jrgend ein innerhalb eines Kalenderjahres nicht verausgabter Betrag dieses Prozenttheiles soll in dem allgemeinen Reserve-Fond verbleiben.

Ausgleichung der Fonds.

Der G. E. soll innerhalb drei Monaten nach Ablauf des Geschäftsjahres im offiziellen Journal den jährlichen Finanzbericht veröffentlichen. Dieser Jahresbericht soll eine Zusammenstellung der von den Finanz-Sekretären der Local Unions monatlich gelieferten Berichte sein.

Der G. E. soll alle drei Jahre die in der Obhut der Local Unions befindlichen Kassenbestände ausgleichen und den Betrag, zu dem jede Local Union per Kopf berechtigt ist, feststellen. Er soll dann diejenigen Local Unions, die weniger als den ihnen unter der Constitution zukommenden Theil per Kopf der Benefits verausgabt haben, anweisen, an solche Local Unions, die diesen Theil überschritten haben, den überschüssigen Betrag abzuführen, bis jede Local Union über den ihr zukommenden Theil des Kassenbestandes verfügt.

Wenn immer der Kassenbestand einer Local Union durch gesetzliche Ausgaben und Auszahlung der in der Constitution vorgesehenen Benefits erschöpft ist, so soll der G. E. B., nachdem er von dieser Finanzlage benachrichtigt worden, irgend eine andere Local Union anweisen, den ihm nothwendig erscheinenden Betrag an erstere abzuführen.

Alle Kassen-Beträge, welche die nachfolgende Skala überschreiten, sollen im Namen der Local Union und dreier Trustees in den Staats-Spar-Banken und National-Banken deponiert werden:

- | | |
|---|---------|
| Local Unions mit 25 Mitgliedern oder weniger, alle Beträge über | $25.00 |
| Local Unions mit 50 Mitgliedern oder weniger, alle Beträge über | 35.00 |
| Local Unions mit 100 Mitgliedern oder weniger, alle Beträge über .. | 75.00 |
| Local Unions mit 250 Mitgliedern oder weniger, alle Beträge über .. | 100.00 |

Ein durch Bankrottmachung einer Bank entstehender Verlust soll als gesetzliche Ausgabe einer Local Union betrachtet werden und keine Local Union soll für einen solchen Verlust verantwortlich gemacht werden.

Die Local Unions sollen für etwaige Geldunterschlagung oder Veruntreuung ihrer Beamten verantwortlich gemacht werden. Jrgend ein auf diese Weise entstandener Verlust muß innerhalb sechs Monaten durch eine Localsteuer wieder ersetzt werden. Kassen-diebstahl und Schwindler müssen unter den Kriminalgesetzen verfolgt werden.

Jrgend ein Mitglied der Divisionen A und B, welches den Wirkungsbereich einer Local Union oder einen District verläßt und seine Freikarte (Clearance Card) in irgend einer anderen Local Union in den Ver. Staaten oder Canada deponiert, soll sofort zu allen von der Constitution garantierten Benefits berechtigt sein.

Die für die Divisionen A und B vorgesehenen Benefits sollen vor Ablauf eines Zeitraumes von 15 Jahren, von dem Datum der Verschmelzung an gerechnet, nicht reduziert werden.

Allen Zweigen (Local Unions) der Am. Society of C. and J., welche ihre gegenwärtigen Organisations-Einrichtungen beizubehalten wünschen, soll ein Charter kostenfrei bewilligt werden, auf welchem das Datum ihrer ursprünglichen Gründung, sowie das Datum der Verschmelzung, zu vermerken ist.

Keinem aus weniger denn zehn Mitgliedern bestehenden Zweige soll ein Charter gewährt werden, sondern ein solcher Zweig soll sich der nächstgelegenen Local Union der B. B. anschließen und dessen Mitglieder sollen bei dieser ihre Reise- oder Freikarte deponieren.

Sektion 55 der Constitution der B. B. soll gestrichen und folgende an deren Stelle gesetzt werden:

„Der G. E. der B. B. soll unter Zustimmung des G. E. B. einen, die Summe von $100.00 im einzelnen Falle nicht zu übersteigenden Betrag, von irgend einer Local Union, zu irgend einer Zeit, zur Bestreitung der gesetzlichen Ausgaben der General-Office ziehen können. Der so gezogene Gesamtbetrag soll jedoch den Mehrbetrag von $5,000 über die wirklich nothwendigen monatlichen Ausgaben nicht überschreiten.“

Jrgend eine Local Union, welche diese Sektion nicht befolgt, soll, nachdem sie hiervon in gehöriger Weise benachrichtigt worden, von dem G. E. B. suspendiert und nicht wieder in ihre Rechte eingesetzt werden, bis sie den Bestimmungen dieser Sektion nachgekommen ist.

Alle Geldforderungen an die Local Unions zur Bestreitung der Ausgaben der General-Office der B. B. sollen 30 Tage vor deren Zusendung an die Local Unions in dem monatlichen Journal veröffentlicht werden.

Alle Benefits sollen von den Local Unions ausbezahlt werden, doch soll keine Local Union das Recht haben, ohne die Genehmigung und Billigung des G. E. und G. S. der B. B. Unfall- oder Sterbe-Benefits auszubezahlen.

Der General-Sekretär der Am. Society of C. and J. soll, vom 1. Januar 1905 an, die Stelle eines ersten Assistenten des G. E. in der General-Office der B. B. für einen Termin von drei Jahren einnehmen, und soll derselbe einen Gehalt von nicht weniger als $25.00 wöchentlich beziehen. Seine Pflichten sollen u. A. in der Ausfertigung der Fragebogen für die monatlichen Berichte und der Eintragung derselben in zu diesem Zwecke bestimmte Bücher bestehen; ferner in der Vorbereitung und Einführung eines einheitlichen Buchführungs-Systems; auch soll er bei Verfassung der Jahresberichte behilflich sein.

Die mit dem amerikanischen District der Am. Society of C. and J. affiliirten Zweige sollen drei Monate vor der Verschmelzung einen General-Organisator erwählen, welcher diese Stelle am 1. Januar 1905 antreten und zwei Jahre lang begleiten soll. Derselbe soll denselben Gehalt wie andere Organisatoren der B. B. beziehen, und es soll seine hauptsächlichste Pflicht sein, die Mitglieder über die Nothwendigkeit hoher Beiträge und Benefits zu belehren, damit die B. B. in Zeiten der Geschäftsflodung ihre Stärke und Wirksamkeit aufrechterhalten kann.

Die Regeln der Am. Society of C. and J., welche sich auf rückständige Beiträge, Benefit-Verlust und Suspension von Mitgliedern z. beziehen, sollen für alle Mitglieder der Divisionen A und B in voller Kraft bleiben, bis diese Regeln in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der B. B. amendirt sind.

Alle Local-Gesetze und Regeln der Am. Society of C. and J., welche sich auf Pflichten der Beamten und Comites, Gehälter, Strafen und Local-Verwaltung beziehen, sollen in allen Zweigen und Local Unions, in denen eine Majorität der Mitglieder den Divisionen A und B angehört, in Kraft bleiben, bis die Local Union dieselben in gehöriger Weise amendirt hat.

Alle Sektionen der Constitution der B. B., die nicht mit dem Verschmelzungsplan im Widerspruch stehen, sollen in Kraft bleiben, bis dieselben in Uebereinstimmung mit Sect. 184(a) und Sect. 184(b) der Constitution der B. B. amendirt sind.

Der G. E. B. der B. B. soll sich mit der Am. Society of C. and J. von Großbritannien und den National-Gewerkschaftsverbänden des europäischen Continents behufs Umtausches und Anerkennung der Reisefarten aller Union-Carpenters der civilisirten Welt in Verbindung setzen.

Der hier unterbreitete Verschmelzungsplan soll an die im Jahre 1904 stattfindenden Conventionen beider Organisationen zwecks Erwägung verwiesen werden, und beide Conventionen sollen dann den Plan einer Abstimmung der Mitglieder zur Bestätigung vorlegen.

Alle Meinungsverschiedenheiten, die sich in der Auslegung der Bestimmungen dieses Planes und Gewerksvertrages oder eines Theiles derselben geltend machen mögen, sollen dem Schiedsrichter, der diese Entscheidung getroffen hat, zur endgültigen Schlichtung vorgelegt werden.

Gewerksvertrag.

Dieser Vertrag soll ein Jahr lang, beginnend mit dem 1. Januar 1904, in Kraft bleiben.

I. Jeder Zweig der Am. Society of C. and J. soll für ein jedes ihrer, laut Büchern gutstehenden Mitglieder, an den District Council der B. B., mit dem er affiliirt ist, eine monatliche Kopfsteuer von 25 Cents und die Local Unions der B. B. den gleichen Betrag entrichten.

II. An Orten, wo kein Zweig der Am. Society of C. and F. besteht, soll jedes Mitglied besagter Organisation, welches in einem solchen Distrikt beschäftigt ist, an die nächstgelegene Lokal Union der B. B. monatlich 25 Cents für eine Arbeitskarte entrichten und sich allen Gewerksregeln des Distrikts unterwerfen. Bei Verletzung irgend einer dieser Regeln soll es den üblichen Geld- und anderen Strafen unterstehen, welche erstere an die Kasse des District Councils oder der Lokal Union zahlbar sind.

III. Die eine Hälfte aller, seitens eines District Councils, in dem ein Zweig der Am. Society of C. and F. vertreten ist, wegen Verletzung der Gewerksregeln auferlegten Geldstrafen, soll in die Kasse des District Council und die andere Hälfte in die Kasse des Zweiges oder der Lokal Union fließen, welcher das bestrafte Mitglied angehört.

IV. Ein Zweig oder Mitglieder der Am. Society of C. and F., welche die Gewerksregeln eines Distrikts, in dem ein District Council der B. B. besteht, verletzen, sollen seitens dieses Körpers prozessiert werden, und wenn von einer Zweidrittel-Majorität der anwesenden Mitglieder, bei geheimer Abstimmung, schuldig befunden, sollen sie in Übereinstimmung mit den im Januar 1904 aufzustellenden Regeln bestraft werden. Eine Appellation an eine höhere Instanz gegen irgend ein Urtheil ist vor dem Vollzug der vollständigen Verschmelzung beider Organisationen nicht zulässig.

V. Jrgend eine Frage, welche auf eine Aenderung der Lohnrate, Arbeitsstunden u. s. w. in dem Wirkungskreise eines District Council hinzielt, soll einer geheimen Urabstimmung aller in diesem Körper vertretenen Mitglieder unterbreitet werden, und wenn eine Zweidrittel-Majorität die Frage bejaht, so soll diese Entscheidung für alle Zweige, Lokal Unions und Mitglieder bindend sein.

VI. Am letzten Samstag des Monats Dezember 1903 soll in allen Städten und Orten, wo Lokal Unions der B. B. und Zweige der Am. Society of C. and F. bestehen, ein gemeinschaftlicher District Council erwählt werden, welchem die Regulirung der Arbeitslöhne und Stunden und die Aufstellung der zum Schutze der Gewerksinteressen notwendigen Regeln obliegt.

VII. An und nach dem 1. Januar 1904 sollen alle von der Am. Society of C. and F. ausgegebenen Reisekarten seitens der B. B. bis zur vollständigen Verschmelzung anerkannt werden.

VIII. Ein District Council soll drei Monate vor Beginn eines geplanten Ausstandes, wenn sich eine Zweidrittel-Majorität der Delegaten bei Namensaufruf dafür erklärt, die Macht haben, eine, die Summe von ein Dollar wöchentlich nicht übersteigende, Steuer zu erheben.

IX. Die Am. Society of C. and F. soll, im Verhältniß zu ihrer Mitgliederzahl, in einem District Council die gleiche Vertretung haben wie die Lokal Unions der B. B.; ebenso in allen Comités, welche mit den Arbeitgebern über die Regelung der Löhne, Arbeitsstunden, Beschäftigung, Arbeitsverträge u. s. w. konferiren oder verhandeln.

X. Jede Organisation soll als Garantie für die gewissenhafte Befolgung des Gewerks-Vertrages die Summe von fünfundzwanzigtausend Dollars ($25,000) in einer interessenbietenden Sparbank, wie folgt, deponiren: $5,000 eine jede in der Stadt Indianapolis, Ind.; $5,000 eine jede in der Stadt Chicago, Ill.; $5,000 eine jede in der Stadt Cleveland, O., und $10,000 eine jede in der Stadt New York. Diese Beträge sollen in den Namen des Präsidenten, des Sekretärs und des Schatzmeisters der American Federation of Labor als Trustees besagten Garantie-Fonds deponirt werden. Alle Beträge müssen vor dem 10. Januar 1904 deponirt sein.

XI. Alle Ansprüche auf Schadenersatz müssen innerhalb dreißig Tagen nach Begehung einer, die Verletzung von Gewerks-regeln oder des allgemeinen Union-Prinzips involvirenden Handlung, den General-Beamten einer jeden Organisation unterbreitet und eine Abschrift dem Präsidenten der Am. Federation of Labor zugeestellt werden.

XII. Ein Anspruchs-Gericht (Court of Claims), bestehend aus zwei Vertretern einer jeden Organisation, soll einen Schiedsrichter erwählen und am zweiten Montag des Monats Dezember 1904 in der Stadt Cleveland zusammentreten, um alle Ansprüche zu erledigen, und sollen dessen Entscheidungen endgültig sein. Die zugesprochenen Beträge sollen dem in den Banken deponirten Garantie-Fond entnommen und binnen zehn Tagen ausbezahlt werden.

Zum Schlusse wünsche ich zu bemerken, daß ich mich mit bestem Willen und Können bestrebt habe, einen Verschmelzungsplan auszuarbeiten und einen Gewerks-Vertrag vorzulegen, welcher geeignet ist, harmonische Beziehungen unter den Gewerks-Angehörigen herzustellen und ein vereintes Vorgehen zu ermöglichen. Doch möchte ich zugleich beifügen, daß kein Plan entworfen werden kann, der nicht verbesserungsfähig wäre.

Indem ich mich der Hoffnung hingebe, daß der von mir entworfene Plan zur Förderung der Arbeitersache im Allgemeinen beitragen wird, zeichne ich brüderlichst

A. Strasser,
Schiedsrichter.

P. J. Downey's Decision and the Interests of the Am. Woodworkers.

(From the German pages in our November issue.)

In his decision, on the controversy between our U. B. and the Amalgamated Wood Workers, on questions of jurisdiction, umpire P. J. Downey awards jurisdiction over all woodworkers employed in planing mill, furniture and interior finish factories to the latter organization; while on the other hand, the putting up in the buildings of the work turned out by the men so employed, according to Downey's Decision, belongs to the carpenters.

We have at previous occasions repeatedly shown that the umpire, in his unwarranted decision, is doing great injustice to and outraging our U. B. We have pointed out that his decision not only involves a division of our craft in two parts, viz.: inside and outside men, whose interests imperatively demand their closest connection and adhesion to one and the same organization, but that the decision also involves a change of our name—the elimination of the word "joiner."

We will now venture to show that the interests of the membership of the Amalgamated Wood Workers are likewise entirely ignored in that decision and a position assigned them which renders them utterly helpless and deprives them of all opportunity to secure the better working conditions they are so badly in need of.

The history of the organized furniture workers furnishes ample evidence of the fact that it is a very difficult task for the men employed in planing mills, cabinet, office and bar fixture shops to obtain better conditions or to successfully repulse any encroachments of their employers without the sympathy and the co-operation of the carpenters, unless the men who put up the trim work or interior finish in the buildings refuse to handle non-union material.

The working conditions existing in shops or factories now controlled by the Amalgamated Wood Workers, their longer hours and considerably lower rate of wages attest the correctness of our characterization of their position in their allegiance to an organization, apart from that of the carpenters.

The furniture workers, as early as in 1874, at their second annual convention, held in the city of Baltimore, adopted a resolution pledging themselves to take the necessary steps toward the abolishment of the obnoxious custom of furnishing the large tools, such as benches, clamps, etc., then prevailing in most of the larger cities. Still, during the long period of twenty-six years, even in their main stronghold, the city of New York, no progress whatever was made toward the realization of their aspirations. In 1900, after the cabinet-makers and machine woodworkers of that city had been affiliated with our U. B. less than five years, they found themselves in a position to put a stop to that nuisance.

As early as in 1872 the furniture workers of New York City entered into a movement and went out on strike for the inauguration of the eight-hour workday system. They were defeated. Other strikes aiming at the same end followed at various periods; in fact, up to 1892 they maintained an almost incessant warfare, at an enormous sacrifice, financially and otherwise, with no better result. In 1900, though, twenty-eight years after the incipency of the movement, and backed up by the U. B., they at last secured the much-coveted eight hours. At the time of their affiliation Unions No. 7 and 38 of the International Furniture Workers, now 309 and 476 of our U. B., in 1895, their working hours were fifty-three and their minimum wages $17 per week. Under the jurisdiction of the U. B., and through the assistance rendered them by the carpenters their hours were reduced to forty-four and their wages increased to $20.25 per week.

Prior to 1901 the working hours prevailing in the planing mills and sash and blind factories of the Bronx and Mt. Vernon, N. Y., were nine, and even ten, hours per day, while the wages ranged from $8.00 to $15 per week. These mills and factories were subsequently unionized by the U. B., the hours reduced to forty-four and the wages increased to $18 minimum per week.

In other localities, where the men employed in planing mills and cabinet shops, have affiliated with the U. B., and are no longer separated from the carpenters, and no longer depending on the meager resources from their own particular craft in their demands upon the employers, similar results have been obtained.

In view of these facts, any one, conversant or not with conditions prevailing in the wood-working industry, must conceive that the men turning out the trim and office work in the mills or shops and the carpenters who put up this work in the buildings must necessarily be combined in one solid and compact body in order to be in a position to properly safeguard their interests.

The above mentioned facts should further convince anyone not connected with our trade that Umpire Downey's decision, requiring a separation of the mill and shop men from the carpenters and a division of our craft into two distinct organizations is contrary to all sound judgment and in conflict with the teaching of experience as to the trade movement.

These facts further show that Umpire Downey rendered his decision in open disregard of the most vital interests of the members of the Amalgamated Wood Workers, who, wherever they are engaged in trim and office work, have gone through the same experience their fellow-craftsmen in New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other localities have gone through, who found the protection and support, vainly sought for in their former organization, within the folds of the U. B.

One may differ with us in our reasoning and assert that the position of the Amalgamated Wood Workers, they being part and parcel of the A. F. of L., is not one of isolation or helplessness; that they are entitled and assured of the Federation's support and assistance. In this case our reply would be that as far as assistance from the A. F. of L. is concerned, it is a well-known fact that that body does even not dare to go beyond the rendering of moral support to any of its affiliated organizations, from the simple fact that the sense of solidarity among them, our own U. B. not excluded, has as yet not reached that degree where these organizations would submit to a system of general taxation in the interest of any organization involved in a strike and in need of financial aid. Nor is the A. F. of L., under its present laws, invested with power to order any of its affiliated organizations on any sympathetic strike in the interest of any trade struggling for better conditions. And as regards a strike in sympathy with the Amalgamated Wood Workers, it is the carpenters who would naturally be the first in order and the first trade from whom a practical show of sympathy would be required, leaving out of consideration the probability that after and because of the Amalgamated Wood Workers' repeated scabbing on the U. B. and their treacherous action in the Bronx and Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and other localities, this sympathy may not be forthcoming.

Umpire Downey, in his decision, be it through lack of knowledge as to the true conditions in the wood-working industry, or be it from some inexplicable motive, has entirely lost sight of the interests of the bulk of the membership of the Amalgamated Wood Workers and the men employed in mills and shops, which interests demand their cohesion and consolidation with the carpenters.

The umpire in his decision, as likewise the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. in their recent decisions on our controversy, has, at the expense of the membership of the Amalgamated Wood Workers, conveyed a personal favor upon their officials, who, as a matter of course, are desirous of maintaining their organization and retaining their offices.

The decision is an infringement on the interests of both the U. B. and the members of the Amalgamated Wood Workers. It may have the effect of temporarily hampering and disturbing the further development of our trade movement; it will, however, not prevent this movement from ultimately taking its natural course.

A Secret Cement.

A cement for joining rock work for grottos, when it is desired that the plaster or cement should not be seen, can be made by using the commonest sealing or parcell wax, or same can be prepared by melting first 8 parts of common rosin, allowing them to cool sufficiently to permit of 2 parts of oil of turpentine being added without catching fire. Stir up well and reheat; and then add 2 pounds of good-quality rosin (yellow rosin of colophony). When that has melted, stir in and well mix 3 parts of powdered chalk, perfectly dry, and then 3 parts of dry brickdust.

A Sore Spot in Sawmaking.

To All Organized Labor and Fellow Craftsmen, Greeting:

There are in the United States and Canada in the neighborhood of 450 saw smiths. Of these all belong to the Saw Smiths' Union of North America, except about one hundred, most of whom are employed by H. Disston's Sons of Philadelphia. This latter firm is probably the largest makers of hand saws in the United States. This, as you are well aware, is a constant menace to the welfare of all the rest of the saw smiths in the United States and Canada. The Disston's Sons are not primarily hostile to the union, but need some tangible evidence that unionism pays.

It would not take a great deal to entirely unionize their shop and thus remove any danger from the competition of low-priced workmen, therefore we ask the organized crafts, particularly the carpenters, woodworkers and miners, individually and collectively, to write a letter to Disston's Sons, at Philadelphia, Pa., and inform them that while they have no objection to using their saws, still the principles of unionism compels them to purchase saws of those who put the Saw Smiths' Union label on.

We desire to call your attention to the imprint of our new union label, which appears at the top of this sheet, and to further inform you that we have had this label registered in each State wherein is located a factory making saws of every description. The following makers of hand saws are entitled to the use of the label:

Bishop & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Cincinnati.

Jennings Saw Co., Port Jervis, N. Y. Simonds Mfg. Co., Fitchburg, Mass., and Chicago.

E. C. Atkins & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

We have no doubt that by your union communicating with the firm of Henry Disston's Sons, expressing your desire to have their plant strictly unionized, that we will soon be in a position to add this firm name to the list hereinbefore given.

In conclusion we would like to add, with particular emphasis, that if you will take the trouble to call upon your local hardware dealers and ask them to be sure to specify that the union label of our craft be etched on all saws they may order in the future from all the firms whose names are here given, as well as the Disston's people, you will not only be doing our craft a good service, but greatly contributing to the upbuilding of the cause of trade unionism and thereby solidifying the fundamental tenets upon which the labor movement is built.

Yours fraternally,

J. DUHY, Pres.

C. G. WERTZ, Sec'y-Treas.

The Saw Smiths' National Union of North America.

Expulsions.

J. W. Jones, formerly Treasurer of Local Union 1215, Rocky Mount, N. C., has been expelled for misappropriation of the local union's fund.

Rejection of Candidates.

Peter Silk has applied for membership in Local Union 810, San Diego, Cal., three successive times and was rejected each time in accordance with Sec. 61 of our General Constitution.

John Cussar has been rejected as a candidate by Local Union, 1026, Urbana, Ill., at three successive regular meetings, he being found ineligible for membership.

EVERY member should see to it that his local union remits the per capita tax to the General Office punctually and regularly every month and thus avoid running in arrears and out of benefit.

OVERTIME and piecework are twin devices used by individual greed to de-grade the mass.

THE greatest world power in the world is labor; without it there would be no wealth, no progress, no civilization.

LIGHT itself is a great corrective. A thousand wrongs and abuses that are grown in darkness disappear like owls and bats before the light of day.

Are You Held Down By Lack of Training?

Nothing keeps a man down like lack of training—nothing lifts him up so quickly or so surely as a thorough, practical knowledge of the work he has to do. The International Correspondence Schools was founded for the “man without an opportunity.” No matter where he is or what work he is doing, it gives him, by mail, the exact training required to attain success, either in his present position, or in an entirely different occupation.

We can prepare you for any of the positions named below. You will not have to give up your present employment, as only a small amount of your spare time is required. Prices low. Terms easy. No books to buy.

Mark X before the position which interests you; cut out Coupon and mail to us. We will send full particulars and our booklet, “1001 Stories of Success,” which gives the names, addresses, and advancement of over a thousand of our students in all parts of the world.

Send in the Coupon Today!

International Correspondence Schools,

Box 1069, Scranton, Pa.

Please send me your booklet “1001 Stories of Success,” and explain how I can qualify for the position before which I have marked X.

To Boom Our Union Label.

We offer an article designed to keep before the public an imprint of our new union label, which is being registered as rapidly as possible in the different States—our Match-Box, an article of great utility, keeping constantly before the public the fact that the Brotherhood has a union label. As will be seen by the illustration, our match-box is an article which will be appreciated, not only by members of our Brotherhood, but by members of other unions, and one that will serve the purpose of reminding the public of our label. The Brotherhood union label on one side of the box and the emblem and motto on the other are lithographed in beautiful colors on white ground, representing enamel.

No better investment could be made by local unions than the purchasing of our match-boxes for agitation purposes. They are also a creditable souvenir to be used at the occasion of festivals.

The General Office is in a position to furnish any quantity of the article at the established price of 15 cents each. A sample will be sent immediately upon request accompanied by the necessary amount.

Morrill's Special Sawset.

Chas. Morrill, 277 Broadway, New York, of Sawset fame, has added to his already long list of Sawsets the "Special." This is an improved No. 96 Sawset and contains a number of important features.

The anvil, instead of being at right angles to the path of the plunger, as in No. 95 Sawset, is inclined as in the No. 1 Sawset. This does away with breaking the point of the plunger as it permits the plunger to be made larger and stronger, and to be more evenly tempered. It also permits the workman to see how much set he is getting on his saw. The under handle has been made the movable handle, thus doing away with the wobbling of the Sawset and minimizing the motion, thus preventing the accidental breaking of any of the saw teeth. The gauge screw regulating the width of set is firmly secured in any desired position by means of a lock nut. This is a great improvement, as in the past the wearing loose of the gauge screw has caused a great deal of annoyance and inconvenience to the operator. The whole Sawset has been somewhat shortened and the graceful contour of the previous models has been preserved. The encasing of the plunger prevents the dust and dirt from accumulating and clogging up the spring and presents a more handsome appearance.

Considerable time, thought and experimenting have been spent in making this the most practical, up-to-date Sawset in the market.

Mr. Morrill has been to work on this Sawset for several years and during that time has taken out a number of patents covering all of the features, but not up to this time has he felt that he had brought it to as high a state of perfection as possible.

However, with the advent of this Set, he feels that the revolving anvil Sawset has reached its zenith, and that there is little left to be desired in this model.

The action is similar to the No. 95 Sawset. The operator simply has to know the number of points to the inch of his saw, turn the revolving anvil to the corresponding figure, and set the gauge screw as desired, in general, just enough to permit the saw to go through easily. Then it is a case of simply going down one side of the saw, setting the alternate teeth, then reversing the saw and setting the other teeth in the opposite way.

As usual, the Set will be made in the best possible manner, of the best stock obtainable, as it is this firm's principle to use only the best that money can buy.

Royal Hearted.

(By Author of Heart Leaves.)

Although no princely robes may deck

Or costly gems be worn—

No ermine and no purple cloak

Nor kingly crown adorn—

Yet may we own true honor's gem—

A jewel passing fair,

The gift divine, a royal heart

The poorest life may wear.

Though poor in all the world calls wealth,

There is a hidden mine

Containing more of treasure rare

Than all earth's "Trusts" combine;

And royal hearts may always light

The royal path that leads

To upward plains—elysian fields—

The realm of noble deeds.

Through all the busy walks of life

Where'er men laugh or weep

That priceless gem—a royal heart—

Untarnished we may keep;

Than diamonds' pure and peerless flash

More beautiful to see,

The royal heart outlasting time

To shine eternally.

MARGARET SCOTT HALL.

Don't take our word for it! Ask any of your brother members. If they own a set, they will tell you that The Carpenters' and Builders' Standard Library By Fred T. Hodgson is Worth its Weight in Gold. We have finally induced the publishers to sell us another edition of 5,000 Sets. We wanted 10,000 Sets, but they refused as they don't like our idea of selling the books for less than the advertised price. They positively will not sell us any more if we cut the price; so after these few sets are sold—up it goes. ORDER NOW! DON'T DELAY! Every Set Guaranteed, or your money back. Can any one offer you a better proposition? Words of the highest praise received daily unsolicited from the workmen and press commending this valuable set of books. The most popular mechanical paper in the world, The Scientific American, says: "It is not too much to say that a carpenter who does not possess these volumes has one of the most valuable tools left out of his kit." Do not blame us if your order comes too late. We give you fair warning that after the present lot is sold the price will advance to, cloth binding, $4.00, and half morocco binding, $6.00.

This series of Fred T. Hodgson's new works are to-day the approved and most helpful set of practical builders' "educators" published. They have been tried and found by architects, contractors, carpenters and builders to be efficient "aids" for advancement and thoroughly reliable for daily consultation as books of reference, covering as they do thousands of "self-help points" necessary for all workers of wood. The books are positively up-to-date and the "CARPENTER" most heartily recommends them to everyone as the most valuable series of books for self-instruction published in the world on the subject treated.

Roof Framing

By
G. D. Inskip

This Work is specially prepared and written for the Mechanic. By the use of tables he can compute any length of Rafter, Hip or Valley, with ease and accuracy, from 1/4 of an inch to 150 feet. It is in two volumes. Vol. I is handsomely illustrated with diagrams, conveying to the mind of the reader the practical way of cutting Roof Members. It takes in all manner of Pitches, Degrees and Minutes, or any possible Plan of Roof, and gives all measurements full size. Scale measurements are dispensed with, and the steel square is used only as a bevel and is of no moment in acquiring lengths and intersections.

Fifty Cents Per Year
Five Cents a Copy

SEATTLE, WASH.—Local Union 131 is progressing nicely now and times promise to be fair this winter.

SPARTANSBURG, S. C.—Our local union is improving, its present standing is very promising and we have great hopes for the future. Labor Day was generally observed. We held a big barbecue and picnic.

VAN WERT, O.—Since the organization of our Local Union 1711, we have increased our membership to over fifty members in good standing. We have also obtained an increase in our wages of 2½ cents per hour.

ALBANY, N. Y.—This city at the present time is conspicuous for depression of business in the building line. We have plenty of idle carpenters trying in vain to obtain employment. Carpenters are advised to give Albany, N. Y. a wide berth. Stay away.

PARSONS, KANS.—Trade conditions here are favorable for the winter season. So far all our members are employed and there is but one contractor working in opposition to the requirements of our Union! Still, as yet he is doing us no harm.

KEWANEE, ILL.—Work is very slack at present. We would request you to place Kewanee among the localities where work is dull in the next issue of THE CARPENTER. The eight-hour workday being in operation here for some time, we would also desire to be listed among our eight-hour cities.

CLEVELAND, O.—Work here is exceedingly dull. We have a good number of our men idle and the trade generally is in a deplorable condition at the present time. There is no prospect whatever of obtaining employment, and we would request all carpenters to stay away.

CINCINNATI, O.—Prior to August 25th our L. U., 1582, met in a hall rather inconveniently located for our membership, and we met only twice a month. On the above date we changed our meeting hall to Lawrence St., between Pearl and Third Sts., where we meet every Wednesday, and hope to have better results.

LEWISTON, ME.—We note that Lewiston and Auburn are not included in the list of eight-hour cities in the September CARPENTER. We were granted the eight-hour day April 1st, shortly after Brother Shields visited here. Please insert a note to that effect in your next issue and place Lewiston and Auburn, Me., on the list.

SENECA FALLS, N. Y.—Notwithstanding the fact that there are as many non-union carpenters in this town as there are union men, the condition of L. U. 835 has greatly improved this summer. We have secured the nine-hour day at ten hours' pay without any difficulty and the union men are getting the best of the work.

WOODSIDE, L. I., N. Y.—In perusing the eight-hour list in the September CARPENTER, we find that Woodside, L. I., is omitted. The eight-hour workday has been observed in this town for the last three years and all the carpenters are members of our United Brotherhood. Please classify Woodside, L. I., among the eight-hour towns.

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.—The Stout Lumber Company, of this city, having refused to work union hours, or hire union men, has been placed on the unfair list by L. U. 236 of Clarksburg. We hope all other local unions will co-operate with us for the promotion of labor interests, by refusing to use any material sent out by this unfair company.

ELKHART, IND.—Our new union here, organized in the forepart of August, has made some progress in membership, most of our members, however, have been admitted on clearance cards. There is quite a number of carpenters working in the railroad shops who are still on the outside; we are now using special efforts to get them to join.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—Trade is very dull here, and to make matters worse, some of our contractors are fighting us and employing non-Union men. Other contractors are inclined to be fair, but the former are the stumbling block in our efforts to get full recognition of our union schedule. We would request all carpenters to stay away from Bloomington, Ill., pending an adjustment of our difficulties.

WESTERLY, R. I.—The carpenters' strike of this place, which lasted seven months, has ended. Local Union 217 has made a good fight and asserted itself as a strong union. We have won a little; but work is very dull here now, making it impossible for a good many of our men to secure employment. All carpenters are requested to keep away.

SISTERSVILLE, W. VA.—Having some misunderstanding with the Paden City Land Company and Tyler-Wetzel Railroad Company, we would request all carpenters to keep aloof from Paden City until a settlement has been effected. We have more men here than work. Don't pay any heed to advertisements setting forth that work is plentiful; they are entirely false and misleading.

PITTSBURG, KAN.—There is good prospect for a final settlement of the difference existing here between our Local Union and the employers since last April, relative to the wage question. We have obtained the signatures of the most prominent contractors to an agreement providing for a scale of $2.75 per day of 8 hours. We have reason to believe that in a short time other contractors will follow suit and peace will again prevail.

MADISONVILLE, KY.—Local Union 1506 is in good shape and the outlook for a busy season is bright. Our members have all the work they can do. Since October 1st we have been working under the nine-hour rule. We have no agreement with the general contractors, but those of our own craft are favorably inclined towards our union and are keeping our members at work under the new schedule. Other contractors who heretofore were hostile begin to call on us to work for them. If traveling brothers will assist us by staying away, we will have everything our own way at an early date.

NATICK, MASS.—We are in fairly good condition and have enjoyed the eight hours since Spring, 1902, and $3.00 per day since last May. Very few of our men are walking the streets. We had a Frenchman floating around here scabbing on us, and as he could not show a union card and refused to join, he was fired on two jobs. Prospects for the winter season are pretty good; there are a number of jobs being started up, hence, we shall not freeze this winter unless the Amalgamated Wood Workers or some other scabs come here to take our places. Please list us among the eight-hour towns in THE CARPENTER.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—The Building Trades Council of this city has issued an appeal to all unions in the building line, urging their members to stay away from Jacksonville. There is not enough work in that locality to occupy the home men; a great many of them are idle and walking the streets looking for employment. Do not pay any attention to advertisements for men—they emanate from the bosses who are trying to discourage the home unions and to cause an influx of idle men as a preventive from any attempt on the part of the unions to secure the eight-hour day in the coming spring. Keep shy of Jacksonville, Fla.

AUGUSTA, GA.—We have had a hard struggle with our contractors and the non-union men here; but we have gained the nine-hour day for all union men. We are now making strenuous efforts to educate the outsider on trades union lines and show them the benefit they will derive from their adhesion to our organization. We have raised our initiation fee to $10.00. In order to get our wives and daughters to take more interest in union affairs and to assist us in our missionary work, we have lately held a Smoker and Musicales where some good and appropriate speeches were made. The hall was crowded with ladies, members and their friends.

CHICO, CAL.—Carpenters should beware of the Diamond Match Company, which is bringing many carpenters here from the East, principally Massachusetts, to work on their big plant near this place. The men, as a rule, find that the working conditions are greatly at variance from the company's representations, the latter insisting on their men to work one hour longer and for from 50 to 75 cents per day less than customary in Chico and surrounding localities. Twenty dollars per month for board and $5 for a place to sleep are charged at the company's camp, the men furnishing their own blankets. Carpenters will avoid sad disappointment and loss of money by paying no attention to the false promises of this company.

MUSKOGEE, I. T.—The trade organizations here turned out in large numbers on Labor Day. The parade was headed by the Mayor and City Council and the members of the Trades Council, followed by the tanners, stone and brickmasons, carpenters, plumbers, painters and decorators, hod-carriers, printers and typograph and railway switchman. L. U. 1072 had 130 men in line attired in blue overalls, jumpers and caps. We had sixteen different floats decorated in flying colors; among them one representing the result of union labor and the other the result of scab labor. In the afternoon a big picnic was held in the park, where able speakers delivered addresses on the aims and objects of organized labor. In a ball contest between painters and carpenters, the latter turned out the winners. At night a ball was given in the Opera House.

KREBS, IND.—L. U. 1716 is getting along O. K. and growing in membership and otherwise. In consideration of the class of work required here, we have adopted $2.25 per day as our minimum scale. Most of our men, however, receive $2.50 and up. Our last meeting passed the following resolution:

Whereas, We deem it our duty to assist organizations who uphold the dignity of labor and seek by peaceful means to secure to the laborer the result of his toil, and

Whereas, We believe that by co-operation of all labor organizations the lot of each will be alleviated; therefore be it

Resolved, That we ask the support and co-operation of the United Mine Workers of America and the National Brotherhood of Coal Hoisting Engineers of Krebs, Ind., in our struggle to uphold union principles and the dignity of our craft.

Reception to Gen. Pres. Huber.

Our General President, Wm. D. Huber, recently having transferred his membership from L. U. 277, Philadelphia, to L. U. 281, of Indianapolis, this local union, on October 21st, entertained him with a reception in its hall on Virginia Avenue. The officers of the various national organizations having their headquarters at Indianapolis, General Secretary Frank Duffy, General Treasurer Thomas Neal, 1st Vice-President Guerin and the members of our Executive Board, then in session, and the members' families and friends, were the invited guests. The evening was spent by speechmaking, recitations and general merrymaking, the principle feature being the recitation of the following poem by the bright little ten-year-old son of Bro. D. L. Stoddard.

My papa has worked from sun to sun—
Helped make this Union, 281;
And now tonight we are truly proud
As we are mingling with this great crowd,
We are proud of brothers that we sent
That caused Head Office to move its tent;
And also proud here this very night
General President is treating us right.
We thank him for the work begun,
Invite the rest to 281.
I asked some one why all this spread,
General President was all they said,
But though no one has the story told,
Grandpa today is 70 years old,
And he by the President not outdone
Has placed his card in 281.
And now tonight as they become Members of Union 281
May you ever unto each other be Strong, true, helpful, kind and brotherly,
And Union flourish until I come
And place my card in 281.

General President Huber was presented with a huge cake bearing suitable inscriptions and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters' and Joiners' union label.

The occasion was a very pleasant affair, lasting until a late hour.

Thoughts of Thanksgiving.

Bare fields of stubble hint of garnered sheaves,
The harvest time, abounding in good cheer.
Has come again. Rife autumn's falling leaves
Are whispering low that wintry blasts are near;
Yet peace and plenty—labor's just reward
A sense of rest pervades the atmosphere;
Content's full measure claims a treasured hoard—
Thanksgiving joy is reigning everywhere.

Right fittingly a nation's gratitude
Pours forth in eloquence of fervent praise;
Methinks the giver of all earthly good,
Is pleased to note our glad thanksgiving days—
The days of feast and song and wholesome rest
And praise to Him whose love our lives hath blest.

Movements for Better Conditions.

Local Union 1554, Concord, N. C., realizing the necessity of the establishment of a uniform minimum wage scale, we have pledged ourselves to make a demand upon the contractors to that effect at the earliest possible date. We have also passed resolutions demanding that nine hours shall constitute a day's work on Saturday and prohibiting members from working for unfair employers. Knowing full well that we have only recently been organized and that we have a good number of members who are young in the trade, we deem it wise not to be too aggressive at this time and to go slow. Our demands being so reasonable, we have no fear of any trouble with our employers, the majority of them have already expressed a willingness to accede to them.

LOCAL UNION 1189, RUMFORD FALLS, ME.—The International Paper Company, operating a mill in this city, refusing to enter into a new agreement with their employees, the latter, comprising paper-makers, firemen, engineers and pulp and sulphite workers, quit work on September 15th last. All employees thus having struck work, the 30 carpenters, members of L. U. 1189, had no alternative than to quit likewise. Our demands made on the company in behalf of the carpenters and millrights, as early as June, were to the effect that they be granted the nine-hour workday and ten hours' pay, double time for overtime and time and a half for work required on Sunday and holidays. There are altogether 750 men involved in this strike, or rather, lockout, the bulk of them belonging to other trades. We (the carpenters) can do little more than watch developments and the settlement of the controversy largely depends on the action of the representatives of these trades whose arrival here is expected at any moment.

Successful Trade Movements.

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.—Our demand on contractors for an eight-hour workday and prevailing scale of wages, made June 20, 1903, and to take effect on September 1st, was granted without any friction. Everything is running smoothly and most of our members are employed. Labor Day was celebrated in this city by all the unions, including carpenters, bricklayers, clerks, labor unions and the local branch of the Socialist party. Also L. U. 1458, of Tarpon Springs, being the invited guests of our L. U. 531, turned out to the number of 30 members. The day's celebrations were a complete success. The unions formed in parade and marched to the selected grounds where dinner and refreshments were served and appropriate addresses delivered by Mayor Edwards and Rev. T. J. Hoyt. Capt. Hill, State Secretary of the Socialist party of Florida, also addressed the audience at length on behalf of the toiling masses, his remarks being appreciated by all present. The celebrations were concluded by a lecture on Socialism by Capt. Hill, at the opera house.

BROOKHAVEN, MISS.—Local Union 1348, recently organized, demanded the nine-hour workday at ten hours' pay, which demand was granted without a struggle by most of the contractors, while others have come over after a few days' lay-off. The agreement signed by both our Union and the contractors is agreeable and satisfactory to both parties. The ten-hour system is now a thing of the past. All our members are smiling and saying, "I told you so." Our Local Union is the only organization in town comprising all resident carpenters. They are standing up manfully for all their rights.

Still in Its Creeping Clothes, but Prospering.

Local Union 1750, Savannah, Ga., is doing well at present. It has initiated three new members recently; five more applications being under consideration. Work has been plentiful this season, this moment, however, most of the larger jobs are completed. This local union is yet in its creeping clothes, but prospering nevertheless and initiating new members every meeting night. We have a big bank job here, known as the German Bank, on which none but scabs were employed. The supervising foreman being one Grant Wilkins from Atlanta, Ga., with whom our brothers in that city had some trouble. For a while we made it quite hot for this man, with the result that his right bower sent his resignation to the master builder in Atlanta, whereupon Grant Wilkins was ordered from the job and had to promise to employ union men exclusively on any work under his charge.

What Organized Labor in Connecticut and Westchester County is Up Against.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

A movement has been started among the master builders, contractors and dealers in building material in Connecticut and Westchester county, having for its object a merger of all the associations identified with the building trade into one organization, to be called the Inter-State Builders', Contractors' and Dealers' Association. Although the promoters of the combination assert that the aim and purposes of the organization are not to antagonize organized labor, but for purposes of maintaining peace and mutually benefiting both the employer and the employee, the association members are trying to prevent any men from obtaining a job that took an active part in any strike. The names of these men have been sent to the employers all over the district and when a man applies for a job the first question they ask him is, "Where have you previously been employed?"

The subjoined Roll Book and Laws for the guidance of members of the association during the strikes show what we are up against.

ROLL BOOK.

RULES TO GUIDE.

Rules to guide the members of the Builders' and Contractors' Associations of Greenwich and vicinity during strikes.

RULES.

Each member to continue his work or business to the best of his ability. Employ any Union or non-Union men except Union men from the strike territory who are willing to work at the present prevailing rate of wages and hours.

Should a Boss have in his employ at the present time one or more men to whom he is now paying more than the regular Union wages he is to continue the employment of those men and work the same hours and pay them the same wages they are now receiving if they are willing to work.

Should a Boss have in his employ one or more apprentices he is to have the right to continue the employment of these apprentices if they are willing to work same hours, paying them the same wages they are receiving at the present time.

In no case shall an Employer make any change whatever in the present schedule of hours or wages until a settlement of the strike is effected.

All members are advised to make no promises to stand by the men who may work for them during the strike, but allow the men themselves to assume all responsibility for the future that may result from their determination to continue at work. All members will hand to the Secretary of this Association at once a list of the names of all his men that have gone on strike.

The Lumber Yards will continue to furnish material to the best of their ability to members of this Association and to individuals who will not employ Union men.

They will not sell any material to Union men or any person who will employ Union men except to fill any contracts that they may have on hand prior to April 1st. They will not ship into any of the strike territory any material whatever unless first assured that by so doing the Union men will not be benefited.

Outside dealers will be requested to co-operate with us and to ship no material into this territory without first consulting our Executive Committee.

SECTION 1. This Book is the property of the International Builders', Contractors' and Dealers' Association and is loaned to the member above named with the distinct understanding that it is not to be shown, nor anything therein contained made known to any other person, and it is to be returned to said Association at the request of the General Organizer.

Members receiving this book sign here.

Remember, this Roll-Book is for your personal use. It is not to be shown, nor is anything in it to be told to any one.

If there is anything in it you do not understand thoroughly, write to the General Organizer.

BY ORDER OF THE OFFICIAL BOARD.

Read these instructions carefully:

When a workman applies to you for a job, ask him his name and by whom he has been employed, if he has worked for any member of this Association since March 15, 1903. He must give you a Reference Card before you hire him. If he has no Reference Card, send him to his previous employer to get one. Failure to do so may cost you considerable. (See Art. 7, Sec. 2, of the By-Laws).

When you hire a man who has a Reference Card, take his card, write your own name and the date you hire him on the back of it, put it in one of the printed envelopes you have, addressed to the General Organizer, stamp and mail it at once.

The By-Laws call for a fine of One Dollar for neglecting to do this. (See Art. 7, Sec. 3).

When you hire a man on his statement that he has not previously worked for a member and therefore has no Reference Card, fill out the Blanks on one of the Brown Private Mailing Cards, which you have addressed to the General Organizer, put a one-cent stamp on it and mail it at once. Failure to do this costs One Dollar. (See Art. 7, Sec. 4).

If you are informed that a man has entered your employ through misrepresentation, require an explanation from him and forward same to the General Organizer. This is very important. The By-Laws impose a penalty for neglecting to do this. (See Art. 7, Sec. 5).

When a man leaves your employment or is discharged, fill out the Blanks on one of the Pink Private Mailing Cards addressed to the General Organizer, put on a one-cent stamp and mail it at once. Failure to do this costs One Dollar. (Art. 7, Sec. 6).

When a man leaves your employ (or is discharged), except in the case of a strike, and asks you for a Reference Card, give it to him, but not otherwise. Do not offer a man a Reference Card under any circumstances—let him ask for it, let him go without it, he will come back for it later on.

If a man leaves you on strike, do not give him a Reference Card no matter if he does ask for it; never give a Reference Card to a striker under any circumstances whatever. Consider this an order from the Official Board. The By-Laws impose a fine. The fine may be a large one, so please be very careful about it. (See Art. 7, Sec. 1).

The color of Reference Cards for the different crafts are:

CarpentersYellow
PaintersWhite
Metal WorkersGray
RoofersRed
DealersGreen
Masons and Tile SettersBlue

Notify the General Organizer whenever you require any Reference Cards, small envelopes, Brown or Pink Mailing Cards, and they will be sent to you at once.

In view of the organized efforts of the employers to annihilate our faithful workers in the cause of unionism, the labor organizations of this district will certainly not remain on their oars. We are trying this moment to get each one of them interested in this new move of the bosses and dealers, trusting that by concerted and intelligent action we may succeed in repulsing any encroachment on our rights as citizens of this liberty-loving country.

Fraternally,
PORTCHESTER AND VICINITY
DISTRICT COUNCIL.

Constable Bros., of Erie, Pa., Declared Unfair.

No doubt the general office is aware of our controversy with the firm of Constable Brothers. This firm has been exceptionally antagonistic to the carpenters' union during the past two or three years, but matters never came to a crisis till about two months ago. At that time we learned that our sister local union in Franklin, Pa., had encountered some difficulties on the work being done by Constable Brothers in that city, and failing to arrive at an amicable adjustment, the carpenters, painters, bricklayers—in fact, all the building trades of Franklin placed the firm on the unfair list for violation of trade rules.

Local Union 409 then appointed a committee which, in conjunction with the business Agent of the Building Trades Alliance, waited on the president of the firm, with the object in view (1) to endeavor to unionize their shop and have it placed on the nine-hour basis. (2) to try, if possible, to settle the Franklin difficulty in a way satisfactory to our brothers in that locality.

The committee held a conference with the firm's representative, lasting a whole half of a day and upon his desire two days' time, for the consideration of our requests, was granted him. In the meantime the firm discharged our members in their employ and prepared for a fight. After the expiration of the two days, our committee again waited on the president, to hear his ultimatum, which was a flat refusal and to the effect that he would never settle with our Franklin Union, never take any of its members back in his employ and that he would fight us to a finish.

On hearing the report of its committee, L. U. 409 decided to join in with our Franklin brothers, and on their part placed the firm of Constable Brothers on the unfair list. This action has been endorsed by a general vote of the painters, plumbers, tanners, stonemasons, bricklayers, electricians and hod-carriers, and finally by the Building Trades Alliance as well as the Central Labor Union. All organized trades are now fighting this obnoxious firm, and in Grove City, North East and Ashtabula (Ohio) every man of the above named trades, working on a job controlled by Constable Brothers, has been called off.

The Master Builders are, of course, taking issue with the unfair firm; they have blacklisted every man involved in this strike movement; they are trying to get men from out of town to take the union men's places and are making special efforts to get men from Jamestown, N. Y., and Alliance, O., to come to this city.

We now would most earnestly call upon every union man in the building line, especially in Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio, to give the trouble existing in Erie and Franklin, Pa., the widest publicity possible and to refrain from working on any of Constable Brothers' jobs wherever they may be found.

Erie, Pa. LOCAL UNION 409.

Call for Conference.

To Officers of Structural Building Trades:

An informal conference of Structural Building Trades representatives, whose names are attached to this letter, was held at Indianapolis, Ind., at the headquarters of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America on August 26, 1904, for the purpose of making arrangements for calling a general conference or convention for the object only of devising means whereby plans can be arranged for the better protection and welfare of structural building tradesmen who work on buildings.

The Indianapolis conference decided: That an International Alliance can be established, whose internal policy shall be the establishment of local and international boards of arbitration to give international sympathetic support when necessary, if local boards fail in their efforts to adjust difficulties and to safeguard, protect and watch over the interests of the members of all bodies affiliated. To oppose the formation of dual bodies. To protect the autonomy of our several trades. To keep agreements inviolate, avoid strikes and prevent friction.

The conference decided that the time has now come when representative men connected with building trades unions must see the necessity of a closer combination of their interests, in order that we may regulate and control our own affairs locally and internationally, and obviate the necessity of bringing questions concerning our interests before men who have no knowledge whatever of our needs.

Should the objects stated herein meet with your approval, you are respectfully invited to have the proper officials of your organization appoint or elect three delegates to attend the General Conference to be held at the headquarters of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Stevenson Building, Indianapolis, Ind., on Thursday, Oct. 8, 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Trusting to hear from you at an early date,

Fraternally yours,
M. P. CARRICK,
Secretary-Treasurer Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, and Temporary Secretary.

GEO. P. GUBBINS,
President Bricklayers' and Masons' International Union, and Temporary Chairman.

L. W. TILDEN,
Secretary-Treasurer International Association Journeymen Plumbers, Gas and Steam Fitters and Steam Fitters' Helpers.

HERMAN LILLIAN,
President Hod Carriers' and Building Laborers' International Union.

FRANK DUFFY,
General Secretary Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

FRANK BUCHANAN,
President Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' International Association.

REPORT

Of Committee Appointed by Gen. Pres. Huber to Attend Conference of Representatives of Structural Building Trades.

Mr. Wm. Huber, Gen'l. Pres. U. B. of C. and J. of A.:

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER—We, the undersigned Committee, appointed by you to confer with the representatives of the several "Basic Structural Building Trades," for the purpose of consolidating the structural building trades industry into an alliance that would be beneficial to all trades affiliated, beg leave to report as follows:

The above conference was held in the Grand Hotel, Indianapolis, Ind., on October 8th, 9th and 10th, and the following results were arrived at:

OCTOBER 8TH: We assembled in Room 26, Grand Hotel, and in the absence of Temporary Chairman, Geo. P. Gubbins, Brother Frank Buchanan, General President of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers was chosen Chairman pro tem and M. P. Carrick, General Secretary-Treasurer of the Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, Temporary Secretary; also the following Committee on Credentials was appointed:

Herman Lillian, Laborers; L. W. Tilden, Plumbers; J. J. Hantahan, Hoisting Engineers. The meeting then adjourned to again assemble at 2:30 p. m.

OCTOBER 8TH, 2:30 p. m.

Meeting called to order by Chairman Geo. P. Gubbins, of the Bricklayers' and Masons' International Union of America.

The report of the Committee on Credentials was received and Delegates from the following organizations were seated:

Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, Bricklayers' and Masons' International Union, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers, National Association of Plumbers, Steam, Gas and Hot-water Fitters, Plasterers' Protective Association, International Association of Hodcarriers and Building Laborers, International Association of Steam Hoisting Engineers, International Association of Electrical Workers.

A committee was then appointed consisting of one representative of each of the above organizations to draft a "Skeleton Constitution," and also a Committee of Five on Rules. After considerable debate as to the most desirable mode of procedure, the Convention adjourned to give the above named committees an opportunity to compile their reports.

OCTOBER 9TH: Meeting called to order with Geo. P. Gubbins in the chair, and M. P. Carrick, Acting Secretary.

All delegates being present, the report of the Committee on Rules was adopted. A resolution was then introduced by the Delegates representing the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, on account of the many rumors that have been circulated in the past and also at present, "that this movement was inaugurated by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, for the purpose of antagonizing the A. F. of L., and the N. B. T. C."

Your Committee, believing that our organization has been subjected to unjust criticism, submitted the following resolution to the Convention, defining our position in this joint movement, and the same was unanimously adopted:

"RESOLUTION.

"WHEREAS, Ever since the formal conference of the Structural Building Trades, held in this city August 26, 1903, representatives of organized labor outside of the building trades have claimed and openly expressed their opinion that this body was being formed in opposition and antagonistic to the American Federation of Labor, and the National Building Trades Council, and

"Whereas, It has been claimed through the public press, that we were a rival body to those two great organizations, and that as soon as this body was perfected, the trades now connected with either the American Federation of Labor or the National Building Trades Council would withdraw therefrom; therefore be it

"Resolved, That we emphatically deny these statements as being unwarranted and uncalled for and not authorized by the representatives of the Structural Building Trades, who met in this city August 26th; and be it further

"Resolved, That this Convention go on record and hereby give an expression of their friendship toward the American Federation of Labor and the National Building Trades Council, and will give any assistance we possibly can to either body, to alleviate the conditions of affairs from which the wage-workers of the country are suffering at the present time."

The Committee on Constitution submitted the following report which was taken up and unanimously approved:

OBJECTS OF ALLIANCE.

"The objects of this alliance shall be the encouragement and formation of local central bodies of building tradesmen and the conferring of such power and authority of the several locals of this alliance as may advance the interests and welfare of the building trades; to adjust trade disputes along practical lines as they arise from time to time between affiliated unions and create a more harmonious feeling between the employer and employee.

"Recognizing the justice of local trade jurisdiction, we aim to guarantee to the various branches of the building trades industry control of such tributary trades as by right legally or technically belong to the main or basic trades in the building line, and to award to each associated national or international union rightful jurisdiction of new and improved methods of construction or installation of any division or subdivision of existing established or basic trades.

"With a view of curtailing the effect of sympathetic strikes in this Alliance, it is intended to require all affiliated organizations to submit all grievances, whenever practicable, to this Alliance or its Board of Governors, and it is especially understood and agreed that all demands for increase in wages or other trade improvement shall be referred to this Alliance or its Board of Governors for general approval, but such approval must be solicited by the affiliated national or international unions."

"PREAMBLE.

"Recognizing the necessity of combined and co-operative action, to safeguard the interests of the building trades to the end that each integral part shall partake of the advantage of uniform hours, wages and conditions, and in order to form a closer combination of our collective interests, that we may obviate the necessity of removing from disinterested parties the management of distinately building trade affairs, and to better protect the autonomy of the international trades unions employed on structural building work, we have adopted and subscribed to the following declaration of principles:

"1. The establishment of local and international boards of arbitration to settle disputes as they arise, without having to resort to strikes.

"2. When necessary, to give international sympathetic support to all trades affiliated where local boards fail in their efforts to adjust difficulties.

"3. To safeguard, protect and watch over the interests of the members of the organization affiliated.

"4. To protect the autonomy of the several trades represented.

"5. To keep agreements inviolate.

"6. To avoid and discourage strikes, if possible, and to prevent internal strife and friction in the building trades industry and substitute arbitration to settle trade disputes.

"7. To oppose the foundation of dual and rival bodies; demand their complete annihilation and to assist only such unions as are affiliated with their respective national or international union, conforming to this declaration of principles.

"8. To encourage and maintain fraternal relations with existing recognized central bodies, and to emphasize the necessity of centralization of organized wage-earners."

Realizing the impossibility of perfecting a Constitution in full to suit the needs of the many organizations affiliated, the Convention decided to refer the matter of building up the temporary Constitution as submitted and approved to a committee of three, consisting of Brother M. P. Carrick, Brother J. W. Spencer and Brother T. M. Guerin. It was agreed that this Committee should proceed to Lafayette to compile the same and submit it to the Board of Governors, consisting of one representative of each national or international association, and upon its meeting with their approval, to be further referred to each national or international union for their final consideration and approval.

Realizing that some expense would be entailed for printing, etc., the representatives of all organizations affiliated agreed to bear their pro ratio of all bills incurred in this work, which will be submitted when the labors of the aforesaid committee are completed and the Constitution placed in the hands of the national or international organizations.

Your committee, after giving the objects and principles of the Alliance the most thoughtful consideration and study, feel that if all national and international organizations affiliated with same, will give it their conservative and best support, and enter into the perfecting of it, it will be the most beneficial and permanent institution ever launched in the trade and labor movement—beneficial not only to the national or international unions, but to the individual member of the building trades industry, as it will be a preventive to the internal strife in our different trades which for the last 20 years have been gnawing at the heart-strings of every honest trade unionist. It will be the means of fewer strikes, and more successful ones; it will be a safeguard that each national and international union will have to protect them from what has crept into the movement—that of dishonest representatives. It will also be a power to keep agreements inviolate, both by the employer and the journeyman; it will curb over-ambitious men who would divide our several trades into small bodies, in order to secure or retain positions at the cost of the wage-worker without results to the rank and file who have been led to believe that it was for their best interests to be separated from the basic trade of their calling. True, it will take some prestige from some of the institutions now in existence, but will put in place of that prestige actual results that our local unions pay for now, but do not receive. It will educate and elevate our members to a higher standard of skill and efficiency and create a more brotherly feeling among the members of the different trades employed in the construction of a building, which have not existed under our former system of affiliation.

We feel, and are convinced, that neither the A. F. of L. nor the N. B. T. C. are capable of rendering the assistance to the mechanics of the building trades through their form of organization that would meet the many wants of our members, as both bodies are of such a nature that it is not within their province to give the direct support needed to our members.

We feel that should our members allow this opportunity to pass without affiliating with the Structural Building Trades Alliance at this time, it will leave the gap open for men who have not the interests of the wage-worker at heart, and give them an opportunity to fill that gap with men who are devoid of principle and honor and worthy of only scorn and contempt of the fellow-men.

This being the case, we pray that you use your good offices as General President to have our local unions accept membership in this alliance, in order that we may be in position to decide our trade rights among mechanics who are familiar with the building industry.

A Memorable Gathering.

The Indianapolis representative of the Whitehead Hoag Company, of Newark, N. J., learning of the presence of the national officials of the building trades, then in session in Indianapolis for the purpose of launching the now established Structural Building Trades Alliance, on October 8th tendered them and the National Executive Board of the United Mine Workers a banquet at the German House. The occasion, although one for mere enjoyment, was of great significance to the labor movement and unique in its kind.

There were sixty guests present, representing the Brotherhood of Painters and Paperhangers, Bricklayers and Masons, Plumbers, Gas, Steam and Hot Water Fitters, Structural Iron Workers, Plasterers, Hod Carriers and Building Laborers, Hoisting and Portable Engineers, Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, the Wood Workers and Barbers. The Executive Board of the Mine Workers was present in full force, accompanied by their General President, John Mitchell, their General Secretary-Treasurer, W. B. Wilson and S. M. Sexton, editor Mine Workers' Journal. A general exchange of views on the most vital labor topics took place after the feasting, the numerous speakers paying due tribute to the host, Mr. Eli Hirshfield, for his hospitality and respect shown to organized labor. The gathering was a memorable one and a very pleasant affair, long to be remembered by all participants.

Union of Am. Woodworkers Unlawfully Chartered and Scabbing.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

In this town of Peru, Ill., we have to saw wood with a so-called union affiliated with the Amalgamated Wood Workers. Said union was organized at the solicitation and desire of the mill firm of W. H. Maze & Co., in order to get cheap labor and because our union demanded eight hours' work and 38 cents an hour. In compliance with the firm's request, T. I. Kidd sent an organizer here who organized six men over eighteen years of age and six or seven boys from fourteen to sixteen years old. Now, the constitution of the Amalgamated Wood Workers provides that not less than ten men over eighteen years of age may obtain a charter. T. I. Kidd, however, in open violation of their constitution, granted a charter to this newly formed union of but six men over eighteen years of age. On these grounds our Central Body here rejected the application for representation of this employers' union and refused to seat their delegates. They are not making any fuss about their rejection, either, knowing full well that they are scabbing, and I should think that if the American Federation of Labor should continue to uphold and foster an organization that is subserving the employers' interests and scabbing on our U. B., it will be time for the building trades to keep house for themselves.

Yours fraternally,
JOHN HENKEL, R. S.

A Rebuke to Sam. Gompers.

The subjoined is a copy of a letter addressed to Samuel Gompers, President A. F. of L., by Brother A. E. Randall of L. U. 898, Bay City, Mich., in reply to a letter informing him of his appointment as a local organizer of the A. F. of L.

MR. SAMUEL GOMPERS, PRESIDENT,

A. F. OF L., WASHINGTON, D. C.

DEAR SIR—Find inclosed my commission as local organizer. You understand that I am a member of L. U. 898, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and I am a loyal member of that body, therefore can not accept a commission as organizer from a body that is unfair to them, which I consider you have been in connection with the trouble between the U. B. and the Amalgamated Wood Workers.

I consider the action of your body and yourself in this matter to be (at least) the opposite of unionism, and hope that unless you change your tactics the U. B. will see fit to withdraw their support from your body to the tune of $835.00 per month until such time as you can give us justice.

A. E. RANDALL.

Expulsions.

Ole Iveson has been expelled from L. U. 1319, Albuquerque, N. M., for stealing tools from his fellow-men and selling them.

Walter Ames, a member of L. U. 1456, Spartansburg, S. C., has been expelled by the local union for misappropriation of funds.

H. C. Ayres, formerly treasurer of L. U. 40, Kingsbridge, N. Y., has been expelled for embezzling funds belonging to the local union.

Brooklyn Federation of Labor.

HEADQUARTERS LABOR LYCEUM,
MYRTLE AND WILLOUGHBY AVES.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., October, 1903.

To all National and International Bodies
Affiliated With the A. F. of L., Greeting:

The Convention of the American Federation of Labor is near at hand and among the many questions of interest to the wage-workers of the country that will be considered at that gathering, there will be one of importance that we would like to have the delegation from your honorable body to the said Convention in Boston, pay special attention to.

The question of jurisdiction of the different branches of one industry will likely be an interesting discussion at that great Congress of Labor. In our locality we have had for the past two years two rival organizations, each claiming jurisdiction over separate branches of the same trade, which has caused hard feelings and considerable demoralization. If more solidarity among the intelligent workers would prevail, friction of such nature would find no ground to exist.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, which is represented in this body, has been elevating the conditions of Cabinetmakers, Stair-builders, Framers, Carpenters, Millwrights, Millmen, etc. Through their efforts the Eight-Hour workday has been secured and the Saturday half-holiday established. They have promoted Trades Union principles in their line of trade all over the country, and have helped to better the conditions of all wage-workers accordingly. They now have a rival organization, which is working in direct opposition to the advancement of Trades Unionism, and particularly the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, by offering to the employers to furnish men who will work longer hours for less wages in case trouble arises with the Local Unions of the United Brotherhood. By the use of such miserable tactics as these, the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union has endeavored to increase their membership and foist themselves on the Labor world as Trades Unionists.

They have put forth the claim that they have jurisdiction over all inside men—Cabinetmakers, Millmen, etc. Let us lay aside for the time being, the wrong done to the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and especially to the many thousands of men following the occupations of Cabinet-maker, Bench and Machine Hand, under the protection of the United Brotherhood, and study the matter from another point of view.

If it is advisable to separate the Cabinetmakers and Mill Hands from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and relinquish jurisdiction over them in favor of the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union, then it is equally as advisable to separate the filler and binder stripper, the bunch maker, and cigar roller and the packers from the Cigar Makers' International Union; or to separate the Linotype Operator from the International Typographical Union, and the Cracker, Biscuit, Cake and Bread Baker from the Bakers' International Union. Let us separate the Cloak, the Coat, the Pants, the Vest makers, etc., from the United Garment Workers' Union, and let each of those branches form a little National body of their own, and the result will be controversies, frictions and complete demoralization.

Jurisdiction over all workers in wood, whether engaged in the preparation of same, should be vested in one organization. The men engaged in wood work should therefore be united under one head. It does not make a trifle of difference to us whether the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union shall have jurisdiction, or whether the same be awarded to the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, but we think that the latter organization is entitled to supreme control on account of their numerous battles to advance the interests, not only of their own members, but of all organized workers—being the organization selected by the American Federation of Labor to make a National fight for the Eight-Hour day in 1890—as against the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union, whose sole aim of late, right in our own vicinity, has been to tear down the good work already accomplished by the representatives of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, by furnishing men to work Nine Hours per day, where the members of the United Brotherhood have enjoyed the Eight-Hour day for more than two years past.

What we want, and desire your organization to do, is to instruct your delegates to the Twenty-third Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor, at Boston, Mass., to vote and work in favor of one organization having control and jurisdiction over the wood working industry. We believe that will be the only manner in which the present jurisdiction fights can be settled and PEACE and PROGRESS secured for the members of all Trades Unions.

Yours fraternally,

AUG. JOOS, Secretary.

A Voice on Attitude of A. F. of L. Executive Council Toward the U. B. of C. and J.

The Houston (Tex.) Labor Journal, in its issue of October 10, 1903, says the following on the attitude of the A. F. of L. Executive Council towards the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners in their controversy with Amalgamated Wood Workers:

Considerable interest has been aroused among the members by the attitude of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. in the controversy between the Amalgamated Wood Workers and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters.

The carpenters' organization has grown during the last two or three years until it has become the largest organization of skilled mechanics in the world, and its numerical strength is not its only glory. There are some of the most brilliant men in the labor movement among the carpenters. The discipline among the membership is excellent. There is an abiding faith among the carpenters of America in the future of their organization and to the unprejudiced mind it should seem that the U. B. has a destiny as grand as any labor union in existence.

How the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. can defend their action in turning down such an organization as the U. B. of Carpenters and endeavoring to foist upon the labor movement in such a way an organization like the Amalgamated Wood Workers is mystifying.

The following letter will show how well the U. B. stood with the A. F. of L. in years gone by.

This letter, written thirteen years ago, shows the advanced position accorded the Carpenters' Brotherhood by the A. F. of L. at that time.

HEADQUARTERS AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR.

President, Samuel Gompers, 21 Clinton Place, New York City.

March 20, 1890.

To the General Secretary, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, 124 N. Ninth St., Philadelphia, Pa.:

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER—Pursuant to instruction from the Boston Convention of The American Federation of Labor, to the Executive Council, to select a trade to make a demand for the eight-hour workday May 1, 1890, I beg to inform you that at the meeting of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. held in the city of New York, March 17, 1890, the following resolutions were adopted upon this question:

“Resolved, That we hereby select the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America to make the movement for eight hours as a day's work on May 1, 1890, and will sustain them in such localities as the Executive Board of the said organization may select to make the movement; and next after them we will sustain the United Mine Workers of America in making a movement to establish the eight-hour workday on such date as the executive officers may select as most advantageous to the interests of their trade. Then we will next select and sustain each and every trade in continuous succession, as rapidly as they can perfect their organizations and prepare to make the demand.”

Permit me, dear sir, on behalf of the American Federation of Labor, to congratulate your grand brotherhood upon the proud distinction imparted, conveyed and implied in being chosen as the best disciplined, appropriate and determined to lead the movement for a reduction in the hours of labor to eight per day.

There is no doubt in my mind that few of the historians of the great events in the history of the developments of our people, will accord a higher place of honor and distinction than to the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Sincerely hoping and expecting that success may crown our efforts and that hereafter the wage workers may be placed upon the more advantageous ground of the eight-hour workday, so that all may be prepared for the great struggles yet in store to ameliorate the condition of the working classes.

Fraternally yours,

(Signed) SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President American Federation of Labor.

Child Labor and Tramps.

Miss Jane Addams, of Hull House, in Chicago, writing in Charities, a New York weekly review, says that child labor has a debilitating effect upon the mental and physical system that drives men to tramp life. Miss Addams says: “We have a municipal lodging-house in Chicago filled with tramps. In addition to housing them, an intelligent effort is made to get them into regular industry. A physician in attendance makes a careful examination of each man who comes to the lodging-house, and last winter we tried to see what connection could be genuinely established between premature labor and worn-out men. It is surprising to find how many of them are tired to death of monotonous labor and begin to tramp in order to get away from it, as a business man goes to the woods because he is worn out with the stress of business life. This inordinate desire to get away from work seems to be connected with the fact that the men have started to work very early before they had the physique to stand up to it, or the mental vigor with which to overcome its difficulties, or the moral stamina which makes a man stick to his work whether he likes it or not. But we can not demand any of these things from a growing boy. They are all traits of the adult. A boy is naturally restless—his determination easily breaks down and he runs away. At least this seems to be true of many of the men who come to the lodging house. I recall a man who had begun to work in a textile mill quite below the present legal age in New England, and who had worked hard for sixteen years. I give the words as he gave them: “At last I was sick in bed for two or three days with a fever and when I crawled out, I made up my mind that I would rather go to hell than go back to that mill.” Whether he considered Chicago an equivalent for that I do not know, but he certainly tramped to Chicago, and has been tramping for four years. He does not steal. He works in the summer and wanders about the rest of the year getting something to do when he can, but the suggestion of a factory throws him into a panic and quickly causes him to disappear from the lodging house. The physician has made a diagnosis of general debility. The man is not fit for steady work. He has been whipped in the battle of life, and is spent prematurely because he began prematurely.

“What does this mean? That the young can not stand up to the grind of factory life; that they break down under it, and that we have no right to increase the list of paupers—of those who must be cared for by the municipal and State agencies because when they are still immature and undeveloped they are subjected to a tremendous pressure.”

The Free Contract Theory.

BY HAL SCRIVER.

IN THE October number of this magazine I wrote at some length on the anomalies of the legal theory of employers' liability. I showed that at every point the law operated against the workingman, so that—quite apart from the employers' advantage in being able to employ the ablest counsel and bear the expense of long litigation—even supposing the workingman plaintiff to have equally good counsel and the court proceeding to be prompt and inexpensive, still the chances are overwhelmingly against a workingman injured at his task getting any damages from his employer. This legal theory, I showed, is so complete, so logical, and so diabolically ingenious, that one might suppose it to be the deliberate work of a single mind, that some learned lawyer had, at some time in the past, been commissioned by the employing class to work out a system for the express purpose of guarding the employers' interest, and that this system had been adopted en bloc, once and for all. Yet this is not the case. Like many another legal theory or ethical doctrine or social custom which has the appearance of having been specially devised to serve the purposes of the ruling class, this theory of "employers' irresponsibility"—as we would better call it—has been built up gradually and, on the whole, unconsciously by the bench and the bar.

We must not suppose that most lawyers and judges know that they are daily perverting law from the ends of justice in the interest of one class against the other and against society as a whole. Most lawyers and judges are nearly as conscientious and benevolent as carpenters or tailors or bakers or miners. If their systems of law, so far as they deal with the relations of employer and employed, are a frightful travesty of justice, the fact is to be explained by two considerations: First, that law is conservative, that it holds to precedents and traditions, that legal rules and theories long outlive the social conditions which originally produced and justified them; second, that most lawyers and nearly all judges and teachers of law either belong to the "upper" or capitalist class or, at least, associate chiefly with that class and accept its ideas, in virtual ignorance of the condition under which the people of the "lower" or proletarian class live and work, in ignorance of our needs, our wrongs, and our aspirations.

Even the capitalists, from whom the lawyers take their ideas of justice and of policy, are not necessarily cruel or insincere; they live in another world than ours, they look at the world with other eyes; they see things only as reflected in the ledger and the balance sheet, whereas, we see the world with our own eyes and feel it with our own hands. A workingman maimed by a machine is to us a fellow human being tortured with pain and reduced to helpless want; in the business man's eyes, he is only one item in the factory damaged, like a broken wheel or a twisted shaft, and the chief question is how to get rid of the useless piece of living machinery and put in a fresh one with the least expense to the business. The capitalist may be a fairly kind-hearted man and yet his acts may be hideously inhuman; he tests every thing by the criterion of profit, because it is by profits that he and his associates live; and whatever safeguards and increases profits, it seems to him must be the right thing, with which only ignorant fanatics or malicious "agitators" can find fault.

"We too often forget," says Herbert Spencer, "that not only is there 'a soul of goodness in things evil,' but very generally also a soul of truth in things erroneous." It is safe to say that there is no wide-spread and long-accepted falsehood, however mischievous its effects, that has not, at some time in the past, been founded in truth and served some useful purpose for society.

So it is with the legal theory we are discussing. Utterly false to facts and contradictory to justice and injurious to humanity as it is today, it was once, at least, approximately true.

We have seen that this theory of law, with all its astonishing conclusions, is deduced with perfect logic from the premise that the relation between employer and employed is a voluntary agreement between free and equal contracting parties, and just like the buying and selling of goods among merchants. Grant, that the workingman in accepting a job is a free and independent individual, dealing on equal terms with another individual, and making a voluntary contract for the sale of his labor—power—then it follows that he must take into account all the risks of the work—including the risk of injury by another workingman's negligence—and that when he closes the bargain and takes the job he voluntarily assumes all these risks and tacitly releases the employer in advance from all responsibility, and if he finds the risks to be greater than he had supposed—for instance, he discovers that the machinery is in bad order—he is free to quit the job and if he does not do so, he thereby voluntarily assumes this extra risk and tacitly releases the employer from responsibility therefor.

Once upon a time the premise was true. The majority of the people owned little farms or little shops and were economically independent; industry was carried on by simple methods and on a small scale and any man could, by a few months' moderate industry and frugality, provide himself with the things necessary to set him up as an independent producer. There were few great corporations or very rich men, few very poor except by their own fault, no large wage-working class; in proportion to the number of men seeking employment as wage-workers, the number of competing employers was very large, and there was no permanent "array of the unemployed." That in fact as well as in law, in economic opportunity as well as in legal right, men were approximately equal and the relation between employer and employed was really a free contract. In the face of such facts, the legal theory we have described was not very unjust.

How greatly the state of affairs has changed, the average workingman knows from experience. The actual relations of employer and employed in the present stage of development were vividly set forth in the brutal remark of Henry C. Frick, when asked, at the beginning of the Homestead strike, how he thought it would end. Taking a dollar from his pocket, he said: "If I lay that dollar on the shelf and leave it there a month, when I come back I have a dollar on the shelf; if you put a workingman on the shelf for a month, you will come back and find a skeleton."

As the Stuffed Prophet used to say: "It is a condition and not a theory that confronts us." The condition that confronts us is this: A large and increasing proportion of the people have no means to live by except the sale of their labor-power; there is always a large number of men willing to work and competing for jobs; labor-power, unlike other commodities, can not be stored up or held back from the market; every day's employment the workingman loses, he loses forever; competition among the workers keeps wages so low and the restriction of competition among capitalists keeps prices so high, that for the majority of the working people a week's unemployment brings them face to face with actual want.

When the workman hunting a job and the capitalist's agent looking for men meet in the labor market, then they do not meet as equals in economic strength, and no legal theories or Fourth-of-July phrases can compensate for their inequality. The employer has many applicants to choose from; if he waits a day or a week before hiring anybody, he does not feel the loss; even if his works are shut down for a time, the consequent rise in the price of his stock for sale partly balances the loss of prospective profits; at the worst, he fears only the loss of a part of an accumulated fortune. The workingman can not wait long; it is eviction and hunger and cold that he sees before him; he knows that if he does not take the job, some other man, a little poorer than he, will snap at it; and he knows that if he passes this job and spends time hunting another, he will find similar conditions everywhere—he may "go farther and fare worse." He and the employer both know that he is the one who is in need, who is begging for a chance to work. "Beggars can not be choosers." He takes the job offered, risk and all—not voluntarily, as the law pretends, but under the pressure of economic necessity.

The theory that the workingman is an absolutely free man, that he is the equal of the richest capitalist, that he chooses his employment voluntarily and quits or changes it at his pleasure, is a very sweet theory and makes nice material for campaign speeches and sermon on "The Dignity of Labor." The only trouble with it is that it is false. That is a serious fault with any theory. So long as as the American workingman accepts this false theory, concedes the premises from shrewd capitalist politicians and lawyers argue, so long he can not effectively protest against or resist the life-destroying conditions to which it logically leads. It is not only in this matter of the law of employers' liability that the theory of free contract operates against the working class; it is used also by the courts as a pretext for over-throwing labor laws; it is used by political agents of capitalists to dissuade workingmen from carrying their class interests into politics; but space forbids our discussing those points here. The simple fact remains that our passive acceptance of a false theory of freedom and equality serves to keep us in a position of servile inferiority and empty phrases about the dignity of labor soothe us into submission to the vilest indignities.

The bitterest truth is better than the most flattering falsehood. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make ye free." There is no easy road to the goal of Liberty, Equality and Fraternity and the first step on the true path is the recognition of the unpleasant fact that we are neither industrially free men nor equals in opportunity, nor capable, as so-called society is now organized, of living together like brothers.

Right View of Unions.

Every open-minded man who has come in personal contact with the better class of labor unionists and labor leaders has seen something very like a revelation. Even a little first-handed knowledge of union life shows that most of what is written about it is worse than nonsense, and that most of the criticism that is published is only an invitation to pig-headedness and to wrongdoing. To an angry union man or to one who has, or thinks he has, a grievance, the world is divided into two classes—the oppressed and the oppressors. When any one who speaks for the oppressors, or is suspected of speaking for them, thunders forth only threats and warnings, he adds fuel to the fire. Men were never managed in that way.

The right view to take of the unions is to regard them as machinery for the training of their members—for training in economic knowledge, in self-restraint, in the patriotic view of American industry. The strongest and wisest labor leaders so regard them. Primarily they are organizations for self-protection, and their fundamental purpose is to get power to fight. But if they are properly led they become great organizations for training men as well as for massing them.

So far, public opinion and public leaders have paid too little sympathetic attention to them. It may fairly be said that most industries and most communities so far have the kind of labor unions and the kind of labor leaders they deserve to have. They can be made instruments for the misguidance of men or for their larger and patriotic development, and the public will have itself to blame if they are misdirected.—World's Work.

TO DISTRICT AND LOCAL SECRETARIES.

As our list of Recording and Financial Secretaries will not appear in the December and January issues of The Carpenter, District and Local Secretaries are urgently requested to keep this issue on file. The list is published but once every three months. It will again appear in the February (1904) issue.

L'Union Ouvrière et la Grève

(Suite.)

Dans le Numéro précédent du CARPENTER nous parlions du moment à choisir pour aller en grève. Nous ne saurions pas assez insister sur l'importance de cette question. Serait-il de bon sens qu'un maçon, un briquetier se mette en grève vers le Noël, lorsque le froid, la neige et le mauvais temps rendent le travail à l'extérieur impossible? Nous avons vu des bijoutiers se mettre en grève au mois de Mai c'est à dire en pleine Morte saison quand il n'y avait rien à faire, quand il n'y avait pas de commande, et les patrons ne demandèrent pas mieux que de réduire leurs frais. La bonne saison dans ce dernier métier est aux environs du Jour de l'an, c'est à dire dans la saison des Etrénnes, quand on achète des bijoux pour faire cadeaux à ses famille ou ses amis. Une fois le mois de Mars arrivé, les bijoutiers n'ont guère d'occupation jusqu'au mois de Septembre. La moitié de ces ouvriers est donc mis à pied, l'autre moitié passe le temps tant bien que mal. Poser une demande aux patrons de ce métier dans ces conditions. C'est s'assurer d'avance un refus formel. Nous avons comme un cas semblable dans la fabrication de la boîte de montre. Les ouvriers de cette partie se sont mis en grève au mois de mai, et ils ont perdu une cause juste qui eût été gagnée haut la main, si les demandes furent formulées au mois d'octobre. Voyez vous un charpentier demander une augmentation de salaire à son patron, lorsque ce dernier vient de terminer une construction, sans avoir d'autres travaux en vue? Croyez vous la chose bien possible à obtenir, si vous, demandez une réduction des heures de travail, disons de 9 heures par jour à 8 heures si le patron ne peut même pas vous en accorder 4 par jour? Ce n'est donc pas assez d'être bien organisé, encore faut-il bien choisir le bon moment.

Une autre, très grande faute que la chambre syndicale commet souvent, c'est de dire à l'avance au capital que l'on se prépare à une lutte avec lui. Un vieux proverbe français dit, "Un homme prevenue en vaut deux."- Voilà deux mois bientôt que dans l'Etat de New Jersey nous avons l'Épée de Damoclès suspendu sur notre tête.

La Compagnie des voitures trolley tirannisait si bien ses hommes, que ces derniers décidèrent que le meilleur moyen de régler la chose serait une bonne grève. Mais les hommes sages, conservateurs, comme disent les journeaux capitalistes, essayèrent de transiger. On y envoya des Comités il y eut des conférences avec les officiers de la Compagnie, on échangea des promesses de part et d'autre, et en fin de compte, la Compagnie n'entrant au qu'une de ses promesses, la grève fut mise à un vote général. Cette question resta en suspend pendant deux mois. En attendant, la Compagnie engagea plusieurs centaines d'hommes nouveaux, elle fit bâtir des hangars, établit des cuisines pour nourrir les Scabs, si le besoin se ferait sentir, et travailla si bien l'opinion publique, que police, députés, sheriffs et milice étaient préparés à l'avance. Quoi d'étonnant, si après tout cela les membres sages et conservateurs prêchèrent contre une grève qui fut perdue à l'avance? N'avait-ils pas fait tout ce qu'ils pouvaient, pour arriver à ce résultat? Voyez vous une armée en temps de guerre, envoyer ses éclaireurs prévenir l'ennemi, et lui dire quand l'armée adverse s'approche, bien armée et par quel chemin qu'elle va s'approcher? Voilà pourtant bien le cas, quand une corporation d'ouvriers litige trop longtemps avant d'entrer en lutte. Résumons donc: Evitez la grève le plus longtemps possible; n'en parlez jamais, n'y pensez que quand vous serez prêt à foudre sur l'ennemi, et pour ce faire, soyez assuré de la discipline de vos membres. Choisissez le bon moment, et ayez votre caisse bien garnie.

Mais, si toutes ces conditions se réunissent, c'est à dire que vos patrons sauront qu'au moins les deux tiers des hommes du métier appartiennent à l'Union, que cette dernière a un fond de réserve suffisant pour engager la lutte et nourrir ses grévistes, que la chambre syndicale saura choisir le bon moment, où le Capital engagé ne saurait souffrir aucun délai, vous aurez toutes les chances pour gagner une victoire éclatante. Voici le bon côté de la chose; soyez bien préparé, comme nous le disons plus haut, et Mrss les patrons le sauront aussi bien que vous, et ne risqueront pas d'être battus. La grève sera gagnée avant d'avoir commencé.

Si, au contraire une lutte avec le capital est engagée, et la chambre syndicale omet une ou toutes les conditions citées plus haut, la grève sera perdue à l'avance, et il prendra des années de temps avant d'avoir réparé le mal fait à l'organisation.

N'oublions donc pas les conditions indispensables pour gagner la victoire: l'Union doit au moins contrôler les deux tiers des hommes du métier, elle doit avoir un bon fond de réserve pour nourrir les grévistes, et elle doit avant tout bien choisir le moment d'engager la lutte.

Ayez tout cela, et vous n'aurez pas de grève, on ne refuse rien à qui est assez fort pour se prendre ce qu'il demande.

ALPHONSE H. HENRYOT.

Le Mouvement Syndical en France.

PAR GEORGES GUÉNARD, PARIS.

LA GRÈVE D'HENNEBONT.

Il me reste bien peu de place pour parler comme il conviendrait de la grève d'Hennebont, dont le développement menaçait pendant quelque temps de tourner au tragique. L'origine de ce mouvement gréviste remonte au 2 juillet, date à laquelle quelques ouvriers (les chauffeurs-gaziers de la Compagnie des Cirages français) allèrent se plaindre à leur syndicat d'être astreint à un travail supplémentaire non payé. Une centaine d'autres travailleurs de la même Compagnie, dont le salaire quotidien n'est que de 1^{fr}75 par jour, joignèrent leurs réclamations à celles des gaziers et demandèrent une augmentation de 0^{fr}50 par jour. Comme on voit, leurs prétentions étaient des plus modestes, aussi le syndicat décida-t-il de les appuyer et les transmit-il à la Compagnie. Cette dernière répondit par un refus net et tranchant. La grève fut immédiatement déclarée et, par esprit de solidarité, tous les autres travailleurs employés soit à la fabrication des cirages soit aux forges d'Hennebont qui appartiennent à la même société, quittèrent les ateliers. Le nombre des grévistes était ainsi porté à 1,800.

Conformément à la loi, le bureau syndical demanda à ce que le conflit fut soumis à l'arbitrage du juge de paix, mais la Société des Cirages français repoussa non seulement cet arbitrage, mais refusa même d'entamer aucun pour parler avec les représentants des ouvriers pour essayer de concilier le différent. Pendant trois semaines la grève se déroula d'une façon calme et sans incidents notables, mais les mesures de police prises par l'autorité administrative pour parer aux troubles possibles, ne tardèrent pas au contraire à les faire naître.

Des arrestations opérées au cours de différentes manifestations, notamment celle d'un délégué de la Fédération des métallurgistes, aigriront les esprits et poussèrent au paroxysme la colère des ouvriers. Les soldats chargèrent à différentes reprises et les ouvriers ripostèrent avec des pierres. De part et d'autre il y eut des blessés. Mais où le conflit menaçait de devenir aigu ce fut à Lorient, ville voisine d'Hennebont, où les ouvriers arrêtés furent conduits. Une grande effervescence se déclara chez les travailleurs; ceux de l'arsenal parlèrent de faire cause commune avec les grévistes. De violentes bagarres s'y déroulèrent; la prison fut un moment assiégée et ses portes faillirent céder sous les coups des assaillants, le tribunal lui-même fut un moment entouré et sérieusement menacé. Mais, comme toujours, la troupe eut le dernier mot et les abords du tribunal purent être dégagés.

Voyant la tournure menaçante que prenaient les événements, quelques hauts personnages, notamment le ministre de l'intérieur, s'interposèrent entre les grévistes et la Compagnie des Cirages français, et, le 8 août, le conflit prenait fin par un compromis accepté par les ouvriers, lequel stipulait qu'une augmentation de 0^{fr}25 par jour serait accordée aux grévistes.

On voit, par ce qui précède, à quels efforts sont astreints les travailleurs français pour obtenir des résultats plus que modestes.

L'histoire du développement de l'organisation ouvrière en France pendant les deux derniers siècles, la description des divers modes qu'elle dut adopter sous la pression des circonstances tant politiques qu'économiques avant d'arriver à sa forme actuelle, ne manqueraient certainement pas d'intérêt pour mes lecteurs de l'autre côté de l'Atlantique; mais la place qui m'est réservée ici ne me permet malheureusement pas de l'esquisser même à grands traits. L'actualité à déjà peine à se mouvoir dans le cadre restreint de deux ou trois colonnes du CARPENTER et ne saurait accepter de voir sa part réduite encore par un retour vers le passé. Il ne m'en faut pas moins, pour l'intelligence de ce qui va suivre, expliquer en quoi et comment le mouvement syndical français proprement dit, tel que nous le concevons aujourd'hui, est de création relativement récente.

À la fin du dix-huitième siècle, patrons et ouvriers, producteurs et consommateurs souffraient depuis longtemps du régime imposé aux corporations de métiers. Pour couper court aux abus qui en découlaient, la Révolution proclama la liberté du travail, et une des premières lois de la Convention (14-17 juin 1791) interdit formellement les associations et réunions de personnes de même profession. Cette prohibition frappait jusqu'aux sociétés destinées à procurer des secours aux malades et aux chômeurs. Cependant sur ce dernier point une certaine tolérance fut par la suite laissée aux ouvriers. Comme ils n'avaient à leur disposition que cet unique moyen pour se grouper, les travailleurs s'empressèrent d'y recourir, dans les grandes villes surtout. Sous le couvert de la mutualité, de véritables associations de résistance ne tardèrent pas à fonctionner chez les corporations les plus avancées. Mais ce ne fut guère qu'à partir de 1860 qu'ils s'hardirent à créer quelques syndicats sous la forme que nous leur connaissons de nos jours. Consacrant le fait acquis, un rapport du ministre de l'intérieur annonçait, huit ans plus tard, que les syndicats ouvriers jouiraient dorénavant de la tolérance accordée aux syndicats patronaux. Les événements de 1870-71 marquèrent inévitablement un temps d'arrêt dans l'organisation ouvrière; mais, sous l'influence des Expositions internationales, où les délégués français prirent contact avec leurs frères étrangers, elle reprit de plus belle, et quand en 1884 le Parlement vota la loi qui régit actuellement les syndicats professionnels, on pouvait évaluer à environ 500 le nombre de ces derniers avec 60,000 adhérents. C'est à cette date qu'il faut placer la naissance du mouvement syndical actuel, qui, depuis lors, n'a cessé d'avancer à pas de géant.

Leur existence légale assurée, les syndicats ouvriers ne tardèrent pas, en effet, à se développer rapidement, bien qu'au début l'accueil réservé à la loi fut loin d'être chaleureux, certains la considérant comme policière et tout au plus bonne à ralentir la marche en avant du prolétariat. Toujours est-il qu'en 1885 le nombre des syndicats qui s'étaient soumis aux prescriptions de la loi n'était que de 221; il passa à 280 en 1886, à 501 en 1887, à 725 en 1888, à 821 en 1889 et à 1,006 en 1890. Ou 31 décembre 1901, le nombre des syndicats ouvriers s'élevait à 3,680 avec 614,204 adhérents. Comme on le voit, la progression de l'organisation ouvrière a été considérable et la loi de 1884 n'a pas été funeste à son développement ainsi qu'on le craignait lors de sa promulgation.

Il nous reste maintenant à indiquer, d'après une récente publication officielle, qu'elle était la situation des groupements professionnels au 1 janvier 1903. À cette date, le nombre des syndicats ouvriers était porté à 3,934 avec un effectif total de 643,757 adhérents, accusant encore une importante augmentation sur les chiffres de l'année précédente. La répartition des syndicats et de leurs membres par groupes professionnels donne les résultats suivants: pour l'agriculture (non compris les syndicats agricoles proprement dits au nombre de 2,433 comptant 598,834 membres), forêts, pêche et élevage on trouve 145 syndicats avec 15,592 syndiqués représentant 0.46 p. de la population ouvrière totale de cette catégorie; pour les mines, 69 syndicats, 68,900 syndiqués (44.28 p.); pour les carrières 19 syndicats, 4,590 syndiqués (8.25 p.); pour l'alimentation, 289 syndicats, 40,411 syndiqués (6.72 p.); pour les produits chimiques, 96 syndicats, 15,091 syndiqués (14.22 p.); pour les industries polygraphiques, 297 syndicats, 21,391 syndiqués (17.71 p.); pour les cuirs et peaux, 232 syndicats, 22,179 syndiqués (13.12 p.); pour les industries textiles, 285 syndicats, 59,691 syndiqués (9.36 p.); pour le travail des étoffes, 222 syndicats, 23,945 syndiqués (5.48 p.); pour les industries du bois, 261 syndicats, 19,015 syndiqués (8.45 p.); pour le travail des métaux, 427 syndicats, 87,692 syndiqués (17.84 p.); pour le travail des terres et des pierres, 100 syndicats, 12,239 syndiqués (8.40 p.); pour le bâtiment, 740 syndicats, 58,779 syndiqués (11.29 p.); pour les transports et la manutention, 584 syndicats, 176,356 syndiqués (11.40 p.); et pour les soins personnels et domestiques, 56 syndicats, 9,979 syndiqués (1.24 p.).

C'est donc chez les mineurs et dans les industries des métaux et polygraphiques que l'organisation syndicale a atteint le plus grand développement, quant au nombre tout au moins. Par contre, les travailleurs agricoles, les domestiques, les ouvriers du vêtement et de l'alimentation sont les plus en retard. Mais étant donné l'état des esprits et les efforts constants qui sont tentés pour amener les ouvriers à se grouper, il est à prévoir que, d'ici peu, de notables modifications devront être apportées à ce tableau.

Sympathie-Strikes.

Sympathie-Strikes sind dem Unternehmertum immer schon ein Dorn im Auge gewesen, und wenn diese Herren gegenwärtig so scharf dagegen in's Feld ziehen und in den Verträgen mit ihren Arbeitern eine Klausel vorsehen haben möchten, die obige verbietet, so darf uns dies nicht Wunder nehmen. Das solidarische Handeln der organisierten Arbeiter, das in einem Sympathie-Strike gipfelt, paßt den Unternehmern nicht in den Kram. Sie möchten letztere abgeschafft sehen, wohl wissend, daß ein Gewerk, wenn auf sich allein angewiesen, ihren Annahmen nicht den nötigen Widerstand entgegenzusetzen kann und den Wünschen der Ausbeuter gefügiger gemacht wird. Wir organisierte Arbeiter haben ja schon unzählige Male erklärt, daß uns Strikes überhaupt unerwünscht sind, daß wir sie, wo nur immer möglich, zu vermeiden suchen und nur, wenn alle Versuche, herrschende Differenzen auf gutlichem Wege beizulegen, gescheitert sind, als äußerstes Mittel, unsere gerechten Forderungen durchzusetzen, zum Ausstände greifen. Umso mehr suchen wir Sympathie-Strikes zu vermeiden, bei denen es sich nicht um Beschwerden über unsere eigenen Arbeitsverhältnisse, sondern um andere Gewerke berührende Fragen handelt. Und doch hieße es, alle unsere Grundzüge auf den Kopf stellen, wollten wir uns des Rechtes des Eintretens in einen Sympathie-Strike in irgend einer Weise begeben.

Eine Entäußerung dieses Rechtes hieße unserem Lösungsworte: „Einer für Alle und Alle für Einen“ den Rücken kehren. Wir müßten die längst erkannte Wahrheit, daß die Interessen der Lohnarbeiter aller Berufszweige identisch sind und diese daher solidarisch handeln müssen, verleugnen, und unser altes Axiom: „Vereinigt sind wir schwach, vereint aber stark und mächtig“, verwerfen.

Welchen Zweck würden gemischte lokale oder nationale Centralkörper überhaupt noch haben, wenn wir solidarisch handeln mit den Arbeitern anderer Gewerke entsagen und ihnen in ihren Kämpfen für bessere Arbeitsbedingungen die oftmals einzig wirkliche Hilfe, das Eintreten in einen Sympathie-Strike, verweigern würden?

Wenn die den Centralkörpern zugehörigen Gewerksorganisationen mit ihren Arbeitgebern einen Vertrag eingehen würden, welcher Sympathie-Strikes verbietet, so würden diese Körper, zu deren Aufbau wir Jahre der Mühe und Opfer verwendet haben, zu einfachen Debattir-Klubs herabsinken, oder sie müßten das Feld ihrer Thätigkeit ausschließlich auf Boycott-Verfahren oder auf politische Fragen beschränken. Letzteres wäre zwar nicht das Schlimmste, wenn die Vertreter in diesen Körperschaften von ihrem wahren Klasseninteresse beseelt und in der Beurteilung dieser Fragen von Klassenbewußtsein geleitet wären, was aber bis jetzt bekanntlich nur selten der Fall ist.

Die Gefahr, die Zugeständnisse an die Arbeitgeber in der Frage der Sympathie-Strikes für jedes einzelne Gewerk in sich bergen würden, ist besonders in die Augen springend, wenn man sich die Lage eines Gewerkes, nachdem solche Zugeständnisse gemacht worden sind, vergegenwärtigt.

Wir sind längst darüber klar, daß jedes einzelne Gewerk des Bestandes anderer Gewerke bedarf, um der eigenen Sache zum Siege verhelfen zu können; auch unsere Brüderschaft war schon häufig in der Lage, Beistand von Außen anrufen zu müssen. Wenn wir uns also unseren Arbeitgebern gegenüber verpflichten, keine Sympathie-Strikes einzugehen, so können wir selbstverständlich von anderen Gewerken den Beistand nicht erwarten, dessen Gewährung wir ihnen unsererseits verweigern.

Die Frage der Sympathie-Strikes ist eine so tiefstehende, und eine Entäußerung des Rechtes, solche anzuordnen, können von so weittragenden und schlimmen Folgen begleitet sein, daß durch sie die ganze gewerkschaftliche Organisation in ihren Grundfesten erschüttert wird.

Das Unternehmertum bezeichnet das Anordnen eines Sympathie-Strikes gegen einen Arbeitgeber, der seinen Arbeitern keinen Grund zur Klage giebt und die Union-Regeln beobachtet, als eine Ungerechtigkeit und Ungeheuerlichkeit. Nun, wir geben zu, daß vom Standpunkte der Unternehmer aus betrachtet, diese Auffassung eine logische ist. Doch auch wir Arbeiter haben einen Standpunkt zu vertreten, und besonders in dieser Frage dürfen wir uns von der Ausbeuterlogik nicht irre führen lassen.

Das Gesetz der Selbsterhaltung schreibt uns Arbeitern vor, daß wir unseren Brüdern anderer Gewerke in ihren Kämpfen um ein menschenwürdigeres Dasein bis zum äußersten beistehen müssen, und wenn dadurch auch Unschuldige in Mitleidenschaft gezogen werden, so liegt dies an der heutigen verkehrten Gesellschaftsordnung, die wir nicht eingeführt haben, die den Arbeiter zum Paria stempelt und die ihm in seinem Streben nach günstigeren Lebensbedingungen schließlich keine andere Wahl übrig läßt, als dem Ausbeuter, dem Besitzer der Arbeitsmittel, sein einziges Besitztum, seine Arbeitskraft, zu verweigern, um Erfolg zu erzielen.

Bei dem Unternehmertum, das sich in seinem Konkurrenzkampfe gegenseitig zu zerfleischen gewohnt ist, das nur unter sich einig ist, wenn sich Gelegenheit bietet, immer noch mehr Profit aus den Arbeitern heraus zu pressen oder ihre Waarenpreise hinauf zu schrauben, findet selbstverständlich der unter den organisierten Arbeitern herrschende Geist der Brüderlichkeit, der sie zu selbstlosem Opferbringen und zu solidarischem Handeln anspornt, wie dies ein Sympathie-Strike erfordert, keine Würdigung.

Was auch immer die Arbeiter zur Wahrung ihrer Interessen unternehmen mögen, ist natürlicherweise den Interessen der Unternehmer zuwider und in deren Augen ungerecht. Wenn aber dieselben Handlungen von Arbeitgebern ausgehen, so sind sie recht und billig.

Die Unternehmer rotten sich zu Fabrikanten-Vereinigungen und Bürger-Vereinen (Citizens' Alliances) zusammen; sie bilden eine Strikekassette zur Unterstützung solcher Arbeitgeber, deren Arbeiter in den Ausstand getreten sind; sie schließen die Arbeiter ganzer Städte aus, weil sie sich ihren Bedingungen nicht unterwerfen wollen, wie in Omaha, Neb.; Norfolk, Va.; Denver, Col., und viele andere mehr. Dies sind Maßnahmen, die den Sympathie-Strikes so ähnlich sind, wie ein Ei dem anderen; sie sind aber gegen Arbeiter gerichtet und daher gerecht und in der Ordnung. Wenn die Minenbesitzer durch Lohnverkürzungen und andere Schikanen ihre Arbeiter zum Ausstände zwingen und dann, angeblich auf Grund des dadurch entstandenen Kohlenmangels, die Kohlenpreise erhöhen; wenn die Schlächter die Fleischpreise, die Zucker-Fabrikanten die Zuckerpreise erhöhen und so fort, unter denen alle Konsumenten, von denen die meisten an einem etwaigen Arbeiter-Konflikt gar keinen Antheil haben, leiden müssen, so ist dies nichts mehr und nichts weniger als ein Sympathie-Strike. Und zwar ist dies ein Sympathie-Strike auf Kosten der Arbeiter, weil sich Unternehmer durch Erhöhung ihrer eigenen Waarenpreise wieder schadlos halten können, während es auf Seiten der Arbeiter abermals harter Kämpfe bedarf, um ihre Löhne den erhöhten Preisen der Existenzmittel wieder anzupassen.

Wir haben in letzter Zeit wiederholt ausgeführt, daß gerade das vereinigte Vorgehen des Unternehmertums die Arbeiter zu festem Zusammenschließen ihrer Reihen und solidarischerem Handeln drängen werde, und wir sind auch heute noch der festen Zuversicht, daß dies geschieht, obgleich in einzelnen Fällen die Arbeiter, wie die Baugewerke in New York, bereits Verträge mit ihren Arbeitgebern eingegangen sind, welche eine Sympathie-Strikes verpönende Klausel ent-halten. Wir befürchten keinen Augenblick, daß sich die Masse der organisierten Arbeiter, trotz Drohungen und Einschüchterungen der Unternehmer, eine so wichtige und wichtige Waffe, wie es Sympathie-Strikes sind, entreißen lassen wird.

Was übrigens die New Yorker Vorgänge betrifft, so sind diese für das Große und Ganze nicht maßgebend, weil in keinem anderen Orte dieses Landes die Baugewerksorganisationen so zerfahren, ihre Vertreter so korrupt und das gegenseitige sich in den Rücken fallen so allgemein ist, als zu jener Zeit in New York. Diese traurigen Zustände haben sich die New Yorker Bau-Unternehmer einfach zu Nutzen gemacht, und die Arbeiter waren in Folge innerer Kämpfe so geschwächt, daß sie sich den Bedingungen ihrer Arbeitgeber, wenigstens momentan, unterwerfen mußten.

Der erfreuliche Gesinnungsumschwung unter den organisierten Backsteinlegern ist unter Anderem ein Beweis, daß wir in unseren oben erwähnten Ausführungen nicht fehlgegangen sind. Die Organisation der Backsteinleger war immer als eine der konservativsten bekannt; alle ihre Verträge mit ihren Arbeitgebern enthielten gegen Sympathie-Strikes gerichtete Bestimmungen; sie hat immer jeden engeren Anschluß an andere Gewerke abgewiesen. In den seltenen Fällen, wo sie mit letzteren solidarisch handelte, ging ihr Solidaritätsgefühl, sobald es zu einem Ausstände kam, in die Brüche. Diese selbe Organisation der Backsteinleger hat kürzlich den Anschluß an die American Federation of Labor in Erwägung gezogen und ein dahingehender Antrag wurde von ihrer letzten Convention nur mit sehr geringer Majorität verworfen. Ferner waren die Backsteinleger unter den eifrigsten Befürwortern der jüngst gegründeten Federation der Baugewerke und eines ihrer Mitglieder ist deren Präsident. Wir sehen also, daß sich auch in dieser Gewerkschaft die Einsicht Bahn gebrochen hat, daß sie isoliert und ohne die Sympathie und Unterstützung anderer Gewerke dem organisierten Unternehmertum nicht mehr Schach bieten kann. Dieser Gesinnungsumschwung ist gerade jetzt um so mehr zu begrüßen, wo das Unternehmertum die wirksamste und werthvollste Sympathiebeziehung eines Gewerkes für ein anderes in Acht und Bann erklärt hat, und wir hoffen, daß das gute Beispiel der Backsteinleger auch auf andere noch isoliert stehende Gewerksorganisationen eine günstige Wirkung ausüben wird.

Was den organisierten Arbeitern gegenwärtig Noth thut ist nicht Eindämmung ihrer Sympathie, sondern Sympathie-Erweiterung. Wir wollen uns ernstlich bemühen, alle Strikes zu vermeiden, aber wir dürfen an unserer Sympathie, die sich im Nothfalle in einem Sympathie-Strike äußert, nicht rütteln lassen, und Verträge, die Bestimmungen enthalten, welche diese ausschließt, entschieden zurückweisen.

Die Downey'sche Entscheidung und die Interessen der Amalgamated Woodworkers.

In seiner Entscheidung über die zwischen unserer Brüderschaft und den Amalgamated Woodworkers herrschenden Jurisdiktionsstreitigkeiten hat Schiedsrichter Downey bekanntlich den Woodworkers über die in Holzbearbeitungs-Fabriken und Bar und Cabinet-Shops beschäftigten Arbeiter Jurisdiktion zugesprochen. Das Aufstellen der in oben genannten Fabriken und Shops verfertigten Begleitungs-Gegenstände (trim work) und Bar- und Office-Einrichtungen fällt hingegen, laut der Downey'schen Entscheidung, den Carpenters zu.

Nachdem wir nun wiederholt nachgewiesen haben, daß unsere Brüderschaft in dieser Entscheidung vergewaltigt wird, weil sie unsere Gewerkschaftsinteressen untergräbt; weil sie die Holzarbeiter des Bauhauses in zwei Sek-tionen, in inside und outside Arbeiter, theilt, die doch absolut zusammen gehören; weil sie eine Aenderung des Namens unserer Organisation involvirt u. s. w., wollen wir heute den Beweis liefern, daß auch die Interessen der Mitglieder der Amalgamated Woodworkers durch die Downey'sche Entscheidung schwer geschädigt und letzteren eine Stellung zugewiesen ist, die ihnen fast jede Aussicht auf Verbesserung ihrer Arbeitsverhältnisse raubt und sie zur Ohnmacht verdammt.

Die Geschichte der organisierten Möbelarbeiter hat uns gelehrt, daß es für die Arbeiter in Werkstätten, wo Cabinet-, Bar- und Office-Einrichtungen hergestellt werden, eine äußerst schwierige Aufgabe ist, ohne die Sympathie und thatkräftige Unterstützung der Carpenters, welche die von den Fabrik- und Shop-Arbeitern verfertigten Gegenstände in den Gebäuden aufstellen, Annahmen der Arbeitgeber mit Erfolg abzuweisen oder Forderungen für günstigere Arbeitsbedingungen durchzusetzen.

Die bei den Am. Woodworkers heute üblichen Arbeitsregeln, im Vergleich mit den in unserer Brüderschaft eingeführten, die längeren Arbeitsstunden und bedeutend niedrigeren Löhne, sind ein sprechender Beweis für die richtige Kennzeichnung der Lage der Am. Woodworkers, in die sie durch ihre Zugehörigkeit zu einer von den Carpenters abgesonderten Organisation veretzt sind.

Die organisierten Möbelarbeiter beschlossen schon auf ihrer zweiten in Baltimore im Jahre 1874 abgehaltenen Convention, den alten Gebrauch und Unfug des Liefers des großen Werkzeuges abzuschaffen; aber erst 26 Jahre später, nachdem die New Yorker Möbelarbeiter zu unserer Brüderschaft übertreten waren, konnte diesem Gebrauche in New York ein Ende bereitet werden. Die New Yorker Möbelarbeiter waren bereits im Jahre 1872 zur Erringung des Achtstundentages in den Ausstand getreten, und trotz wiederholter Versuche und fast ununterbrochener, große Opfer erheischender Kämpfe, war es ihnen nicht gelungen, das ersehnte Ziel zu erreichen. Erst nach ihrem Anschlusse an unsere Brüderschaft, und mit Hilfe der Carpenter, konnte die achtstündige Arbeitszeit eingeführt werden. Ja, noch mehr—bei dem Uebertritte der ehemaligen Unions No. 7 und 38 (jetzt 309 und 476) zu unserer Brüderschaft im Jahre 1895 betrug deren Arbeitszeit 53 Stunden und der Minimallohn $17.00 per Woche. Verbunden mit den Carpenters und unter deren Beistand ist diese Arbeitszeit seitdem auf 44 Stunden per Woche reduziert und der Minimallohn auf $20.25 erhöht worden. In den Holzbearbeitungs-Fabriken des Bronx Borough und Mt. Vernon waren vor 1901 noch neun und sogar zehn Stunden die übliche tägliche Arbeitszeit und die Löhne betrugen von $8.00 bis $15.00 per Woche. Die Arbeiter dieser Fabriken wurden im Laufe der Jahre 1901 und 1902 unter der Jurisdiktion unserer Brüderschaft organisiert und die 44-stündige Arbeitszeit und ein Minimallohn von $18.00 per Woche eingeführt.

Ähnliche Erfolge haben jene Orte zu verzeichnen, in denen sich die Fabrik- und Shop-Arbeiter unserer Brüderschaft angeschlossen haben und sie nicht mehr von den Carpenters getrennt und in der Durchsetzung ihrer Forderungen an ihre Arbeitgeber nicht nur auf sich selbst angewiesen waren.

Nach Anführung obiger Thatfachen sollte es selbst jedem dem Holzarbeitergewerke Fernstehenden einleuchten, daß Fabrik- und Shop-Arbeiter, welche die Begleitungsgegenstände herstellen, und Carpenter, welche dieselben in den Gebäuden aufstellen, zusammen einer einzigen Organisation angehören müssen, wenn sie ihre Interessen verstehen und wahren wollen. Es sollte nach unseren Ausführungen ferner jedem unserem Gewerkschaftsfernstehenden klar werden, daß die Downey'sche Entscheidung die Fabrik- und Shop-Arbeiter einerseits und die Carpenters andererseits in zwei verschiedene Organisationen eintheilt, aller Vernunft, allen Erfahrungen, die wir in der gewerkschaftlichen Bewegung gemacht haben, zuwiderläuft, und sogar den Interessen der Mitglieder der Am. Woodworkers Sohn spricht, die, soweit sie an der Herstellung von Begleitungsgegenständen beschäftigt sind, dieselben Erfahrungen gemacht haben, wie ihre Kollegen in New York, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Philadelphia, St. Louis u. s. w.

Man könnte nun gegenüber unseren Ausführungen den Einwand erheben, daß die Am. Woodworkers durchaus nicht isoliert dastünden, da sie ja mit der American Federation of Labor affiliert und deren Unterstützung gewiß seien.—Nun, was die Unterstützung seitens der A. F. of L. anbetrifft, so ist es ja hinlänglich bekannt, daß letztere kaum wagen darf, über moralische Unterstützung eines bedrängten Gewerkes hinauszugreifen, und zwar aus dem einfachen Grunde, weil die mit ihr affilierten Organisationen, unsere Bruderschaft nicht ausgenommen, sich noch nicht zu ausreichendem solidarischem Handeln, das heißt zur Velaftung mit einer Strike tage im Interesse eines im Kampfe stehenden Gewerkes, herauschwingen können. Ebenso wenig hat die A. F. of L. gegenwärtig die Macht, Sympathie-Strikes anzuordnen, abgesehen davon, daß unsere Bruderschaft, die, wenn es sich um einen Sympathie-Strike im Interesse der Am. Woodworkers handeln würde, doch in erster Linie in Betracht käme, in diesem Falle nicht zu haben sein würde, nachdem die Am. Woodworkers durch an unserer Bruderschaft wiederholt geübten Ver rath sich deren Sympathie verschert haben.

Schiedsrichter Downey hat in seiner Entscheidung, sei es aus Unkenntnis der Gewerkschaftsverhältnisse oder aus anderen Motiven, die Interessen der Mitglieder der Am. Woodworkers ganz und gar unberücksichtigt gelassen. Er hat, wie es die Exekutive der A. F. of L. in ihren diesbezüglichen Entscheidungen thut, nur den Namen der Am. Woodworkers einen Liebesdienst erwiesen, indem er ihnen ihre Organisation und damit Amt und Versorgung zu erhalten sucht.

Die Downey'sche Entscheidung ist nicht nur ein Eingriff in die Interessen unserer Bruderschaft, sondern auch in die Interessen der Mitglieder der Am. Woodworkers. Seine Entscheidung mag wohl zeitweilig auf die weitere Entwicklung der Holzarbeiterbewegung einen störenden und hemmenden Einfluß ausüben, wird aber den natürlichen Verlauf der Entwicklung nicht aufhalten können.

Pferd und Mensch.

In der Nähe von Baltimore hat die Maryland Gesellschaft zur Verhütung von Grausamkeiten gegen Thiere ein Alters-Asyl für Pferde errichtet, dem seitens der bürgerlichen Presse großes Lob entgegengebracht wird.

Die Baltimore „Sun“ weicht diesem Thier-Asyl einen Leitartikel, in welchem es u. A. heißt: „Das ist eine vorzügliche Wohlthätigkeit, deren Nothwendigkeit jedem Menschen einleuchten wird. Zu oft kommt es vor, daß nach Jahren treuer Arbeit das Pferd an irgend eine rüchliche Loser oder ignorerante Person verkauft wird, die es aushungert und überarbeitet, bis es infolge schlechter Behandlung niedersinkt. Im besten Falle wird es erschossen, wenn es zu alt oder zu schwach ist für profitablen Dienst. . . . Der Weg, den die Gesellschaft zur Verhütung von Grausamkeiten gegen Thiere einschlägt, ist ein besserer, indem dadurch den alten Lieblingen gegen Zahlung einer mäßigen Summe durch den Eigentümer Ruhe und gute Behandlung für den Rest ihrer Tage verschafft wird.“

So weit die Ausführungen der genannten Zeitung über dieses Thier-Asyl, gegen die kein Mensch etwas einwenden kann.

Aber uns will scheinen, daß man das, was hier von den alten, abgerackerten Pferden gesagt ist, ganz gut auch auf die alten, abgerackerten Menschen anwenden könnte.

Wie bei den Pferden, so ist es auch nur zu häufig bei den Menschen der Fall, daß sie „nach Jahren treuer Dienste“ nicht einmal, wie die Pferde, an eine andere Person verkauft werden—die immerhin für das ihm übergebene Thier zu sorgen hat—sondern daß der Mensch, der Arbeiter, wenn infolge Altersschwäche seine Kraft nachläßt, einfach auf die Straße gesetzt wird, und wenn er zehnmal jahrelang treue Dienste leistete. Für die Pferde mögen sich Eigentümer finden, die eine mäßige Summe zahlen, um ihnen für ihr Alter ein Asyl zu geben. Wo aber ist der Unternehmer, der Kapitalist zu finden, der für seine Arbeiter, wenn sie lange Jahre ihm ihre Arbeitskraft geopfert haben, eine Summe aussetzt, um ihnen für ihr Alter ein Asyl zu schaffen?—

Unsere verrückten Gesellschaftszustände haben derart das Denken und Empfinden der Menschen auf den Kopf gestellt, daß Jedermann es als durchaus selbstverständlich und anerkanntes Recht betrachtet, wenn der Eigentümer eines Arbeitstieres durch entsprechende Maßnahmen dessen Alter sichert. Wollte Jemand in derselben Weise die Arbeitsmenschen behandeln, die ihm jahrelang dienen, er würde als ein Sonderling, als ein überpanneter Narr hingestellt werden. Wird doch das Verlangen der Sozialisten, daß der Staat—da die Unternehmer es nicht thun—die Altersversorgung der Arbeiter übernimmt, als etwas Unerhörtes, als eine Utopie, ja, gar als eine „Entwürdigung“ hingestellt und mit allen Mitteln bekämpft!

Dem alten Thiere den Rest seines Lebens zu garantiren, das ist Wohlthätigkeit. Dem alten Arbeiter dasselbe zu thun, das heißt Utopie; dazu fühlt der „Eigentümer der Arbeiter“, die kapitalistische Klasse, keinerlei Verpflichtung.

Ist es unrichtig, wenn wir sagen, daß die verrückten Gesellschaftszustände das Denken und Empfinden der Menschen auf den Kopf gestellt haben? Wäre es andererseits möglich, daß selbst Arbeiter sich sträuben könnten gegen Einführung von Zuständen, die ihnen ein sorgloses Leben im Alter garantiren?

Jurisdiktions- Streitigkeiten zwischen dem deutschen Schiffszimmerer- und dem Werftarbeiterverband.

Wie aus nachstehender, der „Holzarbeiter-Zeitung“ entnommenen Notiz zu ersehen ist, sind es nicht die Holzarbeiter-Organisationen allein, in denen die Jurisdiktionsfrage viel Staub aufwirbelt. Auch unter den Kollegen in Deutschland gehen die Ansichten über diese Frage noch weit auseinander. Die „Holzarbeiter-Zeitung“ schreibt in ihrer Ausgabe vom 4. Oktober:

Metallarbeiterverband, für sie nicht in Frage kommen können. Anders mit dem Werftarbeiterverband. Welche Berufe sind in ihm vertreten? Metallarbeiter jeder Branche, Tischler jeder Branche, Plazarbeiter, vielleicht auch einige Segelmacher. Also zum überwiegenden Theil Arbeiter, die dem Metall- oder Holzarbeiterverband sehr wohl angehören könnten; würden diese aus dem Werftarbeiterverband ausscheiden, dann wäre es mit dem Werftarbeiterverband zu Ende. Damit dies nicht geschieht, redet man sich ein, daß „die Industrieverbände nicht diejenige Form der Organisation seien, welche für die Zukunft maßgebend sein würden, sondern die Betriebsorganisation werde die Organisationsform der Zukunft sein.“—Kollege Dellrich, der so sprach, sollte doch wissen, daß die Industrieverbände alle die in diversen verwandten Berufen und in einem Betriebe beschäftigten Personen in sich vereinigen, und daß für die Werftbetriebe nur der Holz- und der Metallarbeiterverband in Frage kommen. Daß diese beiden Verbände bei Differenzen sich doch sehr leicht verständigen und vor allen Dingen einen größeren Einfluß auf die Gestaltung der Arbeits- und Lohnverhältnisse ausüben können, als der kleine Werftarbeiterverband als Dritter im Bunde, liegt doch wohl klar auf der Hand. Im übrigen meinen wir, es bestehen gerade Organisationsformen genug, ohne daß noch eine neue, die Betriebsorganisation, hinzukommen braucht. Wir haben immer gesagt, daß in heutiger Zeit der Centralisation das Zwitterding „Werftarbeiterverband“ gar keine Berechtigung hat. Es wäre wirklich besser, wenn recht bald darin eine Aenderung eintreten würde.

In Bezug auf die Grenzstreitigkeiten zwischen letzterem und dem Schiffszimmererverband ist eine Resolution angenommen worden, die es den Vertretern beider Verbände zur Pflicht macht, Hand in Hand zu arbeiten und ein friedliches Verhältnis auch unter den Mitgliedern der beiden Organisationen herbeizuführen. An Orten, wo ausschließlich Holzschiffbau betrieben wird, soll dem Verband der Schiffszimmerer allein die Agitation überlassen bleiben. Wo keine Organisation beider Verbände besteht, soll das Agitationsfeld für beide Organisationen frei sein.“

Ein bemerkenswerthes Urtheil über Arbeitervertreter und -Organisationen hat, wie wir der „Holzarbeiter-Zeitung“ entnehmen, gelegentlich einer Rundfrage Gewerbegerichtsdirektor v. Schulz in Berlin ausgesprochen. Derselbe tritt gerade im Interesse des Friedens für die Organisation der Arbeiter ein:

„Wenn Arbeiterorganisationen dem Gewerbegericht nicht zur Hand wären, würde ein schnelles Einschreiten desselben bei Streiks nicht immer möglich sein. Als Beispiel des so herbeizuführenden eiligen Verfahrens erwähnen wir, daß mehrmals eine telephonische Unterredung mit dem Beamten des Gewerkschaftsbureaus ausreichte, um Mißverständnisse zwischen Arbeitgebern und Arbeitern, welche zur Arbeitsniederlegung geführt hatten, aufzuklären. Nur wenige Stunden, und die Arbeiter setzten die unterbrochene Arbeit fort. Mit Ausnahme eines einzigen Falles waren bis heute die Gewerkschaften und ihre Führer—selbst wenn sie bei ihren Differenzen mit den Arbeitgebern in günstiger Lage sich befanden—auf Veranlassung des Gewerbegerichts stets bereit, das Einigungsamt anzurufen. Die viel angefeindeten Beamten der Gewerkschaften thun im übrigen nichts anderes, als was die Arbeitgeber von den Führern ihrer Verbände ebenso verlangen. Sie suchen, wie diese, bestmöglichst die Rechte ihrer Berufsgenossen wahrzunehmen. Fehler machen sie natürlich auch, ganz so wie die Arbeitgeber. Die Regel bildet, daß die Gewerkschaftsleiter, wie andere, in Streiks eine Kalamität erblicken und sie zu vermeiden suchen. Es ist bekannt, und dies möchte ich ganz besonders hervorheben, daß ungerechtfertigte Streiks von den Gewerkschaften nicht unterstützt werden. Außerdem pflegen die Führer dem Gewerbegericht bei Streiks jede Hilfe zu leisten zur Beseitigung der Mißlichkeiten. Deswegen ist es uns angenehm, wenn an den Verhandlungen vor dem Einigungsamt sich Beamte der interessirten Gewerkschaften betheiligen. Freilich stoßen sie hier manchmal auf Widerstand bei der Gegenpartei, welche die Einmischung der Vertrauenspersonen der Arbeiter nicht zulassen will. Bei dieser Sachlage kann man es den Gewerkschaften nicht verübeln, wenn sie geeignetenfalls vor dem Einigungsamt auf ihre Anerkennung durch die Arbeitgeber drängen und die Zulassung ihrer Beamten zur Verhandlung fordern. Ein Gesellenausschuß mag für die Verhältnisse der Innung selbst vollkommen genügen, wie ein Arbeitsausschuß für einen einzelnen Betrieb segensbringend sein kann. Tarifverträge, welche allgemeine Verbreitung finden sollen, können jedoch nur Berufsvereine abschließen.“

Ueber Frauenarbeit in Japan, oder richtiger Frauenausbeutung, schreibt das Organ der japanischen Sozialdemokraten: „In einer Spinnerei in Matsuyama arbeiten gegen 400 Arbeiterinnen, die in „Mädchenheimen“ untergebracht sind. Ihre Schlafstätten werden als schmutzige, ungesunde Böden geschildert; in einem Raume von 18x42 Fuß waren nicht weniger denn 80 Mädchen untergebracht, und zwar schlief die eine Schicht des Nachts, die andere am Tage in denselben Schlafstätten. Die Arbeitszeit der Mädchen, unter denen sich solche von unter 10 Jahren befinden, beträgt 12 Stunden pro Tag und es muß abwechselnd eine Woche Nachtschicht geleistet werden. Der Lohn beläuft sich auf 25 bis 55 Pf. pro Tag; 25 Pf. aber müssen die Mädchen pro Tag für Kost und Wohnung bezahlen. Durch ein raffiniertes Prämiensystem sucht man die Arbeitskraft der Arbeiterinnen bis auf den letzten Blutstropfen auszumergeln. Die lange Arbeitszeit, die gesundheitswidrigen Zustände, die unzureichende Nahrung, all dies bringt die Mädchen bald so herunter, daß stets ein großer Theil von ihnen gar nicht zur Arbeit kommen kann. Um ihren Eifer anzufachen, ist bestimmt, daß solche, die im Monate 26 Arbeitstage leisten, einen Tagelohn extra bekommen; wer 6 Monate ohne Unterbrechung arbeitet, erhält 12 Tagelöhne. Die Mehrzahl der Arbeiterinnen, die einen dreijährigen Kontrakt machen müssen, halten nicht aus, sondern laufen wieder davon; immer aber findet sich wieder Ersatz für sie aus den umliegenden ländlichen Gebieten.“

Für eine praktische Erfindung ist Herr Tischlermeister Dinter in Münsterberg i. Schl. der gefühlvolle Mutherschuß ertheilt worden. Es handelt sich um eine Bettstelle, bei welcher das oft recht beschwerliche Herausheben der Matratzen dadurch vermieden wird, daß die Matratze, die auf Rollen läuft, zur Seite des Bettes herausgezogen werden kann, was mit geringer Mühe ermöglicht wird. Ferner ist das Keilkissen verstellbar angebracht, so daß durch einen Zug an einem Kettchen der ruhende die gewünschte schräge Lage sich selbst reguliren kann. Unter der Matratze befindet sich übrigens noch ein Bretterboden, der das Einstauben der Matratze vermindert und zugleich auch als geheimes Schubfach benutzt werden kann. Die Rollen der Dinter'schen Reformbettstelle sollen sich nicht erheblich höher stellen, als die einer anderen modernen Bettstelle. Die Verbesserungen können auch an alten Bettstellen angebracht werden.

Rejection of Candidates.

Clinton Rose has made three applications for membership to Local Union 453, Auburn, N. Y., and been rejected in every case, being unqualified for membership according to Sec. 61 of our General Constitution.

Where is William A. Lewis?

We are requested to advertise for William A. Lewis, a carpenter who left Buffalo for New York in 1894. His only living brother is seriously ill in the city of Chicago and anxious to hear of him. William A. Lewis, or members or readers knowing of his present location, will kindly, and without delay, communicate with his sister, Mrs. Etta Lewis Thomas, 3016 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

$25.00 Reward.

On September 2, 1903, a chest of carpenter tools was stolen in Carnegie, Pa., the tools bearing the stamp of L. M. McPherron and J. V. Merriman. The undersigned offers $25.00 reward for any information leading to the arrest of the party who stole the tools.

L. M. McPHERRON.

New York Longshoremen Adopt Anti-Liquor Clause.

The new agreement submitted to their employers by the New York City Longshoremen's Union, contains an anti-liquor clause forbidding the bringing of liquor of any kind to the docks where they are working, even the bosses being prohibited from indulging too freely in liquor.

The text of the provision is as follows: "No beer, whisky, or other intoxicating beverage shall be brought on the premises of the company and it is distinctly understood that no worker or boss shall be permitted to work while intoxicated."

In order to induce men to stay away from the saloons, two of the agreements have a third stipulation. This is to the effect that fresh iced drinking water containing oatmeal be supplied at the docks and piers during working hours.

The agreement does not prohibit longshoremen from visiting saloons when work is over. It is understood, however, that any member who is unduly given to intoxicants can not remain in the union.

UNDER the present system the burglar seems to be about the only worker who gets the full product of his toil.

HANNA says every man can have a job if he really wants one. True enough, so he can. If he can't find any other job, he can have a job hunting a job.

THE working class never get more than a living. The standard of living of the working class may rise or fall, but the worker's share of the product of their labor never increases above the standard.

Claims Paid in October, 1903.

Unfair to Union Carpenters.

J. W. Heckert, one of the most prominent carpenter contractors of Columbus, O., has been declared unfair by the union carpenters. Mr. Heckert has been for years an employer of carpenters in this city and has been very strenuous in his opposition to our unions, never having in any way recognized or employed union carpenters, but always bitterly fighting the union and union principles—always an employer of scab labor and an importer of non-union men.

A Wonderful Instructor!

It is of celluloid, 3 in. in diameter, with revolving disks. One side giving the lengths and cuts of rafters—common, octagon, hips and valleys, from 1 to 24-in. rise; on the other side is given the same as above, from 1° to 90°. Much other information is contained in the Key. Hopper cuts, polygon miters, etc. Illustrated book of instructions and morocco case, suitable for carrying in the pocket. Liberal terms to agents. Price, $1.50.

W. A. WOODS, Architect, Lincoln, Neb.

The Perfect Scale Gage.

For "setting up" molding machines. When ordering state size of molding head and projection of cutter. Price $1.00. Write for particulars.

Are You Held Down
By Lack of Training?

Nothing keeps a man down like lack of training—nothing lifts him up so quickly or so surely as a thorough, practical knowledge of the work he has to do. The International Correspondence Schools was founded for the "man without an opportunity." No matter where he is or what work he is doing, it gives him, by mail, the exact training required to attain success, either in his present position, or in an entirely different occupation.

We can prepare you for any of the positions named below. You will not have to give up your present employment, as only a small amount of your spare time is required. Prices low. Terms easy. No books to buy.

Mark X before the position which interests you; cut out Coupon and mail to us. We will send full particulars and our booklet, "1001 Stories of Success," which gives the names, addresses, and advancement of over a thousand of our students in all parts of the world.

A HANDY BOOK

Carpenters and Joiners
Pocket Companion

By THOMAS MOLONEY

THIS is a compact and handy little volume, containing the most useful rules and memoranda, practically tested by many years' experience in the shop, factory and building; also a Treatise on the Framing Square. It is by a thoroughly practical man, and contains enough that is not easily found anywhere else to make it worth more than its price to every intelligent carpenter. The book contains 102 pages; size 3 1/2 x 5 inches, a size that will easily fit in your pocket, illustrated by numerous cuts and is neatly bound in brown cloth, red edges and gilt title. The regular price is 50 cents, but as a special offer to new customers we will send a copy of the book for 25 cents. * * * * *

Hodgson is Worth its Weight in Gold. We have finally induced the publishers to sell us another edition of 5,000 Sets. We wanted 10,000 Sets, but they refused as they don't like our idea of selling the books for less than the advertised price. They positively will not sell us any more if we cut the price; so after these few sets are sold—up it goes. ORDER NOW! DON'T DELAY! Every Set Guaranteed, or your money back. Can any one offer you a better proposition? Words of the highest praise received daily unsolicited from the workmen and press commending this valuable set of books. The most popular mechanical paper in the world, The Scientific American, says: "It is not too much to say that a carpenter who does not possess these volumes has one of the most valuable tools left out of his kit." Do not blame us if your order comes too late. We give you fair warning that after the present lot is sold the price will advance to, cloth binding, $4.00, and half morocco binding, $6.00.

This series of Fred F. Hodgson's new works are to-day the approved and most helpful set of practical builders' "educators" published. They have been tried and found by architects, contractors, carpenters and builders to be efficient "aids" for advancement and thoroughly reliable for daily consultation as books of reference, covering as they do thousands of "self-help points" necessary for all workers of wood. The books are positively up-to-date and the "CARPENTER" most heartily recommends them to everyone as the most valuable series of books for self-instruction published in the world on the subjects treated.

Roof Framing

By
G. D. Inskip

This Work is specially prepared and written for the Mechanic. By the use of tables he can compute any length of Rafter, Hip or Valley, with ease and accuracy, from 1/8 of an inch to 150 feet. It is in two volumes. Vol. I is handsomely illustrated with diagrams, conveying to the mind of the reader the practical way of cutting Roof Members. It takes in all manner of Pitches, Degrees and Minutes, or any possible Plan of Roof, and gives all measurements full size. Scale measurements are dispensed with, and the steel square is used only as a bevel and is of no moment in acquiring lengths and intersections.

HAILEVILLE, I. T.—There is not one job under construction here at present and no prospects for any for some time. Most all of our members have left to secure work in other towns on account of the scarcity of work here. Stay away from Haileville and avoid disappointment.

BEVERLY, MASS.—Because of very unsatisfactory conditions existing in this city L. U. 878 would request all carpenters to remain away until further notice. The majority of our contractors have broken their agreement entered into on April 1, and are refusing to pay the rate of wages agreed upon, and some of the outside contractors are working their men nine hours per day, while our trade rules provide for eight hours. Give Beverly, Mass., a wide berth.

IOLA, KAN.—We are still working nine hours at a minimum rate of $2.50 per day. Most of the boys, however, receive $3 and we shall undoubtedly secure the eight-hour day next year. We are not jumping very much at a time and not very often, but are progressing steadily. Among the many large buildings being erected here this moment there is a $15,000 schoolhouse; hence a great portion of our members are working eight hours anyway.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—For a couple of weeks in August indications pointed to a general tie-up in the building industry. The building laborers walked out and the bricklayers struck in sympathy, thus tying up about 50 per cent. of the brick work for about two weeks. The contractors threatened to lock out all the building trades and refused to meet committees endeavoring to adjust the differences. Finally, through the good offices of Mr. Gubbins, the G. P. of the bricklayers, an understanding was reached and the bricklayers and building laborers returned to work on September 8th. There is considerable work going on here but still a number of carpenters are out of work. In fact we have more carpenters here than required to do the work of a busy season.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.—Business is very dull here. In the spring the outlook was very encouraging, but a combination of circumstances has nearly killed business. Please place Portsmouth on the dull list and advise carpenters to stay away.

COATESVILLE, PA.—We again desire to call the attention of all carpenters to trade still being very dull in this place. The town is overflowed with carpenters and we have more men than the trade can stand. Keep away from Coatesville, Pa.

LEWISTON, MONT.—The building trades of this city have ceased all work on the T. J. Tubbs buildings. Tubbs is an unfair contractor employing scab carpenters. All carpenters and stonemasons are requested to keep away from Lewiston until the trouble is settled.

GLEN COVE, L. I., N. Y.—Local Union 1093 held its second parade and picnic on Labor Day, September 7, 1903, which, same as the one held the previous year, proved a success and added money to our treasury. We now have a membership of 205 in good standing, and more new members are coming in. Glen Cove has been quite a busy place this season; a good many carpenters from various localities have come here to work.

STOCKTON, CAL.—Owing to the reputation of California as a land of promise many carpenters come to this state in search of employment. While it is true that in some cities on this coast there is at times a demand for carpenters, there are more than enough of them in Stockton at the present time to handle all the work and some of our members are idle. We would advise carpenters not to come to this city with the expectation of doing better.

OKLAHOMA CITY.—A few months ago the brothers in this city were feeling mighty blue over prevailing conditions. At present we can say that through the efficiency and aid extended to us by Gen. Organizer Sidney J. Kent we are on the upward trend once more. The spirits of our members are higher and we are in better condition than at any time since the incipency of our trouble in March of last year. The members of L. U. 276 all join in a vote of thanks and good will to Bro. Sidney J. Kent and wish him all the success that is due his untiring efforts wherever he may go. We hope to entirely regain our old-time strength and prestige in the near future.

GRANDE MÈRE, QUEBEC, CAN.—We would caution traveling brothers against exaggerated statements and reports appearing in the daily papers, pretending that work is plentiful in this locality. The fact is that work is very scarce and many of the resident carpenters are out of employment. Grande Mère is a good place for carpenters and joiners to avoid.

DENISON, TEX.—Our Labor Day celebration surpassed any before attempted by the labor organizations of this city. It was a success in every way and we are all proud of it. The parade was over a mile long and nearly every union was represented. At 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon a large audience assembled under the big tent in Forest Park to listen to speeches made by Mayor Kennedy, W. E. Farmer, Rev. J. W. Hill and the Hon. A. W. Folsom of Sherman, while the contest program was carried out on another part of the grounds. The celebration has done much to advance the cause of labor and increase the esteem of the people in general for labor unions. We are increasing our membership and will have a number of new members to report on the 30th inst.

GALENA, ILL.—The outlook for work is good, our members are all employed, and the non-union men are coming our way. As soon as time and circumstances are opportune we shall make a demand for a shorter workday. At our last meeting it was decided to hold a picnic on Labor Day and enjoy the occasion in the company of our families and friends. Our last year's picnic at Camp 19, on the Mississippi river, impressed the boys so favorably, and they had such a splendid time, that they concluded not to let the occasion slip by this year, but try it again. At our last Labor Day picnic the atmosphere was fine, red and white stripes and blue label cigars were in abundance, and the bowling alley and foot-racing contests were highly interesting.

BELLEfonte, PA.—Labor Day was a red letter day for this city, as it was the first time in its history that an attempt was made to celebrate the day by a turnout. We may fairly be proud of the success which was demonstrated by the large number of participants in the parade, the large number of people having flocked to the city and the interest shown by the various unions. Our Local Union 1190, the Painters, Clerks and Molders turned out in all their glory, and were joined in the parade by the firemen and Knights of the Golden Eagle. In view of the fact that our local union is scarcely a year old we feel that our first appearance in a parade and the fine showing we have made is highly commendable, and our membership is elated over it. We are progressing nicely.

SANTA BARBARA, CAL.—Owing to existing troubles in this locality union carpenters and union men in general are requested to remain away until the difficulties are properly adjusted.

MOSCOW, IDAHO.—Local Union 1605 is in a very good condition, taking into consideration that it has but recently been organized and that our union is the only labor organization in town. Part of the work in the building industry is now being done on the nine-hour basis. We have gained that point since we were organized and our hopes are that the good work may continue.

MONROE, LA.—This year's celebration of Labor Day was the second observance of the holiday dedicated to labor. Banks and exchanges were closed and Sunday hours were observed in the postoffice and in the Western Union Telegraph office. The men in the V. S. & P. shops were given a holiday and none of the big saw and planing mills were running. When the parade reached Athletic Park a large audience was awaiting it. Bro. W. C. Rivers was the presiding officer on the platform, from which several speakers, among whom were Bro. J. F. Grimes, General Organizer, addressed their hearers. The addresses were followed by a barbecue and the day's exercises were concluded by a game of ball between a team from the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and one from the Painters and Decorators, Mr. J. M. Stephenson acting as umpire. The whole affair was a complete success.

QUINCY, ILL.—With ideal weather Quincy celebrated Labor Day Monday on a grander scale than ever before. The immense parade at 10 A. M., in which 2,500 men took part, was the finest ever held in this city. Most of the unions turned out in appropriate and attractive uniforms. There were some unions which did not take part in the parade. Most stores, factories and other places closed down at noon, which afforded from 1,200 to 1,500 persons an opportunity to take in the festivities of Baldwin's in the afternoon and evening. Rival attractions at Highland park and Sportsmen park and two river excursions in the morning diverted a small share of the pleasure-seekers, the majority of the people showed their warm friendship toward union labor. The afternoon was spent in dancing, sport and discussing refreshments, and it is safe to say that everyone at Baldwin park had a most satisfactory time.

EDMONTON ALBERTA, CAN.—We are not yet a year old but believe this to be one of the strongest local unions of our age. We have just got through our first Labor Day celebration, probably the only one held so far north of Edmonton, as we are holding the proud distinction of being located furthest north of any local union on the American continent. One year ago there was not a union man in town; now there is not a non-union bricklayer, and but very few carpenters or painters. The plasterers, lathers, tanners and plumbers are coming up fast and cigarmakers and printers have also organized, which shows that this is now a strong union town, although but 5,000 inhabitants. We do not like to say to carpenters to stay away, but they would better not come here at present because lumber is scarce, the mills can not turn it out fast enough for us, and as a consequence we are suffering much loss of time waiting for material.

ST. CATHERINE, ONT., CAN.—In spite of the prevailing atmospheric conditions our this year's Labor Day celebration was a grand success in every particular. The parade was the finest Labor Day turnout ever witnessed in this city, twenty-seven different trades participating. After the procession had reached the place of rendezvous, the Athletic Lacrosse grounds, appropriate addresses were delivered by President Walsh of the Trades and Labor Council, Rev. J. A. Harvey, E. A. Lancaster, M. P.; Dr. Jessop, ex-Mayors W. McIntyre and M. J. Keating, J. W. Carto, Geo. Patey, Chas. A. Wilson and Theo. Sweet. At the close of the speech making the two ex-mayors, on behalf of their fellow-judges, congratulated the unions on the splendid demonstration, and announced that their prize for the best appearance had been awarded to the carpenters, and L. U. 38 was presented with a beautiful silk Union Jack valued at $42. Our membership naturally feels proud of the splendid showing made on the occasion and the distinction gained by it.

W. F. Baldwin, a carpenter who joined L. U. 169, East St. Louis, Ill., in September, 1901, has absconded, leaving a wife and child in destitute circumstances and anxious to ascertain his present whereabouts. He is about 45 years of age, 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighs about 185 pounds, is of very fair complexion, has gray hair and is partly bald. He is of fine appearance and a polite and sleek talker on any subject. Members or readers in a position to give any information leading to the location of W. F. Keep Away from Columbus, Ohio

Some of our contractors being adverse to paying union wages and trying to cause an influx of carpenters to this city by advertising for help in outside towns, we would ask our brother carpenters everywhere to stay away from Columbus, O. We have more carpenters than needed and winter drawing near will make conditions still more unfavorable,

Stay Away from New York City

Owing to the upset conditions of the building industry in New York City and the suspension of work on a number of large buildings under course of erection, carpenters and all woodworkers are urgently requested to keep away. There are hundreds of our brothers walking the streetside, and there is no show whatever for newcomers.

Don't Purchase the "Madole" Hammer

The David Madole Hammer Co., of Norwich, N. Y., refusing to grant the 9-hour day and an advance in wages demanded by the Hammer-makers' Union, the latter has declared a strike against the said firm. The Madole hammer has been placed on the unfair list by the Norwich Trades Assembly, trusting that no union man will purchase or use it. The firm has about sixty scabs in its employ at present, a number which is scarcely sufficient to keep their machinery running, and are advertising for more help in local papers. We call on all brothers to assist the Hammer-makers' Union in their struggle with this antagonistic concern by trying to offset their advertisements wherever possible and by discriminating against their product, the Madole hammer.

Where is William A. Lewis?

We are requested to advertise for William A. Lewis, a carpenter who left Buffalo for New York in 1894. His only living brother is seriously ill in the city of Chicago and anxious to hear of him. William A. Lewis, or members or readers knowing of his present location, will kindly, and without delay, communicate with his sister, Mrs. Etta Lewis Thomas, 316 Michigan ave., Chicago, Ill.

Successful Trade Movement

ST. FRANCIS, MO.—Trade organization, until recently, has been seriously lacking in this locality, and as a consequence our working hours were ten hours per day. In July last our local union was organized and we concluded to demand a reduction of one hour per day at prevailing rate of wages. Our demand has been granted in full and the nine-hour system went into effect on September 1st, 1903.

Who Can Locate Wm. McCandlish?

Wm. McCandlish, a member of L. U. 175, Brooklyn, N. Y., is missing from his home since August 29, and all efforts to trace him have proved futile. He is 52 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches in height, weighing 190 pounds; has gray eyes and brown hair and mustache. He wore blue serge suit and brown fedora when last seen. Members or readers knowing of the present whereabouts of Bro. Wm. McCandlish will greatly oblige his family as well as Local Union 175 by communicating with the General office.

Should Be Thoroughly Advertised

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

In the August number of THE CARPENTER we notice an article in regard to J. F. Page, of Iola, Kan. J. F. Page has been seen in Kansas City during the last thirty days, but we can assure you that he is not working as a member of L. U. 4. To give the popular brother (?) further notoriety, I am instructed by this local union to give you the following extract from our minutes of January 7th, 1902:

"Bro. E. E. Denny notified the local union that Bro. J. F. Page had taken away or disposed of his (Denny's) carpenter tools which had been mortgaged to J. F. Page on a cash loan. Bro. Denny cannot find either Page or the tools, and asks the local union to help him in looking the matter up."

Bent on Mischief

Last spring the local unions of Manchester, Beverly, Salem, Danvers and Marblehead, Mass., comprising the North Shore district, had some difficulty with the contractors in the above-named towns and cities, the Manchester contractors excepted. After several meetings held between the District Council and the Master Builders' Association of Essex county, an agreement was reached and signed by a majority of the employers. Lately we have learned that some of the contractors of Beverly, Salem and Danvers are advertising for carpenters in some of the Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island papers, and this in spite of the fact that work is slack, and even first-class mechanics looking for work. There is no doubt these contractors are bent on mischief. They are trying to overstock the market with men with the object in view to reduce our wages at an early opportunity. We trust that all carpenters will take heed of our warning and pay no attention to these advertisements. We still have some jobs here where they are working nine hours at the rate of $1.75 per day, while our agreement calls for eight hours and $2.75 minimum pay. Brothers, give us a chance to bring these jobs in line and stay away from the North Shore district until further notice.

REJECTIONS OF CANDIDATES

J. B. McDonald has been rejected by L. U. 604, Murphysboro, Ill., three times in succession, he being disqualified for membership according to Section 61 of our General Constitution.

George Marsh's application for membership has been rejected by L. U. 423, San Francisco, Cal., three times in succession in accordance with the provisions of our General Constitution.

A Novel Idea

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

To let the country have a word from this section I will state that trade here is in a fairly good condition at the present time. The union men are all employed and busy, and the standing of the organization is reasonably good. But I am sorry to say that our meetings are not as well attended as would be consistent with union principles and our interests. The trouble is that some of our more peaceably inclined members allow themselves too readily to become disgusted at insignificant ill feelings that at times may prevail among the membership, instead of living them down as all diseases of dyspeptic nature should be lived down.

I greatly admired the article in the April CARPENTER, entitled "Labor Unions." Such articles should be read openly in the meetings of every union.

Taking advantage of the opportunity I desire to offer a suggestion through the columns of our journal for the consideration of the members of our U. B. I would suggest that each one of our local unions take the necessary steps toward the establishment of a "Junior Union School," by opening their meeting halls one evening in the week and inviting boys of 14 years and over to attend a sort of union kindergarten where appropriate speeches on the subject of unionism and union principles and methods should be made and good selections read that would have an educational effect on the younger minds, and at the same time counteract that spirit of hatred instilled in the human breast until it has assumed the form of an inherited disease.

In my mind nothing would be more beneficial and more further the cause of organized labor than such union love feasts, with a tendency of eliminating national, race, creed and party differences, as are now dividing us on economic and political lines. In schools of this kind it could be demonstrated to the boys, whom, almost as a rule, you will find at a loss to understand why big men hate and keep in discord with each other; that it is one of the objects of labor unions to overcome this hatred now existing and to bring men together for the exchange of views on the most vital questions of the day, the most important one of which is how to keep ourselves in food and clothes and how to provide for shelter. In such gatherings it could be shown to the boys that the supposed differences between one part of humanity and another are but imaginary ones, created and fomented by a few usurpers in order that they may better enjoy their ill-gotten wealth and power.

I further and positively believe that it our boys should be taught to intelligently discriminate between right and wrong, just and unjust, and have the economical errors and political handicaps pointed out to them, in a friendly and child-like simplicity, they would, within five years and before they are eligible to membership, become strong adherents of unionism.

By inaugurating a formidable educational campaign on these lines, beginning with the youth, no money-power nor military aggressions will prevent the spreading of knowledge among downtrodden humanity as to their right to live in happiness and enjoy full educational facilities and equal opportunities in the struggle for existence.

Desires Strict Enforcement of Sec. 116

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

It is with great satisfaction I read our General Secretary's notice in the July issue of our journal, calling on Financial Secretaries to strictly enforce Section 113 of our General Constitution and admonishing the practice of Financial Secretaries collecting dues on clearance cards in excess of the dues for the current and ensuing month. While I would like to see this section strictly enforced and our General Secretary's notice well taken heed of, I desire to call the attention of the General Office to frequent violations of Section 116 in regard to the exchange of coupons attached to clearance cards. In many instances I have been compelled to enter into communication with sister local unions and request them to return the coupon on clearance cards issued by them and deposited here. It has also often occurred that my local union has issued a clearance card and the coupon was never seen or heard of again—a violation of Section 116 resulting in a loss of 75 cents to our treasury in each case. Furthermore, when a coupon is not returned the name of the receiver of the clearance card is kept on the local union's books for six months when it should not be kept there at all. I hope the General Office will give this matter due attention and see to the strict enforcement of Section 116 of our General Constitution.

Yours fraternally,

From the Park City of Kentucky

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Having been a member of L. U. 725 since February I have eagerly scanned the columns of your valuable journal for a few lines from the Park City of Kentucky, but my efforts were in vain. This is, however, due to the fact that we have very few writers among our membership. Being a new member and an amateur scribe, I will in my humble way tell you of the first Labor Day celebration ever held in our little city. Local Union 725, after a great amount of labor and adverse circumstances, initiated the natives into the mysteries of the only holiday set apart through the efforts and in honor of the toiling masses by a parade led by the Bowling Green military band, followed by two hundred horny-handed sons of toil. The participants in the parade consisted of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners local union, the local American Federation of Labor, Textile Workers' Int. Union and Int. Union of Steam Engineers. After a one hour's march through the principal streets we broke ranks at Fountain Park, where wagonettes were in waiting to carry brothers, their families and friends to the beautiful wood home of Uncle Wm. (Fish) Cook, a staunch friend of organized labor. Here we were entertained by brass and string band music. Speeches were made by local talent, and dancing and baseball games were indulged in, amid a general intermingling and good cheer. A magnificent dinner, spread in common on the pretty lawn, was most heartily partaken of by a hungry crowd. The beautiful day was extended into the full moon of midnight, when all returned to their humble homes realizing that the morrow would be the labor day with which we were most familiar. Everyone voted the occasion a howling success, predicting a brilliant future for all the boys who "practice what they preach" and live up to that illustrious motto which, I am proud to say, is inscribed on the seal of old Kentucky, "United we stand, divided we fall." More anon.

Pushing to the Front

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Paris Local Union 1334, organized in December, 1902, is pushing to the front. We have now a membership of 90 in good standing. Every carpenter of note in this city belongs to our union, among them five of our contractors. We enjoy the good will of the population here and had but little trouble in obtaining the signatures of our employers to our new wage scale, they agreeing at the same time to employ none but union men. Still, we also have our trouble, caused by an outside contractor who calls himself a real estate superintendent, employing union men on some jobs and non-union men on others. He maneuvers in ways making it very difficult to put a stop to his abominable practices.

Work has been fairly good and above the average this summer, but has slackened lately. The influx to this city of outside carpenters is so considerable that at present we have more men than work. We meet every Tuesday and many of our meetings are of great interest to our membership and of great benefit to them. We have at present seven local unions in this district who recently formed a District Council which we hope will do good work. We have one local union for each thousand inhabitants and shall soon have more in the fold. It is our aim to make Paris one of the banner cities of Illinois.

Fraternally yours,

E. T. ENTRICAN.

Wide-Awake and Hustling

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

We desire to let the brothers of our U. B. know that Local Union 900, of Altoona, Pa., is wide-awake and hustling and intends to hustle till we have all the resident carpenters in our fold. Since our local union was started, two years ago on the 10th of September, our working conditions have been improved 50 per cent. We are proud of our success. This city was always rated as a non-union city, but lately it has awakened from its drowsy, dragging way. At present we have two-weekly payments, while a few years ago we were paid but once a month and half of the amount of our wages were paid to us in store orders. These days are gone by and we believe forever.

Since February 1st, this year, we have initiated as many as 128 new members, and still more are coming in.

We would request all carpenters to remain away from Altoona until our conditions have reached a standard making it profitable for men to come to our locality.

Local Union 900 had over 200 men in line of parade on Labor Day. The celebration and parade was a success beyond expectations. Business was at a standstill, the general public making a gala day of it. Bro. H. J. Campbell, 77 years old, and Bro. Joseph Senior, 74 years old (though neither wears glasses nor uses a cane), both charter members, tramped the whole line of march on foot. These two aged brothers stood as an example of the true union spirit with which we all must be imbued in order to elevate our craft to the high standard we are aiming to reach.

On September 10th we celebrated our second anniversary, which also was a successful affair. Ten of our charter members were present on the occasion, which furnished us ample opportunity to strengthen the bond of brotherhood among our membership.

Hoping that these few lines will have an encouraging effect on some or our weaker brothers and show them that where there is a will there is a way, I will close with the best wishes for all our local unions and our general officers.

J. H. IMLER,

Pres. L. U. 900.

Queens Borough (N. Y.) District's Splendid Accomplishments

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

It is safe to say that the carpenters of Queens Borough district, organized under the jurisdiction of our United Brotherhood, are the largest and foremost organization in the borough. Our object is a good one, its foundation is built on justice, the protection of its membership and the protection of legitimate employers as well.

While our methods may sometimes seem harsh to those not acquainted with the labor movement, they are often forced upon us as a last resource. We have at all times endeavored to maintain harmony in our trade and only when it lay beyond our power to effect a peaceful adjustment of existing difficulties have we gone as far as a strike in order to obtain recognition of our just demands. Every fair-minded person must concede that workingmen have a right to advance their wages in proportion to the increased cost of living and to shorten the working hours in proportion to the increased use of labor-saving machinery. This right we have exercised in a most intelligent manner by establishing a uniform rate of wages and hours, thus satisfying the keenly-felt wants of our membership and at the same time protecting legitimate employers against the unfair competition of petty bosses.

It is a well-established fact that the more a man earns the more he spends and the more business is thriving, and we are perfectly justified in saying that the present prosperous condition of Queens Borough is largely due to the efforts of labor organization resulting in higher wages and the increase of the purchasing power of the working population.

The carpenters' organization in Queens Borough stands today a worthy monument in honor of those who in 1888 and 1889 sacrificed their time, money and positions in making the first attempt at organizing the carpenters of this borough with a view to obtain better conditions for their fellowmen. In the spring of 1899 Queens Borough had six chartered locals, each one, however, working in its respective locality and in its own way. The lack of concerted action at that time being felt by all, a District Council was formed, which body held its first session on April 15th.

The result of this movement was the formation of another local union in Woodside, chartered on April 15th. Up to this time our members, after working all day, had devoted their hours of leisure to the transaction of the business of our organization and the furtherance of its interests. This finally became too great a task and the necessity of employing a Business Agent to look after our affairs being realized by the local unions, Bro. Gibbins was elected to that position and started in the field on April 2d, 1900.

This action of the D. C. and the local unions represented therein soon bore fruit and on May 26th the Business Agent reported having organized two new local unions, Nos. 601 and 613.

On June 14th, 1900, we affiliated with the Trades Council, just then organized, and our most effective work began. Mountains of work were overcome, prejudices and differences removed, men not in our organization had to have our objects explained and educated to see and realize that we were working for their own interests. The boss builders were shown that our organization had come to stay, and at close of quarter ending September, 1901, it was found that our membership had increased to 517. At this time Local Unions 601 and 81 placed Bro. Class in the field as Business Agent, at their own expense, of whose good work and success the books of these local unions furnish the best evidence.

Local Unions 901 and 906 were then organized by General Organizer Shields, he having visited the district during this period of agitation.

Our demand upon the employers for a uniform scale of wages having been refused, October 2d, 1900, was fixed as the day of enforcement. On that date some of the employers acceded to our demands, while others required almost three weeks to realize that we were determined to obtain what we demanded. Then the strike was declared off and its outcome a complete victory.

This strife afforded us an opportunity to see of what material our members were made of—no man shrank from the accruing sacrifices. Each one understood his his part, carrying it out to the best of his ability.

On February 27, 1902, Business Agent Gibbins organized Local Union 907, and on April 10th, 1902, Business Agent Class organized Local Union 983.

On April 20, of this year, we were again compelled to use very demonstrative persuasion in assuring some of our employers that we had a right to fix the price of our labor as well as they had to fix the price at the sale of the buildings. During the month of January we had notified all of our bosses that we demanded a minimum scale of $3.50 per day of eight hours, to go into effect on the above date. Many of them signed our agreement without any trouble. Some of them, however, had to suffer a suspension of work from two to ten days before they came to terms.

In each one of our struggles we have enjoyed the sympathy of the local press, they allowing us a liberal amount of space in laying our aims and objects before the public, and at the end of each and every strike that occurred we found that our organization had increased in membership, which at the time of writing has reached a total of nearly 1,200.

The early part of this year found us in the very unique position of organized labor against organized millions, when we, beyond a doubt, demonstrated the fact that the millions are useless to their possessors unless they buy our labor with them, which produces all their wealth and enables them to live the life of luxury they are accustomed to. In the gigantic struggle we were supported by all the other trades with whom we are affiliated, for which support we give them due credit.

The financial affairs of the Queens Borough D. C. are in keeping with the constant increase of our membership. Since its organization on April 15th, 1899, that body has received the amount

More Facts Showing the Scabbing Tactics of the Amalgamated Woodworkers

The scabbing tactics of the Amalgamated Woodworkers and the unwarrantable and irresponsible statements of their local and national officials during the past few months have been glaringly exposed at the recent investigation made in New York City by the Special Arbitration Board of the Building Trades Employers' Association, in the case of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America against the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association of Greater New York, under date of August 26 and September 9, 1903.

Facts are stubborn things and can not be hushed up when the searchlight of public investigation is turned upon them.

In this case, as the investigation showed, the facts are that on June 2, 1902, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners in the Bronx Borough, N. Y., and the manufacturers of building trim in that locality entered and signed the following agreement:

AGREEMENT

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT between the Firm of ———, party of the first part, and the Bronx Borough District Council, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, party of the second part.

The party of the first part hereby agrees to employ none but Union men, to observe the Trade Rules of the Brotherhood of Carpenters of the City of New York in regard to wages, hours, etc., both on inside and outside work, and the party of the first part further agrees not to sub-let any part of any contract or work he may have or receive to any Lumper or non-Union firm, nor to purchase any Material, Doors or Mantels from same, nor to contract for, sub-let or purchase any part of his work from any firm outside of the City of New York, or from any firm whose factory is not located in the City of New York, unless said firm agrees to, or can prove, that they pay New York City union wages and observe the hours and other Trade Rules of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of the City of New York, and the party of the first part further agrees not to buy, import or sub-let any Trim, Doors, Parquet Flooring or Mantels without the consent of the party of the second part.

In consideration thereof, the party of the second part hereby agrees to put the name and business address of the party of the first part on their list of New York City Union Manufacturers and Firms, and to protect him to the best of their ability against unfair outside competition.

The following Trade Rules are to form part of this Agreement:

Eight hours shall constitute a day's work for the first five days of the week, and four hours on Saturday. On this day no work under any conditions shall be executed between the hours of 12 m. and 5 p. m.

Working hours to be between 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

The minimum wages to be $18.00 per week for forty-four hours; the same to be paid weekly to all Bench and Machine hands employed in shops. Overtime and work on Legal Holidays to be paid for at the rate of double time. One Apprentice allowed for every ten Mechanics. No Porters or Drivers allowed to work on Machines.

WITNESSED:

P. S.—A copy of this Agreement to be posted in every Union shop and mill.

The above agreement was in force until June of this year, when our members in the Bronx Borough and Mount Vernon were called out on strike for an increase of wages. The Mt. Vernon firms of Wilson & Adams Co. and Hartman Bros. who, besides supplying interior trim, are running extensive lumber yards, then refused to sell material to any employer being a party to any agreement with any local or district body of our organization in Greater New York or Mt. Vernon. This action on the part of Wilson & Adams Co. and Hartman Bros. resulted in the formation of the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association of Greater

New York and the locking out on the 8th day of June, 1903, of all our men employed by the firms represented in the Association.

During the lockout the local and national representatives of the Am. Woodworkers frequently approached these firms, offering to furnish them with men of their organization to take the places of our men at 50 hours per week, or 9 hours per day.

This offer was finally accepted by the members of the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association, as the subjoined agreement will show:

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

THIS AGREEMENT made and entered into this sixteenth day of July, 1903, between the MANUFACTURING WOODWORKER'S ASSOCIATION of Greater New York and vicinity, party of the first part, and the AMALGAMATED WOODWORKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION of America, through their duly authorized representatives, the Wood Workers' Council of New York and vicinity party of the second part, Witnesseth:

ARTICLE I. The party of the first part hereby AGREES to hire none but men in good standing of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, who carried the card issued by the Wood Workers' Council, under the jurisdiction of said Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union, or who shall signify their intention to make application for membership in said union.

And the party of the second part hereby AGREES to furnish the members of the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association the necessary mechanics required by them in the conduct of their business, and it is HEREBY AGREED that, in the event of the party of the second part being unable to supply the help required, the parties of the first part have the privilege of employing mechanics not members of the Association of Amalgamated Woodworkers.

PROVIDED, HOWEVER, that should the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union later on be in position to furnish mechanics to replace those not members of their Association, it is AGREED that such non-Union men shall be replaced, provided they have not in the meantime joined the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, or shall not have made application for membership in said Association.

ARTICLE II. It is HEREBY FURTHER UNDERSTOOD AND AGREED that any workman employed by any of the members, parties to this agreement, carrying current cards issued by any other woodworking union or organization, shall have the privilege of exchanging said cards for membership cards in the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union without any charge being made for said exchange.

ARTICLE III. The number of hours which shall constitute a week's work shall be fifty (50) in all shops operating under this agreement. It is FURTHER UNDERSTOOD AND AGREED that all existing agreements between members of this Association and the said Union shall remain in full force until their expiration.

ARTICLE IV. The minimum scale of wages for bench hands and machine hands of the first-class shall be Eighteen Dollars ($18.00) per week, and for bench hands and machine hands of the second class shall be Fifteen Dollars ($15.00) per week.

IT BEING UNDERSTOOD that all employees who are receiving more than the foregoing minimum scale shall not be subject to any reduction in their wages by reason of the adoption of this agreement.

The qualification of "First Class Men" shall apply only to workmen capable of executing work in a satisfactory manner from detail drawings, and to machine men who are capable of caring for and setting up their own machines.

ARTICLE V. The party of the first part may employ one apprentice for every five bench men or fraction thereof, and one apprentice for every five machine men or fraction thereof.

The apprentices shall serve a term of three years at the following rates, viz:

Wages for the first year, Six Dollars ($6.00) per week.

Wages for the second year, Eight Dollars ($8.00) per week.

Wages for the third year, Ten Dollars ($10.00) per week.

Provided, however, no apprentice shall be engaged over nineteen years of age.

Apprentices over sixteen years of age shall be provided with an apprentice card issued by the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union. No apprentice shall voluntarily leave the employ of his original employer to be employed by any other employer subscribing to this agreement, unless said apprentice shall receive from his original employer a written release setting forth a relinquishment of all claims upon him.

The party of the second part FURTHER AGREES that no foreman shall be required to become a member of any union.

ARTICLE VI. The Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, being the party of the second part, hereby AGREES that the party of the first part shall be furnished with and have the right to use the Union Label issued by the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, and the party of the second part hereby further guarantees that all manufactured woodwork sent out by them shall be recognized as Union-made goods and handled as such by all trades Unions.

ARTICLE VII. The parties to this agreement de hereby adopt as a basis of settlement of all grievances, disputes and differences that may arise between the employers in the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association and the mechanics in the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, the plan of arbitration adopted at the conferences between the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association and the representatives of the Labor Unions held July 3d and July 9, 1903, a copy of which is attached to and made a part of this agreement, and they further AGREE that they will abide by the decision of the arbitrators and use any and all lawful means in their power to compel the members of their respective Associations to abide by their decision.

ARTICLE VIII. Both parties to this agreement shall at once elect two arbitrators with full power to act for the Association and the union, which shall form the joint arbitration board provided for in the attached arbitration plan, to whom shall be referred all questions in dispute for adjustment in our own trade.

Either of the parties to this Agreement to have the privilege of calling the board together when there is any question to be brought before it. Said board to convene within 24 hours after all members of same have received written orders so to do.

In the event of the trade arbitration board failing to agree on any questions at issue within three days, the subject matter shall be then referred to the higher court of arbitration as provided for in attached plan for final settlement.

ARTICLE IX. This agreement shall remain in effect from date of signing thereof until January 1, 1905.

For the Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association of Greater New York and vicinity, party of the first:

D. W. O'NEAL,
President of the Manufacturing
Woodworkers' Association.

[SEAL]

CHAS. P. MILLER,
Secretary of the Manufacturing
Woodworkers' Association.

[SEAL]

For the Woodworkers' Council of Greater New York and vicinity, party of the second part:

JAY FOX,
President of the Woodworkers,
Council.

[SEAL]

E. B. MORTON,
Secretary of the Woodworkers'
Council.

[SEAL]

Approved by the General Council of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union of America. THOS. I. KIDD, Secretary of the General Council of Amalgamated Woodworkers'
International Union of America.

[SEAL]

A comparison of the foregoing agreement will demonstrate that, while the U. B. members of the Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon worked 8 hours per day on the first 5 days of the week and 4 hours on Saturday, or 44 hours per week, at a minimum rate of $18, the Am. Woodworkers agreed and are now working 9 hours per day and 5 hours on Saturday, or 50 hours per week, at a scale ranging from $15 to $18.

By comparing the above agreement it will further be seen that the Am. Woodworkers are according the employers the privilege of employing non union men, while the agreement entered into by the employers with the U. B. provided for the employment of union men exclusively.

The treacherous action of the Am. Woodworkers and their dastardly onslaught on the eight-hour workday are further exposed in the following affidavits:

AFFIDAVIT.

STATE OF NEW YORK, CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK.

June 29, 1903.

The undersigned being duly sworn, depose and say that on June 22, 1903, in an interview with E. M. Pritchard, of 138th St. and Mott Ave., New York City, the proprietor of said Trim Mill at above address, told deponents that a week or so prior to this interview, that an officer of the Amalgamated W. W. I. U. of A. called at said Pritchard's office and offered to furnish and fill his mill and shops with members of the aforesaid Union if the said E. M. Pritchard would sign an agreement with the A. W. W. I. U. of A.

The conditions were to be 9 hours per day. The wages from $6.00 to $18.00 maximum. This shop had been organized by the U. B. C. & J. of A. in 1901, and had been working 8 hours per day or 44 hours per week with a minimum wage of $18.00, since June, 10, 1902.

On May 29, 1903, the said E. M. Pritchard, in conjunction with nine other Mill Owners and Manufacturers of Trim in Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon, locked out the members of the U. B. C. & J. of A. for the purpose of forcing them back to the 9 hour day and a reduction in wages.

We have personal knowledge that the A. W. W. did take our places in several of the mills and shops at this time, working 9 hours without an agreement and with non-Union Men with a full knowledge that the members of the U. B. were locked out.

Several affidavits of this character were presented to the President and Secretary of the A. F. of L. on June 30th or July 1, 1903, but no attempt was made by those officers to stop this dastardly onslaught on the 8 hour day in a section where it had been firmly established.

C. H. BAUSHER.
W. G. WOOD.

Sworn before me this 22d day of September, 1903. WALTER L. McLAUGHLIN, Notary Public No. 50, New York County.

STATE OF NEW YORK, CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK.

September 21, 1903.

The undersigned, a citizen of the City, County and State of New York, being duly sworn, deposes and says that in 1897 several of the Mills and Shops located in Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon were organized under the banner of the U. B. C. & J. of A., were manned exclusively and run under the jurisdiction of the U. B. under agreements made from time to time. The hours were reduced from 60 and 59 in 1897 to 54. The wages increased in like proportion.

On April 1, 1900, the hours were reduced to 50 per week with a Saturday half-holiday at a Minimum wage of $17.00 per week.

In January and February, 1902, we had 4 shops in Bronx working 8 hours or 44 hours per week at a Minimum Wage of $18.00 and in May, 1902, we made a general demand on all Mill Owners for an 8 hour day or 44 per week with a Minimum Wage of $18.00, and all the Mill Owners, both in Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon conceded to these demands and signed agreements with the U. B. to that effect; 21 in number. This included every Shop and Mill with the exception of one, in the aforementioned territory.

The U. B. C. & J. of A. organized all these mills and only members of the U. B. were employed in any of them.

On March 4, 1903, the Bronx Borough District Council of the U. B. issued a demand to all outside Boss Carpenters in Bronx Borough, Mt. Vernon and vicinity for an increase in wages, the same to take effect on May 4, 1903. But this demand did not apply to men working in the Trim Mills. The latter part of March, 1903, Hartman Bros. and Wilson & Adams Company, of Mt. Vernon, joined the Westchester County Builders' Association. Said Association sent out a Circular Letter to all Mill owners of the Bronx, requesting them not to send any Trim, etc., into Mt. Vernon as they anticipated Labor troubles. The Mill owners of Mt. Vernon had joined forces with the Boss Carpenters of that place to defeat our ends.

On April 18th the outside Carpenters of of Mt. Vernon, Bronxville and Tuckahoe and vicinity were called out to enforce the New Wage Schedule. Whereupon Hartman Bros. and Willson & Adams Company refused to sell Material to any employer, or any one who had signed our New Wage Schedule to take effect May 4th. On April 27th the men were taken out of the above two plants, "all being members of the U. B., they all came out." After the men had been out a number of weeks these two firms agitated and advocated to the other mill owners of the Bronx to join or form an association, and on about May 22d they formed the Manufacturers Woodworkers' Association. At this time the officers of the Amalgamated W. W. I. U. of A. appeared on the ground and immediately offered to take places of the Brotherhood Men on strike. They did so in Hartman Bros' Mill and in Willson & Adams' Company in Mt. Vernon, starting to work 9 hours per day, wages from $6.00 to $18.00 per week.

In the latter part of May the Manufacturers Woodworkers' Association passed a resolution to institute a Lockout against the U. B. to force them back to 9 hours and from that time until the 6th of June the following firms locked out all former employees: Hartman Bros., Willson & Adams Company, of Mt. Vernon; The Harlem River Lumber and Woodworking Company, E. M. Pritchard, M. F. O'Neill, Mott Haven Trim Mill, The City Woodworking Company, John Lanzer, J. C. Forbes and Eaton & Anderson.

These firms notified their men that they could return to work providing they would work 9 hours per day, wages $6.00 to $18.00 per week. No member of the U. B. could return on these conditions.

The Mills being all closed down and picketed, with the exception of Hartman Bros. and Willson & Adams Company, these two plants had started in the meantime and the officers of the A. W. W. I. U. of A. organized the same on conditions aforementioned. They also put forth every effort to induce Pritchard, The Harlem River Mill and others to start their plants with non-Union men and members of the A. W. W. I. U. One Jim Dunbar, an officer and member of L. U. No. 172, A. W. W., with a number of non-Union men, and members of the A. W. W. I. U. went to work in the City Woodworking plant and latter took his men to Lanzer's Mill, working 9 hours in both instances.

On July 16, 1903, the Manufacturers Woodworking Association entered into an agreement with the A. W. W. I. U. of A. to work 9 hours per day or 50 hours per week in all shops, with a first, second and third class wage schedule—namely, from $6.00 to $15.00 with Maximum of $18.00. The first class men must be able to take and do work from details and drawings. One apprentice to every five bench or machine hands or fraction thereof. No foreman to belong to the Union. These Mills working under these conditions to have the Union Label with a guarantee that the same was to be recognized and handled by all Union men.

The subjoined is a true copy of the agreement that the Brotherhood of Carpenters had with all the aforementioned firms, and there are at this time still Ten Mills and Shops in Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon working under this agreement—namely, 8 hours, or 44 hours per week, at a MINIMUM wage of $18.00.

While in the Mills where the A. W. W. have taken our places—namely, The Harlem River Lumber & Woodworking Company, E. M. Pritchard, M. F. O'Neal, Mott Haven Trim Mill, City Wood Working Company, John Lanzer, J. C. Forbes and Eaton & Anderson. The members of the A. W. W. are now working 9 hours per day.

AFFIDAVIT.

STATE OF NEW YORK, CITY AND COUNTY OF NEW YORK.

September 21, 1903.

Wm. T. Wood, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is a Business representative of the Brotherhood of Carpenters of the Bronx District, and that part of his duties as B. A. was to look after the following Mills: Harlem River Lumber and Woodworking Company, 137th St. and Gerard Ave.; E. M. Pritchard & Son, 138th St. and Mott Ave.; M. F. O'Neill, 139th St. and Rider Ave.; Mott Haven Trim Company, 139th St. near Morris Ave., and City Woodworking Company (formerly McKenzie Bros.), 134th St., near 8d Ave., and others. That the above Mills were organized (for the first time in their career) by the U. B. of C. & J. at various times from October, 1901, to December, 1902, and from then on until June 6, 1903, they each and all employed Brotherhood Men exclusively under an agreement to work 8 hours per day for 5 days in the week and 4 hours on Saturday, or 44 hours per week at $18.00 per week Minimum and continued to work under same until April 16, 1903, when a strike was ordered in the Harlem River Mill, and about two weeks later in E. M. Pritchard's Mill to assist the outside U. B. men in their strike in Manhattan. A few weeks later M. F. O'Neill's men were also taken out for the same cause, all the others remaining at work until about June 6, 1903, when through a combination of Mill Owners that had been organized into the Trim Manufacturers' Association locked their men out and informed them they could only return to work under a 9 hour day, or 50 hours per week.

This being a violation of our Rules, the U. B. men were compelled to remain out, and are out to the present time.

From the start of our strike, April 16, 1903, according to information from the Mill Owners in question, the officers of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' Union were in almost daily conference with the said Mill Owners in an endeavor to organize them under the banner of the A. W. W. I. U., offering to put men in our places at 50 hours per week and $18.00 Maximum, and to my positive knowledge did send their men in to work 9 hours per day for 5 days in the week and 5 hours on Saturday, and also done all possible to fill our places with non-Union men, and were fairly successful in so doing, and that they are at present working under said conditions. I further swear that at a meeting of the Arbitration Board, held in the Building Trades' Club, on a case between the said Mill Owners and the Brotherhood of Carpenters, that I read the original agreement signed by the New York Branch of the A. W. W. I. U. with the Manufactures Woodworking Association, of which all the aforementioned Mills (except City Woodworking Company are a part) and that in that agreement they agree to work 9 hours per day, or 50 hours per week, wages for men who can take work from plans and details, $18.00 per week, and for others, $15.00 per week. One Apprentice for every 5 men employed at the following rate: First year, $6.00; second year, $8.00; third year, $10.00. No foreman to belong to the Union. To supply them with their Union Label and guarantee to have their produce recognized as union and put up by all trades. Agreement was signed on July 16, 1903, and was to run until January 1, 1905.

WALTER L. McLAUGHLIN,
Notary Public No. 50, New York County.

Our General President deputized a committee to appear before the quarterly meeting of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L., held in the city of Washington in the latter part of September, to lay before that body documentary evidence showing that the Am. Woodworkers were scabbing on the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and violating the eight-hour workday rule in the Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon, established by our organization at a great expense and sacrifice, and to demand the revocation of their charter. Here is the report of the above committee:

NEW YORK CITY, Sept. 30, 1903.

Brothers Wm. D. Huber, G. P., and F. Duffy,
G. S., U. B. C. and J. of A., Greeting:

The undersigned committee, appointed by you to present the charges before the Executive Council of the A. F. of L., against the Amalgamated Woodworkers, and for the revocation of charter of said organization for the violation of the 8-hour workday in the Mills and Shops in Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon, N. Y., respectfully submit the following report:

Upon our arrival in Washington, Wednesday, Sept. 23d, 4:10 p. m., we immediately proceeded to the headquarters of the A. F. of L. and requested that a time be set for a hearing in the above case. Same was agreed upon for Thursday, September 24th, 2:00 p. m.

Your Committee, armed with all documents pertaining to the case, was on hand at appointed time and after considerable delay were admitted and found full Executive Council present; President Gompers presiding.

We presented our case to the best of our ability, first by submitting in evidence the affidavits, setting forth the facts and proving conclusively that the A. W. W. have violated the 8-hour day as charged in the complaint, by making agreements with our employers in the aforementioned District, to work 9 hours per day or 50 hours per week. A Sliding Scale of Wages with a Maximum of $18.00 per week. A copy of said agreement was submitted by us in evidence and it was admitted by T. I. Kidd, Secretary of A. W. W., as a correct copy.

These agreements were made with the employers while 271 of our men were locked out of the mills for refusing to work 9 hours per day.

The Executive Council was requested to compare the said agreement made by the A. W. W. with our employers and officially approved on July 16, 1903, with the original agreements made by the U. B. with these same employers, dating from December, 1902, and providing for an 8-hour day and a MINIMUM Wage of $18.00 per week.

Considerable other evidence was submitted in line of agreements we had, dating from 1897, providing that we had control and Jurisdiction over all these mills from the time they were first organized; also sworn testimony given before the Board of Arbitration in New York City on the same question.

Secretary Kidd, of the A. W. W., in his defense entered a general denial, and in a rambling statement accused the U. B. of various offences, but failed to produce (upon demand of your Committee) any documentary or other substantial evidence of where the U. B. had ever undermined them in hours or wages or scabbed it on them, in order to get control of any Shops, such as they have done in this case.

He also asserted that he felt indifferent to the entire matter and claimed that we had no standing before the Council as an award of jurisdiction had previously been granted in their behalf, and that the U. B. had refused to comply with the same. The U. B. absolutely refuses to accept the Downey decision, and we strenuously protested against said award being taken into consideration on the ground that it was unjust and contrary to the evidence submitted in the case. Further, Brother Bohnen then and there accused T. I. Kidd of the A. W. W., of being the author of said decision, and the said T. I. Kidd neither affirmed or denied this assertion. The case was then closed, after your Committee had been assured that no further evidence from either side would be considered without both parties to the controversy being so notified. We then inquired as to when a decision could be expected, and were informed that, owing to the number of cases before them for consideration, it might require a week or so.

The next morning, much to the surprise of your Committee, the Washington Post contained a statement, the purport of which seemed to be a decision in our case.

As this was wholly unexpected, the Committee determined to ascertain whether or not the statement was authentic, or authorized, and again called at headquarters of the A. F. of L., and were informed by President Gompers' Private Secretary that the members of the Executive Council, including Secretary Morrison, were out of town, and that the article aforementioned was the purport of decision rendered in our case, and given to the press. The Committee then requested that the official decision be forwarded to our General Office as soon as possible.

In conclusion, your Committee recommends that an immediate appeal be taken from the decision, and further, we fail to see the consistency displayed by the officers of the A. F. of L. in sending out circulars to all Labor organizations, requesting the same to appeal to their Representatives in Congress and Senate, urging them to pass an 8-hour bill, when they themselves, grant a license to a dual organization to violate and tear down the 8-hour day in a district where it had been thoroughly established, and that without the aid of Congress or the assistance of the A. F. of L., but through the sole efforts of the U. B. C. & J. of A. at a great expense and sacrifice.

Further, should this policy be continued, it will become necessary to change the name from American Federation of Labor to the Un-American Fakeration of Labor.

GEO. J. BOHNEN,
C. H. BAUSHER,
W. G. WOOD,
Committee.

President Gompers' communication notifying Gen. Sec. Frank Duffy of the action taken by the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. in this matter, and our General Secretary's reply to the same, heretofore; each of these documents is self-explanatory.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27, 1903.

Mr. Frank Duffy, Secretary, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, Box 520, Indianapolis, Indiana:

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER—Among other matters receiving the attention of the Executive Council at its meeting recently held in this city, was the application made by the U. B. for the revocation of the charter of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' Union. After careful consideration of the matter, both as presented by the representatives of your Brotherhood and of the Amalgamated Workers, as well as of all of the papers and documents submitted in this case, the Executive Council decided that the application to revoke the charter of the Amalgamated Workers be not granted. The Executive Committee further expressed the belief that both organizations entered into the agreement in good faith to abide by the decision of Umpire Downey, who heard the case and made his award, both organizations having previously agreed to abide by the same; and the Executive Council further believes that, if both parties to the agreement had abided by the award, the grievance complained of would cease.

By this mail I am also advising Secretary Thomas I. Kidd, of the Amalgamated Workers' International Union, of the decision reached by the Executive Council in this case.

Fraternally yours,

SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President American Federation of Labor.

OCTOBER 1, 1903.

Samuel Gompers, Esq., President American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C.:

DEAR SIR AND BROTHER—Your communication, under date of September 27, 1903, containing decision of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor in the demand of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, for the revocation of the charter of the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union from affiliation with your body, for violation of the Eight-Hour workday in Bronx and Mt. Vernon, N. Y., was received to-day and carefully considered.

It seems, according to your letter, that the Executive Council expresses the belief that both organizations entered into the agreement in good faith to abide by the decision of Umpire Downey. I hereby beg leave to inform you that no agreement was entered into at all to that effect at any time. The Delegates that represented this United Brotherhood at the New Orleans Convention of the American Federation of Labor consented to the substitute offered by Delegate Wilson of the Mine Workers, but did not agree to abide by any decision that might be rendered by the Umpire. The Convention was informed in very forcible and plain language by Delegate Bohnen and myself, that the laws of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America were made by the highest authority in our organization—the referendum vote of our members—and that the delegates representing the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America could not alter or amend them in any shape or form; nor could they accept any proposition that did not conform to their provisions.

We were desirous of having the entire controversy fully ventilated and investigated, thereby leading, if possible, to a satisfactory solution of this question of jurisdiction between the two organizations. The Convention accepted Delegate Wilson's substitute just as it was worded, but you can not find in any instance, where the delegates of this United Brotherhood agreed to abide by the decision of the Umpire, no matter what it might be.

However, this has nothing to do with the violation of the Eight-hour workday by the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union. The American Federation of Labor selected the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America to lead the fight in the Eight-Hour day movement thirteen years ago. We made the fight and won, at great sacrifice and enormous cost. We have now 410 cities working Eight Hours per day, among which is Bronx and Mt. Vernon. Members of the Amalgamated Wood Workers' International Union have taken our places at Nine hours per day, and for less pay, in the last two mentioned places; yet your Executive Council closes its eyes to their actions and let them go, under the guise of "retaliation."

Under these circumstances the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America herewith officially notify you that they appeal from the action of the Executive Council in this matter, to the Twenty-third Annual Convention of the American Federation of Labor, which will be held in Boston, Mass., commencing Monday, November 9th, next.

Fraternally yours,
FRANK DUFFY,
General Secretary.

Amalgamated Woodworkers Violating Downey's Decision and Scabbing In Topeka, Kansas

General Organizer S. J. Kent writes from Topeka, Kansas:

There is a union of the Amalgamated Woodworkers here and our members inform me that they go out from the mills on the jobs and put in store fronts, shelving, stairs, and sometimes put on trim, working nine hours for 27 cents per hour, while the scale of the United Brotherhood is 35 cents per hour and eight hours work. This is what huris.

S. J. KENT.

Scabbing in Scranton

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I find in both the August and September issues of THE CARPENTER articles on the controversy between the A. W. W. and the U. B. In regard to this matter we have had some experience right here in Scranton and probably a few words from one who knows would be desirable for the October issue. Some time in the later 90's a local of the A. W. W. was organized here in Scranton and the way they went to work it seemed as if the local was going to amount to something. They got all the shops pretty well in and started in to boom their label. In doing this they enlisted the assistance of L. U.'s 503 and 484 of the U. B. which had a joint membership here at that time of 600. We helped them along whenever we could. In the fall and winter of 1898 much of our time was devoted to the work of securing an agreement for them with the various shops and mills so that they could use the label. In this we were quite successful. We had a strong B. T. C. and all building trades were affiliated.

In the meantime the A. W. W. had their convention and E. E. Lord, of this city, was elected General President. Now, it is like carrying coals to Newcastle to cite that on the first of June, 1899, we went on a strike for the 8-hour day and improved conditions, the strike lasting three years and nine months and was settled by the employers giving us, with the exception of the apprentice system, about all we asked for. But where were the woodworkers all this time?

The very first move they made was Mr. Lord, who was foreman of one of the largest mills, ordering men under him to go out and hang screen doors and put up work on the outside; generally giving as a reason that they could put up the work that they themselves got out. This, of course, raised a howl, and two of their members left them forthwith and became members of 563. Mr. Kidd was notified and came here, and, to give him his due, did a graceful act in revoking the charter of the local of which their General President was President. But he has taken the opportunity every time he has been here since to throw chromos at himself for it. He has done more. Knowing the writer personally he took the liberty to mail him a copy of the filthiest issue of their journal that has been printed. Should this meet his eye I want to thank him for the insult.

Now, to get down to conditions here at the time they had a local here, and the same holds good today, I will say that we here are all competent men, and you will often find some of us doing rough hemlock work who are good cabinet-makers, if called upon. Now, those men are likely at any time to be called upon to go into the shop and work on the bench and from the bench to the machine and back to the bench again. We work eight hours and our rate per hour is higher than that of the men in the shops now under Mr. Kidd's system. If we were called into a shop we would have to renounce our union and join another which did not look for the conditions that we do. On the other hand, the hurry which called us to the bench may pass over and we are told to go outside again on such a job. Here we are between the devil and the deep sea; we have got to change our union again. Is this fair? It looks very much to me as if Mr. Kidd and his gang were in a combination with the employers and that it is their scheme to weaken the U. B. I am really surprised that the A. F. of L. panders to it. However, we hope for the best at the convention in Boston. We are not as strong here as we have been, but the same old spirit prevails, and you can depend on us to assist you in this matter as far as it lies in our power.

Yours fraternally,

J. F. LAVERY, R. S.,
Local Union 563.

American Federation of Labor Convention

The Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, under date of September 15th, issued a call to all affiliated unions for the twenty-third annual convention, to be held at Faneuil Hall in the city of Boston, Mass., beginning at 10 o'clock Monday morning, November 9, 1903, and to continue in session from day to day until the business of the convention has been completed.

A Closer Bond of Unity Among the Building Trades

On August 26th last an informal conference of the national representatives of the Structural Building Trades, comprising the Bricklayers and Masons, the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, the Plumbers, Gas and Steam Fitters, and Steam Fitters' Helpers, the Hod Carriers, and Building Laborers and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, was held at our headquarters on the fifth floor of the Stevenson Building, Indianapolis, Ind., for the purpose of devising ways and means and arranging plans for the better protection and welfare of the structural building trades men who work on buildings during the course of erection, or under repairs.

The policy of the new organization, when formed, will be:

First. The establishment of Local and International Boards of Arbitration, to settle disputes as they arise, without having to resort to strikes.

Second. When necessary, to give international sympathetic support to all trades affiliated where Local Boards fail in their efforts to adjust difficulties.

Third. To safeguard, protect and watch over the interests of the members of the organizations affiliated.

Fourth. To oppose the formation of dual or rival bodies.

Fifth. To protect the autonomy of the several trades represented.

Sixth. To keep agreements inviolate.

Seventh. To avoid strikes, if possible, and to prevent internal strife and friction in the building trades.

The conference concluded that the time has come when the building trades unions must stand together in order to regulate and control their own affairs, both locally and internationally, and obviate the necessity of bringing questions concerning their interests before men who have no knowledge whatever of their needs, and who care less.

As this was only an informal meeting to discuss present conditions, it was decided to hold a general conference in this city on October 8th next, of not more than three representatives from each of the National or International Structural Building organizations.

Quarterly Report of 2d General Vice-President R. E. L. Connolly

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 30, 1903.

To the G. E. B. of U. B. of C. and J. of A.:

Brothers, I hereby submit my report as 2d Vice-President, for the quarter ending on above date.

My first visit was to Local 1007, Sheffield, Ala., where I found about twenty of the members out on account of a union foreman having been reduced to the ranks and a non-union foreman installed in his place at the Sheffield furnace.

The matter was adjusted satisfactorily, the union foreman was reinstated and in addition the superintendent signed an agreement to recognize and abide by the working rules of L. U. 1007.

I next visited Tusculumbia and Florence, Ala., situated respectively three and five miles from Sheffield, and found but very few carpenters in either place—not enough to organize a local, the most of them already members of Local 1007.

From there I went to New Decatur, Ala., where I instituted No. 1543 with a fairly good membership and good prospects for the future.

Next I went to Huntsville, Ala. Talked to several carpenters, but failed to organize them at that time. However, I got a few interested and left some literature with them, and returned later and organized local.

Went from there to Columbus, Ga., where I found the carpenters had all gone to pieces and not even the semblance of a local left. Tried to get them together again but had no success. I went back there on two different occasions, and finally succeeded in getting probably 20 or 25 names on an application, but could not get them together to even perfect a temporary organization, and the matter still hangs fire. They seem to have a sort of family quarrel on hand and probably after the scrap is over they may be induced to do business. Bro. Ogletree passed through there a few days before I struck the town and he can give you the details if you desire them, as he is fully acquainted with the situation.

I visited Opelika, Ala., where 95 per cent. of the carpenters are colored. I talked with several of them upon the necessity of organizing, but they knew nothing of unions and the average colored man in the outlying district is a peculiar proposition and hard to impress with a new idea. I left some reading matter with them and got several to sign an application, but could not secure enough for a charter. Perhaps when I go that way again the seed I planted may have sprouted and I can do some business.

Went to Selma, Ala., where I found a colored local in fairly good shape, but white carpenters unorganized. Started work on white carpenters and finally got them together, got their application for a charter, and later returned to Selma and instituted the local, taking in practically every white carpenter in town.

Went to Anniston, Ala., where carpenters had made a demand for and were trying to enforce the nine-hour day on May 1st. Compromised the matter by an agreement to begin the nine-hour day on June 1st, which was satisfactory to the local union and all but one contractor; and the latest report I received from there states that everything is working smoothly.

Went to Talledaga, Ala., where I found nothing but colored carpenters and entirely ignorant in regard to the object and principles of unionism. Got several of them together and explained matters to them and had arranged for a meeting, but received a notice in the meantime from our Gen. President, Bro. Huber, to go at once to Columbia, S. C., and straighten out the internal affairs of No. 949. I went to Columbia and found No. 949 in the midst of a family jar due to the books of the F. S. being in pretty bad shape. I got books straight and also corrected other irregularities that I found existing in Nos. 949 and 69. Trade conditions are good in Columbia and they have established a nine-hour day.

Went to Augusta, Ga., where the men were having trouble over the enforcement of their trade rules and establishing the nine-hour day. In company with a committee I visited the contractors and was successful in settling all matters in dispute.

While at Columbia, S. C., I went across the river to New Brookland and secured sixteen names and $11 for a charter for a new local. Had quite an interesting experience at this point. As it was impossible to get a hall that night I called the meeting to order, made my talk to them and effected a temporary organization on a porch by moonlight.

I am now at Charleston, S. C., where our men are locked out, as well as other crafts, because they formed a Building Trades Council. The city is well organized and the men seem determined to exercise their rights as free citizens of a so-called free country.

With kind regards to all the members of the Board, I am,

Fraternally,

ROBT. E. L. CONNOLLY,
Second Vice-President.

It is easy enough to arouse enthusiasm with a new idea, but not so easy to compel thought by the expression of an old truth.

THE person who understands the multiplication table should have little difficulty in understanding the power of trade unionism.

A REVOLUTION to "place the people in power" is not half so important as to give them some good horse sense.—Industrial Advocate.

The Wonderful Law of "Employer's Liability."

BY HAL SCRIVER.

PERHAPS there is no better illustration of the way in which our whole system of common law has been moulded in the interest of the possessing and employing and profit-taking class than that department of the law which deals with the civil responsibility of the employer for injuries sustained by his employees at their work.

It is pretty generally known, of course, that a workingman who is injured in the performance of his duties has a pretty slim chance of recovering damages from his employer. But this is generally attributed only to the power of the employer, by his greater wealth, to employ the ablest counsel and, taking advantage of "the law's delays," to tire out the plaintiff. It is probably not very generally known how much worse is the legal standing of an injured employe in such a case than that of an outsider injured in the course of the same industry, as—for example—a passenger or even a pedestrian hurt in a railway accident; it is probably not very generally known among workmen that, aside from delay and inequality in the administration of justice, the law itself discriminates, by a very curious and horribly consistent theory, against the workingman.

When a workingman who has been injured at his work sues the employer for damages, he generally learns, from the defendant's plea, three things that he never thought of before: First, that he, the workingman, has assumed the risk of injury in taking the job and thus relieved the employer, in advance, from all responsibility; second, that the accident was due to the negligence of some fellow-servant, and that the employer is not responsible for this; third, that he has himself been guilty of some negligence which contributed to the accident—and he is likely to be very much astonished at finding that what had seemed to him a measure of common-sense precaution was, in the eyes of the law, an act of contributory negligence that quite debars him from claiming damages.

Let us take the three points separately, remembering that they form parts of one logical theory of law.

The fundamental point is the "assumption of risk," which grows out of the legal theory of the "free contract of employment." When a workingman applies for a job and gets it—in some cases not even knowing, until he gets his first pay-envelope, what his wages are to be—the law presumes that an entirely voluntary and equal contract is made between the employer and the employe. The legal mind reasons thus: This man was free to take this job or not; no law compelled him to take it; in the eye of the law, therefore, he took it of his own free will, and presumably with full knowledge of all its conditions. The law deals in abstractions; it takes no account of the cold fact that the workingman is unable, under the existing economic system, to employ himself, that the only alternative actually before him may be to take the first job he can get at the employer's terms, or to go away and starve on his "freedom before the law." To repeat: The law says that in taking the job he has made a voluntary contract, one of the provisions of which is that he assumes all the ordinary risks of the employment. He is quite unconscious of having made such a contract until he gets maimed and asks for damages. His share in it is as passive as that of the saint or the sinner in the Presbyterian "scheme of salvation"—and the legal theory is just as logical in itself and just as little based on actual human conditions as the Calvinistic doctrine.

On top of this comes the theory of "negligence of a fellow servant," an aggravation of the unjust rule we have explained, and yet a logical inference from it. One of the ordinary risks of any employment in which two or more persons work together is, of course, the chance that one may be injured through the fault or neglect of another workman. In taking the job and voluntarily assuming its risks, you therefore voluntarily assumed this among them, and the employer is not responsible. If, for instance, a switchman negligently sets a wrong switch, with the result that a train is derailed and some trainmen and some passengers hurt, the passengers may have a good case for damages against the railway company, but the trainmen have none. As we learned in our copy-books, "Circumstances alter cases"—and it is a very untoward circumstance to be a wage-worker.

But the third point, the theory of "contributory negligence," leads to yet more astonishing results. If it can be shown that any negligence on the plaintiff's part contributed to the accident from which he suffers, he has no case, even though it be proven that the employer was also and even in a much greater degree positively negligent. And what is contributory negligence?

If you take a job at some work you are not very familiar with, and if, through your inexperience, ignorance of its dangers, you get hurt—the responsibility is on your own head. You chose that employment of your own free will, says the law; you are supposed to have known all about it before you chose it; if you did not know, so much the worse for you.

If the foreman or superintendent orders you to do some part of the work that does not belong to your ordinary duties, and if, knowing that he has power to discharge you for disobedience, you obey him, and if you get hurt in trying to do this unfamiliar work—again, the responsibility is on your own head. Your free contract of employment did not require you to do that other work, says the law; if you did not wish to do it you were perfectly free to refuse and get discharged, and go hunt another job; you complied with the foreman's request of your own free will, and if you got hurt in consequence, so much the worse for you.

A third illustration, still more striking: If you know that the machinery with which you work is out of order and is a source of danger to you, and if you inform the employer of the fact, but continue to work there, and if the employer neglects to have it put in good order, and if you get hurt in consequence—still, the responsibility is on you, and not on the employer. You knew that the work was dangerous, says the law; you were free to quit, if you did not care to take the chance of being injured; you voluntarily continued at the work, and if you got hurt, so much the worse for you. And so the fact that you have warned the employer of the dangerous condition of his shop, which you would naturally suppose to be the proper thing to do, and to be a point in your favor, becomes a telling point against you as evidence that you knew and willingly assumed the extra risk.

In a word, in all ordinary cases, in order for an injured employe to recover damages from the employer, he must prove: First, that the accident was one outside the ordinary risk of such work; second, he must disprove the allegation that it was due to the fault of a fellow-workman, and third, he must disprove the allegation that it was partly due to his own negligence, or that he knew of the danger before the accident occurred.

Let no one suppose I am spinning this wonderful theory of law "out of my inner-consciousness." Each point in it could be illustrated by hundreds of judicial decisions or supported by citations from authoritative legal text-books. This is the well-established principle of the common law and, even where special statutes have modified some parts of it, the courts have in very many cases set aside these statutes as "violating the employe's sacred constitutional right of free contract."

Space forbids much comment. But there is important comment to be made, which I postpone to the next issue of this paper. For the present, let me only urge the thoughtful reader to consider the strict and relentless logic with which these startling conclusions are derived from the theory of "free contract" between employer and employe. Common Sense, taking Logic for guide, starts along this time hallowed road of Free Contract and proceeds, growing more and more puzzled all the time, till she stands amazed at that rule about the workman who informs his boss of a defect in the machine and thereby forfeits his claim for damages if hurt. But this is Nonsense you have led me to, cries Common Sense. Not my fault, replies Logic; I have led you faithfully along the Free Contract road; you are on the wrong road, that is all.

A MAN's contribution card is the indicator of his character. Self-preservation is the first law of nature, and the man who is not true to his own interests will never be true to his employer's.—Quarrymen's Journal.

If the masses of the people elect a President it might take a revolution to seat him. If the plutes can call out the army to squelch a strike on a railway, they can do so to squelch a strike at the polls. But let's try it.—Seattle Labor Gazette.

Noblesse Oblige

"Noblesse oblige" is not only a good moral principle but also a good sound maxim of prudence or enlightened self-interest. The skilled workman, being better paid and better organized, owe it to their own future safety, as well as to their present feeling of brotherhood, to help the unskilled, the laborers and helpers and operatives, who get lower wages for harder work and are not so well organized. If the skilled men regard themselves as an "aristocracy of labor," superior to the mass of the unskilled, they may reasonably expect that these latter will regard them with dislike and will take their revenge when occasion offers. If ten men are getting three dollars a day and ninety are toiling for one dollar a day, it is both the plain duty and the plain interest of the ten to help improve the condition of the ninety, even before demanding any further improvement for themselves.

Corruption Spreads from Top Down

Doubtless it is true that some trade union officers are corrupt; that some of them take bribes from employers to call off strikes or to cause strikes against rival employers. There are some black sheep in every large flock. We do not pretend that trade unionists are all spotless angels. The mass of the workers are honest—infinitely more honest than the mass of the employers. We have no doubt that the great majority of the rank and file, and the majority of the officers, too, are glad to have dishonesty exposed and punished and stopped wherever it exists. But in the midst the present outcry against dishonest trade union officials two or three things need to be considered. First, that it takes two to make a corrupt bargain and that we wish justice might see as keenly and smite as hard on the bosses' side as on ours; second, that such union officials as do abuse their powers for the sake of a "graft" are only following the almost universal example set them by business men, who habitually sneer at the idea of any honesty outside the fear of the law, all the commandments of whose decalogue may be comprehended in one: "Get something for nothing." It is a dishonest system. Dishonesty spreads from the top down; it is well to check the extension of its branches down into the working class; it is still more important to strike at its root in the profit system.

Rather the Reverse

President Hadley says the organized workingmen are "idealists," because they aspire to economic equality. Some men are naturally stronger, some more skillful, some more intelligent than others, he says, therefore some must always be rich and some poor. The logic is bad. Because my muscles are better developed or my brain or nerves better nourished than yours, is that a good reason that I should be well fed and that you should go hungry? Rather the reverse—it is a reason that you should be better fed, in order that you also may develop your strength and skill and intelligence. Surely the aim of civilized society ought not to be to evolve a few superior individuals and a mass of inferior ones, but rather to raise the lowest toward the level of the highest. "Bear ye one another's burdens" is good Scripture. Mutual aid is quite as important a factor in progress as the struggle for existence; that is good science. "Each for all and all for each" is good sense in economics and politics.

Is the World Growing Better?

BY MARGARET SCOTT HALL

BY the study of political economy and history, ancient, medieval and modern, relating to the government of nations and the progress of civilization, we obtain a correct perspective of the times in which we live.

The last century stands pre-eminent in the development of science, and there is a material, also a spiritual interpretation of its wonderful achievements.

To be well balanced we must cultivate the material or practical and the spiritual side of our nature proportionately.

Abnormal development of one characteristic to the neglect or exclusion of the others produces extremists or those commonly known as faddists or cranks.

Religious students, theorists and cranks have expressed themselves on the question, "Is the world growing better?" Conservative writers have ably handled the subject, but it is a live question that still remains unanswered.

However, a study of the question in all its bearings proves opportune as well as interesting.

The tendency of the age shows an ever-increasing spirit of philanthropy shedding its benediction over all parts of the civilized world. A sweet humanizing influence of brotherhood blesses with tender sympathy suffering and affliction in all classes of society. From one point of view—and a very true and beautiful reasoning it is—we see charity growing broader and deeper in thought and deed.

Whether out of proportion with the pain and sorrow of the people and the prevalence of evil, must be determined through investigation by the individual.

The answer to the question depends upon individual opinion.

We attend Bible conferences and religious conventions; we enjoy the grand, inspiring teachings of the consecrated leaders of modern Christianity. Learning of them, we feel that Christ's spirit of love is at last leavening the whole lump of sin's corruption and humanity's degeneracy.

Our hearts are uplifted by hope, and sublime faith bids us look beyond the gloom of encroaching evils to a happy solution of all the country's intricate problems, when the ultimate evangelization of the world shall be accomplished.

It is good and wholesome to refresh our hearts with pleasant anticipations and bright visions reflected from a personal observation of life's sunny side. But while we walk in sunshine there is a side that lies in shadow. Never in the world's history have men been more liberal in their charities, but never has there been a time when sin and its woeful results appealed more strongly to human sympathy.

There has never been a time when general conditions presented a wider field for philanthropic work. Through the medium of organized charities the public mind is being enlightened as never before concerning the industrial abuses so prevalent in our cities, and through the same source we hear something of organized Christian effort made for the relief of destitution and the correction of crime.

In the crusade against evil we may help to answer satisfactorily the question, "Is the world growing better?" or we may feebly and indifferently wait for it to be answered for us. The very fact of such a question arising gives evidence of a doubt that the world is growing better, and so long as a doubt exists the forces of good must adopt the aggressive policy with wrong.

Evil in all lines remains unabated. It is the increase of vice, the injustice, oppression and dishonor prevailing in trade and profession—it is the activity of sin that creates the necessity for a ready response of benevolence, and a general diffusion of humane sentiment.

Pessimism would not improve the situation and it is well to hope and to work for the realization of the world's improvement, but we may look around us at the sin and misery, the abject poverty and consuming selfishness and know that good scarcely keeps pace with evil in the progress of the world.

The divine element in humanity in opposing sin, and realizing the necessity to "overcome evil with good," produces increased activity in all religious life; hence we are so prone to believe the world is growing better. We know so little of the low, dark side of life and its actual corruption that ignorance renders us incompetent of an impartial answer,

The respectable world hears of all large donations to public charities; it hears of the splendid philanthropy of the ultra-rich; the building of churches, sending forth of missionaries, endowment of colleges and libraries, and that same class of the eminently respectable does not know, or seek to know, the darker side where vile and criminal acts compose the drama of life for multitudes of the world's population. The comfortable, self-respecting citizen does not realize that misery and destitution overtakes many through sickness and misfortune, and, not knowing, the prosperous world does not care.

Good must increase to counteract wrong, and by harmonizing opposing elements keep the world's moral balance.

By familiarity with the better and brighter side of life, and being protected from contact with the bad, we fail to realize the proportion.

Reasoning from cause to effect it seems that through God's providence ordering the process of evolution, good shall at last predominate over evil. But while wrong and oppression are uniting in a supreme effort to control all the forces of earth, while the sin of intemperance proves invincible, while low resorts of infamy continue to flourish, while the friction between capital and labor finds no arbitration, while poverty, ignorance and degradation continue, while from the ranks of youth our reformatories are filled to overflowing and recruits are annually furnished the jails, while men graduate in crime, the increase of goodness and purity does not justify the assurance that the world grows better.

An affirmative answer would be premature. There are many problems to be solved that are becoming more and more complex; there are many errors to be corrected and many crooked paths to be made straight.

Industrial unrest demands reform in the business relations of the country.

Agitated problems are increasing and they concern all the world and all the people, but the practical solution of the one great problem that embraces all others will answer the question, "Is the world growing better?"

When the child problem is solved and a Christianized youth reared to noble and honorable maturity, time will answer in the affirmative, gloriously and without doubt, "The world is growing better."

The Real Criminals

The real criminals in the industrial field have been recently brought to light and at a time when the labor unions have been made the scapegoat for all the ills that beset us. Feather-brained economists tell us unions are no good. Merchants and builders have been sandbagged by combinations of contractors and have blamed the unions for the high prices. Carnegie's private secretary exposes his former boss by producing letters which show that at the time Carnegie was hiring an army of Pinkertons to shoot his workmen full of lead because they wanted $1 10 a day he was selling steel at $28 a ton that cost $12 to produce. The press of the country has been pouring forth volumes recently because a business agent had been given money by a contractor, at the same time suppressing the numerous instances where the business agents of the employers had been trapped in attempts at bribery. It has also been demonstrated beyond a reasonable doubt that criminal pools of building material and supply firms have caused all the trouble, which is very timely. The wholesale corruption in the postoffice caused less violent press comment than the error of a single trade union official. The significance of these events is all very plain. It is nothing more than an organized stealthy attempt to destroy the institution that has secured more justice for the people than all others, the labor unions. District Attorney Jerome of New York, who made so much fuss about what he was going to do for the labor unions there, has suddenly become officially paralyzed for the reason that his activity promised to uncover the bribing contractors. Coming nearer home, we have two employers' walking delegates, one of which favors the use of cold lead and the other cold cash, and in their struggle for supremacy in their line of activity lies the seed of their downfall, for in this struggle money or lead can not result in anything but disaster to them. As the real criminals have now been found, it is now in order for Marshall Field to retract his widely circulated charge against the trades unions and put the blame where it belongs, upon the criminal manufacturers' combines and their walking delegates.—Union Labor Advocate.

Success

BY FRANK DUFFY

WE read from time to time in the public press, under big headlines, articles on "How to Succeed in Life," "The Best Road to Success," etc. They catch our eye and draw our attention. We devour them word for word, for we are all anxious to be successful, no matter what trade, calling or occupation we may follow. Our intention and determination is to become rich. Our idea of success is to horde up dollar after dollar until we become wealthy. Our ambition is to gain a position of prominence in the world, from which we can look on our fellow-men and say, "See what we have done, how we have succeeded; follow our example, young man, and become prosperous." In this race for success, for wealth, for independence, have we been fair, just or honest? Have we not crushed some poor fellow to the wall in our greed, avarice and mean dealings? If we have, is this success? It may appear so, but in our hearts we know it is not. Wealth, prominence, position, is not success. In attaining these objects our nature becomes hardened, our finer feelings dulled and our character blurred in the eyes of our fellow-men. What then is success? Is it to gratify personal ambition—to gain the highest office in the land, to become highly educated, famous in the arts, in eloquence or in statesmanship, or is it to amass a large fortune at the expense of others? Any of these desires may be gained, or all of them for that matter, and still life may be a dismal failure, devoid of usefulness. All that this world can furnish or give, if obtained at the expense of honor and principle, is not success. It is, therefore, evident that the most useful life is the most successful one. Our great object in this world should be to elevate mankind, to be of some good to the human race, to improve the condition of things under which we live, and to make the world better than we found it. Wealth has very little to do with it. Most of the men who have been of real value to the world died poor, without a cent; yet they were successful, and are held up to us as examples to follow. To attain success we must develop character, achieve a higher and nobler manhood and make the most of opportunities as they come along. Be upright, honest, decent, industrious, sober, and you will be successful. The man who goes through life in this fashion, working hard, trying to better himself and his fellowmen, to educate the rising generation, who abides by the golden rule, who sows the seeds of kindness on the rough paths of life and pours the oil of peace upon troubled waters, can be just as successful as Schwab, Morgan or Carnegie, and perhaps far more useful to the world than either of them, even if he never owned or controlled a thousand dollars.

CAPITALIST production as now developed works almost automatically. All the parts of this wonderful machine are adjusted to work together in a manner that always produces the same result; that is, the capitalists get all the grist except enough to keep the machine in motion. The two principal valves, "wages" and "prices" are so arranged that one sets the other and the result is always the same—the loafers get it all.

Be noble! And the nobleness that lies in other men, sleeping, but never dead, will rise in majesty to meet thine own—Lowell.

The Modern Pharisee

BY MARGARET SCOTT HALL.

VERILY, as of old, the Pharisee flourishes in the land, but "Every man's way is right in his own eyes." He appropriates all of the good things of earth for self, he sits in high places and commands the common run of humanity. The more he can acquire for self, regardless of who must suffer thereby, the higher he sits in his own estimation. When avarice fills the soul, principle and justice towards others find no place with him, but he considers himself a good man and bribes many of his victims to say so to an admiring world.

He is called a consistent member of a fashionable church, though the bulk of his religion is in his wife's name.

He prays sometimes, and considers himself so consecrated that he would no doubt be greatly shocked at the reproduction of his thought and aim in the form of a prayer. Hoping to escape his condemnation for sacrilege, however, we reverently transcribe the Pharisee's prayer.

He communes with himself in this wise: "I am so much better than other men. God, I thank Thee that I am not as other men are. I am not so sinful as others. Thou knowest I am charitably inclined, though I seldom indulge those inclinations. It is necessary to my own interests that I profit by the adversity I create for a poorer brother. Forgive him for being mean enough to make unpleasant remonstrances because he was simple enough to be taken advantage of. If I had not cheated him some other man would, and I need such chances in my business. Relationship and the brotherhood of man sounds well, but plays no part in business transactions. Self-interest comes first; my brother must look out for himself. For this same excellent reason Thou knowest, Lord, that I deprived my sister of her humble home, and set her adrift on the cold charities of the world. She should have looked out better for herself, and she would not have died of privation and neglect and left her orphaned children to wander, helpless and homeless, over the earth. Thy Holy Book saith, 'He who does not provide for his own household is worse than an infidel.' I provide well for my own household and thank Thee for the privilege of serving Thee in this way.

"I sit in my counting-house and see my investments accumulate rich increase day by day. Thousands are toiling in sweat and dust and misery to keep the steady stream of my prosperity flowing. Help me to keep them at it, Lord, for my cares are many, and because of low wages the ignorant wretches are often complaining. I thank Thee that the accident of birth and a conservative estimate of money—some call it miser's grip—places me above want.

"I thank Thee with a glad heart that Thou hast prepared a place of everlasting punishment for the dirty rabble who annoy Thy elect with their grievances and their strikes. It is 'casting pearls before swine' to give them more than enough wages to keep them alive and with strength to work. Teach them to appreciate all that is done for them.

"I am thankful that I am always right and that money is all-powerful in the land Thou givest us to control. I am thankful the ignorant masses who serve us must, through necessity, accept humbly whatever terms their superiors stipulate. They do not know enough to enjoy the liberty accorded them.

"Thou knowest if their condition and environment were improved their living expenses would increase and proportionate demands would make inroads on the surplus capital we now enjoy. This thought is intolerable and Thou knowest conditions must remain unchanged.

"We build for them many churches, Lord, and pay their preachers a liberal salary to teach them of Thy humble life, and exhort them to a Christian spirit of patience and resignation. Lord, Thou knowest how good I am, and how generous in all popular charities. I also pay into Thy treasury annually a goodly sum. I pray Thee continue to give me money and I will worship it truly and consistently all the days of my life. Amen."

And this is the daily prayer of the modern Pharisee who owns and directs the earth—perhaps not as he repeated it, but most certainly as we see him live his religion.

Pleasing Developments

One of the most pleasing developments of recent months has been the awakening of the Japanese and Mexican laborers of the Pacific coast to activity and loyalty to the working class. In several instances this year, on the sugar-beet ranches and railway construction in Southern California and in the fisheries of British Columbia, these workingmen, who have hitherto been used as scabs to keep the native workers down, have organized and given brave and intelligent support to their white brother toilers. From South Africa comes the news that the Chinese workers there have taken a similar stand. It will be a great advantage gained if national and racial prejudices among the workers can be overcome, and every white workingman should use his influence to hasten the tendency.

Steadfastly Forward

The march of organizations towards a long-expected goal, towards the fulfillment of theories and predicted conditions of the betterment of the human race, causes them often to stand face to face with defeat and disappointment. But they do not give up. Steadfastly forward, step by step, to better conditions, striving to attain a stronger position; always on the alert for the adoption of any new feature that will strengthen and build up labor, so that the great mass of followers may enjoy their natural rights. Thus it is that the changes in systems come and go.

The record of labor organizations proves that only by a close adherence to the best and most improved business methods and consistent laws for their government and operation, can they expect to develop the highest possibilities. —Boilermakers' Journal.

Occupations and Longevity

With regard to the occupations which insure longevity, it is the universal testimony that clergymen reach the highest age, being close run by gardeners and vine dressers. Ordinary agricultural laborers, although their occupation is so largely in the open air, are not conspicuous as long lives, except in France, Sweden and England. People working with wood are longer lived than those whose occupations are with metals, and both attain a higher age than textile workers and workers in chemical industries. The shortest-lived people are miners, except in England, where the superior mining regulations and admirable sanitary arrangements have a beneficial effect. In England and Norway sailors and fishermen live to a far greater age than in Germany and France. —Exchange.

Comments on Industrial Complications

BY MARGARET SCOTT HALL

WITH marvelous fortitude and patience the laboring world has fostered organization, until unionism has spread and taken root all over the country. It has assumed mammoth proportions, and its strength is feared and despised by capitalist combinations that followed the example of concentration, and then condemned it in those whom their plan most adversely affected. If it is right for capital to organize, why should it be base for labor to exercise the same policy?

Capital, hitherto engaged in absorbing all the surplus production of the country, becomes enraged and alarmed at the aggressiveness of labor's union.

The organization of labor has gone quite far enough, in capital's opinion; it is time for it to end. But the labor union has not toiled to the heights, to at last, through internal strifes and divisions, fail of accomplishing its intended results. Capital now organizes associations termed "protective," to formulate plans ostensibly for the promotion of peace; but the confidence of labor has been so often betrayed, it mistrusts that such associations, protective of capital's interests, would foil and counteract the purposes of the labor union. Strife in the union is the one desired event capital has long anticipated for labor. Every disagreement in unionism causes capital to rejoice.

There is no wrangling in the ranks of organized capital. It presents a solid phalanx against all industrial movements, and watches in high glee every indication of dissension in labor's camp.

It prophesies the disintegration of the labor union, and the wish is father of the prophecy.

In the most powerful central body of labor, where organization has reached the highest development, capital asserts the decline has set in and, like a bubble that has expanded to its utmost capacity, unionism is ready to collapse.

Capital controls most things desirable to humanity's physical comfort and well-being. It has bought about everything on earth that is purchasable. It is supposed to rule politics, usually buys acquiescence and approval of the press, sometimes corrupts the clergy and wins indulgence from the pulpit, and by cruel force of circumstances, and through all channels, oppresses labor, until, instead of co-operation with and respect for labor, capital feels only a brutal contempt, ill disguised, for the class it has outrageously wronged with impunity.

This state of feeling is not conducive to amicable settlement of differences, nor does it portend improvement in the strained relations between the contending forces.

Capital is not only well pleased when the trades dispute, but it has a wedge ready for every split occurring in labor's organization.

It hastens to widen every breach made by domestic strife in labor's clan, and hopefully waits and watches for the inevitable fulfillment of its prophecy of the union's speedy "finish."

Has not capital jumped to conclusions somewhat prematurely? Honor is a rare substance, but it still exists, and it is above price and incorruptible.

The labor union is based on honor, principle and justice, and such a foundation can not crumble.

Through all the agitation and strife there comes assurance that the laboring world is at last mentally alive, awake and thinking. There is satisfaction in the knowledge that, though labor's oppressor predicts the passing of the union, the growth and development of labor's organization has roused the toiler's dormant faculties, and all the honor and chivalry of our nation is alert to the situation.

Justice must be an unknown quantity in any man's character, who can not pity the toiler in his dire extremity, but would condemn him for discontent with the sphere in which God has placed him!

Organization has mercifully uplifted the struggling masses to a higher plane of existence, where nobler ambitions may become possible. Right and justice must prevail, and concentrated effort will prove invincible for wrong and the mighty forces at capital's command.

Organization has taught the people to see and realize conditions of injustice as they truly exist, and may heaven grant it wisdom and courage to find a remedy for the tyranny of evil.

Labor's revolution may be at hand, but when organization accomplishes the supreme purpose for which it originated, it will have served its generation well, and instead of decline and decay will pass on with time into more ideal conceptions for the good of mankind.

For Croupy Children

On a small table beside my bed stand a lamp, two nails, a tin cup containing one tablespoonful of mutton tallow or lard, two tablespoonfuls of turpentine, a deep bib with strings and two safety pins, with which to pin on a piece of flannel the shape of the bib. As soon as the baby coughs hard I light the lamp, put the tin cup over it (on the two nails) and heat the mixture until it smokes. I then rub baby's chest well, as hot as I can use the turpentine, and then put on the flannel pinned to the bib, tying the soft tape strings around the neck. It may sound like a fairy tale, but if the cough is not too bad it absolutely disappears; if very bad, it becomes so mild and the breathing so different that a distracted mother sleeps in peace. With this same remedy used hot pneumonia has twice been averted in a neighbor's family. —Woman's Home Companion.

of $12,208.25, the largest amount received at any one meeting being $958.11. The amount paid to members in various benefits being $4,670.

In conclusion I will say that, while our accomplishments are to be credited to the interest and activity displayed by our membership and the wise management of our D. C., the success of our organization and its methods has to a great extent been brought about by the untiring efforts and efficient work of our Business Agents.

We all agree that, as regards these officers, we have made no mistake in our selections.

THE amount of wages you get in money cuts no figure. How much can you buy with it? It's what your wages will buy that determines the real amount you are getting for your labor.

THE capitalist with a bottle of ink and a steel pen can increase profits faster than the strongest union on earth can increase wages. You can't beat a man at his own game—the only way is to break up the game.

Practical Wood Carving

BY FRED T. HODGSON

IV.

THERE is a very simple sort of carving much practiced in Europe, by amateur workmen, called scratch carving. This is the simplest of all kinds of carving requiring very little experience of relief, and merely the use of some simple tool like the veiner to carry it out. Indeed, it is only necessary to mention that the wood selected for this purpose should have no very pronounced grain, and to give a design, to fulfill practically all the needs of the workman in this regard. Scratch carving has the simplicity of chip carving, without being confined to the geometrical class of design which must set a limit on the younger sister, so to speak, of this art. In selecting the wood I would point out that it is an advantage to take something where the point of the tool is not likely to be led astray by a pronounced grain. Whitewood or basswood are very good materials to hit on, and very good also for another purpose of which I must now speak; that is, good for taking coloration, for one of the beauties of scratch carving is that it leaves the surface of the wood smooth as ever and prepared to receive staining, which will readily soak in a ground cleaned over with a router, being sucked in so greedily that no "surface" can be obtained. A little delicate coloring in a case like this would combine handsomely with the simple in-cutting of the veiner to produce a really handsome and somewhat novel effect. Among workmen the value of this combination is not so well known as it should be.

Fig. 20 shows a small stand for a flower-pot or for a palm plant, or it might be used for a tabouret. The top is scratch carved with the design as shown in Fig. 21.

Fig. 22 shows a working detail for the sides as shown in Fig. 20. The wood stand may be made of stuff seven-eighths of an inch thick. A fair workman will make one of these stands in a couple of evenings and be well pleased with his work when he has finished it.

As I desire to make these articles useful as well as instructive and suggestive, I have made it my business to gather in wherever I could such items of carving as I thought would at once be within the grasp of the average workman and yet have a value when completed that would in some measure compensate him for the time, trouble and cost of material employed in making the work. To this end it has occurred to me that the names so frequently given to suburban houses offer an opportunity of which few hitherto have availed themselves for the display of artistic talents. I am aware that a transparent device by which the name of the house is given, for instance, in the fanlight, has many advantages in some of the rather poorly lit roads and avenues of our suburbs, and, as I take it that most houses are provided already with some arrangement, I do not propose to supercede it, but rather to suggest something which will add to the beauty of the exterior, while at the same time serving a really useful purpose.

There is no reason why carving should not be adopted in such a case as this. If the work is done in hardwood it will stand an indefinite amount of wear, and certainly requires a great deal less attention than metal work, such as brass plate; in fact, it requires no attention at all.

However, I think it requires no words of mine to commend this notion to wood-carvers, and I shall proceed at once to say what has to be said about the particular difficulties of this task. In the first place we shall use a very thick wood and leave round it a margin rather greater than that shown in the sketch, Fig. 22. This margin is reserved for pieces of molding to be tacked on. I assume that the greatest prominence will be wanted for the name of the house and there are two methods by which such prominence may be secured. In the first place we may clear away the wood and leave the letters standing out farther than all the decoration, or, on the other hand, in view of the fact that the foliage and escutcheon are about in equal relief, and that the clearing away so much wood forms a difficult and troublesome task, I suggest that the letters should be cut in fretwork and fastened on with tiny brads or screws. For this carving I strongly recommend staining, provided some weather-resisting medium is employed. The fret cutting of the letters should be made to serve a useful purpose. If, for instance, we choose oak for the background, then we might put the name in lighter wood, such as pear tree. Such a scheme would assist the carving in emphasizing the name of the house.

The illustration as shown will be quite effective, but, if a greater contrast is wanted, the letters may be gilded with gold leaf, or enameled letters might be employed, leaving the carved back as shown.

This piece of work is not difficult. It may also be applied to house numbers.

At Fig. 24 I show a design for a carved photograph frame, which makes a very nice piece of work. It is carved very flat, with the ground just slightly lowered, and light relief put into the leaves. The center, of course, is cut out to receive the photo. The carving may be incised if that is thought desirable, but it will not look so rich as having it carved as designed. The rosettes may be carved from the solid, or they may be made independent and glued on to the panel. The photo frame may be left for hanging or it may have a small leg hinged to the back so that it may stand on a mantle, table or bracket, the same as a small easel.

This frame is designed in the style of the "new art," which is so much in vogue at the present time among artists and those affecting "high art."

A Method of Dividing a Trapezoid

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

In your April number of THE CARPENTER I saw a method of dividing a trapezoid, a figure wider at one end than the other but having sides parallel. This requires considerable knowledge of mathematics and is beyond the average carpenter, I am sorry to say. Inclosed you will find simpler solution of the same problem by lines only, requiring no figures; the square and compass is all that is required. I sent this solution to a trade paper a good many years ago in answer to a correspondent who wanted a solution by lines only. It was published and recognized as being correct and the only one filling all the conditions called for. The beauty of this solution is that it don't make any difference how disproportionate the figure may be, or how many partsequal or unequal it is wanted to be divided into.

FIG. 1.

In Fig. 1 the heavy lines A B C D inclose the figure to be divided, in this case into two equal parts. Take half the distance, A B, and strike semi-circle with center at E, at right angles with A B; square up E F; extend the sides, A B and D C, till they meet in vertex, G. Take the distance G F and swing around to H. H H is drawn parallel to the base and divides the figure into two parts. Should it be wanted to divide it into more equal or unequal parts, dot off the divisions on the line A B, raise the perpendiculars like E F until they intersect the semi-circle. Take the distance G and different intersections, swing around to the line A B, and lines drawn parallel with the base will be the lines of division from these points. The work can be done from either or both sides, the effect will be the same.

In Fig. 2 is shown how to divide a triangle into any number of parts. This is divided into four equal parts. The figure is plain and needs no explanation.

Hoping this will interest you and your readers, I am

Yours truly,

THOMAS WATTERSON.

Parquet Floors

The finish and care of hardwood or parquet floors has been and is now a source of great trouble and annoyance to housekeepers. Except in cases where the owners have taken the trouble themselves to look the matter up, or have instructed their architects to be particular about that item, it is too bad, that where beautiful floors have been laid, in so many cases they have been left to be finished by persons who have not troubled themselves with finding out the best method of finishing. The usual way for such persons to do is to treat them with shellac or varnish—which is all wrong, as a moment's thought will convince any one that a surface that is constantly walked over needs something different to the coating of gum that is left on the surface after the spirit used in dissolving (the shellac or varnish) is evaporated. This coating becomes then brittle, and is ground up into minute particles by the nails in the boots and swept away, leaving the wood bare, right where it is most exposed to view.

As a matter of course, the beauty of the floor is soon gone, and instead of being an attractive part of the furnishing, the sanitary consideration very often is about all that keeps one from nailing a carpet over the whole floor.

Others use linseed oil, and everybody knows that an oil finish is one of the best methods of finishing wood, but the objection to that method is, that each time the oil is applied, it darkens the wood, and in a short time the different kinds of wood are of the same color. Now the question arises, which is the true and only way of finishing floors properly, and the answer is, by the use of hard wax, which, however, must be so prepared, that the trouble of applying it and the stickiness attending ordinary beeswax and turpentine is entirely obviated. The wax is treated with special liquids, and made into a preparation.

The writer has tried many things and found this hard wax to be the most satisfactory in its results. It is so simple, that when once the floor has been properly filled and finished with it, any servant can renew and keep the floors fresh and bright as long as the wood lasts, and as it does not materially change the color, the wood always retains its beauty. An application about once a year is all that is necessary, if the floors are rubbed over when a little dull, with a weighted brush or cloth.

In repolishing old floors that have been in use for a length of time and become dull looking, it is only necessary after they have been cleaned, to rub on a thin coat of the hard wax finish with the brush or cloth, as stated before. If the floors have been varnished and the varnish is worn off in places, as mentioned above, the best way is to have the varnish scraped off, and then a thin coat of the hard wax should be applied and treated as the new wood after it is filled. But if it is inconvenient to have the floor scraped off, or the expense too much, the main object being to restore the color in those places, which are worn and defaced, the following mixture is recommended: One part linseed oil, one part liquid drier and two parts turpentine; a cloth should be dampened with this and applied to the worn and defaced places, which will have the desired effect. After being wiped off clean, it ought to dry twenty-four hours, and then polished with the hard wax finish.

It is very important never to use the wax over oil that is not thoroughly dry, as the floor would invariably be sticky.

Finally it would be well to mention that hard wood or parquet floors should never be washed with soap and water, as it raises the grain and discolors the wood. After the floors have been properly filled and finished with the hard wax, dirt will not get into the pores, but stays on the surface and consequently can be removed with a brush or cloth, or if necessary, dampen cloth with a little turpentine. This will take off any stain from the finish.—National Builder.

Norman Architecture

In discussing the above subject, a writer in one of the English building papers says that a Norman era may be stated to be from 1066 to 1154—that is, from the conquest to the death of Stephen. In a general comparison with the other nations of Europe, in that dark age, historians consent that the Normans were eminent, if not superior, with respect to civilization and the arts. In architectural science, as promoted by their religious zeal, they had made a great proficiency, and many grand structures had been raised to embellish their own province before they had gained an absolute establishment in England. Many discordant opinions have been advanced concerning what really constitutes Norman architecture, and it has been confounded with the Saxon by several able antiquaries. But a still greater confusion occurs when the Pointed style, first practiced in this kingdom in the reign of Henry II, is called Norman. The principal discrimination between the Saxon and the Norman appears to be that of much larger dimensions in every part; plain but more lofty vaulting; circular pillars of greater diameter; round arches, and capitals having ornamental carvings much more elaborate and various adopted to them; but a total absence of pediments or pinnacles, which are decidedly peculiar to the Pointed or Gothic style. Among the prelates in the early Norman reigns were found men of consummate skill in architecture, which, aided by their munificence, was applied to the rebuilding of their abbeys. No less than 15 of the 22 English cathedrals still retain considerable parts which are undoubtedly of Norman erection, the several dates of which are ascertained. We have the following enumeration of Norman bishops who were either architects themselves or under whose auspices architecture flourished: Gundulf of Rochester (1077-1107), whose works are seen at Rochester, Canterbury and Peterborough; Mauritius of London (1086-1108) built old St. Paul's Cathedral; Roger of Salisbury (1107-40), the cathedral at Old Sarum; Ernulf of Rochester (1115-25), completed Bishop Gundulf's work there. They were both monks of Bec in Normandy. Alexander of Lincoln (1123-47) rebuilt his cathedral. Henry of Blois, bishop of Winchester (1129-69), a most celebrated architect, built the conventual churches of St. Cross and Rumsey in Hampshire; and lastly, Roger, Archbishop of York (1154-81), where none of his work remains. By these architects the Norman manner was progressively brought to perfection in England, and it will be easily supposed that the improvements made by them were adopted in succession.—Carpentry and Building.

To Ascertain Required Lineal Feet of Matched Lumber

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I have been very much interested in "Craft Problems," and in return desire to contribute something that may be of advantage to many readers. In all the branches of our trade we use matched or tongued groove lumber, and when required to pick out quantity sufficient to cover a specified area are put to considerable trouble to find the number of lineal feet required. Very often, if we are in a hurry, we have to guess at it and, perhaps, guess again. Now, if we had a convenient table to refer to, we might save many "quarter days" through running short of stuff.

I have arranged a table with nails required which I submit for publication if you consider it worthy of space.

The number of lineal feet required to cover 1 sq. ft., 100 sq. ft. and 1,000 sq. ft. is given. In the fifth column will be found the quantity for which the lumber before it is matched or worked, and this too accounts for the shortage on matched stuff when laid, because the average carpenter orders the quantity required to cover a certain area and is short the difference between rough and matched lumber.

Jurisdiction and Trade Autonomy

The question of the jurisdiction of one organization over the trades working in co-operation with it has given rise to several controversies among labor organizations, that have not assisted to maintain pleasant relations between the disputing factions.

The organization of new unions generally is the cause of the trouble, for as things go, the organization of a particular part of a trade takes from the membership of an organization, all of those who work in the department affected, to make up the membership of the new organization. The older union naturally opposes this loss of membership, and between the demands for the men and the refusal of the older union to recognize the demands, there generally follows trouble that injures both organizations and very often the business of the employer as well.

The organizers of new unions generally point to the necessity for trade autonomy when they seek to divide the membership of an organization, regardless of the lack of necessity for such division. When it comes to the application of the methods of some of the organizations, we are sometimes led to believe there has been too much division to permit of practical results. Men are very often working together, each dependent on the work of the other for his own results. What affects one in the hours, wages and conditions of employment, affects the other, and in such an instance a division of the two working forces appears impractical, and wholly unnecessary, yet some one of the men is inspired to form a separate organization, and it is done. The demand for all the men in the class newly organized meets with opposition and in consequence two parts of the same trade are at war, and for no real purpose, so far as results affecting employment are concerned.

As a rule the "trade autonomist" of this class does not deserve much credit for his opinion, for beyond the desire to do something, there isn't anything to it except the trouble it brings to the men involved in the dispute.

These disputes have given at times an opportunity for the employer to refuse to do business with either of them. The same mistaken policy has led to several great strikes during the past few months; it has been the means of very foolishly permitting men to leave employment, and above all else it has brought the organizations a great deal of deserved censure for their unbusiness-like methods of operation.

Rival organizations, started by those who have either been dismissed from unions, or by those who hope to profit, have given much annoyance to the organizations that were endeavoring to care for certain interests. In this, as there has been no pretense of friendship, the question of jurisdiction has been one of open and unrelenting warfare, but the results have been always the same. The men have suffered, while the organizations have wrangled.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen has had its experiences along these lines. First with the American Railway Union, and afterward with the United Brotherhood of Railway Employees, and the Switchmen's Union. The first two Unions were directly opposed to the latter in their plan of action, yet both attacked the Brotherhood. The one claiming trade autonomy was a mistake and the other claiming that trade autonomy was the only way. The Brotherhood is not committed absolutely to either policy, and naturally we feel that we have selected the most practical method of dealing with the question. We believe that there are certain departments of the transportation service that are inseparable and interchangeable, and this organization has declared the men working in them eligible.

Our field of operation includes the employes of the train and yard service who are engaged as conductors, brakemen, baggagemen or switchmen. We recognize the difference so far as interchange of employment is concerned, between the conductor and the remainder of the men in the service, and do not make any effort to secure conductors, and many of those who have been promoted go to the Order of Railway Conductors, and that organization and the Brotherhood work together in their schedules. But with the rest of the train and yard men the service is practically the same, except in the very large switching centers, so far as rules, promotion and rights are concerned. One organization covering these train and yard men is all that is necessary, and in consequence we have met the opposition of those who, for certain reasons best known to themselves, advocate close trade autonomy. The fact that the engineers, conductors and firemen in the switching service have never seen the necessity for a separate organization for each position, but have been very well satisfied to work with their fellows in the road service, is evidence that the plan is not so far wrong as others would have us believe. But the interference of those who preach trade autonomy regardless of its effects on the conditions of the men, have brought us, in some instances, to the same condition as other trades that have had a division of opinion and strength.

With the change of steam for electricity, there is another question confronting us. The Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employes of America, which represented street railway employes only, opened its doors for the admission of all who were engaged on roads operated with electricity. Many of the members of this Brotherhood have been put on electric trains where the third rail system has been introduced on steam railways. The Amalgamated Association feels that these men should belong to their organization, and the B. of R. T. does not propose to relinquish the railway service employes to "keep peace in the family." We do not seek controversy with any labor organization; we regret that such discussions arise, but in this instance, as in others, we do not propose to permit any one to define the question of jurisdiction for the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Be it fully understood that the B. of R. T. does not force the employes to join the Brotherhood, nor will it permit their being driven from it. When they come to us voluntarily they can stay as long as they comply with the laws of the Brotherhood and care to remain with it. We will be fair and recognize every right that belongs to other organizations, but we can not surrender a single one of our own rights, even if the price of refusal means the antagonism of another organization.—Railroad Trainmen's Journal.

A Protest Against the Methods of the A. F. of L. Officials in Securing the Eight Hour Day.

At our last meeting of L. U. 478, New York, the circular sent us by Samuel Gompers, President A. F. of L., requesting us to appeal to our Representatives in Congress and Senate to pass an eight-hour bill, was dismissed and decided that the following reply be forwarded to the issuer of the circular:

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 2, 1903.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Mr. Samuel Gompers, President A. F. of L., 423-425 G St., N. W., Washington, D. C.:

DEAR SIR—In reply to your Circular of September 7, 1903, requesting us to appeal to our Representatives in Congress and Senate, urging them to pass an eight-hour bill, will say, that the members of Local Union No. 478 U. B. C. & J. of A., numbering over 400 are utterly opposed to pursuing the course you and the officers of the A. F. of L. request or suggest. We are not opposed to an eight-hour workday, but to the methods adopted by the officers of the A. F. of L. in securing same; for the following well founded reasons: We fail to see or locate the consistency in the officers of the A. F. of L. in making or sending this appeal to Labor organizations, when the same officers grant a license to a dual organization such as they have done to the A. W. W. I. U. of A. to tear down the eight-hour day, as said Wood Workers have done in Bronx Borough and Mt. Vernon, N. Y., a locality where the eight-hour day had been thoroughly established in every shop and mill for almost two years, and that through the sole efforts and expense of the U. B. C. & J. of A. without begging or appealing to our Representatives in Congress, or the aid of the A. F. of L. The officers of the A. W. W. I. U. of A. have, in order to get a foothold in these heretofore eight-hour shops and mills, sent their men together with non-Union men in same working nine hours per day under an agreement, evidently sanctioned by the officers of the A. F. of L., and now you ask us to beg Congress to pass an eight-hour bill.

This we deem consistency and Unionism with a vengeance. We realize the necessity of an eight-hour bill, but it is also a well known fact that a mere bill will not be sufficient to compel these scabs to work eight hours.

A troop of Regulars with bayonets fixed, behind this outfit, might have the desired effect. The U. B. C. & J. of A. has been sufficiently outraged, therefore respectfully decline to participate in this hypocritical farce and bunco game.

Yours,

[SEAL] C. H. BAUSER, President.
H. G. LAMBERT, Secretary.

The Lamp Chimney

A chimney taken from a lighted lamp is an excellent "hot application" in case of an emergency. Slip the chimney into an old stocking, take a damp, warm cloth and wrap around the chimney. If the required heat is for a cough or for the croup, wrap the chimney in a flannel rag smeared with mutton tallow and turpentine. Applied to the chest or throat relief will be had almost at once. The lamp chimney is especially practicable during the summer months, when the fires are out, for the lamp can be lighted and the hot application secured in a few minutes. Croup, colic, toothache, coughs, rheumatic pains and many other ills flee before the hot lamp chimney.

ELEPHANTS ARE PARTICULAR

Sagacity of Animals in Their Work in India Prevents Imposition of Masters

An American lady recently returned from a year's trip around the world, tells how she was interested and amused while in India by the way in which the elephants that piled teak wood on the road to Mandalay work under a well-defined system of rights and privileges, says the New York Press.

"A great ponderous beast will swing a piece of timber into a designated position with the nicety of a pulley and crane, and then move off a few paces and inspect it in an endeavor to ascertain whether it is plumb with some other hundred pieces of timber, with the critical eye and aspect of a master mechanic. If it is not exact, the animal would adjust and readjust until it is.

"Thus he conscientiously earns his wages which, paid in rest and meal cakes, conform to a given standard. When the cakes are offered by his keeper, the elephant swings them to and fro with his trunk, weighing them with the precision of a grocer. Should they fall short the fraction of an ounce in weight, the welkin is made to resound with wrathful trumpeting, before which the unaccustomed flee, and which the keeper hastens to curtail by further measure of provender.

"The keepers are allowed half an hour for their midday meal, but the elephants, of their own election, require twice as much time for their noontime feed, and no urging will induce them to return to labor inside of an hour. Also, they strictly observe the Mosaic law in resting on the seventh day, although they are not particular as to which seventh day is marked for rest. Six days in a week only will they labor.

"Of course, there are boss elephants, but I do not know whether or not they formulate union rules. I think, however, they do, and that soon the elephants will be after Saturday half holidays."

The Effect of Filling the Pores of Wood with Sugar

Filling the pores of wood with sugar has somewhat surprising effects upon wood. The process, as devised by W. Powell, of Liverpool, consists in immersing the wood in heated sugar solution for some hours, the time varying with the wood, and then driving off all moisture in an oven. No previous seasoning is necessary. The spongy fiber is converted a compact ligneous substance, and it acquires greatly increased durability and strength, with resistance to changes of temperature and moisture and even to fire. A special advantage is that the softer and cheaper woods can be made to serve many purposes in place of expensive hard woods. The sugar does not dissolve out, and it does not promote fermentation and the growth of destructive organisms, but it produces some remarkable chemical or physical transformation in a manner not yet understood.

Le Mouvement Syndical en France

PAR GEORGES GUÉNARD, PARIS.

LE CONSEIL SUPÉRIEUR DU TRAVAIL.

Les milieux ouvriers de France viennent d'être quelque peu agités par une controverse qui, de prime abord, apparaît comme n'ayant qu'un intérêt secondaire, mais que les circonstances ont transformée en question de principe sur laquelle ont été appelés à se prononcer les syndicats français. C'est des élections au Conseil supérieur du travail que je veux parler.

Le Conseil supérieur du travail est une assemblée fonctionnant depuis plusieurs années déjà et dont le rôle est purement consultatif. Il se charge d'enquêtes sur la législation ouvrière et sociale et ses avis sont destinés à éclairer le gouvernement et les Chambres sur les réformes à apporter à la réglementation du travail. A l'origine, il était composé de députés, de sénateurs et de membres divers désignés par le ministre du commerce. Parmi ces derniers figuraient des juristes, des commerçants, des industriels, de hauts fonctionnaires administratifs et quelques ouvriers.

Un des premiers actes du ministre Millerand, en 1900, fut de modifier de fond en comble la composition du Conseil supérieur du travail contre laquelle, d'ailleurs, ne cessaient de s'élever les organisations ouvrières. Il leur donna en partie satisfaction en assurant son recrutement d'une façon plus démocratique et en décidant qu'à l'avenir il comprendrait un certain nombre de sénateurs et de députés désignés par leurs pairs, 15 patrons et 15 ouvriers nommés par des collèges électoraux distincts et répartis selon la nature des professions. De plus, 7 conseillers prud'hommes patrons et 7 conseillers prud'hommes ouvriers étaient directement élus par ceux de ces tribunaux que le sort avait désignés. Quelques membres de droit et un certain nombre de titulaires dont le choix était laissé à la discrétion du ministre complétaient cette assemblée.

Le Congrès ouvrier, tenu à Lyon en 1901, portait à son ordre du jour cette question du Conseil supérieur du travail, et, après bien des discours pour ou contre cette institution, il finissait par en consacrer le principe, mais en s'élevant très vivement contre la façon dont il était formé. A la presque unanimité il demanda que seuls fussent admis à siéger les représentants des patrons et des ouvriers élus en nombre égal à l'exclusion des sénateurs, députés, fonctionnaires ou membres laissés au choix du ministre. Il chargeait en outre les représentants ouvriers de déposer à la prochaine session un voeu en ce sens et, si satisfaction ne leur était pas donnée, de se retirer purement et simplement. Cette motion, présentée au Conseil supérieur par quelques délégués ouvriers, fut renvoyée au ministre, le Conseil n'ayant pas qualité pour se prononcer sur ce sujet. Trois conseillers ouvriers signèrent alors leur démission, mais l'un d'entre eux, à la suite d'une délibération de son organisation, la retira quelques jours après. L'affaire en était là quand à son tour le successeur de M. Millerand au ministère du commerce modifia la composition du Conseil supérieur.

Le décret du 14 mars 1903 fixe à 65 le nombre des membres du Conseil supérieur : 26 membres élus par les patrons, 26 par les ouvriers, 12 nommés par le Parlement, la Chambre de commerce de Paris, la Chambre consultative des Associations ouvrières de production et le ministre; enfin un membre est choisi par les Bourses du travail. Les fonctionnaires qui faisaient autrefois partie de droit du Conseil supérieur n'y sont plus admis qu'à titre consultatif. Comme on le voit, c'est un progrès; mais la décision du Congrès de Lyon ne se trouve pas appliquée puisque le Conseil comprend encore des membres autres que ceux désignés par les syndicats patronaux et ouvriers.

En conformité de ce décret, les élections furent fixées au mois de juillet de cette année et la campagne électorale s'engagea avec vivacité de tous côtés. Les deux tendances qui partagent actuellement le mouvement ouvrier en France se virent de nouveau aux prises.

La première fraction, menée par les libertaires, — lesquels n'attendent que d'une révolution violente (déchaînée par la grève générale) une amélioration notable des conditions sociales des travailleurs, — engagea les organisations ouvrières à s'abstenir de prendre part aux élections, d'abord parce que les décisions du Congrès de Lyon n'étaient pas respectées, ensuite parce que les travailleurs n'ont rien de bon à attendre de ces "parlottes" entre patrons et ouvriers tout au plus bonnes à émousser les énergies et énerver les meilleurs militants. Les travailleurs, selon eux, ont mieux à faire en se posant en adversaires irréductibles des patrons et en se préparant à donner l'assaut final à leurs privilèges, et c'est perdre son temps que de courir après des réformes qu'on n'atteint pas toujours et dont l'efficacité est plus que douteuse.

La deuxième fraction, — que l'on a qualifiée de "réformiste" — tout en déclarant que le nouveau décret ne lui donnait pas entière satisfaction, estima qu'il serait puéril pour les travailleurs de se désintéresser de ces élections, car si la décision du Congrès de Lyon n'était pas entièrement appliquée, il n'en était pas moins indéniable qu'un réel progrès avait été obtenu dans la composition du Conseil supérieur. En réponse aux attaques dont cette institution était l'objet de la part de ses adversaires, elle déclara que, pour son compte, elle repoussait la politique du "tout ou rien" et qu'en attendant le millénium prédit par les prophètes de la Société future, il était urgent que les travailleurs profitassent de tous les moyens mis à leur disposition pour améliorer leurs conditions de travail. Bien que ne considérant pas l'action législative comme une panacée pouvant guérir tous les maux, il n'en est pas moins exact qu'en France comme à l'étranger les travailleurs forment le fond de l'opinion publique seule force capable d'imposer des réformes et de les faire appliquer. En attendant l'ère nouvelle annoncée depuis plusieurs siècles, il est peut-être au moins urgent de s'efforcer de faire obtenir à l'ouvrier une journée de travail moins longue, mieux rétribuée et des conditions d'existence moins désavantageuses. Pour arriver à ce but, tous les moyens sont bons qui peuvent donner des résultats, et il est indiscutable que l'opinion du Conseil supérieur du Travail peut être d'un grand poids dans les discussions à intervenir au Parlement pour les modifications à introduire dans la législation sociale.

C'était le langage de la raison; c'est aussi celui qui prévalut. Passant par dessus l'opinion du bureau de la Confédération générale du travail, presque toutes les grandes fédérations qui la composent prirent une part active au scrutin et, aujourd'hui, le Conseil supérieur est, pour la partie ouvrière, composé de militant ayant depuis longtemps fait leurs preuves.

Mais ce ne fut pas la partie la plus curieuse de cette lutte électorale. Toute l'attention fut concentrée sur la nomination du délégué chargé de représenter les Bourses du travail. Le Comité de la Fédération des Bourses n'avait pas masqué son hostilité contre le Conseil supérieur du travail, mais il lui fut impossible d'éviter une consultation des Bourses adhérentes pour savoir s'il y avait lieu de prendre part à l'élection. Contre son attente, la majorité se prononça pour l'affirmative. Mais, ne voulant pas désarmer, le Comité fédéral proposa au choix des électeurs son propre secrétaire comme "candidat de protestation". Les opinions libertaires professées par ce dernier ne laissaient d'ailleurs aucun doute sur le caractère de sa candidature. De leur côté, quelques Bourses du travail se rengimbèrent contre ce procédé et présentèrent un autre candidat qui, de ce fait, se trouva être le porte-drapeau des "réformistes", puisque "réformistes" il y a. Malgré l'activité déployée par le Comité fédéral, malgré l'influence dont il jouit de par ses fonctions, son secrétaire fut battu et la majorité se prononça en faveur de son adversaire.

Tels sont, en résumé, en dehors de tout parti pris et fidèlement racontés, les incidents qui ont marqué le renouvellement du Conseil supérieur du travail. Ces élections ont été une véritable pierre de touche en marquant d'une façon bien définie la véritable orientation des organisations ouvrières françaises.

L'Union Ouvrière et la Grève.

Lorsqu'un organisateur arrive pour labourer un champ nouveau, encor inculte, une des plus grandes difficultés, qui se présente, est la grève. Les éléments nouveaux dans le mouvement ouvrier s'imaginent que s'organiser ne veut dire autre chose que de préparer ou se mettre en grève. C'est là une des erreurs qui font le plus grand tort à l'organisation ouvrière, et l'on ne saurait assez combattre l'idée funeste en question.

La grève n'est pas un but, mais un moyen. Le but, c'est l'amélioration des conditions d'existence, fait à l'ouvrier par la classe régnante. C'est la réglementation dans une voie supérieure, des questions du salaire, des heures de travail, élimination possible des dangers inhérents à notre métier, etc., la grève n'est qu'un des moyens pour atteindre ce but, et nous le préconisons ici bien hautement, le dernier moyen à essayer, après que tout les autres ont été appliqués en vain.

Nous pensons souvent avec une profonde douleur aux organisations, qui malgré leur jeunesse, promettaient si bien, mais comme une grève suivait leur naissance de trop près, grèves généralement perdues à l'avance, l'organisation s'effondrait bien vite, et il prendra dix ans et plus, avant qu'une réorganisation d'une Union ne serait être tenté de nouveau.

Voyons donc quel sont les divers moyens d'atteindre notre but, mentionné plus haut :

D'abord, et avant tout, il faut s'organiser. Cela ne veut pas dire qu'il suffise d'avoir un certain nombre d'ouvriers d'un métier sous la main, au contraire faut-il qu'une Union locale contrôle au moins les deux tiers des hommes exerçant la profession dans la même ville. Si des raisons valables l'exigent, on peut établir plusieurs Unions locales, mais on devrait avoir des Unions divers dans une même ville qu'autant qu'il s'agit de divers spécialités, ou de langues. Ceci est facile à comprendre. Les intérêts des charpentiers, travaillant dans le bâtiment, ne couvrent pas toujours ceux des ébénistes, travaillant la plupart du temps dans l'atelier. De même qu'il est beaucoup plus facile d'atteindre les buts de l'organisation, si les ouvriers d'une même langue se réunissent, surtout si un grand nombre d'entre eux ne connaissent pas d'une manière suffisante la langue du pays. Mais en tout cas, tant que le nombre de non-organisés est assez grand pour emplir un atelier en grève, la menace d'une grève perdue reste suspendue sur notre tête. Ceci n'est pas seulement le cas, s'il s'agit de non-organisés, mais encor, sinon pire, quand il s'agit d'une organisation rivale, dont les membres vous tombent dans le dos, aussitôt qu'une lutte est engagée avec les employeurs. En temps de guerre, une armée doit toujours avoir les flancs et l'arrière bien couverts, si elle veut marcher en avant sans avoir des surprises à attendre. De même que l'armée doit exercer ses soldats, l'homme qui appartient à une chambre syndicale doit être bien discipliné. Ce n'est pas assez de se promener avec une carte de membre dans sa poche, le bon unioniste est celui qui travaille dans l'Union et pour l'Union. Nous connaissons bon nombre d'ouvriers, qui considèrent le devoir d'un unioniste uniquement dans le plus ou moins prompt paiements de leurs cotisations. Encore faut-il souvent les forcer à acquitter leur devoirs, en envoyant le "business agent" à leurs trousses. Rarement, on les rencontre dans une réunion, plus rarement encore acceptent-ils le travail de secrétaire, contrôleur ou tout autre. Mais qu'une entreprise tourne mal, ils seront les premiers à accuser leurs camarades, ils seront ceux qui crieront le plus fort, quitte à tourner le dos à l'organisation, si un échec assez lourd leur donne la chance de le faire. Une union n'est donc une organisation préparée pour la lutte qu'à condition que la grande majorité de ses membres est très bien discipliné, actif et intéressé au mouvement ouvrier.

La grève est une guerre, et pour avoir la victoire de son côté, il faut de l'argent, beaucoup d'argent; et comme le bon Dieu donnera toujours la victoire à l'armée qui possède le plus et les plus grands canons, de même avec la guerre dans la lutte du travail avec le Capital, c'est presque toujours le bon état de la caisse de réserve qui décide de la victoire.

S'il y a assez d'argent dans la caisse pour soutenir les grévistes, les pertes infligées au capital seront assez sensibles pour forcer ce dernier à la capitulation. Au contraire, si les hommes en grève n'ont pas un support financier assez solide pour nourrir la famille, retenir la misère du seuil de leur porte, empêcher les privations par trop grandes d'envahir leur demeure, tout le héroïsme et toute la sympathie démontré resteront sans résultat. Le capital généralement, dans sa lutte avec le travail, ne risque seulement son profit, tandis que l'ouvrier risque tout, existence, la faim, souvent des maladies, et presque toujours les lamentations de la femme qui a le coeur brisé de voir la souffrance de ses petits. N'oublions donc jamais que la lutte du travail contre le Capital est la lutte du pot de terre contre le pot de fer, la lutte du penny contre le dollar, et pour cette raison nous ne saurions prêter assez d'attention pour égaliser les chances.

Si l'organisation d'un métier est assez généralisée, les patrons auront du mal pour trouver des scabs; si la caisse de la grève est bien garnie, il y aura moins de fuyards, et les pertes du capital seront assez considérables pour forcer les patrons à céder, les petits en premier, et ceux là amèneront à leur tour les grands patrons, qui supporteront, par orgueil ou par des contrats réciproques, des pertes encore plus importantes.

Une des causes de succès, et non pas la moindre est le choix du temps, pour décider d'une grève. Cette question étant d'une première importance, nous la reprendrons dans un prochain numéro.

ALPHONSE H. HENRYOT.

Evitez Grand Mère, Que., Can.

Pour l'avantage de la Fraternité des Charpentiers et Menuisiers, l'Union locale No. 1744 de Grand Mère désire mettre en garde les Charpentiers et Menuisiers contre les rapports exagérés qui paraissent journellement dans les journaux représentant cette ville comme offrant beaucoup d'ouvrage. La vérité est que l'ouvrage est très rare et que le nombre de charpentiers et menuisiers résidant actuellement à Grand Mère est plus que suffisant pour répondre à la demande.

Der Kreuzzug gegen die Gewerkschaften.

III.

In unserer August Nummer hoben wir hervor, daß die Vorgänge im kapitalistischen Lager ein kompakteres Vorgehen und größeres solidarisches Handeln aller Gewerks- und Berufsweige nötig machen, daß engere, freundschaftliche Beziehungen zwischen denselben herzustellen seien. In dem Hinweise aber auf die Hindernisse, die unsere Bruderschaft in dieser Beziehung noch zu überwinden hat, waren wir genötigt, so weit auszuholen, daß wir uns, Raumes halber, auf die Besprechung von Maßnahmen rein gewerkschaftlicher Natur beschränken mußten. Um die so entstandene Lücke auszufüllen, vielmehr um die notwendigen Schritte auf politischem Gebiete zu erörtern, kommen wir heute auf obiges Thema zurück.

Im ersten Theile unserer Abhandlung haben wir erwähnt, daß wir durch politische Maßnahmen des Unternehmertums, wie die Erlassung von Gesetzen, welche uns die Incorporation unserer Organisationen aufzwingen, auf politisches Gebiet gedrängt werden. Wir haben darauf aufmerksam gemacht, daß wir, mit Ausnahme des Staates Massachusetts, keine Staatsgesetzgebung haben, deren Mitglieder sich nicht sämtlich entweder dem demokratischen oder dem republikanischen Parteiprogramm verpflichtet und sich damit den Interessen der Unternehmer dienstbar gemacht haben. Damit haben wir angedeutet, daß man von den Mitgliedern dieser Legislaturen ein Eintreten für die Interessen der Lohnarbeiter nicht erwarten kann. Sind wir uns einmal darüber klar, so müssen wir logischerweise zu dem Schlusse kommen, daß die Lohnarbeiter Angehörige ihrer eigenen Klasse, und zwar solche, die keinerlei Beziehungen zu den kapitalistischen Parteien unterhalten, als Vertreter zu den gesetzgebenden Körpern erwählen müssen. Ebenso müssen sie solche Vertreter in die Municipal-, Staats- und Bundesverwaltungen erwählen, wenn sie gegen ihre Organisationsgerichtete Maßnahmen, wie Herausbeorderung der Miliz bei Ausständen, Verhaftung der „Pickets“, Niederschießen der Ausständigen und dergleichen verhindern wollen.

Indem wir dies als den logisch richtigen Weg bezeichnen, den wir einschlagen müssen, um dem begonnenen Kreuzzuge der Unternehmer gegen unsere Organisationen auch auf politischem Felde ein Paroli bieten zu können, stellen wir uns einfach auf unsere Prinzipien-Erklärung, welche, obgleich sie die Besprechung politischer Parteifragen in unseren Versammlungen verbietet, zugleich aber erklärt, „daß die intelligente Stimmenabgabe der Mitglieder bei den politischen Wahlen von größter Wichtigkeit sei und daß alle Mitglieder unserer Bruderschaft darnach streben sollen, daß Gesetze zu Gunsten der Werthherzeuger erlassen werden.“

Zur Zeit, als unsere Prinzipien-Erklärung angenommen wurde, standen sich die Interessen der Unternehmer und der Arbeiter bei Weitem nicht so scharf gegenüber als dies heute der Fall ist. Auf beiden Seiten gab man sich damals noch fast allgemein der Illusion hin, daß die Interessen beider identisch seien und Harmonie zwischen Kapital und Arbeit hergestellt werden könne. Es war damals noch möglich, von den Legislaturen Zugeständnisse an die Arbeiter zu erlangen, wie sie ja auch tatsächlich in der Erlassung von Arbeiterschutz-Gesetzen gemacht wurden. Heute aber, wo sich die Gewerksorganisationen zu einem so bedeutenden Umfange entwickelt haben, wo sie beginnen, sich ihrer Macht bewußt zu werden und Forderungen stellen, die dem Unternehmertum tiefer in's Fleisch schneiden, ist, wie es ja die Ereignisse der letzten Jahre aufs ekranteste demonstrieren, nicht nur jede Aussicht auf Erlassung von Gesetzen zu Gunsten der Werthherzeuger geschwunden, sondern, wie schon früher bemerkt, es werden Versuche gemacht, Gesetze zu erlassen, welche die Rechte und Freiheiten der Werthherzeuger noch mehr beschränken und den Ruin ihrer Organisationen herbeiführen sollen.

Auch dem Richterstande müssen die Lohnarbeiter besondere und größere Aufmerksamkeit zuwenden, denn hier ist intelligente Stimmenabgabe unter heutigen Umständen dringend von Nöthen.

Wir haben schon häufig auf die Thatsache aufmerksam gemacht, daß die ungeheuerlichen, den Arbeitern ungünstige richterliche Entscheidungen bei Streitigkeiten zwischen Unternehmer und Arbeiter, die Erlassung zahlloser Einhaltsbefehle u. s. w. auf die Zugehörigkeit der Richter zur Kapitalisten-Klasse, sowie ihre Parteistellung, zurückzuführen seien. Auch hier ist es die unabhängige politische Thätigkeit, zu welcher die Lohnarbeiter als einzig wirksames Abwehrmittel gegen die Machinationen des Unternehmertums greifen müssen.

Wer sich heute noch dieser Einsicht verschließt, den verweisen wir beispielsweise auf die von mehreren Cabinetfirmen in St. Louis gegen unseren dortigen District Council angestregte Klage; auf die Klage des Painter-Boß Stiles in Chicago gegen die dortigen Baugewerks-Organisationen, unsere Mitglieder mit einbegriffen, bei welcher es sich um eine Entschädigungssumme von $76,950 wegen Boycotts handelt; ferner auf die Entschädigungs-Klage der Hut-Firma D. C. Loewe & Co. in Danbury, Conn., gegen die National-Beamten der American Federation of Labor und die Vereinigten Hutmacher.

Es ist ja möglich, und wir hoffen es, daß in den gegenwärtig gegen Arbeiter-Organisationen schwebenden Entschädigungs-Klagen die richterliche Entscheidung zu Gunsten der Arbeiter ausfallen mag und daß es die betreffenden Richter nicht wagen werden, auf Strafe zu erkennen und damit den Arbeiter-Organisationen das Recht abzuspochen, ihren Mitgliedern zu verbieten, für solche Arbeitgeber zu arbeiten, die die Union-Regeln nicht anerkennen; oder von ihren Mitgliedern zu verlangen, daß sie nur solche Waaren kaufen, die unter Union-Bedingungen hergestellt sind. Doch das Ueberhandnehmen der Einhaltsbefehle hat uns gezeigt, daß sich die Unternehmer selbst durch Mißerfolge in dieser Beziehung nicht abschrecken lassen, und es steht zu befürchten, daß das Beispiel der oben angeführten klagenden Unternehmer Nachahmung finden wird, und wenn auch nur in der Absicht, den Gewerks-Organisationen Scheerereien zu bereiten und Gerichtskosten zu verursachen.

Wenn wir nun hier der unabhängigen, der Lohnarbeitklassen-Politik das Wort reden, so müssen wir doch, wie bei früheren Gelegenheiten, vor unüberlegten Vorstößen warnen und in der Propaganda für diese Frage innerhalb des Rahmens der Gewerks-Organisationen zur Vorsicht mahnen. Es steht ja fest, daß die Lohnarbeiter die Mehrheit aller Stimmberechtigten bilden, und es somit in ihrer Macht liegt, eine Mehrheit der Mitglieder aller Gesetzgebungen und Verwaltungen zu erwählen und arbeiterfeindliche Gesetzgebung und Maßnahmen unmöglich zu machen. Dies klingt so einleuchtend, daß man annehmen könnte, in der Verwirklichung des Gedankens seitens der Lohnarbeiter, nach den zahlreichen Niederlagen, welche sie in den Gesetzgebungen und in den Gerichten in jüngster Zeit erlitten haben, auf keinen Widerspruch mehr zu stoßen. Und doch ist es eine höchst schwierige Aufgabe, die Arbeiter dieses Landes in die Bahnen unabhängiger Klassenpolitik zu lenken. Der Mangel an Klassenbewußtsein und die Verkenning ihrer eigenen Interessen ist noch zu groß unter unseren Klassengegnern. Das Schwören auf die eine oder die andere der herrschenden politischen Parteien ist bei der Mehrheit der Arbeiter ein Erbthum, welches sich Generationen hindurch auf den jeweiligen und den heutigen Stimmgeber übertragen hat und von ihm in Ehren gehalten wird. Besonders die jüngere Generation, die sozusagen entweder im republikanischen oder demokratischen Parteigetriebe aufgewachsen ist, kann sich nur schwer von diesem Getriebe losreißen. Diese Arbeiter sind von der Idee beherrscht, daß es ihre Ehre- und Bürgerpflicht sei, hier für den besten Mann, dort für einen Freund ihre Stimmen abzugeben und ihm zur Erwahlung zu verhelfen. Viele andere wieder halten es für ihr unveräußerliches Recht, durch ihre Zugehörigkeit zu einer der herrschenden Parteien ein politisches Amt zu erlangen, um dem Arbeiterloose zu entrinnen und ihre Lage materiell zu verbessern. Den Ersteren begreiflich zu machen, daß sie in der vermeintlichen Erfüllung ihrer Fremdespflicht ihren eigenen Klassen-Interessen zuwiderhandeln, ist meist schwierig, weil ihnen der Begriff Klassen-Interesse ein Buch mit sieben Siegeln ist. Und die Letzteren davon abzuhalten, ihre persönlichen Interessen über ihre Klassen-Interessen zu setzen, wird wohl erst gelingen, wenn sich die Luft zwischen Unternehmer und Arbeiter noch mehr erweitert, wenn die unabhängige politische Thätigkeit zum Lösungswort der Lohnarbeiter geworden ist, und auch die herrschenden kapitalistischen Parteien jede politische Amtseigenschaft mit Angehörigen der Lohnarbeiterklasse von sich weisen werden. Der begonnene Vernichtungskampf der Unternehmer gegen die Gewerkschaften wird unzweifelhaft viel dazu beitragen, daß Klarheit über ihre Klassen-Interessen geschaffen wird und wir obigen Zeitpunkt in immer rascherem Tempo näher rücken.

Warum sich nicht verständigen?

Unter dieser Ueberschrift enthält die „Braucher-Zeitung“ vom 5. September eine Betrachtung über die zwischen unserer Bruderschaft und den Amalgamated Woodworkers herrschenden Streitigkeiten, unter Bezugnahme auf unsere Ausführungen im deutschen Theile des August CARPENTER, sowie auf einen in der August Ausgabe des „International Woodworker“ erschienenen Artikel, diese Streitfrage behandelnd. Die „Braucher-Zeitung“ sagt Eingang ihrer Betrachtungen:

„Bedauerlich, im höchsten Grade bedauerlich, ist der Jurisdiktions-Streit, der sich zwischen dem Verbands der Zimmerer und Schreiner und dem der vereinigten Holzarbeiter abspielt. Es ist unendlich schwer, in den opferreichen Kämpfen, die als Folge der Streitigkeiten entstanden sind, offene Stellung zu nehmen, zumal der Verband der Amalgamated Woodworkers stets als Industrie-Verband die volle Unterstützung der Brauerei-Arbeiter hatte. Doch bereits drei Jahre zurück kündigte die „Braucher-Zeitung“ an, daß in Folge der Umwälzungen in der Bau-Industrie die Zimmerleute gezwungen werden würden, ein anderes Feld ihrer Thätigkeit zu suchen, und dadurch Gewerkschafts-Streitigkeiten von unabsehbarer Tragweite zu erwarten wären.

Es ist eingetroffen, und nun werden andere Gewerkschaften aufgefordert, Stellung zu nehmen—entweder für oder wider—„im anderen Falle gibt es Wiedervergeltung, wenn Deine Union oder Deine Gewerkschaft mit denselben Fragen zu rechnen haben wird“—so kündigt man wenigstens an.“

Die „Braucher-Zeitung“ sagt weiter an anderer Stelle:

aller Arbeiter in der Holzbearbeitungs-Industrie finden werden.“

Die den Betrachtungen der „Braucher-Zeitung“ zu Grunde liegende, wohlgemeinte Absicht, zur Herbeiführung einer Verständigung zwischen beiden Organisationen beizutragen, verdient unsere vollste Anerkennung. Auch stimmen wir darin mit unserem Bruder-Organ überein, daß es für die in einer Jurisdiktions-Frage nicht theilhabenden Gewerkschaften schwer ist, in dieser Frage Stellung zu nehmen. Aber wir müssen die „Braucher-Zeitung“ darauf aufmerksam machen, daß es sich bei den Streitigkeiten zwischen unserer Bruderschaft und den Am. Woodworkers um etwas mehr denn Jurisdiktions-Fragen handelt. So scheint sie den in derselben, der August Nummer des CARPENTER erschienenen, an die New York Central Labor Federation gerichteten Protest unseres Bronx Borough, N. Y., District Council ganz übersehen zu haben. In diesem Protest wird gegen die Am. Woodworkers Klage geführt, weil sie in einer Anzahl der Sash, Door and Blind Fabriken im Bronx Borough, in denen wir die achtkündige Arbeitszeit bei $18 Lohn per Woche eingeführt hatten, die Plätze unserer ausgeschlossenen Mitglieder, bei neunstündiger Arbeitszeit und $17 Lohn per Woche, eingenommen haben.

Wir sollten doch meinen, daß wenn eine Organisation, wie in oben erwähntem Falle, der übrigens nur einer von vielen ähnlichen ist, sich des schändlichsten Verraths schuldig macht, den die Gewerkschaftsbewegung kennt, daß es dann auch einer an der Streitfrage nicht theilhabenden Organisation nicht sehr schwer fallen sollte, darüber schlüssig zu werden, welche der daran Theilhabenden zu ihrer Sympathie berechtigt ist.

Eine frühere Vernachlässigung der Fabrik-Holzarbeiter haben wir in unserem von der „Braucher-Zeitung“ kommentirten Artikel zugegeben. Wir haben es stets als unsere Pflicht erachtet, unsere Mitglieder auf Mißstände in unseren eigenen Reihen aufmerksam zu machen, und werden auch fernerhin von dieser Taktik nicht abweichen; aber in dem vorliegenden Falle bemerkten wir zugleich, daß durch Haarspaltereien über und Hinweise auf frühere Vorgänge und Beschlüsse über Jurisdiktions-Fragen, die durch die Arbeitsverschiebungen und veränderten Produktionsverhältnisse illusorisch geworden, diese Fragen nicht gelöst und dadurch die weitere Entwicklung der gewerkschaftlichen Bewegung nur gehemmt wird.

Auf die Frage: „Warum sich nicht verständigen?“ können wir hier des Vängeren nicht eingehen; doch wollen wir eine Episode in unserer Streitfrage mit den Am. Woodworkers nicht übergehen, weil die „Braucher-Zeitung“ daraus ersehen kann, daß es außer den Brauereiarbeitern auch noch andere Organisationen gibt, die in ihrer Zugehörigkeit zur American Federation of Labor vergewaltigt werden.

Wie unser Name: Vereinigte Bruderschaft der Zimmerleute und Bautischler (Carpenters and Joiners) andeutet, besteht unsere Organisation aus Zimmerleuten und Bautischlern. Auch Cabinetmakers und Holzbearbeitungs-Maschinenarbeiter, welche Begleitungsgegenstände und innere Dekorationsarbeiten für Gebäude herstellen, wurden schon seit der Gründung unserer Bruderschaft im Jahre 1881 als unserer Jurisdiktions unterstehend beansprucht. Schiedsrichter Downey aber, welcher in der letzten Februar zwischen der Ver. Bruderschaft und den Am. Woodworkers stattgefundenen Konferenz eine Entscheidung zu treffen hatte, entschied, daß alle in Hobelmühlen, Möbel- und inneren Dekorations-Fabriken beschäftigten Arbeiter der Jurisdiktions der Am. Woodworkers unterstehen sollen.

Die in Hobelmühlen, Möbel- und inneren Dekorations-Fabriken, mit Ausnahme der in Markt Möbel Fabriken besch. jnzgen Arbeiter, verfertigen Thüren, Fensterrahmen, Office- und Bar-Einrichtungen und andere für Gebäude bestimmte Holzbegleitungsgegenstände, und sind daher Bautischler. Die Entscheidung Downey's bedingt somit nicht mehr und nicht weniger, als daß sich unsere Brüderschaft in ihrer Jurisdiktion lediglich auf Zimmerleute beschränke; sie verlangt eine Trennung der Bautischler von den Zimmerleuten, eine Trennung der Carpenter von den Joiners.

Nach diesen Auseinandersetzungen und Aufklärungen wird es die „Brauer-Zeitung“ wohl begreiflich finden, wenn wir eine Verständigung auf der Downey'schen scheidend-entscheidenden Basis entschieden zurückweisen und zurückweisen werden, bis der Verrath, den die Am. Woodworkers an unserer Organisation und dem ganzen Holzarbeiter-Gewerke geübt haben, gestrichelt, und eine gerechtere, den heutigen Produktionsverhältnissen entsprechenden Basis zur Verständigung gefunden ist.

Bauhandwerker im Mittelalter.

Maurer, Zimmerer, Töpfer, Glaser, Dachdecker u. s. w. waren Gewerbe, die schon im Mittelalter in verhältnismäßig hoher Blüthe standen. Wenn auch die Städte, deren Einwohnerzahl die heutige in keiner Weise auch nur annähernd erreichte, durch Hausbauten nicht allzu viel Beschäftigung gaben, so waren es doch gerade die mittelalterlichen Brunnbauten (Kirchen, Paläste etc.), die dem Bauhandwerk das Handwerksmäßige nahmen und dafür das Kunstmäßige gaben.

Dieses Kunstmäßige ihres Gewerbes hatte denn auch ein gut Theil dazu gethan, daß die Bauhandwerke in die erste Reihe der mittelalterlichen Gewerbe gestellt wurden. Eine Folge hiervon war es, daß sich gerade bei den Bauhandwerkern das Formelwesen, das so charakteristisch für alle mittelalterlichen Gewerbe ist, besonders stark herausbildete. Namentlich bei den Maurern blühte es um die Zeit des dreißigjährigen Krieges. In erster Linie stand der von allen Gewerksangehörigen geheim gehaltene „Handwerksgruß“. Eine diesbezügliche Stelle im Maurerstatut des Fürstenthums Halberstadt (1695) besagt: „Es soll ein Meister, wenn er einen Diener nach Handwerksgelehrtheit ausgewiesen, so hoch vermahnen, daß derselbe, was ihm an Worten anvertraut ist, bei seiner Seelen Seligkeit im Herzen zu behalten und keinem Menschen, außer redlichen Maurern, zu offenbaren habe, bei Verlust seines Handwerks.“

Von dem mittelalterlichen Formelwesen der Maurer ist dieser Gruß, auf dessen Ausplaudern eine so hohe Strafe gesetzt war, außerordentlich interessant, so daß er es verdient, wenigstens theilweise hier wiedergegeben zu werden. Trat der wandernde Geselle in die Herberge vor den versammelten Handwerksgelehrten ein, so hatte er vor allen Dingen einen Gruß von den Kollegen der Stadt zu bestellen, in der er zuletzt gearbeitet hatte. Dann bat er die Altgesellen, seinen Namen in das Bruderschaftsbuch einzutragen. Die Altgesellen trafen hierauf hervor, legten zwei Maßstäbe kreuzweise übereinander und sprachen: „Mit Gmüt und Erlaubniß! Gott ehre diesen Plan Und Alle, die hier stahn Ehrbare Gesellschaft, bist Du ein „Brieser“ (nicht Kundig des Grußes) oder ein „Grüßer“? Und nun entspann sich folgendes Frage- und Antwortspiel:

Fremder: „Ich bin ein Grüßer. Durch Schnee und Eis bin ich gereist. Willst Du auch wissen, wie mein Name heißt?“

Altgeselle: „Wer hat Dich ausgesandt?“
Fremder: „Mein ehrbarer Lehremeister, ehrbare Bürgen und ein ganz ehrbares Handwerk der Maurer zu A.“

Altgeselle: „Worauf?“

Fremder: „Auf ehrbare Beförderung, Zucht und Ehrbarkeit.“

Altgeselle: „Was ist Zucht und Ehrbarkeit?“

Fremder: „Handwerksgebrauch und Gewohnheit.“

Altgeselle: „Wann fängt selbige an?“

Fremder: „Sobald ich meine Vehrjahre tren und ehrlich ausgestanden.“

Altgeselle: „Wann endigt sie?“

Fremder: „Wann mir der Tod das Herz abbricht.“

Altgeselle: „Woran erkennt man den Maurer?“

Fremder: „An der Ehrbarkeit.“

Altgeselle: „Wo ist das ehrbare Handwerk der Maurer in Deutschland aufgerichtet worden?“

Fremder: „Zu Magdeburg auf dem Dom.“

Altgeselle: „Wie hat der erste Maurer geheißt?“

Fremder: „Anton Syeronymus, und das erste Werkzeug hat Baltham erfunden.“

Altgeselle: „Wie viel hat der Maurer Worte?“

Fremder: „Sieben.“

Altgeselle: „Wie lauten diese Worte?“

Fremder: „Gott grüße die Ehrbarkeit, Gott grüße die ehrbare Weisheit, Gott grüße das ehrbare Handwerk der Maurer, Gott grüße einen ehrbaren Meister, Gott grüße eine ehrbare Gesellschaft, Gott grüße eine ehrbare Beförderung hier Und aller Orten, zu Wasser und zu Lande.“

Altgeselle: „Was ist Heimlichkeit an sich selbst?“

Fremder: „Erde, Feuer, Luft und Schnee, Wodurch ich auf ehrbare Beförderung geh.“

Altgeselle: „Was trägst Du unter Deinem Hut?“

Fremder: „Eine hochlöbliche Weisheit.“

Altgeselle: „Was trägst Du unter Deiner Zunge?“

Fremder: „Eine hochlöbliche Wahrheit.“

Altgeselle: „Warum trägst Du einen Schurz?“

Fremder: „Dem ehrbaren Handwerk zu Ehren und mir zum Vortheil.“

Altgeselle: „Was ist die Stärke bei unserem Handwerk?“

Fremder: „Dasjenige, was Wasser und Feuer nicht verzehren kann.“

In dieser Weise ging der „Gruß“ noch eine ganze Weile fort. Hatte der Fremde dieses Examen in jeder Weise richtig bestanden, so hatte er sich dadurch als echter Maurer legitimirt und sich all der Vergünstigungen und Vortheile theilhaftig gemacht, die ihm als solchem zukamen.

Im Verhältniß zu den anderen Handwerkern standen sich denn auch im Mittelalter die Bauhandwerker nicht allzu schlecht. Rechnet man den mittelalterlichen Groschen in unser heutiges Geld um, so werthete er etwa 75 Pfennig, der Gulden etwa 15 Mark. So erhielt 1470 in Basel der Maurer einen Tagelohn von 2 Groschen 4 Pfennig, in Esslingen (Ende des 15. Jahrhunderts) bekamen die Maurer während des Sommers 3 Gr. täglich, während des Winters hingegen nur 15 Pfg.; der Parlier erhielt pro Tag 6 Pfg. mehr. Für das Setzen eines Ofens erhielt der Töpfer (1512) 8 Gr. Der Schieferdecker wurde im Thüringischen im Jahre 1529 mit 14 Gr. wöchentlich bezahlt; 1541 erhielt er bereits einen Groschen mehr. Der Ziegeldecker hatte 1556 pro Woche 18 bis 21 Gr. zu beanspruchen. Der Maurer wurde 1500 durchschnittlich mit 15 bis 18 Gr. pro Woche entlohnt; der Parlier stand sich auf 1 Gulden 3 Gr. Zu derselben Zeit gingen die Zimmergesellen wöchentlich mit 13 Gr. heim; allein 1529 hatten sich ihre Löhne bereits auf 16 Gr., 1541 auf 17 Gr. und 1561 auf 18 Gr. erhöht. Die Zimmerparliere standen sich im Großen und Ganzen ebenso wie die der Maurer. An Sonn- und Feiertagen wurden die Gesellen nicht immer entlohnt, jedoch frei beschäftigt. In der sächsischen Landesordnung von 1482 heißt eine diesbezügliche Stelle: „Ein Feiertag in der Woche soll vom Lohne nicht abgezogen, von zwei Feiertagen aber einer, bei drei Feiertagen soll die Hälfte Lohn ausbezahlt werden.“ Regentage wurden gewöhnlich nicht vom Lohne abgezogen.

Auch die weimarische Landesordnung von

1556 kennt ähnliche Bestimmungen. Es heißt da: „... Einem Maurer und Zimmermann, die Meister sein und ihre eigenen Waffen haben, soll man eine Woche ohne Kost 1 Gulden und derselben Gesellen 18 Gr. zum Lohne geben. Einem Steinmetzen, der Meister ist, und sein Zeug hat, soll man die Woche 1 Gulden geben und ihm dazu die Schärfe halten, auch den Zeug, da derselbe zerschlagen, wiederum zurechten lassen, wie er den an die Arbeit gebracht ... Den Steinmetzen, Maurern und Zimmerleuten, Meistern und Gesellen, soll ein Feiertag und ein Regentag in der Woche verlohnet werden. So aber in einer Woche ein Feiertag und Regentag und also beide zusammenfielen, so soll ihnen denn nicht mehr, denn ein Tag verlohnet werden. Fielen aber mehrere Regentage ein, so soll man ihnen dieselben alle bis auf einen an ihrem Wochenlohn abkürzen.“

Derartige Landesordnungen, die für größere Gebiete eine einheitliche Lohnfrage herzustellen und einzuführen strebten, finden sich im 16. Jahrhundert fast in ganz Deutschland. So auch in Thüringen, 1556, wo der Wochenlohn der Maurer und Zimmerleute auf 18 Gr. festgesetzt wird.

Vom achtstündigen Normalarbeitstag freilich waren die Bauhandwerker des Mittelalters noch recht weit entfernt. Immerhin aber waren sie in puncto Arbeitszeit auch nicht der Willkür des Bauherrn unterworfen. Die Reichspolizeiordnung von 1530 besagte in dieser Hinsicht: „Und sollen alle Steinmetzen, Maurer, Zimmerleute, Tischler und Tagelöhner von Ostern bis auf Bartholomäi früh um 4 Uhr an, und gegen Abend, wenn es sechs schlägt, von der Arbeit gehen. Früh mögen sie eine Stunde und um Mittag auch eine Stunde ruhen; früh ½ Stunde und um Mittag 1 ½ Stunde essen und feiern.“

Alle diese Bestimmungen dehnten sich nach und nach auch auf die anderen Branchen des Bauhandwerks aus, ließen diese erstarren, selbstständiger werden und sich getrennt von Maurer und Zimmermann eigene Wege bahnen. „Der Grundstein“.

Einem Berichte des Sekretärs des italienischen Bauarbeiterverbandes entnimmt der „Bauarbeiter“, Organ der österreichischen Bauarbeiter, das Folgende:

„Die Zeit des Stillstandes der Bauarbeiterbewegung in Italien ist vorbei. An Stelle des Stillstandes ist eine Periode des raschen Aufschwunges der wirtschaftlichen Verhältnisse und damit auch der Bauarbeiterbewegung getreten. Haben bis heute die außerordentlich schlechten Arbeits- und Lohnverhältnisse der italienischen Arbeiter einen großen—und keineswegs günstigen—Einfluß auf die Bauarbeiterbewegung in anderen Ländern ausgeübt, so gewährt die in letzter Zeit eingetretene Entwicklung der italienischen Bauarbeiterbewegung die Hoffnung, daß diese unerfreulichen Zustände in nicht allzu ferner Zeit beseitigt werden können. Die Fortschritte der Bauarbeiter Italiens bedeuten auch für die übrigen Landesorganisationen einen großen Fortschritt und gestatteten diesen viel eher, für bessere Lohn- und Arbeitsverhältnisse ihre Thätigkeit zu entfalten. Obgleich der Bauarbeiterverband Italiens noch sehr jung ist, sieht er jetzt einer raschen Entwicklung entgegen. Er zählt gegenwärtig 35,000 Mitglieder. (Maurer, Stukkateure und Handlanger usw.) Im ersten Semester 1903 sind einige bemerkenswerthe Streiks und Lohnbewegungen zu verzeichnen. So die großen Streiks der Steinarbeiter am Langensee („Lago Maggiore“), der Maurer von Varese und der Ziegeleiarbeiter von Mailand. In Asti haben 300 Maurer 25 Tage gestreikt. Der Erfolg war glänzend, desgleichen derjenige des Maurerstreiks von Masera. In Vercelli streikten 1,500 Maurer acht Tage und erzielten eine Lohnerhöhung; beim Streik in Romagnano anerkannten die Meister sämtliche Forderungen der Arbeiter. In Branze war eine Verbesserung ohne Streik möglich; ebenso in Fontanello. In St. Secondo wurde durch den Streik die zehnstündige Arbeitszeit eingeführt (vorher betrug sie vierzehn Stunden). Ohne Streik wurden weiter Erfolge erzielt in Ovado und Granarola. In Novara wollten die Unternehmer die 400 Mann starke Organisation durch Ausperrung vernichten, mußten aber durch das Zugeständniß einer Lohnerhöhung von 35 Pfennige pro Tag eine Beendigung derselben herbeiführen. In Vercelli erzielten 110 Mann in zwölf Tagen eine Reduktion der Arbeitszeit und außerdem eine Lohnerhöhung von 60 Pfennige; ebenso verliefen die Streiks in Montebello und Soragno günstig. Die Ziegeleiarbeiter haben bis vor wenigen Jahren kein Lebenszeichen von sich gegeben; heute folgen sie mit Interesse der ganzen Bewegung. In Mailand erreichten sie (460 Mann) nach 40tägigem hartnäckigem Kampfe einen günstigen Arbeitsvertrag. Die Marmorarbeiter in Mailand, Manza und Lissone streikten ebenfalls mit Erfolg. Bei den Steinhauerstreiks in Omegna, Mergozzo, Oltresimone und Feriolo hat das Unternehmertum die schändlichsten Mittel zur Hintertreibung der Forderungen der Arbeiter angewandt; selbst die Pfaffen setzten einige Tausend Franken daran, um Streikbrecher zu gewinnen. Jedoch alles umsonst. Nach 90tägigem Kampfe mußten die Unternehmer ihre prozige Haltung aufgeben und die Forderungen der 800 Streikenden bewilligen. Dem Verband hat dieser Streik 30,000 Mark gekostet, welche Summe durch mehrmalige Extrasteuern eingebracht werden mußte. In Mailand streikten 300 Steinhauer mit theilweisem Erfolg. Ungünstig verlief der Streik in St. Moritz. In Brenno und Usena wurden durch 21tägigen Streik 10 Prozent Lohn-erhöhung erreicht. In Bologna streikten 150 Mann mit theilweisem Erfolg. Diesem Bericht ist zu entnehmen, daß es auch in Italien mit der Organisation der Bauarbeiter vorwärts geht. In die richtige Streikbrecheregegend, die Provinz Udine, hat sie zwar noch nicht vordringen können, aber auch da wird die Arbeiterbewegung mit der Zeit Eingang finden und festen Fuß fassen.

Zur Verbreitung unseres Labels.

Wir haben einen Artikel in den Markt gebracht, der geeignet ist, dem Publikum das Union Label unserer Brüderschaft, welches jetzt so schnellig als möglich in allen Staaten registriert wird, fortwährend vor Augen zu führen: Unsere Bündholz-Schachtel (match box), ein äußerst nützlicher Artikel, dessen Werth nicht nur unter unseren Mitgliedern, sondern auch unter Mitgliedern anderer Organisationen Anerkennung finden und die Thatfache verbreiten wird, daß die Brüderschaft der Zimmerleute und Bauhandwerker ein Union Label besitzt.

Wie die Abbildung der Bündholz-Schachtel an anderer Stelle dieses Journals zeigt, enthält die eine Seite derselben einen Abdruck unseres Labels und die andere Seite unser Sinnbild und Motto in prächtigen Farben auf weißem emailirtem Grunde lithographiert.

Die Lokal-Unions können durch den Ankauf und Wiederverkauf unserer Bündholz-Schachtel zur Verbreitung unseres Union Labels beträchtlich beitragen. Der Artikel ist ein vortreffliches Agitationsmittel und besonders zu Geschenken (souvenirs) bei Festlichkeiten sehr geeignet.

Die General-Office nimmt Bestellungen in irgend einer Anzahl zu dem Preise von 15 Cents per Stück entgegen. Eine Waarenprobe wird jedem Besteller gegen Einsendung des entsprechenden Betrages prompt zugesandt.

In unserem Kampfe mit dem Unternehmertum ist die Begeisterung allein ohnmächtig, wenn die materiellen Mittel des Widerstandes fehlen.

A Workin' in the Mill

In a shaded southern valley
Tom an' Sue and little Saly,
Joe an' Georgie, Jane and Will
Are all workin' in the mill.
We don't need no education,
Since this is our destination—
A workin' in the mill.

Not rich enough to dress for looks—
'Tis true we hain't no time fer books;
Nigh on ten year, through rain an' shine,
We've made a livin, me an' mine.
We're some in debt—we owe fer rent—
But still we toil, and are content—
A workin' in the mill.

An' this here country's justly proud
To be a raisin' such a crowd,
Always fitten jest to fill Vacant places in the mill;
Though we look a little shoddy
We air good as enny body—
A workin' in the mill.

The Comp'n'y's built a church-house, too
With painted benches, all bran new;
We're tradin' at the Comp'n'y's store
And don't live very high, for shore,
But we don't never need no cash,
'Cause we uns air jest pore white trash—
A workin' in the mill.

And sometimes we have parties. Phew!
How we dyke out in ribbons new;
Of kissin' games, why, I've hearn tell
The best to play is "In the Well."
The boys do off a sparkin' go,
The gals all like a "steady beau"—
A workin' in the mill.

We air nearly always porely
An' complainin'. I think shorely
This here Comp'n'y's house we've got
Is settin' in a sickly spot.
An' we feel so mighty tired,
We most wish that we warn't hired
A workin' in the mill.

We hear of wide-spread charity
And something called philanthropy,
And we wonder if it's ketchin',
An' if any body's fet hin'
Any of it this 'ere way,
To the white slave of today,
A workin' in the mill.

We go to church an' sing an' pray,
An' to the Lord our pennies pay;
Though all our scanty wage is spent,
If with our lot we'll be content,
The parson says that by and by
We'll lay our treasure up on high—
A workin' in the mill.

Slow But Sure

Smith—The hangman's rope and the electric chair are relics of the dark ages and should be discarded.
Jones—Why, I thought you were an advocate of capital punishment.
Smith—And so I am.
Jones—Then what would you suggest as a substitute for the rope and chair?
Smith—Cigarettes.

SEVEN-EIGHTHS of the wealth of the country is owned by one eighth of the people; that is, seven-eighths of the people are hypnotized by the other one-eighth. How? Simple enough. The hypnotized crowd have an idea that some day they will be able to break into the ranks of the one-eighth crowd

WHILE it is true that the great mass of the people are divided in their politics, I have noticed that they get pretty close together and party differences for the time being are forgotten when an attempt is made to infringe upon the constitutional right to express an honest opinion of the public acts of public men. As Lincoln said, You can't fool all the people all the time.

THE average working man figures his wages by the number of dollars he gets; he don't see the relationship between the contents of his pay envelope and the price of the things he buys.

E. M. WRIGHT,

Child Labor Class Murder

Child labor is an evil that tends to grow ever worse, because its results become, in turn, causes and means to its further extension. A part of the workmen are driven by poverty to set their children to work. Those children displace other workmen and so increase the competition among adults for employment. That increases the poverty of the parents and drives still more children to work. And so it goes on in an endless chain. Again, the employment of children stimulates the production of semi-automatic machinery and so increases the demand for child labor and decreases the demand for adult labor. From this point of view it is at least as necessary to abolish child labor as to prevent the importation of coolies. From another point of view it is still more important. These children are our children, and when our poverty forces them into the mills it deprives them of education and of healthy childish play and youthful pleasure and dooms them to physical, mental and moral degradation. Child labor is class murder. If the workers consent to it, it is class suicide—something much more horrible than the sort of "race suicide" that President Roosevelt is worrying about.

Song of the Wage Slave

The land it is the landlord's,
The trader's is the sea,
The ore the usurer's coffer fills—
But what remains for me?
The engine whirls for master's craft;
The steel shines to defend,
With Labor's arms, what Labor raised,
For Labor's foes to spend.
The camp, the pulpit, and the law
For rich men's sons are free;
Theirs, theirs the learning, art, and arms—
But what remains for me?
The coming hope, the future day,
When wrong to right shall bow,
And hearts that have the courage, men,
To make the future now.

I pay for all their learning,
I toil for all their ease;
They render back, in coin for coin,
Want, ignorance, disease;
Toil, toil—then a cheerless home
Where angry passions cross;
Eternal gain to them that give
To me eternal loss.
The hour of leisured happiness
The rich alone may see;
The playful child, the smiling wife—
But what remains for me?

They render back, those rich men,
A pauper's niggard fee,
Mayhap a prison, then a grave,
And think they're quits with me;
But not a fond wife's heart that breaks,
A poor man's child that dies,
We scorn not on our hollow cheeks
And in our sunken eyes;
We read it there, where'er we meet,
And as the sun we see,
Each asks: "The rich have got the earth,
And what remains for me?"

We bear the wrong in silence,
We store it in our brain;
They think us dull, they think us dead,
But we shall rise again.
A trumpet through the lands will ring,
A heaving through the mass,
A tramping through their palaces
Until they break like glass.
We cease to weep by cherished graves,
From lonely homes we'll flee;
And still, as rolls our million march,
Its watchword brave shall be—
The coming hope, the future day,
When wrong to right shall bow,
And hearts that have the courage, men,
To make that future now.

EXPULSIONS

Ed. Smith, of Local Union 113, Lincoln, Neb., has been expelled for appropriation of the local union's funds.

J. I. Scinner, formerly business agent of the Newark, N. J. District Council, has been expelled from the U. B. by that body for misappropriation of moneys collected by him for initiation fees and dues.

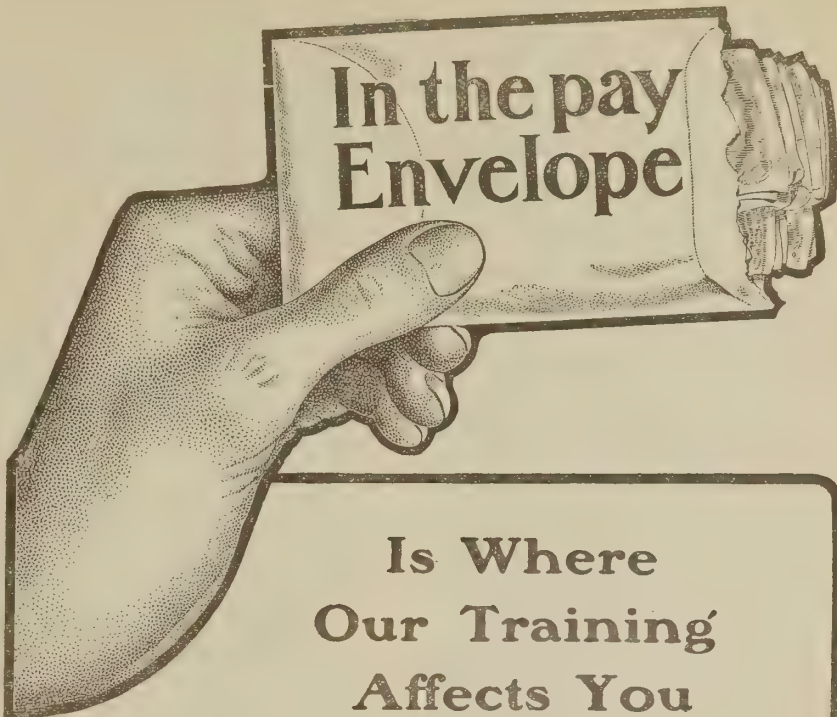

Business Agents' Badges.

In compliance with numerous requests the General Office will hereafter supply badges for business agents on application of any District Council or Local Union at the price of $3.50 apiece. The badge is a neat design, with U. B. emblem, has enameled lettering, and is very substantial. District Councils or Local Unions requiring badges should send their orders to the General office.

Mr. N. A. Gladding, vice-president and secretary E. C. Atkins & Company, saw and saw tool manufacturers, Indianapolis, Ind., has been appointed as one of the commissioners from Indiana to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and World's Fair, to be held in St. Louis, 1904.

What would you think of a man playing a game of cards and cheating himself? That's exactly what you do when you vote against your own class interest. It's worse than dealing from the bottom of the deck.

Curiosities About Wood

The strongest wood which grows within the limits of the United States is that known as "nutmeg" hickory, which flourishes on the Lower Arkansas River. The most elastic is tamarack, the black, or shellbark, standing not far below. The wood with the least elasticity and of lowest specific gravity is the Ficus aurea. The wood of the highest specific gravity is the blue wood of Texas and Mexico. The heaviest of foreign woods are the pomegranate and the lignum vitæ; the lightest, cork.

The tensile strength of the best known woods is set forth in the following, words "tensile strength" meaning the weight of power required to tear asunder one square inch of each: Ash, 14,000 pounds; beach, 11,500; cedar, 11,400; chestnut, 10,500; cypress, 6,000; elm, 13,400; fir, 12,000; lance, 23,000; lignum vitæ, 11,800; locust, 20,500; mahogany, 21,000; maple, 10,500; American white oak, 11,500; pear, 9,800; pitch pine, 12,000; larch, 9,500; poplar, 7,000; spruce, 10,290; teak, 14,000; walnut, 7,800; willow, 13,000.

The weight in pounds per square foot (without fractions) of the well-known woods (dry) is as follows: Butternut 25; cedar, 35; cherry, 45; chestnut, 38; cork, 15; dogwood, 47; ebony, 83; box elder, 43; elm, 41; blue gum, 52; water gum, 62; white hickory, 49; shellbark hickory, 43; holly, 47; juniper, 35; lancewood, 45; larch, 34; basswood or lime, 73; mahogany, 66; hard maple, 46; white maple, 34; mulberry, 35; white oak, 53; persimmons, 44; pear, 41; pitch pine, 41; red pine, 36; white pine, 34; yellow pine, 33; plum, 49; poplar, 33; quince, 44; rosewood, 45; sassafras, 30; spruce, 31; sycamore, 38; tamarack, 23; black walnut, 14; white walnut, 32; the willows from 30 to 26, and the yew, 49.

Four hundred and thirteen different species of trees grow in the various States and Territories, and of this number, sixteen, when perfectly seasoned, will sink in water. These woods of high specific gravity grow mostly in the arid regions of New Mexico, Arizona, and Nevada.—National Builder.

Experience

Experience teaches through life's plodding,
Where a dollar is at stake,
There are those alert to capture
And the glittering bauble take;
If we would avoid disaster
Too much confidence does not pay,
For we're apt to meet dishonor,
Oft disguised, along the way.

Though the weeds of greed and envy
Flourish in each path we find,
Still above them noble actions
Bloom in blessing for mankind;
And there's comfort in this knowledge,
There are still some honest men;
With the thought there comes new courage
To resume our tasks again.

And by plodding on and upward,
Though the way is rough to climb,
Hoping still, through perseverance,
Toil may reach the top sometime;
Knowing well for every sorrow
Dealt us by the hand of Fate,
Happiness, an even measure,
For all grief shall compensate.

Many seek undue advantage:
Knaves would crowd you from your place,
Push you down to stand upon you,
Where you've fallen in the race.
But, thank God, a few are faithful
To deal justly as they strive,
And to know such men and motives
Keeps the spark of faith alive.

And experience, ever faithful,
Though our wisdom's dearly bought,
Can be trusted as a teacher—
Thorough are her lessons taught;
But when hardships all are mastered,
And all struggles overcome,
Toil's reward shall be thrice welcome
In success that's fairly won.

Kirkwood, Ga. MARGARET SCOTT HALL.

An Improved Emblem Badge

We have added quite a neat improvement to our small badge or pin bearing Brotherhood emblem. We now offer the badge for sale in the shape of a button with screw attachment to be inserted or screwed on the front part or badge from the reverse side of the buttonhole. The price of the improved emblem badge is 25 cents each, same as for the badge with pin attachment.

Orders, for not less than a half dozen, specifying whether either button or pin is desired, will be promptly attended to by the General Office upon receipt of the necessary amount.

A Difference

1863—1903

Once black slaves were held as chattels,
In the Southland, long ago—
Bought and sold as cows and horses,
For our parents tell us so;
And they'd take us to "the quarters"
Where their "darkies" used to dwell—
Rows of cabins, clean and cozy,
Ante-bellum stories tell.

Healthy, happy pickaninnies,
Romp, rolling in the sun,
Eating plenty, living easy,
Light their toil when tasks begun;
Not a care and not a sorrow
For the future nor the past,
All anxiety for "rations"
Gladly on "Ole Massa" cast.

"Massa" wants them "sleek and likely,"
"Mistis" keeps them fat and fine;
Yes, the negroes were well cared for,
Who were slaves in "Auld lang syne."
Thus we see the "land of cotton"
And the black slave of the South,
Bere they learned the freeman's lesson
How to live from hand to mouth.

Now we'd draw another picture
While professing liberty,
And would ask a prosperous nation:
Who shall set the white slaves free?
Pale-faced children ever toiling
In the mine and in the mill;
Plain facts can not be mistaken—
Slavery's stigma shames us still!

Though we term the masters bosses
And the slaves are hired hands, free,
Free to toil and at their leisure
Starve and learn economy!
Hands are free, unkempt and hungry,
Well-fed slaves were bought and sold;
Masters furnished food and shelter,
Clothed, protected slaves from cold.

Pale and sickly untaught children,
Where the noisy looms must run,
Are the factory hands now toiling
From the dawn till set of sun;
Where the threads are always breaking
White mill hands pace to and fro,
Young lives spent in mutely watching
Whirling spindles swiftly go.

But no master gives them shelter;
From his bounty they're not fed,
But the pittance of their earnings
Buys the hungry children bread.
And before the week is ended
All their scanty hoard is spent,
For it pays for shabby clothing,
Goes for doctor's fees and rent.

Robbed of childhood, hopes soon blighted,
Wearily they tread their round,
For to Capital, the tyrant,
Baby "hands" for life are bound!
But mill owners have invested—
They must have their dividends;
They elect the legislators
And the law their right defends.

Now the voices of the people,
In their dire necessity,
Cry in vain, 'neath grievous burdens,
For diffused prosperity.
When shall righteousness and wisdom
All the ways of men control?
Ah! God grant a wave of justice
O'er our country soon shall roll.

May the stars and stripes float proudly
O'er a nation truly free,
And no more the cry of bondage
Stain our boasted liberty;
May our leaders bravely, nobly,
Steer aright the "Ship of State"
Till love and peace and charity
Banish avarice, strife and hate.

MARGARET SCOTT HALL.

To Boom Our Union Label

We offer an article designed to keep before the public an imprint of our new union label which is being registered as rapidly as possible in the different states—our MATCH-BOX, an article of great utility, keeping constantly before the public the fact that the Brotherhood has a union label. As will be seen by the illustration our match-box is an article which will be appreciated, not only by members of our Brotherhood, but by members of other unions, and one that will serve the purpose of reminding the public of our label. The Brotherhood union label on one side of the box and the emblem and motto on the other are lithographed in beautiful colors on white ground, representing enamel.

No better investment could be made by local unions than the purchasing of our match-boxes for agitation purposes. They are also a creditable souvenir to be used at the occasion of festivals.

The General Office is in a position to furnish any quantity of the article at the established price of 15 cents each. A sample will be sent immediately upon request accompanied by the necessary amount.

A TWENTIETH CENTURY TOOL

The Blocker Saw Filing Guide.

It is light, durable and well finished.

By its use a saw can be filed accurately and easily. The uniformity of the points is obtained by holding the file so the guide arm is parallel over them when the file is started across the saw. This insures the same bevel and pitch to all the points.

It is attached directly to the file by a thumb-screw. The guide arm is connected to a double index device, which can be set to give any angle or pitch desired. It is adjustable to any size file used for hand-saws. Skilled workman not required to use it.

Price, $1.50 by mail, postpaid.

This series of Fred T. Hodgson's new works are to-day the approved and most helpful set of practical builders' "educators" published. They have been tried and found by architects, contractors, carpenters and builders to be efficient "aids" for advancement and thoroughly reliable for daily consultation as books of reference, covering as they do thousands of "self-help-points" necessary for all workers of wood.

The books are positively up-to-date and the "Carpenter" most heartily recommends them to everyone as the most valuable series of books for self-instruction published in the world on the subjects treated.

THIS OFFER WILL EXPIRE WHEN THE 5,000 SETS ARE SOLD. AFTER THAT, THE BOOKS CAN ONLY BE HAD AT THE RETAIL PRICES.

The Potter Adjustable Combination Level, Plumb, Quadrant or Grade

The Invention of the Age!

Must Interest all Mechanics!

Nothing Equals it!

(Patented June 9, 1903.)

WHY?

It is accurate, serviceable, durable and compact as to size. Made of the very best material. It is superior to any thing in the market for its convenience in handling. It can be readily attached to a straight-edge of any length, and accurately adjusted by the set screws.

NOTICE.—When closed the level glass is covered with the protector, thus preventing the glass from being broken by coming in contact with other tools, as is the case with old-style levels.

A trial will convince any mechanic that it is all that we claim it to be; and further, the money it costs is money well invested—it will repay itself by the saving of time and labor.

Price, $1.25 (complete), F. O. B. New York.
Extra Hooks, 25 cents each.

The Advantages are Many:

It will be found very convenient for Mitre work, because, having obtained the degree of pitch you can easily get the plumb and level cut by shifting the glass holder around in the different positions.

To Grade, place the level upon a straight-edge of desired length, adjust the glass holder to meet the pitch required.

Quadrant at Any degree can be obtained. Notice the degrees all marked out on the plate. The value of this is appreciated when you need it and haven't it handy.

It is so constructed as to be indispensable to ceiling workers for its particular convenience in testing the level of a ceiling.

OELWEIN, IA.—Carpenters as well as other craftsmen will do well by steering clear of this city, as it is flooded with idle men, especially carpenters. Trade is not up to our expectations and wages are low. Stay away.

WARE, MASS.—Work here has been plentiful this season, so far, but now most of the larger jobs are completed. We are working nine hours for a minimum scale of $2.50 per day. Our local union is yet in its "creeping clothes," but prospering and taking in new members every meeting night.

VALEJO, CAL.—The contract between our local union and the Builders' Association, regulating wages and hours, expiring on the 17th August, we would request all carpenters to remain away from this city until a new agreement has been effected, of which due notice will be given through the columns of our Journal. At present everything runs smoothly.

VAN WERT, O.—The Local Union 1711' recently organized here, is doing splendidly. It is the only trade union in town and is making a great stir. Even the contractors are all in favor of seeing the carpenters organized. Work is fairly good and as soon as the new union is prepared for a demand the wages will be increased without a struggle. It would really be beneficial for some of the older local unions could they see the good results accomplished by Local Union 1711 in so short a time. They would surely make up and come to the front.

DE SOTO, ILL.—Our little Local Union 1121 is doing fine. Financially we are under the obligations of no one and have quite a surplus in our treasury. All the carpenters in town are members of the union, standing up manfully for their rights and the adopted wage scale. Up to April 1st last we received $2.25 for nine hours. On that date we demanded an advance of 25 cents per day, which was granted without any opposition. Our members are all employed and prospects for the summer season are good.

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.—Our local union is in fine shape and has had three years of smooth sailing. As we are making a trade demand and business being very dull at present, we would advise all carpenters to stay away pending a settlement and until trade conditions have improved.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The report* from this city published in the July CARPENTER requires rectification in as much as our now prevailing minimum wage scale is not 37½ cents but 35 cents per hour. A statement to this effect in the next issue of our journal will be most satisfactory to us.

NEW IBERIA, LA.—Some of our contractors are still holding out against us and refuse to recognize our union. We would earnestly request all carpenters to avoid this place, as by so doing they will enable us to arrive at an adjustment of our controversy. Business is dull, keep away pending a revival.

WAXAHACHIE, TEX.—Work is very dull here and as a consequence many of our members were obliged to go to other towns for work, which has caused a decrease in our membership. In view of the adverse circumstances we are proud to say that we are holding the greater part of work for union men.

ELKINS, W. VA.—Most of our members having started to work nine hours per day with ten hours' pay on August 1, and complications probably arising through our efforts to bring those contractors in line who have not agreed to our terms, we would advise the brothers to stay away from this place for the present.

POINT RICHMOND, CAL.—Moved by an editorial article in the CARPENTER, Local Union 642, lately passed unanimously the following resolution and instructed the secretary to forward a copy to our official journal: "Resolved, That Local Union 642 endorses the efforts made for securing direct legislation as a step towards the establishing of labors unquestionable right to the full enjoyment of its product." There is a strong sentiment in and outside of our union that industry must be re-organized, or rather, organized on a fairer basis.

COLUMBIA, PA.—The state of trade in this town is very discouraging. With the exception of an annex to the Steam Laundry Works there is not a building going up, and in this case we are informed that the owners will hire the men required themselves and at so low a rate as 20 cents an hour. Our members are all employed on jobs out of town, anxiously awaiting a revival of business when we hope to have an opportunity to obtain a much-needed advance in wages. Under prevailing conditions Columbia is certainly not a desirable place for carpenters to work in and we would advise them to give it a wide berth.

ANISTON, ALA.—A damage suit has been brought against the President and Secretary of Local Union 376 by J. W. Galliher for alleged damages accruing from a publication in the Labor Review, whose editor is also included in the suit, to the effect that he had been placed on the unfair list by the local union. The total amount sued for is $30,000. The case will come up for hearing at the fall term of the city court, and, as may well be imagined, will be watched with interest by both workingmen and employers. Trade is dull here; carpenters should keep away.

ROSWELL, N. M.—Judging from the large number of new men coming here from all sections of the country the town is extensively advertised as a health resort and mechanics' paradise. Some are coming here from places a thousand or more miles distant, bringing their families along, only to be disappointed and destitution staring them in their faces. The fact is that the supply is far in excess of the demand. There are three men for every one man's job, and we earnestly advise brothers contemplating coming here to provide themselves with sufficient cash to pay their fare back.

QUINCY, MASS.—At the time our schedule took effect one petty contractor by name of Wm. Stedman withheld his signature to our agreement and consequently the men in his employ were ordered by Local Union 772 to quit. Shortly afterwards the same men went back to work and the union instructed its Secretary to serve written notices on them, calling them out again. Thereupon Mr. Stedman got possession of one of the notices and on its strength sued the union for damages and had the Secretary summoned to court. The union engaged one of the best lawyers, fought the case and won it. Although our defense in this lawsuit cost us good money we are satisfied at its outcome, which shows that, after all, labor unions still have some rights in the state of Massachusetts.

PORTALES, N. M.—Trade is so dull here and times in general so hard that many of our members were compelled to leave town and secure employment elsewhere. Nevertheless, we hope to pull through; the members still here are of good material and those who left us will return as soon as trade revives. Portales at the present time is a good place for carpenters to avoid.

PORT ALLEGHANY, PA.—Our L. U. is progressing nicely and the outlook for the future is bright. We are working nine hours, and our minimum wage-scale is $2.50 per day. We are encountering some difficulty, at present, the owner of an opera house under construction, having awarded the contract for plastering to an outside concern, which employs non-union plasterers. We are now conferring with other building trades in the matter, and hope that it may be amicably adjusted, and organized labor recognized by the owner of the building.

CHARLESTON, W. VA.—For some time past business was booming in this city; at present, however, it is all over and there are more carpenters on hand than the trade can stand. The contractors, taking advantage of the situation, are doing their utmost to reduce the wages and are trying to disrupt our organization entirely. They now refuse to give employment to the members of our Local Union 1207. We would request all the brothers to pay no heed to advertisements inviting carpenters to come to Charleston, W. Va. Please stay away from this city until further notice.

CHICAGO, ILL.—There is an unprecedented influx of carpenters to this city from all parts of the country, especially of men with clearance cards. After depositing their cards the majority of them are unable to secure a job, and as a consequence any amount of destitute cases are complaining at our district office. A large number of buildings on 25-foot lots can not be started on account of the new ordinance requiring much light shafting, cutting up the rooms in a manner which makes them useless as flats. Further, we have a strike on in the Union Stock Yards, involving 700 men, to add to our depression. From this illustration of the present situation brothers will readily see that we are confronted by great odds without having men from other cities come here, in some cases without a penny in their pocket. Brothers, be wise and stay away from Chicago, Ill.

AKRON, OHIO.—Owing to the unsettled conditions of the building trades here at the present time and to the fact that we have a number of our men out of work, we would advise all members of the brotherhood to stay away from this place until conditions have changed.

BETHLEHEM, PA.—We are still among the living and doing our best in our struggle for shorter hours. Work is very slack here, most of our members, unwilling to work for unfair contractors, had to go outside of the district for work. We would request all carpenters to stay away from Bethlehem until further notice.

CAMDEN, S. C.—Local Union 1318 had a pretty hard fight in keeping its organization intact and getting it to its present standing. Nearly all of the resident carpenters are within our fold and we have plenty of work to last all season. We were organized on the 19th of November and have certainly been doing well for such a short length of time. Our membership this moment amounts to over 50. The nine-hour system will go into effect on December 1st and that clause of our trade rules which provides that no member shall work with any non-union man took effect on August 1st. All our undertakings have been successful so far and our members feel greatly encouraged.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—The status of trade is very satisfactory and encouraging here at this time. A large number of buildings are under course of erection among them a ten story steel building and other large brick stores. On some of the jobs the wages paid over-reach our minimum scale which is 35 cents an hour for eight hours' work. All men are employed and there is more room for good mechanics, of the other kind we have more than is needed. All local unions in this district are growing in membership and doing well generally, they are now preparing for Labor Day. We have also a fight on here, which is directed against an unfair lumber company and a bitter one, lasting the whole past year and leaving us unable to tell when and how it will end. Should trade continue as favorable as it is at present, we shall make a demand for an increase of 5 cents per hour.

Localities Where Work Is Dull

Carpenters are requested to stay away from the following places. Owing to trade movements, building depression and other causes, trade is dull:

Detroit, Mich.	Sioux City, Ia.
Asheville, N. C.	Defiance, O.
Norwalk, Conn.	Telluride, Col.
Salina, Kans.	Alameda Co., Cal.
Morristown, N. J.	Pittsburg, Pa.
Providence, R. I.	Danvers, Mass.
New Haven, Conn.	Beloit, Wis.
Buffalo, N. Y.	Aniston, Ala.
Chicago, Ill.	Bethlehem, Pa.
Houston, Tex.

A Warning

All brothers are hereby warned against H. J. Smith, formerly a member of Local Union 364 of Council Bluffs, Ia., and delegate to the Trades' Assembly of that city and that body's Treasurer. H. J. Smith, about two months ago, left his home for parts unknown leaving his wife and daughter in destitute circumstances and taking with him over $60 of the Assembly's funds. He is about thirty-eight years of age, of sandy complexion, 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighs about 160 pounds, and is greatly addicted to pipe smoking. Look out for him.

Look Out for Him!

Ed Van Alstine, a member of Local Union 1261, Iliou, N. Y., and a contractor, has absconded with the amount of two weeks' wages due his help. He also borrowed money from fellow-members which he never paid back. Was placed under fine and expelled by the local union. Look out for him!

Beware of Him

William Longfeld, a member of L. U. 171, Youngstown, Ohio, after obtaining money from the Business Agent as a loan, left the city and went to Buffalo, N. Y., where he tried the same game, thereby causing his union considerable annoyance. Local Union 171 would hereby warn all brothers to beware of William Longfeld, as he has been found utterly unworthy of assistance.

Where Are His Relatives?

VALEJO, CAL.—Bro. Martin Frisom, a native of Norway, came to us last April and in the second week of his first job met with an accident. He was removed to a San Francisco hospital, where he finally died. He was buried in the city of Valejo, Cal., on August 2d, 1903, Local Union, 180 defraying the attending expenses, raising the necessary amount by a pro rata assessment.

The deceased came here from Grand Forks, N. D., a perfect stranger to the members of L. U. 180, whose efforts to locate his relatives in this or his native country have so far proved futile.

Members or readers who can give any information as to the whereabouts of Bro. Ericson's relatives will kindly communicate with the General Office.

EXPULSIONS

J. R. Berry, of Local Union 1159, Alamogorda, N. M., has been expelled by the local union for stealing tools from his fellow workmen.

Union Principles

Selfishness says to the union man:

You make me pay as much for an average workman as for the highest class workman—that is unjust to you, the high class workman.

The high-class workman replies:

I may work faster and better than my fellow: so much the better for you, if I am willing to take the same pay. But his children are as numerous as mine. His children eat as much. His wife works as hard as mine. He is a human being like myself. We are union men, and our aim is not to get the most possible for the individual, but to get enough for all.

That is one of the fundamental principles of union labor, and one of the glories of true unionism.—Exchange.

Movements for Better Conditions

LOCAL UNION 531, ST. PETERSBURG, FLA.—We have made a demand upon our contractors for the eight-hour workday, to take effect on September 1, next. There appearing to be no serious objection offered by the contracting builders, we are looking forward for success.

Successful Trade Movements

BAR HARBOR, ME.—Our difficulty with the Builders' Association has come to an end. We are now working eight hours, our wages have been advanced 25 cents per day. We have been more successful than we expected to be and are well satisfied with results.

PALESTINE, TEX.—We finally won a complete victory over our bosses and the eight hour day is now firmly established here. Our minimum wage-scale is $2.50 per day, most of our members, however, are receiving $2.80. Palestine, Tex., is now entitled to a place on our "Eight-Hour List."

NEWTON (MASS.) AND VICINITY.—After a strike of fifteen weeks' duration, for an increase in our minimum scale from $2.50 to $3 per day, we have compromised the difference with the Master Builders' Association, by accepting $2.80, as the minimum scale of this district, and the strike has been declared off. This district comprises Newton, Waltham and Watertown and vicinity.

The Reference Card Nuisance Defeated

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

We desire to let you and the brothers of the U. B. know that our difficulty is settled. We are proud to say that by a united effort and concerted action we have scored a victory over our employers. The reference card plan, the pet scheme of the Interstate Employers' Association, has been defeated and become a thing of the past, and the contractors now desist from any attempt at inauguration of that nuisance. On the other hand we have secured an increase of wages of 20 cents per day. Yet, in order to attain this favorable result we were obliged to make some concession on our part, inasmuch, as we had to agree not to enter into any sympathetic strike, without first submitting the matter in dispute to arbitration. This, however, is not bad, as it may appear on the face of it, as all trades, with the exception of the painters, have agreements with their bosses prohibiting the employment of non-union men in any of the crafts.

Thomas I. Kidd's Tirades

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I have before me a copy of the journal, published by Thomas I. Kidd, Gen. Sec. Amalgamated Woodworkers' Union, and I must confess that for abuse and gall, I have never seen anything in a dime novel to beat it. I am especially surprised at the language used by Mr. Kidd, knowing that he, as well as the General President, of his organization, have received their schooling in the ranks of our Brotherhood.

Mr. Kidd states: We never claimed shop hands and machine-men until 1898. Now, if this was true, how did he, being a wood-turner, become a member of the U. B. ten years previous to 1898? And, if this is so, how is it that their Gen. Pres. Mulcahy was also a member of our organization until 1890? If Mr. Kidd's assertions are based on facts, both, he and G. P. Mulcahy must have joined the U. B. under false pretences.

Mr. Kidd lays great stress on Downey's decision; I understand that, for there is no doubt in my mind but that either he or some of his clique have assisted in the drawing up of this decision. And, before we accept any of its terms let the Umpire (if he is as fair-minded as he pretends to be) come forth like a man and tell us where he went, when he left the city of Indianapolis, to get that decision; a decision rendered in entire disregard of the evidence produced and the facts laid before him.

I will say further that Thomas I. Kidd, can not name one city where his organization is obeying Downey's decision, why should the U. B. abide by it? What is good for the goose is certainly good for the gander.

Mr. Kidd is using strenuous efforts to make organized labor believe that our U. B., in 1894, gave him control over all mills and shops; yet, he admits that he was never officially notified of any such action taken by the U. B. and can not produce anything to prove his assertion.

In conclusion, I will say, that judging from the tone of his journal, Thomas I. Kidd would like to have some one at the head of the U. B., who might be twisted by him and his gang. But because we happen to have men, in the General Office, who have grit and backbone to stand up for our rights, he uses the vilest abuse against them that he can command.

Let Thomas I. Kidd and his organization do as much for organized labor as the U. B. has done, and then it may be time for him to crow. I am for the U. B.

Labor Leads Capital

Capital depends on labor, but the latter does not depend upon capital. If all the laborers would vanish from the world to day capitalists would perish in less than six months, for production would cease and famine would reign from one end of the earth to the other. But if all capitalists would pass down into their graves and bury all their wealth in their tombs, laborers would not only survive, but grow rich, for then they would get full amount of the wealth produced by their exertions. It is true that they would be without money and without machinery, but they would soon create these, as they have already created the wealth of the world.—Rev. Father McGrady.

A Trades Union should not be rated secondly to any fraternal or other organization. If it was not for your trades unions, which enables you to earn living wages, you would not be in a position to contribute to the support of the fraternal orders of any kind. You have a right to belong to any kind of organization your inclinations direct, but your trade obligation stands, or should stand, A No. 1, far above all others, and should take rank above all other organizations.—Union Sentinel.

EVERY man working for wages should belong to the union of his trade or calling.

More Comments on the Appointment of a Colored Organizer.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

The members of Local Union 544, El Paso, Tex., have followed the discussion on the negro question in the recent issues of THE CARPENTER with great interest, and decided to enter protest against the appointment of a colored organizer for the following reasons:

First. We do not believe it to be to the best interests of the U. B. to force its members to accept the negro as their equal. Many of our members have expressed themselves as being more loyal to their Southern training and nature than to their trade organization associated with the negro. As Southern men, knowing the nature of our Southern brothers, we feel safe in saying that the stand taken by our General President in espousing the cause of the negro will, sooner or later, bring on a clash that will endanger, if not entirely destroy, some of our local unions in the Southern States.

Second. In the South the man who puts himself on an equality with the negro evokes for himself the contempt of every true Southerner, and what will apply to the individual man will also apply to the organization. Should the U. B. not renounce the attitude assumed by our General President towards the negro question, the Southern man will have to decide on the question: Shall I stay in, or join, the U. B. at the risk of depriving myself of the respect of my fellow-men and at the sacrifice of the social standing of my family, or stay out of the organization that is looked upon with contempt by the entire business and social world of the South?

A negro organizer will be confined to work among his own race, not by the Constitution of the U. B., but by the natural law placing the white man above the negro. The city that is large enough to have a union of colored men will certainly be of enough importance to white carpenters to also have an organization, and in such places the negro carpenter will not have to labor under the disadvantages that some localities have.

At the time we organized our local union here in El Paso we were not in possession of the address of our General Office and were compelled to communicate with L. U. 114, who kindly sent us a copy of THE CARPENTER which enabled us to effect our organization. The same local union also had to furnish the address to the carpenters in Alamogordo and Albuquerque, N. M., who, upon receipt of the same, joined the U. B.

This goes to show that while there are white organizers in the field, there are not enough of them to cover the territory, and that the white organizer would accomplish a great deal more good for the U. B. than a colored organizer.

We claim that there are many important territories being more neglected in this respect than the negro sections of the South.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I have been much interested in the April number in relation to the organizing of colored carpenters in the South.

Our Southern brothers are perhaps more to be pitied than blamed for their feeling in regard to the colored people, as it is the result of their training from early childhood, and on account of their training I suppose they suffer more than tongue can tell. I would not train a child of mine like that for any sum of money. I rejoice greatly in being absolutely free from such feeling. I could associate with a negro or a Chinaman, or any other nationality or color, provided the person behaves as a man ought to behave and does not live on the product of other people's labor. If "The negro was created solely for surveying land with a jackass," I see no reason why that work is not as honorable as surveying a board with a jackplane.

Some of our Southern brothers have evidently not studied the labor problem very deeply when they can write "that there is no need to ever fear the competition of the disorganized colored carpenter;" for the unorganized colored carpenters of the South are not only a danger to those who live in the South, but the unorganized carpenters in New Orleans are a danger to the organized carpenters of San Francisco, and the unorganized, unskilled workers in China are a danger to the most skilled workers in America. The workers are a class, and when one worker is degraded the whole class suffers without regard to color or nationality; and if we can lift up one branch of the working class the whole class is benefited.

It may be best for our colored brothers to have their own unions where the race prejudice exists; but sitting with a colored brother in a lodge-room does not require us to invite him to our home, any more than it would compel me to invite to my home J. P. Morgan, Mark Hanna, J. D. Rockefeller, or anyone else of the capitalistic rich white trash of the "Four Hundred," who might belong with me to some lodge or order like the Masons, Knights of Pythias or Odd Fellows. I might have to sit with some of that rich white trash in a lodge, but that would not force me to invite them to my home to torture my family with their fashionable snobbery.

There are capitalists and rich people who do useful work, and earn their own living, who are just as good as any ordinary workman; but an industrious negro who works to earn his own living is surely a more desirable companion in a lodge or at home than a capitalist who lives in luxury on what he obtains by speculation, interest, rent or profit from the products of the labor of other people. Let us have the colored carpenters organized. Let us have all the colored people organized in unions, and let us have organized all the "poor white trash" all over the land that does useful work. Let us unite and so reorganize the government of the United States that we shall have an industrial government instead of the present military government with its soldiers to kill working people who ask for more pay for their work. Let us study the industrial problems and learn the tricks by which the larger part of the wealth we produce is diverted from us into the pockets of those who do not do any useful work; and when the working people, as a class, realize that it is through the machinery of government that their products are turned over to the non-producers, we will soon find a remedy by assuming control of the government; and our labor unions are needed to teach us to stand together, white or colored.

TARAL T. FRICKSTAD.
Oakland, Cal. Local Union 36.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I notice in the April issue of THE CARPENTER quite a number writing about the appointment of Bro. Burgess as organizer. In a certain respect I agree with the remarks of most of them, but in some respects I differ widely from them. In the first place I agree that it is not wise for the G. P. to appoint a negro to organize the white carpenters of the South. It might do in the North, but I notice he does not appoint any up that way. It is just the same in government affairs—it seems as though the Northern people think that a negro is good enough for the Southern people but not for the Northerners. As I wrote the G. P. at the time he appointed Burgess, that if he was appointed simply to work among the negroes I thought it a good appointment. I think so yet.

Some of the writers in the April CARPENTER say they don't think the negro ought to be organized at all. They are very wrong. It is necessary to organize them for the reason that in the South especially they are the greatest drawback to organized labor that we are encountering, for the reason that they work for lower wages than the white carpenters can afford to do. It is true that, as a general thing, they are not as good mechanics as the white man, but it can not be denied that some of them are very good workmen. In a good many places where I have been the negroes have much the greatest amount of work to do, because they work cheaper. I have often had men ask me the question: "Can you tell me where I can find a negro carpenter?" At the same time they knew I was a carpenter and out of work, but they wanted a negro because he would work for less money than I would. I have sometimes told them that if they had any work to do I would be glad to do it. The reply would be: "Oh, it is a cheap job and I could not afford to pay you your wages." Therefore it is necessary that we organize them, if for no other reason than for our own protection. Again, I have always found that the negro, when organized, are, as a rule, stronger adherents of trade rules than their white brothers are, and in case of any trouble they can be depended upon to stand firm for the cause. And, again, I have never found any of the negro union carpenters who was not willing, and even anxious, to be advised by the white unions. But then I have also found a great many negro carpenters who object to the negro organizer, for the reason that they have very little confidence in a negro, anyway, and they have been so often swindled out of their money by some sharper of their race. I have frequently been told by the negroes that they were afraid to trust any negro who came to them with any kind of a proposition to get their money. I have taken a good deal of interest in the negro unions in the last two or three years, and I have visited their meetings, and always found them anxious for me to give them a talk, and I have also been able in a number of instances to settle difficulties between them. Therefore I say by all means go ahead and organize the negro, but don't try to make the negro organize the white man in the South. "It can't be did."

Fraternally,
J. I. WAITE,
Tifton, Ga. L. U. 1445.
SAVANNAH, GA.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Seeing so many protests against the appointment of W. H. Burgess as southern organizer by our General President, I feel it my duty as a southern man to answer in part several of the communications and to stand by the action of our worthy President.

One brother says that Burgess is from Birmingham. Another asks, "Why in Texas don't you keep your negroes North and let him organize the North?"

In answer to one of these brothers I will say that Burgess never saw Birmingham in his life; to the other let me answer that Burgess was never north of the Mason and Dixon line, but was born and raised in South Carolina, and at the time of his appointment as organizer he was President of Local Union No. 318, U. B. of C. and J. of A., of Savannah, Ga. Our brothers of Local Union 887 of Hampton, Va., can not see the necessity of organizing the negro. There may be none in Virginia; but in Georgia he must be organized. I was born and raised among them; my father once owned some of them, and I know them. Some of our Virginia brothers say that they can not compete with us as mechanics. To some extent that might be true; but in Georgia we are always in competition with them. The contractors prefer them because they can get them cheap. In Burgess' own home city we have three hundred white carpenters and five hundred negro carpenters, and the latter have less unemployed than the whites. The reason is that they are not well organized and can be hired for less wages. So I say we must organize them; for if we can afford to work all day on a scaffold beside them, then we can surely afford to meet them in the hall for an hour or so once in a while.

Whether or not Burgess is the right man to organize the negro in the South remains to be seen. I am satisfied that the General President will take him out of the field if he does not suit the place. My opinion is that the white man could organize the negroes better than a man of their own color, because they look with suspicion upon any of their own color who may rise above them.

But that is not my business. The Constitution gives the General President the right to appoint whomsoever he likes, and we should not criticize the actions of our President, who, I am sure, is acting for the best interest of the Brotherhood, as he sees it.

But I am sure that we must organize the negro in the South, notwithstanding some opposition to it. The mere fact that all of the boss builders in the South are advocating leaving the negroes out of the unions is a good reason why we should organize them. Being in the position of Business Agent in our city for the past six months, I have had occasion to notice the great necessity of organization. Let the good work go on, and let us hope for the day when there will be equal rights to all and special privileges to none. Then the great problem that confronts our brother about Mrs. McGinty and Mrs. Burgess at the sewing society will solve itself, and the white man and the black man in the South will march on down the stream of time in peace, as in years gone by.

Fraternally yours,

ATLANTA, GA.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I have been very much interested in watching the discussion going on in THE CARPENTER, resulting from the appointment of a colored organizer, which was perfectly in line with the action taken by the Atlanta Convention.

It has been some fourteen years since I came to Atlanta from Michigan. During all of these years I have given the negro question considerable study from a carpenter's point of view and also from a union and non-union standpoint. From my experience in Atlanta I find that the negro does not come into competition with the white mechanic in the shops, factories, on the office buildings or on the finer class of work. Where a first-class job of work is required the white mechanic has it his way as far as the negro

How to Cut a Rampant Brace

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

I lately saw a copy of THE CARPENTER and I like it very much. I formerly worked at carpenter work, but for some years I have taught school. There is one thing I would like to know—how to lay out a long and short brace like this: I can do it with a draft, but I would like to know how to do it with the square, without a draft, the same as I lay out a common brace or rafter. I have asked a good many carpenters and have not found one who could lay out such braces without a draft.

I enclose 25 cents in one-cent stamps for your reply and a few copies of THE CARPENTER.

Yours very truly,

J. C. MULLISON.

Middletown, Orange Co., N. Y.

Our first care will be to find the inclination or pitch of timber the brace is to fit against. In this case it is about 8" rise per foot. The post is vertical. Assume the height of brace as 6' 9" from E to H (Fig. 1) and the level run as 5' 0", or W E. The level run being determined, find the height. Five times 8" is 40", or 3' 4". Then 6' 9" plus 3' 4" = 10' 1", the plumb distance from V to H. The level run or distance is 5' 0"; hence 5' on one side of the square and 10' 1" (or 10 1/2 inches) on the other side will give the cut proportions to fit against the vertical post (but not the top cut). The same is found in the following manner: Let the square K A C, Fig. 2, be the pitch of the roof or rafter V E, with the rise along A C. Let C 5, Fig. 2, represent the vertical cut of brace, Fig. 1, whose proportions are 10' 1" to 5', and let other intersect at 9, then A 9 C will be the cut proportions for top of brace to fit against rafter. It will be seen that C A 9 is the same angle as P A O in the upper right-hand corner of Fig. 1, hence A 9 to A C will be the cut. Again, let B U, Fig. 1, be the vertical line and throw across this line the square with the proportions 8" to 12" (rise of roof) and if X B is carried on it will be the cut. This method may be employed directly on the timber by making the vertical cut of brace on it and applying the square as shown. Again, let U B, Fig. 3, be the same cut of brace and apply the square 12" to 8". U X will direct the cut. U X B, in Figs. 1 and 3 are the same, only applied in reverse conditions. Length of brace—Its proportions are 10' 1" to 5'. Take 10 1/2" to 5", or 20 1/2" to 10" and space off, as shown, 6 times for the latter and 12 times for the former figures, because we have in the first instance a scale of 1" to 1'; hence 12 times. The brace on the reverse side is gotten between. The true length of the brace under discussion is 11' 3 1/8" from V to H, Fig. 1.

NOTE BY THE EDITOR.—This is a superior way to obtain lengths of rafter braces. For information write to the advertisers of books in our journal treating on the subject.

Some Devices and Novelties of Which Our Readers Should Know

BY FRED T. HODGSON

THE first of these is a handy grindstone frame, Fig. 1, made by Mr. Arrowood of Greenock, Texas. In describing the frame, he says: "I had the frame of an old bicycle and utilized it in connection with the stone. I cut out the middle brace (1), and

ing. It is shown at Fig. 2, and is so arranged that it can be attached to an upright stud or to a scaffold pole if necessary. Indeed, it can be fixed to most any piece of timber. The one shown is made then took a two by four timber and made the frame (2) and stapled it to a stout post (3). Then I made the frame for the grindstone, and braced it underneath, as shown. I removed the hind wheel of bicycle that had little sprocket wheel on, and cut out the spokes. Then I took a piece of soft wood, trimmed it to fit square of iron, but it may be made of wood, all except the pulleys, hooks, and the straps around the pole.

Often it is necessary to divide a circle into a number of equal parts, and it is too much trouble to "step" around with compasses, and takes too long a time. A ready method is shown at Fig. 3. Let A B C be a circle which we wish to divide into any number of equal parts; draw a diameter A B, and from A and B with the radius A B strike arcs cutting at D. Now divide A B into the given number of equal parts, and through the second division point from either end draw the line D E cutting the circle at E, then the line (on chord) A E is the required length of side for the given polygon.

Fig. 4 shows what may be termed

"A Universal Scale." It consists of a triangle having a base of 6 inches and an altitude of 6 inches. The base is divided into 30 parts. These parts are connected us suppose it is to be divided into 12 parts, and then apply it to the drawing, using it as a scale. This is far more accurate than the usual

B for the bearings, and with a solid collar worked at C. A wooden or bone handle is fitted at one end D, and a nut is used at E to hold the stone on the spindle. The stand may be of $\frac{3}{4}$ -in. hardwood, the two side pieces being shaped as at F, Fig. 6 and the base as G, Fig. 6. A plane iron is shown in position for sharpening at H, and for supporting the back end of this a $\frac{5}{8}$ -in. diameter rod I may be dowelled between the supports. The side pieces may be glued and screwed to the base, and a couple of screw holes should be bored through the bottom for securing to the bench. Fig. 7 is a cross section through the spindle showing the bearings, a brass socket being used at J, that I ordered five more at my hardware store. Now I have a neat set of core-box planes which take up little space in my tool chest."

Doubtless many of the thousands of readers of THE CARPENTER have, in the course of their work, been obliged to invent many curious kinks and devices for the purpose of doing odd out-of-the-way jobs, and if they would put them in shape and submit to the readers of this paper the methods by which they got over their difficulty, I am sure they would be doing good missionary work, and would get the good will and appreciation of their fellow readers.

with the apex of the triangle by radial lines. Lines parallel to the base are drawn through the triangle, to enable method of drawing parallels from points on a line drawn through one end of the given line. It takes far less time and does not deface the drawing. The draughtsman can construct in like manner a scale to fit any case, and which may be used in the same manner as a scale. Other applications will be obvious.

A revolving oil-stone, while novel, is not a bad idea, and a correspondent to a building paper asks how he can make a wooden stand in which to hang a revolving oil-stone $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter and $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches thick. He has been answered as follows:

"It will first be necessary to make a spindle as Fig. 5. This may be forged from a piece of $\frac{3}{4}$ -in. round iron worked down to $\frac{1}{2}$ -in. at A, where it passes through the stone, $\frac{5}{16}$ -in. in diameter at and a simple bearing made out of a couple of $\frac{3}{16}$ -in. brass plates secured to the side with screws at K."

A pattern maker, writing to The American Machinist, says: "Last Christmas Santa Clause was unusually kind to my little son, sending three small boxes of tools. In each box was a small plane made of beech, the dimensions as shown in sketch, Fig. 8. TRUE, there is a limit to what unionism can accomplish. That is no reason for abandoning unionism or belittling its possibilities. It is a reason, though, why unionists should make a candid study of conditions and try to find out the other means by which to do what unionism can not achieve.

The Labor Leader

BY FRANK DUFFY

WE hear a great deal of late about the labor leader. He seems to be one of the most important personages on the face of the earth. We are all anxious to meet him and find out whether he is a member of the human family or not. His doings are heralded far and wide; his movements and his resorts are closely watched; his actions are carefully and suspiciously scrutinized. If he keeps the most select company, he is too reserved and high-toned—he is living on the fat of organized labor. If he associates with politicians, he is a political "labor fakir" looking for a job. If his company is not of the most reputable character, he is a bum, and if he joins in the every-day life of the workers, and allows himself to be entertained by them at their expense, he is a loafer. Yet he is one of the most essential members of the labor movement. We expect a great deal of him. He must be intelligent and educated; he must be a man of tact, diplomacy, conservatism and reticence. These qualities must be blended in his make-up, and yet to appearances must remain a workman. He must always do that which is right, and never do wrong. He must always be a winner, and never a loser. He is expected to give advice and instruction on all sorts of subjects; in fact, he must be "perfection personified." Don't you think we are expecting a little too much from our leaders? Does any other organization expect so much from theirs? Do we ever assist them in their struggles and trials? In the majority of cases we find fault with them—give them no encouragement, not even a kind word. We leave them to fight the battles of life, our battles of injunctions, strikes and lockouts, without offering them the benefit of our advice or the assistance that we ought. Let us in the future have a little compassion and consideration for these men who devote their time, energies and lives that our conditions may be improved.

Labor Organization of Very Ancient Origin

Labor organizations are not, as it is often claimed, of recent date, but of very ancient origin. Plutarch says:

"Under the reign of Numa, the first king of Rome after Romulus, 712 B. C., the inhabitants of that city were of various nationalities or factions, who were by no means willing to unite, but maintained perpetual contest and party quarrels.

"In order to tranquilize the tumultuous elements King Numa divided the inhabitants into small bodies according to the different trades or arts followed by them, such as goldsmiths, masons, dyers, shoemakers, tanners, braziers, etc. Other artificers were also collected and arranged into companies, who held their own courts of law and had their own halls for the conducting of their affairs as well as religious ceremonies peculiar to each company or society. By uniting the inhabitants on art or trade lines he succeeded in their setting aside all national prejudices and induced them to take a common interest in the welfare of their trade or calling, and peace and harmony was established."

Plutarch further tells us that the labor societies organized by King Numa not only maintained themselves thereafter, but their example was copied by the Athenians. He says:

"When Pericleas, 429 B. C., was rebuilding and beautifying the city of Athens the merchants and meaner sort of people went not without their share of the public money. The conveyance of raw material, such as stone, brass, ivory, gold, ebony and cypress, employed merchants and sailors on the sea and furnished employment to carpenters, masons, braziers, goldsmiths, painters, carvers, ropemakers and other artificers on the land. Each art or trade had a number of lower people, ranged in proper subordination, for the execution of the work, like soldiers under the command of a general. Athens' labor forces thus being well organized and disciplined, industry at that time was in flourishing condition and plenty of all necessities of life was diffused among persons of all ranks and social standing."

As the laborers of ancient Athens were working under the supervision of their overseers, so are we today organized under the guidance of our officers. Our Business Agent acts in the same capacity as the overseer of old Athens did. He sees to it that all men are provided with work as far as possible, and that they receive a fair day's pay for a fair day's work. He looks out for the interest of all under his charge who abide by our Constitution and By-Laws.

Thus we see that labor unions originated way back in the early ages of the world, and out of necessity to harmonize the different branches of industry, to avoid conflicts between them and to stamp out animosity and national prejudice. They have done efficient and beneficial work in ancient times, as they are doing today. It is not very long ago since we would not work with men of different nationalities, shade or color. Now close contact in our unions and fellowship has made us all equal as workmen. Labor unions are the means of unifying the horny-handed sons of toil, the world's producers of all wealth, into peaceable, orderly bodies of men, without regard to nationality, creed, tongue, shade or color, as brothers of labor.

An Australian View

Harmonious as the private relations between the employer and the employed may be, there is always the hopeless antagonism of class interests. Amiable as the boss may be—just and considerate, perhaps, within the limits of the capitalists system—he has got to go some day, and the sooner both sides recognize that position the less painful will the process of elimination be. Pierpont Morgan, the great amalgamator, is constrained to admit that the work of consolidating capital which he and other trust magnates are performing, is paving the way to the co-operative commonwealth.

"You may call us socialists," he says, "for that is the ultimate of what we are doing—the taking over by the people of the materials of their life." Unwilling, perhaps unwittingly, capitalism is helping to bring about its own end. The duty of the unionist is to hasten the inevitable by intelligently recognizing that between labor and capital there can be no truce, no compromise. The eight-hour victory marks a stage on the march forward, but there is much more to be done. Its chief value lies not so much in what it has accomplished as in the opportunities it affords for further progress.—The Worker, Brisbane, Australia.

To squeeze out the profit, rent and interest charged by a few individuals for the use of the cradle of production—the earth—is the object of Socialism.

question is concerned, for the simple reason that the negro can not do this class of work, and, as a consequence, leaves his work uncompleted on every job he does.

On the more common class of work, however, he does come into competition with the white mechanic. On all outside work and house-building the negro is a very successful competitor with the white mechanic. He is largely preferred, first, because he can do, or be driven to do, a larger day's work and for less pay. He will work longer hours and for less pay without objecting, and on his wages and hours the standard is set for the white mechanic on the same class and even on the better class of work. Second, being unorganized, he will stand more abuse, because he does not possess the finer qualities of nature and self-respect, and, not considering himself on an equal with the white man, believes that he is not entitled to as much respect on the job. Third, he knows that by being submissive to the treatment he receives he is preferred in a large degree to the white mechanic.

Now, how are we going to remedy this? Let the negro remain unorganized, and continue to fight the present conditions as we have been for years, and growing worse all the time?

I say, No! Let us lay down all our prejudice (I have as much as any southern born man) and look the question fair and square in the face as it is! From the conditions, as I see them in Atlanta, it will benefit the white mechanic to have the negroes organized into locals by themselves with their own officers. Let them come under the same trade rules, and let them be represented in the District Councils and central bodies of other trades, in order that their delegates may come into touch with the white mechanic and gain aspiration from him to better their own conditions. The negro is a friend to us on the inside, while on the outside he will be our enemy. Therefore I claim that our colored craftsmen should have their own organizer.

I think that the appointment of a colored organizer was one of the wisest things our General President has done in a long time, and we want that organizer here in Atlanta for about three months. I believe he can do us more good than anything else.

H. B. ADOLPHUS,

Pres. Fulton County, Ga., District Council.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Having lived in Dixie land and other parts of this country about half my lifetime and having studied the labor problem to some extent, I desire to say a few words on the negro question in reply to Bro. W. P. Pridgeon's remarks in the April CARPENTER. Bro. Pridgeon says "this is a white man's country." Now, my impression always was that our country was intended to be the home of the free—a country guaranteeing freedom and protection to the oppressed of all countries. The negro did not come here of his own free will, but since he is here it becomes a burning question how to bring him up to the same standard, economically and politically, as that of his white brother, in order that he may be of benefit to himself, to his fellow-tradesmen and to this country in general.

As soon as the co-operative system will take the place of the present system of wage slavery, the negro question, like many other problems, will be solved; but until that time arrives we have to make the best of the situation we can. It is in our own interest and our imperative duty to organize the negro carpenters into local unions of his own, educate him and get him to espouse the cause and principles of unionism. I know from experience that, educated and organized, the negro feels much more independent and loath to take his white brother's place in case of trouble, than he does when unorganized.

As regards social equality, the South has settled that question for itself, the majority of white employers hiring negro labor in most all vocations of life. Furthermore, I will say that down in Mississippi I have often seen negroes take white children to theaters or other places of amusement. I have seen negro women with white children sucking their breast, and if the brother will look close he will see many a negro with white blood in his veins. Bro. Pridgeon says the sentiments expressed by him "are those of every Southern man south of the Mason and Dixon line." I, for one, deny this assertion. If such was the case, the South would pass a law compelling those who employ the negro to associate with him socially. If Bro. Pridgeon's sentiments were the sentiments of the South, Southern men would not hire negro labor. They would certainly not do it, did they not find it profitable, they hiring the negro for almost nothing. Organized, the negro will not work for nothing, and that is the reason why the South hates labor agitators.

We should endeavor to get over such sentiments as expressed by Bro. Pridgeon and try to study the destiny of the wage slave and the coming evolution and endeavor to hasten its coming. By so doing we will get nearer the solution of any problem confronting labor organization at the present day. We would then be of more benefit to ourselves and at the same time render effective service to our country and to posterity.

Fraternally yours,

St. Louis, Mo.

The Origin of "Penny" as Applied to Nails

The terms "four penny" "ten penny," etc., as applied to nails, refers to their weight by the thousand. Six-penny nails are those of which a thousand weigh 6 pounds; eight penny nails weigh 8 pounds to the thousand and ten-penny nails weigh 10 pounds to the 1000. It is an old English term, and meant at first "ten pound" nails (the "thousand" being understood), but the old English clipped it to "ten-pun," and from that it degenerated until "penny" was substituted for "pounds." When a thousand nails weigh less than 1 pound they are called tacks, brads, etc., and are reckoned by ounces.

Well-Treated Servants

"Weren't you stretching things a little when you told that Englishman that it was the custom in this country for the servant to dine at the master's table?"

Monthly Reports

Many Financial Secretaries of our Local Unions are negligent and sometimes very indifferent in sending their official monthly reports to the General Office. If it was not absolutely necessary that these reports be made regularly and promptly, we would have done away with them long ago. It is from these reports that we compile our monthly membership and also from these monthly statements that we compile our yearly reports. Unless we get these monthly reports on time, correctly filled out, it cannot be expected that we will be able to keep correct records at this office as to membership in good standing, members in arrears for three months' dues, and therefore, not in good standing, nor can we keep an account of those who apply for and take out clearance cards; nor those who deposit way-out cards; neither have we any way of knowing the number of members suspended, rejected or expelled, nor the ex-members who have been re-admitted, nor can we tell the number of new members initiated each month.

Our conventions in the past required, and even went so far as to order that correct records be kept, at the General Office, as to the growth, stability and numerical, and financial standing of the organization. In order to assist the General Secretary, they gave specific instructions, which has since been adopted by referendum vote of our membership and are now part of our General Laws, that "the F. S. shall make a written report monthly to the G. S., on the official blanks furnished for that purpose, under penalty of $2 fine, and report not later than the second meeting night of each quarter, to the Local Union, as to the numerical and financial standing of the Local Union for the preceding quarter. See Sec. 153 (c) of General Constitution.

Hereafter, we propose to enforce the section above quoted in the cases of all delinquent Financial Secretaries.

Local officers must in the future be more attentive to their duties. It is not to be expected that we can give reliable data on matters of importance, unless we get correct reports filled out in detail, each and every month during the entire year. We should not be left to guess at things haphazard. It is with this desire of having affairs at the General Office in good shape and in good working order that we call your attention to this seeming neglect.

Fraternally yours,

FRANK DUFFY,
General Secretary.

Our Second General Vice-President

Robert E. L. Connolly, Second Vice-President of the U. B. and member of L. U. 75, Birmingham, Ala., first began taking an active part in the trades union movement at Augusta, Ga., where he served as President of the local union and as Secretary-Treasurer of the Federation of Trades, which position he occupied when removing his residence to Birmingham, Ala. Ever since residing in the latter city he has been constantly in harness in the interest of labor organizations, standing ready, any moment, to perform such duties as he might be called upon to undertake. He held the office of Secretary of the Birmingham Trades Council, served three terms as Financial Secretary of his local union, four terms as Secretary of the District Council, and was chosen Business Agent by the various local unions at the time he took up the present work.

ROBERT E. L. CONNOLLY,
Second Vice-President U. B. of C. and J. of A.

Robert E. L. Connolly was placed by the D. C. in charge of the movement for an eight-hour day in the Birmingham district and carried it to a successful conclusion. He possesses a strong personality and a disposition to take a decided stand on all matters of importance.

He is a believer in progressive trade unionism and industrial autonomy as opposed to a reactionary policy and trades autonomy. His views often come in conflict with those of others, but he enjoys the confidence and respect not only of the recognized leaders of his locality, but of the rank and file as well.

If you do not get what rightly and justly belongs to you, take it. The Lord helps those who help themselves.

GENERAL EXECUTIVE BOARD

Proceedings of the Third Quarterly Session, 1903

JULY 13th.

Members present, Meyers, Post, Wellman, Ogletree, Ainey, Sullivan and Workman.

Applications of L. U. 77, Portchester, N. Y., and L. U. 27, Toronto, Can., for further financial aid in their trade movements. The sum of $100 appropriated for the first and $500 for the latter.

Request of Baltimore, Md., D. C. for donation in support of trade demand. After carefully reviewing all papers pertaining to the case the Board decides to stand by the decision passed in April meeting declaring the demand to be of too large a scope and unaccomplishable. Request not complied with.

JULY 14th.

Application of Boston, Mass., D. C. for financial assistance of members involved in late strike. The number of men out having been very small and the strike of short duration, application disapproved.

Request of Manhattan, N. Y., D. C. for sanction of appeal to local unions for financial aid, for exemption from payment of extra assessment and for an appropriation of $15,000 as a donation or as a loan, for the purpose of paying strike pay due Manhattan District members. The Board decides: 1st. Being in receipt of request from quite a number of local unions for sanction of appeals for financial assistance, request in this respect can not be complied with. 2d. The granting of a loan is unconstitutional, and the donations to the Manhattan District having reached the highest limit, the Board can not make any further appropriation. 3d. The extra assessment, not being levied on any D. C., but on the local unions, request can not be considered.

Application of L. U. 561, Pittsburg, Kan., for an appropriation in support of members involved in lockout. The sum of $250 appropriated.

Application of L. U. 114, Bridgeport, Conn., for further financial assistance in their strike. The G. S. instructed to demand particulars and strike roll. Action deferred.

Complaint of L. U. 1444, Nashville, Tenn., of action of Nashville D. C. relative to trade rules. Referred to G. P.

Request of San Antonio, Tex., D. C. for sanction of movement to obtain advance in wages. The G. S. instructed to demand filled out schedule of inquiries and other information. Action deferred.

Application of L. U. 31, Trenton, N. J., for reimbursement of the amount of $100 loaned L. U. 602, of same locality, to help them out in their trouble. Request complied with and the sum of $100 appropriated.

Applications of L. U. 52 and 159, Charleston, S. C.; L. U. 146, Schenectady, N. Y., and L. U. 331, Norfolk, Va., for financial aid in strike movements. Action deferred until particulars are submitted.

Application of L. U. 217, Westerly, R. I.; L. U. 306, Newport News, Va.; L. U. 554, El Paso, Tex.; L. U. 629, Brockton, Mass.; L. U. 638, Morristown, N. J., and L. U. 533, Jeffersonville, Ind., for financial assistance in strike movements. A careful review of documents submitted showing that in most cases men were out but a very short time, an appropriation is not warranted. Applications disapproved.

Request of L. U. 389, Tuxedo, N. Y., and L. U. 459, Bar Harbor, Me., for sanction of movement to secure eight hours with nine hours' pay. Sanction granted, financial question to be considered later.

Request of L. U. 853, Silver Creek, N. Y., for sanction of trade movement. Denied, and G. P. requested to send an organizer to locality.

Request of L. U. 1494, Natchitoches, La., for sanction of trade movement, and application of L. U. 1569, Minneapolis, Minn., for financial aid in support of members locked out. Not granted, the local unions not having been in existence one year.

JULY 15th.

Application of L. U. 1439, Topeka, Kan., for sanction of appeal to local unions for financial aid. Action deferred awaiting further information. Advices received later on same day, showing that the local union has sent out appeals without awaiting sanction of Board. Request not complied with.

Application of L. U. 138, Kansas City, Kan., for exemption from paying extra assessment and for appropriation of $500 in support of members in distress in consequence of recent inundation. Laid over awaiting further information.

A similar application from L. U. 533, Madison, Ill., is denied, the Board holding that they were not invested with power to make any appropriations save in support of strikes and lockouts.

Communication from L. U. 1082, San Francisco, Cal., requesting Board to define line of jurisdiction in regard to trade rules prevailing in that city. Referred to G. P.

An amendment to General Constitution offered by L. U. 187, Geneva, N. Y., relating to members becoming contractors. Disapproved by the Board.

Complaint of Ship Machinist L. U. 9238, Tampa, Fla., against action of L. U. 696, involving a question of jurisdiction. Investigation of case being pending the Board approves of steps taken in the matter by G. S.

The Board approves of policy pursued by G. S. in controversy with Am. Wood Workers, and endorses the action of G. P. in controversy between the U. B. and Am. Society of Carpenters.

The Board decides to pay full per capita from June 1st, 1903, on all members in good standing, to Am. Fed. of Labor, and instructs G. S. and G. T. to carry out decision.

JULY 16th.

Communication from National Building Trades Council, asking for affiliation of U. B. as a body. Action deferred and G. S. instructed to obtain further information on the subject.

The Board passed the following resolution, which shall be standing:

"All local unions are hereby instructed not to pay attention to circular letters from other organizations asking financial aid, unless the consent and endorsement of the General Office has been obtained by the organizations issuing them."

On application of L. U. 427, Omaha, Neb., the further sum of $250 is appropriated for relief of their locked-out members.

Appeal of Organizer McFarland from decision of G. S. in disapproving a bill G. S. sustained.

Appeal of Washington, D. C., D. C., from decision of G. S. in regard to admission of members 50 years of age as full official members. Appeal denied and G. S. sustained.

Second Vice-President R. E. L. Connolly submits a quarterly report. Actions endorsed. Report will appear in THE CARPENTER.

Telegrams from General President Huber, momentarily in San Francisco, asking for permission, on behalf of D. C., to use a rubber stamp for imprinting the U. B. label. Not granted.

Application of L. U. 138, Kansas City, Kan., for extension of time in payment of extra assessment. Extension granted until October 15th, 1903. Applications from same local unions for exemption from paying per capita tax and for a donation of $500 for relief of flood sufferers denied, the Board not being vested with power to comply with the wish of the L. U., and the funds of the U. B. being reserved only for relief in case of strikes and lockouts.

Appeals of L. U. 426, Los Angeles, Cal., in death claim of Mrs. A. D. Cox; of L. U. 114, Houston, Tex., in death claim of Minnie L. Blind; of L. U. 15, Syracuse, N. Y., in death claim of Adam Flohr; of L. U. 362, Pueblo, Colo., in death claim of F. D. Jones, and of L. U. 780, Everett, Mass., in death claim of Clara L. Wing, from decision of G. S. disapproving these claims. Denied and G. S. sustained.

JULY 17th.

The following Local Unions applied for exemption from, or extension of time for payment of extra assessment. Applications denied, but extension of time for payment granted until October 15, 1903. Local Unions 873, Palestine, Tex.; 382, 473, 240, 56, 509, 375, 51, 468, 707, 513, 200, 457, 476, 478, 774, 340, 497, 40, 464 and 575, New York City; 1596, St. Louis, Mo.; 1593, Concord, Mass.; 888, Salem, Mass.; 950, Danvers, Mass.; 1453, Grand Rapids, Mich.; 544, El Paso, Tex.; 962, Marblehead, Mass.; 924, Manchester, Mass.; 29, 1315, 44 and 990, Baltimore, Md.; 238, 1592, 972, 359, 964, 277, 1090, 8, 227 and 736, Philadelphia.

Facts Plead Their Own Cause

BY MARGARET SCOTT HALL

UNBIASED and impartial contrast of conditions is the clearest witness in the case of Capital vs. Labor. The grandeur and magnificence of palace homes—the evidence of luxury in excess and the lavish display of extravagant folly—speak louder than words in every tongue throughout all nations. Equally clear rises the appeal of adversity—equally manifest the squalor, want and suffering of the poor. Though poverty—“genteel poverty”—would conceal its rags and suffer in silence, privations and bare destitution are apparent to those who care to know.

Prosperity has a trick of not seeing and not knowing the necessities of the poorer brother. Busy providing for self by every available advantage, it is easy to say “I am not my brother's keeper.” Capital revels in repeated excesses—Labor often lacks the actual necessities for comfort. We are told that we are having times of unprecedented prosperity. Then what is the cause of such universal discontent? Those who have ears to hear may detect a discordant note rising above the triumphant chorus of prosperity. Our financiers have been too busy compounding interest and counting up annual increase to notice the corresponding retrograde of those below them in business.

There is a wrong adjustment of existing relations in the world of trade, and all surplus capital, however obtained by any individual, represents the want and misery of many, perhaps, who toiled to produce it.

To acquire fortune by thrift and integrity, exercising judgment and temperance, commands respect and admiration. It is not the acquisition of wealth, nor even the avarice, that provokes rebuke. It is the abuse of privileges afforded by capital that constitutes sins of omission and commission that are not far removed from crime.

The strong dictate terms to the weak, always with a natural tendency for the advantage of one and the disadvantage of the other. This process has continued through the generations until greed has assumed ravenous proportions and the party of the first part is willfully blind to the injustice and oppression that causes animosity and revolt. Public sentiment in vain utters protest against “man's inhumanity to man.” Conditions that require toil without adequate recompense have sown seeds of discontent that are developing into abundant fruitage.

Desperate situations require heroic treatment, hence the attitude of those who hire to those who are hired has caused organization among all classes of labor. Self-preservation is the instinctive law of nature.

Unionism is an important feature of the times and seems destined to play an important part in the making of history in the new country.

Industrial unrest portends approaching climax. Either the disintegration of organized labor and the utter collapse of unionism through the cause of internal strife—for “a house divided against itself can not stand”—or the end shall be peace and prosperity attained through a glorious triumph of right and justice, when righteous arbitration—a fact, not a farce—shall indiscriminately diffuse a proportionate prosperity over the assorted multitudes.

Humanitarians, unambitious for great wealth themselves, yet free from galling environment of poverty that binds the toiling millions, assume the task of remonstrating with those commanding the country's financial interests.

Would-be philanthropists make impotent efforts to uplift the great mass of humanity that year by year sinks more hopelessly into the depths of degradation into which grievous burdens are pressing it. Less intense members of society drift with time's current; they have no desire for martyrdom, and no relish for failure, so they stand aloof as disinterested spectators to view the situation without comment.

What is comedy to the masters of finance is frightful tragedy to those who serve in the machinery of the world's treadmill. Facts eloquently plead their own cause at the bars of justice. To indulge in sentiment would be a mockery of honest motives.

“No man is perfect, no not one.” Conscience is sluggish. Shakespere's idea is expressed in no uncertain terms concerning conscience, namely: “It beggars any man that keeps it. It is turned out of towns and cities for a dangerous thing; and every man that means to live well, endeavors to trust to himself and live without it.”

But in a world of selfishness the wonder is that honor still exists in even a small percentage of the race.

The wage-workers of this country are attempting to improve their condition. It is not surprising that they should embrace any creed that offers relief in the struggle to harmonize high prices and low wages. There is a relentless pressure in every department of labor, every available excuse seeks to keep wages as low as possible, however high all necessities of life may advance.

This is unfair and creates suspicion and dissatisfaction. Facts plead their own cause more eloquently than any untutored son of toil ever can do. All see mistakes and many recommend remedies for the chronic unrest of the industrial world, but while wealth abounds and capital increases economic conditions must improve or strife will continue.

If we remove the cause of disease in the body politic the sore will heal through natural process. If the habits and principles of the “rabble” are repulsive to cultured, progressive civilization, the situation demands relief and presents the most forcible argument for compulsory education. We have heard that “it takes three generations to make a gentleman,” but in view of the existing depravity typical of the lowest strata, it is difficult to believe in even so remote a possibility.

It is late to begin, but it is never too late for the nation or the individual to repair the evil wrought by neglect, and so advance a step in the right direction. Not only for this generation, but for time and eternity, wise legislation should require the best development of all grades of our country's citizenship.

This is one way the laboring people can elevate themselves and families, and without the advantages such legislation affords it is impossible ever to rise from the degradation to which poverty and ignorance condemns the toiler. The lowest element is the dangerous element; it is a menace to law, order and the civil government; it hates capital and hangs, a continual impediment, to the skirts of organized labor, hindering all efforts at advancement or mutual understanding.

How much longer shall the blemish of voluntary ignorance bedraggle the vestments of American liberty? The only hope for the improvement of the species lies in compulsory education. This would prove the antidote for at least a part of the “industrial unrest.”

When every state, for sake of its own self-respect, requires a decent average in its grade of citizenship, child labor will cease to be a contested subject, for compulsory education would soon correct this growing evil.

Look at the ever-increasing mob of the discontented, disorderly and illiterate—locate the many causes and then acknowledge that the only way to improve them is to teach them and train them.

Facts plead their own cause and self-interest in the capitalist classes will sooner or later demand for their own safety that they slacken the lines they have drawn so oppressively around labor.

When a limit is reached we always turn in a new course, so if capital has got all there is to get and labor is worn out and production practically ceases, a new course must be found in which to move.

Many and complex are our nation's problems, and as “no man liveth unto himself,” it is the duty of every individual to use his own influence for the good of humanity. No one can do much, but suppose one million would unite to work toward the same end, the influence concentrated, for good or evil, would be recognized around the world.

May an All-Wise Providence pity and direct His long-suffering people, and mercifully deal with the oppressed class to which He belonged when He dwelt among erring mortals.

Look Upward

Fix thy thoughts on higher things. Lift thine eyes

Above the dust that grimes thy tired feet,
Above the mire and garbage of the street;
Look upward till thy glance shall sweep the skies

And on the wings of faith thy spirit rise.
When thou hast made earth's pilgrimage complete,
Each task well done—eternal rest is sweet;
Look up, toil on, till Justice satisfies.

Crave not too much the vanities of earth—
Rather avoid its envies and its dearth
Of purity. Look up through faith and live
To strive for nobler aims than earth can give.
Look upward still beyond the Cross to see Thy heritage of immortality.

Kirkwood, Ga. MARGARET SCOTT HALL.

TRADE UNIONS demand “the right to work.” They must demand it honestly. They must leave no foundation in fact for the charge that they seek to prevent others from getting into the trade and the union. They must leave no man any just excuse for scabbing.

The Serious Side

BY HAL SCRIVER

WE shall all hear a great deal in Labor Day speeches and read a great deal in Labor Day articles about the dignity of labor, the power of organization, the progress organized labor has made in the last year, the strikes won, the increase of union membership, and so forth. That is all well. It is good that we should recount our victories and rejoice in our strength. But it is also good that we should recall our defeats and consider our weaknesses—not in a spirit of gloom and despondency, but as brave men, willing to face the facts as they are in order that we may know how to better them. It is true that “Every cloud has its silver lining.” But we should not forget, in admiring the silver lining that the cloud is there and that it may be big with tempest and destruction.

It is fitting that we should rejoice in the strikes we have won. But let us make no pretenses. Let us remember that we have lost or partly lost many strikes and that in many cases we have submitted to grievances, because we did not dare to strike. Nor must we forget that we have met a good many lockouts, big and little, and that we have been beaten in several of them.

It is right that we should exult in the increased membership of our unions. But we should bear in mind that quality counts for as much as quantity, and that the ease with which the bosses and their open or secret agents, have set us to fighting each other, for their benefit, in a number of instances, would indicate that we have need to cultivate higher ideals, deeper thoughtfulness, and a wider spirit of brotherhood in our ranks.

It is proper that we should congratulate ourselves over the cases in which we have succeeded in raising our wage-scale. But we should consider the fact that the raising of the prices of food and clothing and of the rent that most of us have to pay for homes takes away, in many cases, what we seem to have gained; or that increased speed and intensity of labor, in many other cases, takes out of our nerves and muscles more than the equivalent of our increased pay. Least of all can we afford to forget that the wage-advances, of which we hear so much, apply generally only to “skilled mechanics,” a comparatively small part of the working class and are counterbalanced by a disproportionate increase in the number of very poorly paid “factory operatives” and “common laborers.”

Above all, we should bear in mind that, whatever our victories and the increase our strength, the class opposed to us is also rapidly increasing in strength, organizing its forces, and beginning an aggressive warfare against us. Neither in Congress, nor in the legislatures of the several states, have any important gains been made in the last year in the way of labor legislation; but those bodies have been very busy passing laws desired by the bankers, the trusts, and the great franchise corporations. The most important piece of national legislation of the last twelvemonth is decidedly against us—the new Militia Law.

But, if the legislative bodies have done little for us and at least something against us, the courts have done much worse. The Ohio law making eight hours the legal workday in public work, has been declared unconstitutional; the same fate has befallen three labor laws in Indiana—one requiring that wages be paid in money, instead of store-orders; one requiring that wages be paid weekly; and another fixing a minimum wage for laborers in public employment; the same was the case with the Maryland law, for the suppression of the sweat shop system; and many other instances might be given.

But the courts have done still worse than this. They have begun the application of the principle (set forth in the British Taff Vale and Denaby decisions), that unions and their officers and members are liable to the employers for damage caused to such employers by strikes or boycotts, even though such strikes and boycotts be carried on without the slightest violence or disorder.

If, as now seems probable, that principle is generally adopted by our courts, it will make striking and boycotting a very costly matter for us. We will do well to consult and take measures now to guard ourselves.

If we take a larger view; if we look to Holland, where laws have been passed making it a penal offense for railway, street railway, telegraph or telephone employes to strike, and making peaceful picketing or boycotting of scabs, a penal offense in all trades; if we look to Sweden, where similar legislation has been carried through and followed by a general lock-out of the metal-workers; or to Norway, where similar legislation came very near being enacted; if we look to England, with the court decisions already referred to; if we look to Australia, where legislation very like that of Holland has been put into effect; if we look to Canada, where drastic laws against the labor movement are under consideration (if not passed by the time this reaches the reader); if we remember that laws modeled on those of Holland, were proposed in the Connecticut Legislature and defeated only by the strenuous protest of the workers; if, following this up, we observe the growth of the National Association of Manufacturers in this country, and the violent utterances of its leaders; the pernicious activity of the National Economic League in disseminating misinformation against the trade-unions; the formation of so-called "non-union unions," in several places, under the patronage of employers; the formation of such powerful organization of employers, as the National Metal Trades' Association, or the Building Trades Employers' Association in New York, with their equipment for spying on the unions, for blacklisting active unionists, for carrying on extensive lockouts, and for mutually supporting each other in conflicts with organized workingmen; if, finally, we turn our attention to the unrestrained and unrebuked lawlessness of Citizens' Alliances and Business Men's Associations in Tampa, in Idaho Springs, and in other places—if, we consider all these things, the developments of a single year, we can not escape the conclusion that there is a great international movement, on the part of the capitalistic class, for the purpose of dividing, disarming, and utterly destroying the organization of the working class and reducing the workers of the world to absolute subjection to the owners of the world.

All this will not discourage us, ought not even to alarm us, if, we will view the situation calmly, prepare ourselves for a bigger and harder fight than we have ever yet fought, with the unavoidable choice of a more glorious victory or a more disastrous defeat than we have ever known, and summon up resolution in proportion to the dangers and difficulties we have to meet—resolution to let nothing divide us from our brother workers, to let nothing seduce us from loyalty to our class, to let nothing deter as from demanding and insisting upon and winning industrial freedom. The working class must be all free or all slave. It is for us to say which.

"As from this hour you use your power,
The world depends on you."

Trades Unions as a "Trust."

Recently I read in the New York Press an article or editorial rather with the above caption, it proves interesting as it shows the stupidity of a hireling doing the "make-ups" of nonsense called editorials in the great daily sheets under pretense of teaching its readers good morals, truths, and what kind of politics and political matters to put your confidence in. This individual touches very tenderly upon individual liberty. Any one loving liberty cannot but offer his sympathy to this very editor, knowing as one must that the editor of the New York Press is deprived of that individual liberty in regards to editorials and free thoughts of his own. There is no doubt in my mind about this, for he most likely is rewarded for his "idiotisms"—which must not conflict with the principles of the owners of the New York Press—by what is called wages. No matter what the issue is of any opposition, or opponent to the New York Press, no matter how just and right that opposing issue may be, he is holding his position as editor of that sheet, as long as he uses his efforts and brains to down that issue. Should he use his individual liberty in regards to his own thoughts, we would perhaps find his editorials of a different quality, but he is like the dumb animal trained to go where ever directed. What directs him is the strong arm of gain in the line of political influence or a good, round salary. Since we have discovered the why and wherefor that keeps an editor "slinging ink" for a livelihood we can place this editor among the class known as wage workers. As the wage-working class consists of those working for wages. I see no difference in regards to economics between an editor or a common laborer that works for a dollar and a half a day. He may not have as much competition as the dollar and a half a day laborer, but one thing may happen which is this, when a man of his grade offers to do the same work for a less wage, out goes the editor in his field of competitors, just the same as the laborer when one of his grade offers to work for one dollar. All this does not instruct you my fellow toiler and wage worker about the labor trust, my starting point is to show you what we are at "liberty" to do for wages, whether editor, black smith, carpenter or laborer, and there is some of this editors "make-up" and we will analyze it and see what are the objects of the trusts, etc.

The frankness of Mr. John Mitchell's recent averment that a labor union is a "trust" striving for monopoly contract of a market commodity, labor and its price, just as an industrial or a financial "trust" does, is commendable; but how will the sort of "trust" which the leader of the United Mine Workers favors meet any different treatment from the public than a beef "trust" or a coal "trust" when the public thinks it is trimming the public's rights? From this we can but come to one conclusion namely that labor is a commodity just like pork or cheese and therefore its price is regulated by the supply and the demand; when the supply of pork or cheese is low the price goes up, and when the supply is high the prices go down. Where under the sun do we find the supply of the commodity, labor low, not in the United States and no where else that civilization knows of, on the contrary it is constantly increasing, we read in the papers—even the New York Press—about inventions of machinery for industries of all kinds, machines that will do the work equal to twenty or more men a day, these machines are put in use, not by the working class, but by the "steel, beef, and other trusts," and what is the consequences, more commodity labor is put out on the—labor market.

The beef, steel, and other trusts of the kind can at will regulate their supply, thereby they can also keep the price equally regulated. If there is too large a supply, why, they shut down and we are face to face with overproduction. But where do we find a remedy for an overproduction on the labor market. The commodity, labor whether in use or idle consumes something in order to be of market value, we cannot store it up until the prices go up, what must we do but sell—at the market price or perish.

He writes further and states: The whole country objects to a few individuals regulating the price of meat for everybody in the United States, there are more than a few individuals in the trades unions. There are all of a million, but this million is trying to regulate prices just as much as any other trust for more than 10,000,000 wage-earners and for 80,000,000 people—the great public, which, whoever regulates prices of commodities, labor or anything else, pays all the bills. And the public, of course, has the final say over all "trusts" or all influences.

The figures he here shows make the population of the United States 90,000,000, the census of 1900 tells us 76,303,387. I don't know of any census being taken later, nevertheless, he has at least added 13,000,000 to it and more, his arithmetic at any rate is not reliable for a man of his standard, a man with an editorial education?

When we take in consideration the great public of which he writes, we will not follow the example of this great editor and throw out the wage workers, let us not forget that 70 per cent. of our population belong and are classified as commodity, labor, from editors and up and from editors and down. In the eyes of the editor of the New York Press those millions of wage-earners do not belong to the public when they are wage workers or when they belong to a labor organization, only when the price and buyer is taken in consideration are they part of the public. We have all heard the saying that "figures never lie." In this case somebody else does, with the help of figures. The figures of the editor of the New York Press show eleven millions of wage-earners, the other sixty-nine millions are not, according to his figures. It is enough to make one laugh and laugh aloud to be informed through an editorial of such a kind that the wage workers must have about sixty-nine millions of idlers to keep alive and keep clothed and housed. From the above figures we should never need to fear of too large a supply on the labor market. With eleven millions only, to produce enough for sixty-nine millions we would have no need for appointed commissions to settle our market value.

Now comes the final satisfaction of the editor—read carefully. There is no doubt in our mind that when the public has had a reckoning with the corporate "trusts" it will take up the trades union "trusts," for it is not to be imagined that a country which cherishes individual liberty will permit 1,000,000 men to fix the cost of living for 80,000,000 any more than it will permit 10,000 to do that thing. And from some developments throughout the country which are observable as the significant trend of a new movement—the organization of no-union wage-earners to protect themselves against unionism—it is not unlikely that we shall have to deal before many years with a situation where the non-union wage-earners (ten or twelve millions) will be boycotting any business, or firm, or individual who has anything to do with trades unions. This would be an extraordinary boom-crang indeed, and one of the most convincing force and terrific consequence.

We are here confronted with that individual liberty of which he so proudly writes. How does this liberty work on the owner of the commodity, labor? We will take for instance, one individual in the "labor market" who has held out until his stomach commenced to revolt in looking for his price. He has been at liberty to starve, he has been at liberty to sell at the price set by the buyer. Can you, my dear reader, tell who is the beneficiary of this liberty? I am inclined myself to say the buyer, because he has that wherewith to buy, but the owner of the commodity, labor, will sooner or later be a dead man, if he don't sell.

He (the editor) looks upon the new movement of non-union wage-earners as a significant trend, why? Because it gives the buyer, whom we now will call by his right name, the capitalist, a more individual freedom of exploiting the wage-earners who will as per non union movement work and sell their commodity, labor, at the capitalist price. I will—if it pleases the editor—advise you, my dear reader, should you be a union man to go right to your union and put in your death claim bill, before the ten or twelve millions of non-union wage-earners, whom the editor of the New York Press is organizing in his editorial, come to make quick work out of you.

If Mr. Mitchell has made the statement that labor organizations are a "trust," we will ask him, how many shares each member has, he will truthfully answer, one. If all other "trusts" allowed only one share per shareholder, we should see one great labor organization of the whole combine, because they would have to labor to make their shares profitable. The corporate "trusts" have only one object and that is holding not only the machinery by themselves, but want also the full value of everything produced, and control all markets. Organized labor is not far from its last step, namely, to gain the power of the tools of production, because it sees that as long as the tools of production remain the property of a few individuals with the liberty to use them and run them as they see fit, there is no chance whatever to produce for the whole social body what it needs. Just think of the natural resources which God has placed here on earth to be used by humanity for its welfare being owned by a few. What would the wage-earners do should a few lay claim upon the light of the sun. A few reforms will not right a whole wrong. When all the wage earners realize their true position in life, and the capitalistic "trust" creates a little more discontent; then beware of the Labor Unions as a "Trust," for it is not the labor agitators that create discontent as it is often claimed, but the corporate "trusts" by adding a few cents every now and then to the price of necessities of life. But when the corporate "trust" has so created, a deep discontent among the workers, the labor agitator has a good field for sowing the seeds of unionism giving the worker an education on the Trades Unions as a "Trust."

American Labor at Once the Dearest and Cheapest on Earth.

BY S. J. KENT.

SUCH, the press tells us, is the statement made by Alfred Morley and his commission of British workmen, who have lately visited the United States. Can it be possible that this is so? Why, we have been told all along that our manufacturers could not compete with the pauper labor of Europe, and we have put on a tariff to equal the so-called labor cost between labor in the United States and abroad. But facts are stubborn things and will eventually assert themselves. The daily product of carpenters and mill men in the United States is more than double, and in most cases more than treble that of carpenters in Europe. A carpenter's wages in London is 22 cents per hour—probably the highest wages for a carpenter in Europe. He uses very little machinery, his methods are still quite slow, and there is no question but that his daily product is more costly than the American carpenter getting 50 cents per hour. Brassey, the great railroad contractor, in his work called "Work and Wages," proves by figures that where he paid the highest wages he got the cheapest labor. For instance, he speaks of building the Grand Trunk Railroad in Canada and at the same time building the Delhi & Muritza Railway in India. In the former he paid for labor about $1.50 per day, and yet the moving of every yard of dirt on the Indian railway cost more than on the Grand Trunk. The treasury department of the United States has lately issued a report of our consuls in China, in which they state that we are underselling the Chinaman right in his own market. This means that the Chinaman with his crude methods cannot compete with our up-to-date labor-saving devices, even though the wages of our operators be fifty times greater than the other. Along with the advent of the eight-hour day has come higher wages, and along with the stimulus of higher wages and shorter hours has come an increased product. The per diem product in our eight-hour cities is fully as great as it ever was under the ten-hour system. Each recurring year the worker must get more for his day's labor. It is not only worth more but the exactions upon his income becomes greater each year. The luxuries of yesterday become in turn the necessities of the morrow, and as his wants expand must must his income. Nature never stands still, neither can men nor nations. It is this ambition to move forward that has given stimulus to the growth of the trade union and made it an index of advancing civilization.

A Vegetable Chair

One of the most wonderful pieces of furniture in the world, a vegetable chair grown from a single seed, is in the possession of a Mr. T. P. Lukens, of Pasadena, Cal. A gardener in Korea planted a seed of the ginkgo tree about twenty-six years ago. It grew into a vine, which the gardener set about to fashion by ingenious twistings, compressions and trainings into an arm-chair, much pruning and binding being necessary before his object was accomplished.

The chair weighs more than 100 pounds, and is even hardier, sturdier and more imperishable than oak. It is three feet four inches high and twenty-five inches wide. The bark has been removed, and the surface has taken a rich polish.

Capitalist Property

Individual property can only exist in a primitive stage of human life, because of its two attributes, it is the product of the owner's labor, and it is used by him.

These two qualities, regarded as indispensable to and inseparable from individual property, have left so strong an impression upon the human mind that the defenders of capitalism idiotically state that property is the reward of toil. Nevertheless, capitalist production can only exist when individual property is stripped of the two attributes which alone justify it.

Personal wealth is still, indeed, the result of labour, but it no longer belongs to the workers who produce it; the means of production (land, machinery, mines, etc.) are not owned by the wage-workers who use them, but by the capitalist who has not made them, and who does not work them. Capitalist property does not, consequently, possess the two attributes of individual property.

The economists, the moralists, the philosophers, and the politicians puzzle their brains to discover some attributes of which can give it the appearance of being justifiable. Not being able to give the capitalist the character of a producer, they give him that of a thrifty man; his wealth is the result of his saving, they say. But, as he does not work, he must, then, save on the labor of others—in other words, he robs the workers of a part of the fruits of their labour, in order to make himself rich. The "thrift" argument having been recognised as being as silly as it is inconvenient, the leading politicians have generously endowed the capitalist with the qualities of organizer of labor and captain of industry, which by a genial co-operation with the labor of the wage-workers, beget his millions. But, reply the Socialists, as these qualities are not possessed by the capitalist, but by his managers and foremen, they cannot justify his ownership of wealth.

Then, arriving at the end of their inventive genius, they transform the transcendent virtues of the capitalist into a metaphysical entity. It is chance, it is blind fortune which makes him owner of property. The existence of joint-stock companies demolishes these arguments, so laboriously maintained, in spite of all the evidence to the contrary. The capitalist who possesses shares in them has not the least contact with production; he may be ignorant of the place where it is carried on, as well as of its nature; he receives his dividends, and that's all he cares about. The joint-stock company breaks the last bonds which unite the proprietor to his property; it has depersonalised property.

The shares of a joint-stock company can belong to Peter, Paul or Nicodemus; they can change hands every day at the Stock Exchange, and sometimes several times in one day; but they still go on producing as if the property had not changed hands. The joint-stock companies which create a kind of collectivist property possessed by shareholders, demonstrate the absolute uselessness of capitalist production and clearly show the parasitical nature of the capitalist class. It is not the possessors but the non-possessors who are useful in the field of capitalist production; but the Social Revolution will sweep away these parasites.

Our Controversy with the Amalgamated Woodworkers

Labor organizations, like any other organizations, have never been free from men who betray their own cause by serving the interests of their antagonists; but never in the history of the labor movement, to our knowledge, has labor's cause been so basely betrayed, the common laws of trades-unionism so flagrantly violated and its fundamental principles trampled upon as in this present day by the organization known as the Amalgamated Woodworkers. Nor has the disastrous effect of dual organization ever been so obviously demonstrated as by the existence and the recent actions of that very organization.

From the time of the establishment of our U. B. in 1881, as Section 2, Article VI of the early editions of our General Constitution will show, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners have claimed jurisdiction over planing mill bench hands, cabinetmakers, carpenters running wood-working machinery, etc.

Notwithstanding this fact a Machine Woodworkers' International Union, organized in 1890, was granted a charter by the A. F. of L., in 1891, and retained this charter after consolidating with the International Furniture Workers' Union, under the name of Amalgamated Woodworkers, in 1895. Although being mindful of the fact that our late General Secretary, P. J. McGuire, after first entering protest with the A. F. of L. against the granting of this charter, withdrew his protest later on, we emphatically maintain that the U. B. never at any time relinquished its claim over the branches hereabove enumerated.

A charter having been granted to a dual organization, the arising of disputes and frictions between the Amalgamated Woodworkers and the U. B. on questions of jurisdiction and lines of demarkation were inevitable. And, with a view to adjust the differences between the two contesting parties, the A. F. of L. convention, held at New Orleans in November last, passed a resolution referring the matter to a conference committee of eleven, five from each party, they to elect an eleventh man as umpire.

This conference committee met in February last in the city of Indianapolis and chose as their umpire P. J. Downey of Albany, N. Y. During the committee's proceedings it was admitted by the umpire himself that he had acted as Secretary of the grievance committee of the Scranton convention of the A. F. of L., which committee, in a dispute between the U. B. and Amalgamated Woodworkers, rendered a decision in favor of the latter and against the U. B. The conference committee, at their first session, having arrived at the distinct understanding that no one that had ever been previously connected with the controversy in any way should be eligible as umpire, Mr. Downey's election was an illegal act, and he being prejudiced against the U. B. his rendering of a decision in favor of the Amalgamated Woodworkers was a matter of course. According to Mr. Downey's decision all men engaged in the manufacture of trim, sash, doors, blinds, store and office fixtures, which, as any man having the slightest knowledge of the conditions in the woodworking industry will concede is carpenter work, come under the jurisdiction of the Amalgamated Woodworkers, while the men putting up this work in the buildings come under the jurisdiction of the U. B. Mr. Downey by his decision does not alleviate the present situation in our industry, but his decision aggravates the situation considerably, inasmuch as its consummation would disrupt our organization—it would require the the splitting up of our industry in two distinct branches, one of carpenters and one of joiners and woodworkers, or outside and inside men.

Should we abide by Mr. Downey's decision we would in the first place be required to call a special convention for the purpose of so amending our constitution as to conform with his decision. In the second place we would have to turn over to the Amalgamated Woodworkers at least 30,000 of our membership against their own will and desire and allow them to be degraded to the ranks of an organization whose schedule provides for longer hours and smaller wages.

The main reason advanced by Mr. Downey in rendering his decision is the adoption of a committee report by the U. B. convention, held in Indianapolis in 1894, declaring it to be to the best interests of the U. B. that the, then, International Machine Woodworkers be granted entire jurisdiction over all mill hands.

This report, however, which Mr. Downey sees fit to style an agreement, was never ratified by a general vote, as all resolutions passed by our conventions have to be ratified before becoming a law. Nor has this convention eliminated that section of our constitution which provides that mill hands, cabinetmakers, etc., are eligible to membership. The proceedings of this very convention show that the delegates began to realize the fact that the industrial transitions of past years had effaced and shifted the lines of demarkation between the different branches in the woodworking industry to an extent that, instead of dividing our forces, the combining of them into one single organization had become an imperative necessity. This spirit became manifest later on when the convention decided to admit the Cabinetmakers' Union of New York, who for months previous had been in communication with P. J. McGuire as to the terms of affiliation with the U. B. either of their own local union or eventually of the entire International Furnitureworkers' Union of which they were a part.

It may be asserted, and we candidly admit, that this action taken by the Indianapolis convention was inconsistent with its former decision adopting the committee report granting certain jurisdiction to the International Machine Woodworkers. The adoption of that report was a mistake, such as are made by any convention, even the A. F. of L. conventions not excepted. The Indianapolis convention, in deciding to admit the New York cabinetmakers, showed that the delegates had realized their mistake and had common sense enough to rectify it by taking action making the adoption of the committee report on machine woodworkers null and void. So was the granting of a charter by the A. F. of L. to the International Machine Woodworkers in 1891 a grave mistake, and the withdrawal of the protest by P. J. McGuire was another very serious mistake, as it is through these transactions that the Amalgamated Woodworkers obtained their standing in the trades union movement, resulting in the present controversies over the question of jurisdiction and the scabbing of the Amalgamated Woodworkers.

However, in recalling these incidents we are not actuated by a love of criticism but by a desire to show our priority as regards jurisdiction over mill hands, cabinetmakers, etc., and to show that the Amalgamated Woodworkers are infringing and encroaching on our long-established rights. In our estimation it is ridiculous and a waste of time and space to put particular stress on occurrences of years gone by. We must look the question as it confronts us today fair and square in the face—the question: Shall the men engaged in the woodworking industry remain divided and strife, friction and scabbing continue, or will their interests be better furthered by a combination of all its branches under one central head, and harmony and concerted action secured?

As far as the U. B. is concerned our Atlanta convention has decided on this question. It has placed itself on record as being opposed to all dual organization in the woodworking or any other industry, and it is our sacred duty to stand by that decision, come what may.

The scabbing tendencies of the Amalgamated Woodworkers have been exposed by us time and again; hence we shall confine ourselves to the exposing of their outrageous actions of recent date.

In last April the members of the U. B. were called out on strike in Wilson & Adams and Hartman Bros. mills in Mount Vernon, N. Y., because these firms refused to sell lumber to any employer or any one who had signed the schedule providing for 44 hours and $18 per week. The Amalgamated Woodworkers took our men's places and are now working 50 hours at a maximum rate of $17 per week.

In the course of the same month and in May the men of eight mills in the Bronx, N. Y., district, where the schedule of 44 hours and $18 was also established, were called out in assistance of our members in Manhattan then on strike against the Am. Society of Carpenters. After the strike was declared off and our men wanted to resume work they were locked out upon refusal to apply for work individually and work 50 hours at the rate of $17 per week. The Amalgamated Woodworkers' representatives entered into an agreement with the firms on these terms and their members took our men's places.

In order to show that the Amalgamated Woodworkers are resorting to the same contemptible practices elsewhere we reproduce the following affidavits:

STATE OF NEW YORK, COUNTY OF KINGS:

This 29th day of June, 1803, before me, a notary public in and for the aforesaid county and state, personally came August Pfahl who, being duly sworn, stated, deposed and said as follows:

"I, August Pfahl, a member of the U. B. of Carpenters and Joiners, am employed by Mr. Fred Elfein, boss cabinetmaker under the jurisdiction of the U. B. of C. and J., was called one day to the office of said firm. There two representatives of the Amalgamated Woodworkers were introduced to me, who said that they would furnish to said Fred Elfein all cabinetmakers needed by him at the rate of $15 per week of 50 hours.

"The said representatives said to me: 'If Mr. Elfein draws you men of the U. B. of C. and J. out we will furnish him, at any time, with all the cabinetmakers he wants for $15 per week of 50 hours.'

"This happened on or about the 11th day of June, 1903, and the boss especially told me to report such in the meeting of U. B. of C. and J. Local Union 32.

"AUGUST PFAHL."

Sworn to before me this 19th day of June, 1803. JUL. EISINGER,
Notary Public, Kings Co., N. Y.

STATE OF NEW YORK, COUNTY OF KINGS:

This 29th day of June, 1903, before me, a notary public in and for the aforesaid county and state, personally came Ambrose Hilbert who, being duly sworn, stated, deposed and said as follows:

"I, Ambrose Hilbert, have been handed a letter by Mr. Joseph Goetz, a boss cabinetmaker of No. 530 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, who is under our jurisdiction (U. B. of C. and J.), at 49 hours and $17 week, in which letter the Amalgamated Woodworkers offered, in case of trouble with the U. B. of C. and J., to furnish to said Joseph Goetz, cabinetmakers at the rate of $15 per week of 54 hours. This said letter was shown to me by Mr. Goetz during the month of June, 1902.

"AMBROSE HILBERT."

Sworn to before me this 29th day of June, 1903. JUL. EISINGER,
Notary Public, Kings Co., N. Y.

As will be seen by the above statements the Amalgamated Woodworkers are deliberately working into the hands of the employers and scabbing on the U. B. Thos. I. Kidd, their General Secretary, and his organizers, by filling the mills where our men are locked out or on strike for the maintenance of the established hours and wages, with their men, and by allowing them to work longer hours for smaller pay, have become identical with Mr. Parry and his employers' association. Mr. Parry, in his endeavor to organize so-called non-union unions, composed of men willing to submit to the employers' terms, can well afford to leave the woodworking mills and cabinet shops to Thos. I. Kidd and his organizers—they will do that work for him to his fullest satisfaction. The Amalgamated Woodworkers, by their recent actions, have become the marplot in the trades union movement, and they are perpetrating the outrages on the U. B. under the eyes of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. and apparently with that body's approval.

We have always been loyal and true to the A. F. of L., and desire to be loyal to them in the future, but we positively refuse to abide by an umpire's decision that implies a violation of our constitution and has a tendency to perpetuate dual organization in the woodworkers' industry.

A Good Old World

Though we meet with sin and trouble,
This world is a good old place;
For 'tis rich in love's fond treasure—
Holds many a friendly face.
And a wealth of human kindness
Pours its blessing everywhere—
There's joy for all and laughter
Enough to banish dull care.

When hearts have grown used to sorrow,
Borne grief too bitter for tears,
Met fate with courage unyielding
And vanquished her scourge and jeers,
'Tis then the sunshine seems fairer—
The rose-tints a brighter hue;
For after the clouds pass over,
The skies seem a brighter blue.

This good old world is a puzzle
With all its mysterious ways,
Where mercies o'erbalance sorrow
And mourning is turned to praise.
Though a brother dear turn traitor,
All unmindful of our care,
The welcome guest, though a stranger,
Proves an "angel unaware."

Thus life has its hidden beauties,
And time develops their grace;
For every friend that is fickle
Two better ones take his place.
When we learn to "count our blessings"
And rejoice whate'er befall,
Earth becomes a pleasant dwelling
And a good home after all.

There is more of shine than shadow,
More of honey than of gall—
If we but divide life's sweetness,
Love yields plenty for us all.
Work is pleasure—makes us happy—
Loving, striving for a space;
Let's enjoy the world we live in
While it is our dwelling-place.

Application of Local Union 427, Omaha, Neb., for sanction of appeal to local unions for financial aid for the relief of members locked out. Sanction refused.

Appeal of Carl Bartels, of Local Union 375, New York, from decision of G. P., relative to a fine imposed on appellant, for failing to participate in Labor Day parade. Appeal denied and G. P. sustained.

Appeal of Local Union 375, New York, from decision of G. P. exonerating Frank Gilliard from alleged shortage in his accounts as F. S., and declaring his suspension illegal. Appeal denied and G. P. sustained.

Appeal of George Sharp and others, from decision of G. P., in case of appellants vs. Local Union 476, New York. Laid over until next meeting, and G. P. requested to require a sworn copy of the minutes of the local union of the night when the trouble occurred.

Quarterly report from First Vice-President G. M. Guerin is submitted and accepted. Report will be published in THE CARPENTER.

The G. S. submits insurance policy for all property in Gen. Office. Accepted and ordered to be placed in safe-keeping.

Application of L. U. 396, Newport News, Va., for further appropriation. Action deferred awaiting particulars as to present standing of strike.

JULY 18th.

Local Union 602, Trenton, N. J.; 625, Malden, Mass.; 1388, Tottenville, L. I., N. Y.; and 387, New York City, are granted extension of time for payment of extra assessment until October 15, 1903.

In further aid of their strike movements appropriations are made as follows: L. U. 115, Bridgeport, Conn., $400; L. U. 210, Stamford, Conn., $400 and Bronx District, N. Y., $1,000.

The Board appoints a committee for the compilation of all papers pertaining to the controversy between the U. B. and Am. W. Workers; report to be submitted before adjournment.

Application of L. U. 503, Lancaster, N. Y., for further financial assistance. Assistance not granted.

Request of Los Angeles, Cal., D. C., for sanction of trade movement. Action deferred in absence of filled out schedule of inquiries.

Request of L. U. 974, Monessen, Pa., for financial aid and sanction of movement, for eight hours and $3 per day, already entered into. Laid over because of lack of necessary information.

The same course is taken relative to a similar request of L. U. 159, Charleston, S. C.

JULY 20th.

The desired information from Charleston, S. C., having been furnished the sum of $800 is appropriated for relief of members, of L. U. 159, out on strike.

The auditing of books and accounts of Gen. Office is entered into and occupies remainder of day.

JULY 21st.

Communication received from G. P., now in San Francisco, urging the Board to reconsider their decision refusing granting of permission to San Francisco to use rubber stamp for imprinting Union Label. Not complied with.

On application of L. U. 309, New York City, extension of time for payment of extra assessment is granted them until October 15, 1903.

Auditing of accounts resumed and occupies balance of day.

JULY 22d.

Auditing of accounts continued and occupies all day's session, as well as sessions of July 23 and July 24.

JULY 25th.

Question of awarding contracts for printing of supplies is taken into consideration, bids submitted, compared and the G. S. instructed to award contracts in lots, as large as practicable, to printing firms strictly observing union conditions and to the lowest responsible bidders.

The G. S. and G. T. are instructed to draw the amount of $40,000 from the active account in the American National Bank and place it with the inactive account drawing interest.

The G. S. submits a schedule of inquiries to be filled out by firms applying to local unions or L. C.'s for the Union Label. Schedule approved and adopted.

JULY 27th.

The Board deputizes members Meyers, Wellman and Ogletree to Lafayette, Ind., to confer with Executive Board of Brotherhood of Painters, in reference to San Francisco controversy.

Advices received from Halifax, N. S., Can., showing that the difficulty existing there had been placed in the hands of arbitrators, and the employers refusing to abide by their decision, contrary to agreement, the sum of $400, is appropriated in support of the men still on strike.

Appeal of L. U. 715, New York, from decision of G. S. in death claim of Margaret Sweeney. Appeal denied and decision upheld.

Communications from Philadelphia D. C., asking Gen. Officers to proceed to that city and try to adjust internal difficulties.

The Board decides that this matter shall rest until all appeals from Philadelphia have been passed on by G. P.

The G. S. submits blank form for renewal of his bond, the former one expiring on August 15. The G. E. B.'s, officers attach their signatures and order forwarding of the bond to the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

Request of L. U. 131, Seattle, Wash., for endorsement of appeal to local unions for financial aid. Request not complied with.

The G. E. B. receives and endorses report of committee on compilation of papers pertaining to controversy between the U. B. and Am. W. Workers and orders printing of 4,000 copies of report in circular form.

The following report of expert accountant for quarter ending June 30, 1903, is received and placed on file:

We have the honor to report that we have examined the accounts of your organization for the three months ended 30th of June, 1903, and found them to be correct and carefully kept.

LYBRAND, ROSS BROS. & MONTGOMERY.
Auditing of books and accounts resumed.

JULY 28th.

The subjoined financial statement for the quarter ending June 30, 1903, is submitted and approved.

Quarterly Report of First General Vice-President T. M. Guerin to the Executive Board

During the past quarter I devoted most of my time to localities in the state of New York, except the earlier part of April, which I spent in the state of Vermont. In Burlington, Vt., I found that the mill men had made a demand on their employers a week prior to my arrival and had as yet not received any reply from them whatsoever. I called a special meeting of the members employed in the mills and finding them divided against themselves as to their demand, I advised them to lay the matter over for one year and in the meantime to use special efforts to get the non-union men to join. I also advised them to raise the amount of their local dues in order that a year hence they might be better prepared financially and the success of their movement more assured. My advice was taken heed of. After leaving Burlington I proceeded to Schenectady, N. Y., where a strike was on. There I found that a number of our men were at work for fair employers, and that the other trades had refused the carpenters their moral assistance unless they would call a general strike. I went over the ground, called a meeting of the Executive Committee, hustled night and day and finally we were successful in obtaining the signatures of 42 contractors to the agreement. These signatures were given, however, with the understanding that our men would resume work only when 75 per cent. of them could go to work under the new schedule.

At the next regular meeting of the local union the number of contractors who signed the agreement had increased to an extent warranting the employment under new conditions of 95 per cent. of the union men at the time in Schenectady and the strike was won and declared off. Then the contractors who had not signed the agreement were looking around for men to work for them and, failing to get any, our trouble begun. The Employers' Association, seeing that they had been defeated, communicated with the organizers of Albany branch of Am. Society of Carpenters who, assisted by the Troy branch, formed a branch in Schenectady and tried their utmost to break up the local union of the U. B. The daily papers having spread the news of the settlement of the strike broadcast it resulted in an influx of carpenters never before experienced in that city, and, to add to our dilemma, many of the newcomers, being almost destitute, applied to the union for relief. In support of these men the union spent all their funds, many of their own members not receiving any financial aid during all the five weeks the strike had lasted.

To make matters worse, the contractors advertised extensively for men they, by the way, had no work for. This caused the union considerable more expense, as it compelled them to keep a picket at the depot for the interception of new arrivals. Finally leaving Schenectady I wended my way to Kingston where I addressed a mass meeting of carpenters at the Y. M. C. A. hall, and left the same night for Watertown, N. Y. Here our men were also out on strike and the bosses insisting on making no other than individual agreements, the chances for a satisfactory settlement of the difficulty were rather poor. Neither the strike committee nor myself could obtain an interview with them. At this juncture our men made up their minds to do contract work for themselves before the work would leave town. This scheme proved a successful one and when I left town every union man was working.

On my arrival in Elmira I found similar conditions, the bosses refusing to meet me in conference, and while I succeeded in getting some prominent business men in the city interested in the fight and laid a proposition for settlement before the contractors, their answer was a flat refusal to treat with the union. As we had some aged members to take care of who were unable to climb up buildings and there being considerable shop work required, I suggested the securing of that work and the hiring of a shop for its execution. This was done and proved to pay well. For several weeks we had from ten to fifteen men thus at work, taking that many off the strike roll and permitting the union to pay a few dollars to those members whom they could not furnish with employment.

The outside men in Elmira control their affairs fairly well, while the interests of the shop men are not cared for as they might be and require looking after.

I next went to Silver Creek, N. Y., a small town of about 2,000 inhabitants. Here the bosses claimed to be members of the National Employers' Association and declared they would not hire any union men. As I have stated in a recent communication to Gen. Pres. Huber, I would not advise going into any expense on account of this town, but should the iron molders and machinists agree to send organizers there we could make an effort in the same direction. However, I am still doubtful whether the result would be in keeping with the expense.

I stopped at Buffalo, N. Y., and spoke at two of the local union meetings in one night.

At Syracuse, N. Y., I surveyed the ground with the Business Agent and found that there is a good deal yet to be done here in the way of organization. While in this city I met some of our men from Utica, who informed me that all negotiations between the employers and men in that city were off. So, on my way to Schenectady, I stopped off there anxious to see if I could be of any assistance to Organizer Murray. We waited on the contractors and induced them to call a meeting. We were in conference with them a whole day long until 7:30 in the evening without accomplishing anything. The contractors unanimously voted against granting any advance in wages this year, but declared themselves willing to sign an agreement providing for an increase of from 25 to 50 cents per day, to take effect on January 1st, 1904. We laid this proposition before the union and had it thoroughly discussed in all its consequences, but the men rejected it without a dissenting voice.

At midnight of that day I again went to Schenectady where I had sent some men from Elmira with instruction to obtain some information in regard to conditions in unfair shops. I am, at this time of writing, still investigating and watching developments.

Faternally,
T. M. GUERIN.

The Erection of a Building for U. B. Headquarters

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Through the columns of the carpenters' journal I desire to concur in the suggestion of Bro. F. E. Madison, of Clarks-ville, Tenn., as published in the July issue of THE CARPENTER, relative to the erection and maintenance of a general head office building for our beloved Union of Carpenters and Joiners.

I believe that the suggestion and plan of Bro. Madison will meet the approval of a majority of our members. I, for one, am willing to contribute my dollar, as proposed by Bro. Madison, for that purpose. Just think of the enormous sum that is paid annually for office rent, where that amount could be used for other purposes if we owned our own building.

As Bro. Madison has said, there are 150,000 members belonging to our order, and to assess each member one dollar means $150,000, which, in my judgment, would be ample funds with which to erect and furnish a handsome office building, much more convenient than where it is now located.

While attending the head camp of the Modern Woodmen of America, in June of this year, at Indianapolis, I had the pleasure of visiting the general head office of the U. B. It is located in a handsome fifteen-story building, among many offices. While the building is a handsome structure, equipped with elevators and modern improvements and located on one of the principal streets of Indianapolis, yet the rooms are small and, in my judgment, unfitted for a general headquarters for so large and grand an order as the U. B. of C. & J. I am favorably impressed with the city of Indianapolis as headquarters for our order, and believe that a prettier and more convenient city could not be found to locate in and that the citizens of Indianapolis would offer an inducement to have such a building erected and maintained in that city.

There are other organizations of less importance than our U. B. which own and control their own building. Why can't we? I would answer that—we can if we only try. Having been a member of the U. B. almost continuously since 1886 am desirous of witnessing all advancements made, and hope to see many more. I believe the one proposed will be one of the greatest, aside from getting in new members.

Now that Bro. Madison has started the question of erecting and maintaining its own building for general headquarters, I hope others will take the matter up. It's a good thing; push it along and let us own our own office building.

Yours for union and advancement,

Resort of Unions to Injunctions

We are just as much opposed to government by injunction when the judge aims the injunction at the employers as we are when it is sent in the direction of the unions or the members thereof. We can conceive of no condition of affairs that makes the injunction in trades disputes justifiable. The unions are abundantly able to take care of themselves and we do not ask the ever ready injunction judge for protection under any circumstances.

If the unions or members thereof do wrong or commit any act against the law there is a way to proceed against them without recourse to the injunction.

The same applies with equal force to the employers, or it should. We wonder, however whether the bosses like injunction tonic in strike troubles when they have to take it themselves.—Cigar Maker's Journal.

THE workingman who lets his boss know that he fears him is just the man whom the boss will bully and tyrannize over.

THE report of the steel trust for 1902 shows total wages and salaries to all employes, from Schwab down, amounts to $120,000,000, and total profits to stockholders and bondholders amounting to over $133,000,000. How is that for "dividing up"?

Remedy for Creosote from Wood Burning

In sections of the country where wood is being used largely as a fuel there has been more or less complaint of creosote forming and running down the chimney into the cellar and creating a bad odor throughout the house. Various remedies have been suggested for obviating the difficulty, but so much depends upon local conditions that these are not always successful. One writer in discussing the matter says:

As the weather gets colder, I expect to hear that people in all wood burning sections of the country with big, cold chimneys are having trouble from creosote. Usually this trouble comes from a chimney which has none too good a draft, and in many instances where a flue is much larger than is necessary, presenting a large cooling surface. In consequence, the products of combustion do not escape from the chimney before condensation takes place. Where a man has a chimney in his house he is indisposed to rebuild it to meet the necessities, and where the chimney is large and cold, the heat of the gases passing through is not sufficient to keep it at a temperature which will insure such a draft as will discharge them before they condense. It is fortunate that the chimney belongs to the man; otherwise, he might insist on the furnaceman changing it for a better one, which he needs. If a man will provide his furnace with a bigger pipe and give it full draft he can heat the chimney, but as his first trouble would probably be less than the trouble from overheating his house, he would be satisfied to keep the poor chimney, instead of suffering a bigger trouble. If the man is willing to run a smoke pipe up inside of his chimney to the top, the smoke pipe will, in all probability, keep hot enough to overcome the trouble. If it does not, it is a simple matter to let the liquid run out through suitable openings provided for the purpose in the bottom. Then he will get rid of the nuisance caused by the stain and the odor. If the creosote is sufficient to drip down from the stove pipe into the cellar he has only to reverse the joints in the pipe to make the liquid flow back into the heater where it will be disposed of by the fire without nuisance.—Carpentry and Building.

The Social Outcast

While strolling 'mongst the haunts of poverty
I saw an old man resting by his door,
And asked him if he needed charity.

"Not so," he said, "'tis justice I implore.

"I've labored till I'm three score years and ten,
Serving as best I could my fellow-men,
Pronouncing—day by day—that they be blessed;
My only comfort are my hours of rest.

"They're honored for their great prosperity;
Whence did it come, if not from such as me?
These hard old hands have been their stock in trade,
Else wherewithal had they their fortune made?

"There's not a dime that they have ever earned;
The sweat of others' faces they have turned
To their own credit; and the people then Gave them the honored name of 'self-made men.'

"Sometimes they feel our great disparity,
And do the act they call 'charity,'
By sending round the refuse of their table:
The husk of what I earned when I was able.

"They tell me, sir, that there's a party growing Whose purpose is that justice have a showing;
If that is so, go tell them I am 'in it,'
I'll join them in the battle till we win it.

'Although the hey-day of my life is past,
I'll vote and fight for justice to the last,
And if I fall before the fray is o'er,
I'll fight at long range from the other shore."

II.

En dehors de la production agricole vinicole ou fruitière il existe encore dans notre extrême-Ouest une autre source de revenue, que l'on pourrait appeler "Industrie"; c'est de voler les touristes, de leur extorquer autant d'argent que possible. La saison des touristes ne durant que quelques mois, tout le monde s'empresse de les exploiter le plus que possible. Les hôteliers, les chemins de fer, les marchands de curiosités et de souvenirs s'entendent comme larrons en foire. On sait bien que ceux là ne reviendront plus jamais, et on profite de la bonne aubaine. Ces voleurs de grand chemin, gagnant beaucoup d'argent dans la bonne saison, consentirent à payer un salaire à peu près raisonnable dans cette période de temps, quitte à reprendre le tout à leurs employés ou ouvriers dans le temps inévitable de chômage, qui a la fin de chaque saison se présentait infailliblement. De même avec les ouvriers du bâtiment. Des villes naissent et grandissent pendant quelques années, pour disparaître aussi vite qu'ils sont venus.

Dans ces conditions il est impossible de réglementer la loi de l'offre et de la demande. Malgré cela l'organisation ouvrière présentait de grandes difficultés. Les temps prospères, (booming periods) attirèrent bon nombre de travailleurs, pour lesquelles aucun moyen d'existence n'existent plus, sitôt la panique arrivait. L'agglomération factice de tant de monde se dispersa, et les germes d'une organisation ouvrière disparurent avec eux. Ceci fut la règle pendant des années, lorsque enfin les chambres syndicales prirent pied fermement. Dans les grandes villes tel que San Francisco, Sacramento, Los Angeles, et tant d'autres, chaque branche de métier est organisée, à tel point que les Unions ouvrières décident de l'élection du maire de la plupart des villes de la Californie. Non seulement ces dernières, mais l'influence des Unions se fait sentir sur tout le territoire de l'Ouest. A partir de Chicago, jusqu'à la côte du Pacifique, le grand Capital sent le poids de l'organisation ouvrière peser d'avantage sur son coffre-fort. La classe ouvrière demande augmentation du salaire, réduction des heures du travail, etc., et le Capital se plaint amèrement de cette attaque sur sa caisse. C'est avec un sensible plaisir qu'un ouvrier organisé passe à travers cette contrée; partout où il passe, on appartient à l'Union. L'employé du Chemin de fer porte fièrement le bouton de son organisation. Dans l'hôtel, depuis le clerc jusqu'à un garçon de l'ascenseur, tous appartiennent à l'Union. Les annonces des journaux, demandant des ouvriers d'un métier quelconque, ajoutent toujours "Union men only." Pour nous autres hommes de l'Est, qui avons à lutter quotidiennement contre les nouveaux arrivés de la vieille Europe, c'est un spectacle aussi nouveau qu'imprévu. Les travailleurs des villes organisant les travailleurs des champs, ces derniers continuant leur besogne avec les italiens, les espagnols et voir même les originaires du pays, Californien et mexicain.

Les employeurs n'aiment pas cela. D'accord avec les Compagnies des Chemins de fer, et les propriétaires des mines de métaux et de charbon, se donnent tout le mal possible pour faire déverser une quantité de cette armée de non-occupés de l'Est, contant pouvoir briser cette poignée solide, qui les étreint; mais en vain. A mesure que des forces sont importées, ils joignent l'Union, à tel point qu'au Japon la fédération du travail a ses adhérents, et le mouvement des chambres syndicales s'étend dans les pays du grand Orient d'une façon, splendide pour la classe des travailleurs, mais terrible pour les classes possédantes et dirigeantes. Ces dernières ont beau persécuter les Unions, comme à Bunker Hill, à la Bull Pen, ou avec des "Injunctions", comme à Denver, il est trop tard pour enrager le mouvement des chambres syndicales. Aux grandes Compagnies ont répondu par la demande de la Nationalisation des Chemins de fer, des télégraphes, des mines, aux trusts on fait voir la possibilité de la reprise du Sole et Sous-Sole par la nation, et des grandes Industries par la coopération ouvrière, et aux juges injustes leur remplacement par des juges pris au sein de la classe ouvrière, fatiguée de ce laisser molester et persécuter plus longtemps. Les patrons ont beau faire, l'oppression a déjà duré trop longtemps, et la classe des exploités commence à perdre patience.

Si nous citons tous ces faits, c'est pour démontrer la facilité, avec laquelle nos frères de l'Extrême-Ouest ont pu en peu d'années, mettre une barrière solide contre l'exploitation patronale; ce qui était possible dans le Colorado, l'Iowa, le Nebraska et la Californie ne doit pas être impossible dans le Canada, la Nouvelle Angleterre ou les États, bordant les grands lacs. La rapacité patronale est partout la même, seul l'ignorance de la classe ouvrière leur facilite une plus ou moins grande exploitation. Que l'on cesse de faire des distinctions entre nationalités, entre croyances, que l'on s'entende sur les moyens les plus sûrs de combattre l'exploitation capitalistes, et bientôt nous aurons les mêmes conditions de travail et de salaire que nos frères de l'Ouest. Opposons à l'organisation des patrons la fraternité, l'Union des travailleurs, et nous nous améliorerons notre existence sur cette terre, nous la rendrons digne de vivre, et nous préparerons un avenir plus désirable à nos enfants.

Le Mouvement Syndical en France

PAR GEORGES GUÉNARD, PARIS, FRANCE.

III.

LES CONGRÈS OUVRIERS. — LA FÉDÉRATION DU BÂTIMENT.

Pendant plusieurs années fonctionna tant bien que mal en France une Fédération qui avait réussi à grouper des syndicats de presque toutes les catégories des travailleurs du bâtiment. La faiblesse du lien qui unissait les organisations qui la composaient, le peu de services qu'elle était à même de rendre à ses adhérents vu son manque de ressources et l'insuffisance des moyens d'action mis à sa disposition firent que peu à peu elle se désagrégea et finit par s'éteindre tout doucement. Des fédérations de métier se constituèrent alors à sa place, et l'on vit les charpentiers, les maçons, les menuisiers, les peintres, les tailleurs de pierres, etc., s'organiser séparément. Sur l'invitation de quelques syndicats non fédérés, la Confédération générale du travail prit l'initiative d'une reconstitution de l'ancienne Fédération du bâtiment et lança une circulaire à cet effet. Il en résulta la convocation d'un Congrès à Paris, lequel tint ses assises à la Bourse du travail dans les premiers jours de juin. Une vingtaine seulement de syndicats y étaient représentés par des délégués. Après avoir décidé que les patrons, les marchands et les tâcherons ne seraient admis dans aucun des groupes adhérents, le Congrès fixa la composition de la nouvelle Fédération. Elle comprendra dorénavant des syndicats généraux et mixtes constitués dans les localités où la création de syndicats de métier n'est pas possible, de sections de métiers créés pour toutes les corporations ne possédant pas encore de fédération de métier, enfin de fédérations de métier, ces dernières se trouvant en fait être assimilées aux sections de métiers. Le principe de la création d'une caisse de grèves fut ensuite adopté. Elle sera alimentée par un prélèvement de 50 par cent. sur les cotisations, prélèvement qui permettra, paraît-il, d'assurer à chaque gréviste adhérent à la Fédération un secours quotidien de 0f 50; dans les autres cas, il ne sera versé, par solidarité, qu'une somme de 5 francs par 100 grévistes. Ces dispositions, bien que modestes, supposent déjà un embryon d'organisation financière. Nul doute que la jeune Fédération saura l'améliorer par la suite. Nous faisons des vœux pour qu'elle arrive à son plein épanouissement. Le seul obstacle qui puisse s'opposer à son développement réside dans la tendance qu'ont parfois les travailleurs français à se grouper nationalement non par industrie, mais bien par métier. Nous aurons d'ailleurs, au cours de nos correspondances, l'occasion d'examiner plus longuement cette dernière question.

LES GRÈVES.

En faisant exception pour la grève des métallurgistes d'Hennebont qui se développe actuellement et dont je vous entretiendrai prochainement, on peut dire qu'en France il n'y a pas eu de conflits de réelle importance entre patrons et ouvriers depuis la grève générale des mineurs et celle des travailleurs du port de Marseille. Tout au plus y a-t-il lieu de signaler celle des "carriers-mineurs de Savonnières-en-Terthois", qui ont abandonné le travail pour protester contre des retenues injustifiées que voulaient leur faire subir les patrons.

La loi de 1898 sur les accidents du travail met les primes d'assurances à la charge de l'industriel et interdit même formellement à celui-ci de les récupérer sur le salaire des ouvriers. Ce n'est pourtant pas ainsi que l'entendent les maîtres carriers de Savonnières, aussi ont-ils cru pouvoir agrémente les salaires payés par eux d'une retenue de 3 à 12 par cent, les uns la motivant (violation ouverte de la loi) par la prime d'assurances sur les accidents, les autres masquant leur action illégale sous de prétendus frais de toisage ou de cubage de la pierre. 500 travailleurs ont abandonné les carrières et tiennent bon depuis déjà six semaines.

Bien que la Fédération des carriers soit de création récente et partant insuffisamment préparée pour prêter un concours financier effectif aux grévistes, tout fait espérer qu'il auront néanmoins raison de la résistance des patrons, étant donné qu'il représentent une main-d'œuvre difficile à remplacer au pied levé. On annonce même déjà que la plupart des patrons se montre disposés à souscrire aux revendications des ouvriers. un seul d'entre eux paraissant vouloir demeurer inflexible.

La Domination du Plus Apte

En organisant une nouvelle chambre syndicale nous forgerons un anneau à la chaîne de la fraternité humaine, qui dans un temps prochain, est destinée à briser les liens qui jusqu'à présent attachent la classe ouvrière à leurs maîtres capitalistes en procurant à cette classe ouvrière sa liberté économique.

Récemment, à Boston, on a organisé sous la juridiction de la fraternité des charpentiers et menuisiers, une chambre syndicale d'ouvriers de l'étable et de machines. Cette fondation aura du avoir lieu il y a des années, mais comme bien des choses plus ou moins d'importance, soit par pur égoïsme ou des questions individuelles, elle fut négligée.

Bien souvent un simple proverbe, dans de certaines conditions nous révèle sa profondeur. Dans le cas présent le fameux mot de "la domination du plus apte" nous en dit plus long que des volumes compilés par nos savants de la science économique, classique ou politique, n'auraient pu nous enseigner.

Dans notre lutte économique, poussé par l'évolution industrielle, la concurrence pour "le droit au travail" s'accroît de plus en plus entre camarade d'ateliers, et nous oblige de former des unions ouvrières afin de mieux nous protéger. Les unions commencent leurs opérations d'abord sur un terrain local, mais forcé par la demande multipliée elles deviennent bientôt un corps national, formé d'organisations locales dans différentes villes ou localités. Seulement, comme la spontanéité de ces organisations ne s'étend jamais simultanément dans le même corps de métier ou dénomination, il arrive souvent que deux organisations nationales réclament la juridiction sur en même genre de métier, sans spécifier exactement leurs droits.

En organisant les ouvriers machinistes du bois sous la juridiction de notre fraternité nous avons, selon les assertions de nos amis, les travailleurs du bois (woodworkers) accaparés leurs droits et il protestent vigoureusement, disant que si nous persistons dans cette voie, ils porteront plainte au conseil des "Grand Moggles". De sorte que nous devons nous abstenir d'organiser la plus importante partie de notre métier, voir même la plus importante de toute l'industrie, simplement pour le bon plaisir des nos adversaires.

Eh bien, non; voilà des années que je me trouve au milieu de cette partie du métier, connaissant à fond le degré de démoralisation des grands fabricants de Boston, et je ne serai jamais de ceux, qui se retireront tranquillement du champ de bataille sans avoir tiré un coup de feu pour mes droits personnels ou les droits de mes camarades d'ateliers. Mais la bataille est imminente, et malgré mon aversion profonde contre une lutte entre deux organisations ouvrières, je dois proclamer que la conservation de nous même est la première loi naturelle, et, à moins que les travailleurs du bois (woodworkers) s'unissent avec nous, cette lutte inévitable aura lieu.

Le système de la concurrence capitaliste ne garanti nullement à chacun les moyens d'existence, ni fourni t'il du travail rémunérateur à tous ceux qui en demandent; et si l'organisation ouvrière a un but, une raison d'être quelconque, c'est certainement son premier devoir de protéger ces membres.

Et voilà la question posée, "A qui le contrôle?" et en cas de guerre "Lequel survivra l'autre?" Comme je l'ai déjà dit, nous vivons sous le régime de la concurrence entre les ouvriers, et comme la classe des employeurs conserve soixante cinq pour cent du revenu de notre production à agrandir notre exploitation, il est clairement démontré que la tendance future des organisations ouvrières sera d'être très conservatrice dans la protection mutuelle de ces membres.

Si nous pouvions prévoir la future aussi bien que nous voyons le passé derrière nous, nous nous garderions bien contre tous les maux qui nous apparaîtraient, mais l'apathie général des grandes masses de travailleurs, doublée de leur profonde ignorance en matière économique, nous forcent de lutter pour les questions du jour, laissant le soin du futur aux générations à venir. Mais je suis certain que le jour du réveil viendra, et ne voulant pas rester endormi moi même, je consens à me laisser pousser par le courant prête à attendre ce jour de réveil.

Monats-Berichte.

Viele lokale Finanz-Sekretäre sind iehr nachlässig und gleichgültig in der Einsendung ihrer offiziellen Monats-Berichte an die General-Office. Wenn die Einsendung dieser Berichte nicht eine absolute Nothwendigkeit wäre, hätten wir das Berichterstatten schon längst abgelehnt.

Die in diesen Berichten enthaltenen Angaben ermöglichen es uns, über unsere Mitgliederzahl eine monatliche Zusammenstellung zu machen und unsere Jahresberichte abzufassen.

Wenn uns die Monats-Berichte nicht zeitig und korrekt ausgefüllt zugehen, kann man von uns nicht erwarten, daß wir unsere Kontos ordnungsgemäß führen und bezüglich der gutstehenden Mitgliederzahl, der drei Monate rückständigen, außer Beiseit befindlichen Mitglieder, korrekte Eintragungen in unseren Büchern machen. Noch können wir unter diesen Umständen enaue Kontrolle führen über Mitglieder, welche um eine Freikarte eingekommen oder eine solche deponirt, oder über suspendirte oder ausgeschlossene Mitglieder, noch über wieder aufgenommene Ex., noch über die im Laufe des Monats aufgenommenen Mitglieder.

Unsere letzte Convention hat verfügt, daß die General-Office korrekte Lste führen und Eintragungen machen soll über das Wachstum, die Beständigkeit und den numerischen und finanziellen Stand der Organisation. Um dem General-Sekretär diese Aufgabe zu erleichtern, hat diese Convention spezielle Instruktionen ertheilt, welche seitdem durch Urabstimmung zum Gesetz erhoben und unserer General-Constitution einverleibt worden sind. Sect. 153 (c) sagt:

„Der F. S. soll dem G. S. monatlich auf den offiziellen für diesen Zweck gelieferten Formularen, bei $2.00 Strafe, einen schriftlichen Bericht einenden, sowie nicht später wie in der zweiten Sitzung der U. in jedem Vierteljahr, die Mitgliederzahl und den Finanzstand der U. in im vorhergehenden Vierteljahr angeben.“

Von nun an werden wir in allen Fällen, wo Finanz-Sekretäre oben angeführte Section verlegen, auf der strikten Ausführung desselben bestehen. Die Lokal-Beamten müssen sich in Zukunft unbedingt einer gewissenhafteren Pflichterfüllung befleißigen!

Es ist der General-Office nicht möglich, über wichtige Fragen Einsicht zu erhalten, wenn ihr nicht jeden Monat genaue, alle nöthigen Einzelheiten enthaltende Berichte das ganze Jahr hindurch zugehen. Die General-Office sollte über nichts im Unklaren und über Alles genau informiert sein. Es ist unser Wunsch, die Organisations-Geschäfte prompt und in ordnungsmäßiger Weise zu führen und zu erledigen, und um dies zu bewerkstelligen, machen wir hier auf die Nachlässigkeit vieler Finanz-Sekretäre aufmerksam. Brüderlichst

Frank Duff, G. S.

Die Achte Stündige Arbeitszeit.

Ueber dieses Thema ist schon so viel geschrieben und geredet worden, daß man meinen sollte, die Frage sei erledigt und die Achte Stündige Arbeit allerwärts eingeführt. Doch der große Kohlengräber-Ausstand des vorigen Jahres und auch beispielsweise der Ausstand der Textilarbeiter Philadelphia's belehrt uns eines Anderen.

Trotzdem überall da, wo die achte Stündige Arbeitszeit bereits eingeführt ist, die Unternehmer fast ohne Ausnahme zugeben müssen, daß ihnen die Verkürzung der Arbeitszeit keine Nachtheile gebracht hat, daß sie in ihrer Konkurrenzfähigkeit durch diese Neuerung nicht beschnitten wurden, werden den organisierten Arbeitern in ihrem Bestreben, die Arbeitsstunden von zehn auf neun oder acht Stunden zu verkürzen, immer noch erhebliche Hindernisse in den Weg gelegt. Die Unternehmer dieses Landes rekrutiren sich eben in ihrer großen Mehrzahl aus Emporkömmlingen, aus einer Kategorie von Unternehmern, die, wie uns die Geschichte der Arbeiterbewegung aller Länder zeigt, nichts lernen und nichts vergessen können. Diese können und wollen aus den günstigen Resultaten, die jetzt durch die verkürzte Arbeitszeit erzielt wurden, keine Lehren ziehen. Sie wollen nach wie vor von der Zehnstunden-Arbeit nicht ablassen und sagen einfach: „Wir haben, als wir noch selbst arbeiteten, zwölf und mehr Stunden per Tag gearbeitet, und sind doch noch am Leben; warum sollten unsere Arbeiter nicht wenigstens zehn Stunden täglich arbeiten können?“

In der Kinderarbeit erblickten diese Unternehmer nichts Schädliches, sondern nur Vortheilhaftes, behauptend, daß dadurch das Einkommen der Eltern erhöht werde. Sie halten zähe an den alten Einrichtungen fest, weil ihnen jede Neuerung zuwider ist und die alten Zustände es ihnen bisher gestattet haben, aus dem Schweiß ihrer mündigen und unmündigen Lohnsklaven die Kapitalien herauszupressen, denen sie ihren Aufschwung in die Klasse der Ausbeuter und ihre heutige Machtstellung verdanken. In ihrer Profitwuth übersehen sie die Thatsache, daß in Folge der industriellen Entwicklung des verfloffenen halben Jahrhunderts, der Anwendung der Maschinerie, der verbesserten Technik und des daraus hervorgegangenen Konkurrenzkampfes, die Produktionsverhältnisse eine radikale Umgestaltung erfahren haben. Sie leugnen die Thatsache, daß die Ansprüche, die heute an die Leistungsfähigkeit der Arbeitskräfte gestellt werden, bedeutend größere sind, als vor dreißig, vierzig oder fünfzig Jahren, bei zwölf- oder mehrstündiger Arbeitszeit.

Dieselbe maßlose Ausbeutungswuth, denselben Widerwillen gegen eine Aenderung der bestehenden Arbeitsverhältnisse und dieselbe Gefühllosigkeit gegen die Arbeiter, die unter diesen Verhältnissen schmachten, findet man unter den feinkalibrigten Kapitalisten anderer Länder. Wir konstatiren hier nur Thatsachen, und liegt es uns ferne, die feinkalibrigten herauszufreichen, die, wenn sie auch den Verbesserungsbestrebungen der Arbeiter zugänglich, trotzdem unsere Ausbeuter, also unsere Feinde sind. Zur Befräftigung unserer Ausführungen verweisen wir auf die Zehnstunden-Bewegung in England während der sechziger Jahre. So lange dort die „Whigs“, die Partei der Unternehmer und kleineren Gewerbetreibenden, das Heft der Regierung in Händen hatten, waren alle Bemühungen der britischen Arbeiter, die Annahme des Zehnstunden-Gesetzes durchzusetzen, erfolglos. Es blieb der „Tory“-Regierung, der Partei der Lords und Großkapitalisten, vorbehalten, die Zehnstunden-Vorlage im Parlament zur Annahme und den Zehnstunden-Tag zur gesetzlichen Arbeitszeit zu erheben.

Bei dieser Gelegenheit sei erwähnt, daß damals eine von der Regierung ernannte, theilweise aus Aerzten zusammengesetzte Commission zur Ermittlung der Lage der Arbeiter und Arbeiterinnen in ihren statistischen Berichten (Blue Books) nachwies, daß die elf- und zwölfstündige Arbeitszeit bei vorherrschenden Produktions-Verhältnissen die Gesundheit der Arbeitenden untergrabe, und Kinder- und Frauen-Arbeit unter gegebenen Umständen schließlich die physische und geistige Entkräftung der Arbeiter-Bevölkerung des ganzen Landes nach sich ziehen müsse.

Hier in Amerika haben wir keine aristokratische Partei, welche den Arbeitern—sei es um Stimmen zu fördern oder aus Oppositionslust gegen eine andere Partei—Konzessionen wönnte. Hier haben wir reine Kapitalistenwirtschaft; Gemeinde-, Staats- und Bundesregierung sind Dank der Gleichgültigkeit der Arbeiter und ihrer Vertrennung der eigenen Interessen, in den Händen der Kapitalisten. Gesetze, wenigstens von den Oberbundesgerichten unanfechtbare und wirksame Gesetze zur Regelung der Arbeitsstunden, werden daher hier erst dann erlassen werden, wenn sich die Lohnarbeiter die politische Macht erobert haben, die ihnen zukommt. Bis zu dem Eintreffen dieses Zeitpunktes aber, den alle intelligenten, klaffen- und interessenbewußten Arbeiter schmerzlich herbeiführen, müssen wir auf gewerkschaftlichem Gebiete, durch unsere gewerkschaftliche Organisation, die Verkürzung der Arbeitszeit, wo diese noch nicht stattgefunden, zu erringen und zu erzwingen suchen.

Welch' kolossale Arbeit wir in dieser Richtung noch zu verrichten haben, sehen wir erst bei näherer Beleuchtung der noch vorherrschenden Arbeitsverhältnisse, vielmehr der in den verschiedenen Gewerken und Arbeitszweigen heute üblichen Arbeitsstunden.

Wir finden da, daß es außer den deutschen Schriftsehern, und vielleicht den Cigarrenmachern, kein einziges Gewerk gibt, welches die achte Stündige Arbeitszeit durchweg im ganzen Lande eingeführt hat. In allen Baugewerken ist theilweise neun Stunden noch die übliche Arbeitszeit. Das Gleiche gilt von vielen anderen Gewerken, während einige, wie die Textilarbeiter in Philadelphia und in den Fabriken der Südstaaten, sich noch nicht auf die neunstündige Arbeitszeit herauszuschwingen konnten.

Selbst unsere Bruderschaft, die unter den Baugewerken in dieser Beziehung noch am günstigsten bestellt ist, zählt, wie uns die in dieser Nummer veröffentlichte Lste zeigt, nur 342 Städte u. d. Orte, in denen die Achte Stündige-Arbeit das Feld behauptet. Daraus ergibt sich, daß auch für unsere Bruderschaft die alte, viel erörterte Frage der Verkürzung der Arbeitszeit auf acht Stunden noch eine offene und unerledigte ist. Wenn wir nun auch der Hartnäckigkeit der Arbeitgeber gebührend Rechnung tragen, so drängt sich uns doch unwillkürlich die Frage auf: Wie kommt es, daß wir in der Achte Stündigenfrage, die doch schon vor mehr denn drei Jahrzehnten in Angriff genommen wurde, keine größeren Erfolge zu verzeichnen haben? Die Beantwortung dieser Frage unsererseits, in Bausch und Bogen, wäre unklug, denn es kommen hierbei örtliche Verhältnisse in Betracht, deren sich uns viele der Beurtheilung entziehen. Dagegen sollten aber alle Lokal-Unions der Erörterung und Beantwortung der Frage einmal ernstlich näher treten. Doch auch wir haben eine Meinung hierüber, die wir bei einer späteren Gelegenheit zum Ausdruck bringen wollen.

Maschinisten erkennen das Vorhandensein eines Klassenkampfes.

In der Juni Ausgabe des Machinists' Monthly Journal finden wir in einer editorielle Betrachtung über die Verhandlungen der letzten Konvention der Internationalen Maschinisten-Union die folgenden einen bedeutenden Gefinnungs-Umschwung markirenden Ausführungen:

„Wir sind in eine andere Epoche eingetreten, und geben heute zu, daß es einen Klassenkampf gibt, d. h. wir erkennen offiziell die Thatsache an, daß das soziale Gleichgewicht gestört wird, wenn es einigen Wenigen, die nicht arbeiten und der menschlichen Gesellschaft keinerlei Dienste erweisen, gestattet ist, unseren Arbeitsertrag zu vergeuden, während Andere aus Mangel an den nothwendigsten Existenzmitteln, wie Nahrung, Luft und Sonnenschein, zu Grunde gehen müssen. Indem die Internationale Maschinisten-Union zu dieser Erkenntniß gekommen ist, hat sie einen großen Schritt vorwärts gethan und ist anderen Organisationen vorausgeeilt.“

Nachdem einmal die wichtige Thatsache erkannt ist, daß wir uns in einem Kampfe der Klasse gegen Klasse befinden, haben wir den Weg betreten, der uns zur Erlösung führt.

So lange wir den Sirenenstimmen Gehör schenken, die uns zuflüstern, daß die Interessen der faulenzenden, nichtproduzierenden Mitglieder der menschlichen Gesellschaft mit unseren Interessen identisch seien, war kein Fortschritt unter uns möglich; nachdem wir aber erkannt haben, daß Derjenige, der nicht arbeitet, auch nicht essen sollte, ist unser Fortschritt gesichert.

Ebenso ist unsere Organisation zu der Ansicht gelangt, daß unsere ökonomische Befreiung nur durch politische Thätigkeit errungen werden kann, und sie hebt besonders hervor, daß wir auch am Wahltag nicht vergessen dürfen, daß wir organisierte Arbeiter sind, und daß es die größte Thorheit ist, das ganze Jahr hindurch Unionmann zu sein und „Scab“ am Wahltag, wenn wir unsere Stimmen abgeben.

Wenn die Mitglieder der Int. Maschinisten-Union den Rath und die Grundsätze ihrer Organisation befolgen, werden sie von nun an nur für Männer stimmen, die ihrer eigenen, der Arbeiterklasse, angehören, die sich als treue Anhänger der Sache der Arbeit und im Klassenkampfe bewährt haben.“

Vierter österreichischer Gewerkschafts-Kongreß.—Am 8. Juni trat in Wien der vierte österreichische Gewerkschafts-Kongreß zusammen. Auf demselben waren 160,000 in 47 Central-Verbände gruppirte Arbeiter vertreten. Die Gewerkschaftspresse ist eine vielsprachige, wie es österreichische Verhältnisse bedingen, und wird in 150,000 Exemplaren verbreitet.

Internationaler Bergarbeiter-Kongreß.—Anfangs Juni tagte in Brüssel der 14te internationale Bergarbeiterkongreß. Anwesend waren 76 Delegaten, und zwar 46 aus Großbritannien, 9 aus Deutschland, 14 aus Belgien, 6 aus Frankreich und ein Delegat aus Oesterreich. Dieselben vertraten 1,271,500 Bergarbeiter. Der Kongreß hat eine Reihe weitgehender Beschlüsse gefaßt. Zunächst erklärte sich derselbe für den gesetzlichen Achte Stündentag (drei englische Delegirte enthielten sich der Stimme). Auch wurde beschlossen, für die Bergarbeiter aller Länder einen geizlich geregelten Minimallohn zu verlangen. Ferner erklärte sich der Kongreß nach längerer Debatte dafür, daß nur Arbeiterkandidaten in's Parlament gesandt werden. Das Pensionswesen der Bergarbeiter betreffend, wurde einstimmig beschlossen, von den Regierungen aller Länder zu fordern, Pensionskassen zu schaffen, die den altgewordenen Bergmann vor Hunger und Elend schützen. Der Kongreß erklärte sich für Verstaatlichung der Gruben und für die Forderung nach Hülfinspektoren, die aus den Reihen der Arbeiter zu entnehmen sind. Bei der Abstimmung über diese Resolution enthielten sich die Deutschen der Stimme, weil es abgelehnt worden war, den Passus aufzunehmen, wonach Hülfinspektoren von den Arbeitern zu ernennen sind. Endlich beschäftigte sich der Kongreß mit der für die Bergarbeiter so brennenden Frage der „Wurmkrankheit“. Zur Bekämpfung der Seuche, die in Deutschland, Frankreich und Belgien bedenkliche Ausbreitung erfahren hat, wurde beschlossen, daß die Unternehmer gesetzlich verpflichtet werden sollen, auf den Werken Einrichtungen zur Förderung der Arbeitergesundheit zu schaffen, und zur Bekämpfung der Wurmkrankheit sind alle Mittel zu ergreifen, die Wissenschaft und Praxis als zweckdienlich anerkannt haben.

Ein internationaler Steinarbeiter-Kongreß tagte zu Pfingsten in Zürich. Vertreten waren acht Landesorganisationen mit 31,450 Mitgliedern. Das Ergebnis des Kongresses war die Gründung eines internationalen Steinarbeiter-Sekretariats, zu dessen Erhaltung jede Landesorganisation einen einmaligen Beitrag von 20 Mark und einen laufenden Beitrag von 25 Mark pro Jahr und Mitglied zu entrichten hat. Das Sekretariat ist am 1. Juli in Kraft getreten. Eine Regelung erfährt die gegenseitige Unterstützung bei Lohnbewegungen und Streik. Ferner wurde beschlossen, daß die einzelnen Landesorganisationen in der Agitation an den Grenzdistrikten gegenseitig unterstützen sollen. In Verbindung mit dem Kongreß fand eine Ausstellung von gewerkschaftlichem Verwaltungsmaterial, Schriften über die Geschichte der Gewerkschaften, Verbandsgeschichte der Steinarbeiter, Drucksachen über deren Lohn- und Arbeitsverhältnisse usw. statt, die viel Beachtung seitens der Kongreßteilnehmer fand.

Verhandlungen

der dritten Vierteljahrs-Sitzung 1903 des General-Executive Board.

13. Juli.

Alle Mitglieder anwesend.
Gesuche der Local Unions 77, Portchester, N. Y., und 27, Toronto, Can., um weitere finanzielle Hilfe zur Unterstützung ihrer Ausstellungen. Portchester wird die Summe von $100 und Toronto die Summe von $500 bewilligt.

Der Baltimore District Council ersucht nochmals um Sanktionierung seiner Streikbewegung und finanziellen Beistand. Der Board beschließt, seine in der April-Sitzung getroffene Entscheidung, welche die Forderung als zu weitgehend und nicht erfolgversprechend erklärt, aufrecht zu erhalten. Gesuch wird nicht gewährt.

14. Juli.

Gesuch des Boston, Mass., District Council um Geldbewilligung zur Unterstützung der an einem beendeten Auslande beteiligten Mitglieder. Der Board findet, daß die Zahl dieser Mitglieder eine sehr geringe und die Dauer des Ausstandes eine sehr kurze war, und weist aus diesen Gründen das Gesuch ab.

Gesuch des Manhattan, N. Y., District Council um Sanktionierung eines Aufrufes an die Local Unions um finanzielle Hilfe, um Erlassung des Extra-Abschlags und um Bewilligung eines Geschenkes oder Darlehens von $15,000 zur Unterstützung der am letzten Auslande beteiligten Mitglieder. Der Board beschließt: 1. Da eine ganze Anzahl Gesuche anderer Local Unions um Sanktionierung von Hilferufen vorliegen, kann das Gesuch des Manhattan District Council nicht gewährt werden. 2. Die Bewilligung eines Darlehens ist unkonstitutionell, und dem Manhattan District ist bereits eine Summe bewilligt worden, die nicht überschritten werden kann. 3. Das Extra-Abschlag wird nicht von den District Councils, sondern von den Local Unions erhoben, und auch dieses Gesuch ist abgelehnt.

Gesuch der Local Union 561, Pittsburg, Kan., um finanziellen Beistand in ihrem Lockout. Die Summe von $250 wird bewilligt.

Bezüglich eines ähnlichen Gesuches der Local Union 115, Bridgeport, Conn., wird der General-Sekretär angewiesen, Angabe näherer Einzelheiten einzufordern, und Beschlusfassung wird verschoben.

Beschwerde der Local Union 1444, Nashville, Tenn., gegen die Handlungsweise des District Council jener Stadt, Arbeitsregeln betreffend. Wird an den General-Präsidenten verwiesen.

Gesuch des San Antonio, Tex., District Council um Sanktionierung einer Lohnforderung. Wird bis zum Eintreffen weiterer Information und des ausgefüllten Fragebogens zurückgelegt.

Gesuch der Local Union 81, Trenton, N. J., um Zurückstattung der Summe von $100, welche sie der Local Union 602 während ihres Ausstandes geliehen. Die erwähnte Summe wird zu diesem Zwecke bewilligt.

Gesuche der Local Unions 52 und 159, Charleston, S. C.; 146, Schenectady, N. Y., und 331, Norfolk, Va., um finanzielle Unterstützung ihrer Streikbewegungen. Zurückgelegt, bis nähere Einzelheiten vorliegen.
Ähnliche Gesuche der Local Unions 217, Westerlo, N. J.; 396, Newport News, Va.; 544, El Paso, Tex.; 624, Brodton, Mass.; 638, Morristown, N. J., und 533, Jeffersonville, Ind., werden abgewiesen, da die Ausstände beendet und in den meisten Fällen nur eine geringe Anzahl Mitglieder daran beteiligt waren.

Gesuche der Local Unions 389, Tuxedo, N. Y., und 459, Bar Harbor, Me., um Sanktionierung ihrer Forderungen für acht Stunden und neun Stunden Lohn, und um finanziellen Beistand. Sanktion gewährt und finanzielle Frage zurückgelegt.

Gesuch der Local Union 853, Silver Creek, N. Y., um Sanktionierung einer Gewerkschaftsforderung. Abgelehnt und General-Präsident ersucht, einen Organisator nach Silver Creek zu senden.

Gesuch der Local Union 1494, Nachitoches, La., um Sanktionierung einer Forderung, und der Local Union 1569, Minneapolis, Minn., um finanzielle Unterstützung in einem Lockout, werden abgewiesen, da diese Local Unions noch nicht ein Jahr lang bestehen.

15. Juli.

Gesuch der Local Union 1459, Topoka, Kan., um Sanktionierung eines Hilferufes an die Local Unions wird zurückgelegt, bis weitere Information vorliegt. Da zu späterer Stunde Nachrichten einlaufen, welche erheben lassen, daß der Hilferuf bereits ohne Genehmigung erlassen wurde, wird Sanktionierung verweigert.

Gesuch der Local Union 138, Kansas City, Kan., um Erlassung des Extra-Abschlags und um Bewilligung von $500 zur Unterstützung der unter den Folgen der Ueberschwemmung leidenden Mitglieder. Der General-Sekretär wird angewiesen, nähere Information zu verlangen und die Angelegenheit zurückgelegt.

Ein ähnliches Gesuch der Local Union 633, Madison, Ill., wird abgewiesen, da sich der Board nicht für berechtigt hält, für derartige Zwecke Bewilligungen zu machen, indem die Organisationsgelder, außer den Benefits, nur für Unterstützung bei Ausständen und Lockouts bestimmt sind.

Schreiben von Local Union 1082, San Francisco, Cal., wünscht, daß der Board die Jurisdiktionsgrenzen bezüglich der in jener Stadt geltenden Arbeitsregeln festsetze. An den General-Präsidenten verwiesen.

Der Board mißbilligt ein von Local Union 187, Geneva, N. Y., eingereichtes Amendement zur General Constitution, Mitglieder betreffend, welche Kontrolloren werden.

Beschwerde der Schiffsmaschinen Union 9238, Tampa, Fla., gegen die Handlungsweise der N. B. Local Union 696, eine Jurisdiktionsfrage betreffend. Eine Untersuchung des Falles ist im Gange, und der Board billigt die seitens des General-Präsidenten getroffenen Maßnahmen.

Der Board billigt die Haltung des General-Sekretärs in der Streitfrage zwischen der Ver. Brüderschaft und den Am. Woodworkers, und indossiert die Handlungsweise des General-Präsidenten in der Streitfrage zwischen der Ver. Brüderschaft und der Am. Society of Carpenters.

Der Board beschließt, vom 1. Juni an die volle Kopfsteuer für alle aufstehenden Mitglieder an die Am. Federation of Labor zu entrichten und instruiert den General-Sekretär und General-Schatzmeister demgemäß.

16. Juli.

Schreiben des National Building Trades Council, zum Anschluß der N. B. als Ganzes auffordernd. Zurückgelegt und General-Sekretär angewiesen, mehr Information über diese Frage einzuholen.

Der Board faßt folgenden Beschluß, welcher ein stehender sein soll:

„Alle Local Unions sind hiermit instruiert, von anderen Organisationen einlaufenden Circularen, welche um finanzielle Hilfe nachsuchen, keine Beachtung zu schenken; es sei denn, dieselben seien von der General-Office indossiert.“

Auf Gesuch der Local Union 427, Omaha, Neb., wird derselben die weitere Summe von $250 als Unterstützung in ihrem Lockout bewilligt.

Appellation des Organisations-McFarland gegen die Entscheidung des General-Sekretärs, indem derselbe die Zahlung einer Hotelrechnung verweigert. Die Entscheidung des General-Sekretärs wird aufrecht erhalten.

Appellation des Washington, D. C., District Council gegen die Entscheidung des General-Sekretärs bezüglich der Aufnahme von Mitgliedern, welche das fünfzigste Lebensjahr überschritten, als vollberechtigte Mitglieder. Appellation abgewiesen.

Der zweite Vice-Präsident, E. J. Connolly, unterbreitet einen vierteljährlichen Tätigkeits-Bericht. Wird gutgeheißen und soll im CARPENTER veröffentlicht werden.

Ein Depesche des General-Präsidenten, zur Zeit in San Francisco, läuft ein, welche dem Board empfiehlt, dem District Council jener Stadt die Benutzung eines Gummi-Stempels zur Anbringung des Union Labels zu erlauben. Wird abschlägig beschieden.

Gesuch der Local Union 138, Kansas City, Kan., um Frist in der Bezahlung des Extra-Abschlags, um Bewilligung von $500 zur Unterstützung ihrer nothleidenden Mitglieder und um Erlassung von Kopfsteuern. Der Board bewilligt Frist bis zum 15. Oktober, fühlt sich aber nicht berechtigt, Kopfsteuer zu erlassen, noch Geld zu bewilligen, da die Organisationsgelder nur für konstitutionelle Zwecke verwendbar sind.

Appellation der Local Union 114, Houston, Tex., Minnie E. Winder's Ansprüche auf Sterbegeld betreffend; der Local Union 15, Syracuse, N. Y., desgleichen im Falle Adam Flohr's; der Local Union 362, Pueblo, Col., desgleichen im Falle J. D. Jones', und der Local Union 790, Everett, Mass., desgleichen im Falle Clara E. Winder's, gegen die Entscheidung des General-Sekretärs, welche die Ansprüche zurückwies. Entscheidung aufrecht erhalten und Appellationen abgewiesen.

17. Juli.

Die nachfolgenden Local Unions ersuchen um Erlassung des Extra-Abschlags oder Frist in der Entrichtung desselben: 873, Palestine, Tex.; 382, 473, 240, 56, 509, 375, 51, 468, 707, 513, 200, 457, 476, 478, 774, 340, 497, 40, 464 und 575, New York City; 1596, St. Louis, Mo.; 1593, Concord, Mass.; 888, Salem, Mass.; 950, Danvers, Mass.; 1453, Grand Rapids, Mich.; 544, El Paso, Tex.; 962, Marblehead, Mass.; 924, Manchester, Mass.; 29, 1315, 44 und 990, Baltimore, Md.; 238, 1592, 972, 359, 964, 277, 1090, 8, 227 und 736, Philadelphia, Pa.; 1255, Chillicothe, O.; 878, Beverly, Mass.; 463, Frankford, Pa.; 458, Lawrence, Kan.; 212 und 493, Mt. Appellation der Local Union 375, New York, gegen die Entscheidung des General-Präsidenten im Falle Frank Gilliard's, denselben von aller Schuld freisprechend und seine Suspension unangefochten erklärend. Entscheidung bleibt zu Recht bestehen; Appellation abgewiesen.

Appellation Geo. Scharp's u. A. gegen die Entscheidung des General-Präsidenten im Falle der Appellanten gegen Local Union 476, New York. Zurückgelegt und der General-Präsident ersucht, sich eine notariell beglaubigte Abschrift des Protokolls der Versammlung der Local Union zu verschaffen, auf welche sich die Vorwürfe beziehen.

Ein vierteljährlicher Tätigkeits-Bericht des ersten Vice-Präsidenten, G. M. Guerin, wird unterbreitet und gutgeheißen. Wird im CARPENTER veröffentlicht werden.

Der General-Sekretär unterbreitet Versicherungspapiere für alles Eigenthum in der General-Office, welche als befriedigend befunden und dem General-Sekretär zur guten Aufbewahrung übergeben werden.

Gesuch der Local Union 396, Newport News, Va., um weitere Geldbewilligung. Zurückgelegt, bis Nachricht über den jetzigen Stand des Ausstandes eingelaufen ist.

18. Juli.

Den Local Unions 602, Trenton, N. J.; 625, Malden, Mass.; 1388, Tottenham, L. E., N. Y., und 387, New York City, wird Frist in der Zahlung des Abschlages bis zum 15. Oktober 1903 gewährt.

Zur Unterstützung von Streikbewegungen werden folgende Summen bewilligt: Local Union 115, Bridgeport, Conn., $400; Local Union 210, Stamford, Conn., $400; Bronx District, N. Y., $1,000.

Der Board legt ein Comité ein zum Zweck der Zusammenstellung aller auf die Am. Woodworkers Frage bezüglichen Dokumente, und soll das Comité vor Vertagung des Board Bericht ermitteln.

Ein Gesuch der Local Union 503, Lancaster, N. Y., um weitere Geldbewilligung wird nicht gewährt.

Gesuch des Los Angeles, Cal., District Council um Sanktionierung einer Gewerkschaftsforderung. Zurückgelegt, bis der Fragebogen eingelaufen ist.

Gesuch der Local Union 974, Monessen, Pa., um Sanktionierung ihrer schon begonnenen Bewegung für acht Stunden und $3.00 per Tag, und um finanzielle Unterstützung. Wegen mangelhafter Information zurückgelegt.

Dasselbe geschieht bezüglich eines ähnlichen Gesuches der Local Union 159, Charleston, S. C.

20. Juli.

Von Charleston, S. C., liegt die gewünschte Information vor, und wird die Summe von $400 zur Unterstützung der ausstehenden Mitglieder der Local Union 159 bewilligt.

Die Revision der Finanzbücher der General-Office wird begonnen und nimmt den Rest des Tages in Anspruch.

21. Juli.

Vom General-Präsidenten, zur Zeit in San Francisco, läuft ein Schreiben ein, welches den Board ersucht, seinen Beschluß, den Gebrauch eines Gummi-Stempels zum Anbringen des Union Labels verbietend, in Wiedererwägung zu ziehen. Abschlägig beschieden.

Gesuch der Local Union 309, Manhattan, N. Y., um Frist in der Zahlung des Abschlages. Frist bis zum 15. Oktober 1903 gewährt.

Die Revision der Finanzbücher wird fortgesetzt.

22. Juli.

Die Revision der Bücher wird wieder aufgenommen und dieselbe nimmt diese Sitzung, sowie diejenigen des 23. und 24. Juli, vollständig in Anspruch.

25. Juli.

Die Frage der Vergebung der Contrakte für Druckarbeiten wird in Erwägung gezogen, unterbreitete Vorschläge geprüft und der General-Sekretär beauftragt, die Contrakte so wie es am praktikabelsten ist an die Firmen zu vergeben, welche strikte Union-Bedingungen einhalten und die niedrigsten Angebote gemacht haben.

Der General-Sekretär und der General-Schatzmeister werden instruiert, die Summe von $40,000 des beweglichen Kontos in der American National Bank zu ziehen und diese Summe dem unbeweglichen interessen tragenden Konto beizufügen.

Der General-Sekretär unterbreitet ein Schema zu einem von Firmen, welche um das Union Label einkommen, auszufüllenden Fragebogen. Für gut befunden und angenommen.

27. Juli.

Der Board entsendet seine Mitglieder Meyers, Wellman und Oatree nach Lafayette, Ind., um mit der Executive der Brüderschaft der Antreiber und Dekorateur bezüglich der in San Francisco schwebenden Streitfrage zu konferieren.

Nach eingelaufenen Nachrichten von Halifax, N. S., Can., haben Schiedsrichter bezüglich der dortigen Differenzen eine Entscheidung gefällt, der sich die Arbeitgeber nicht unterwerfen wollen, und wird die Summe von $400 für die noch ausstehenden Mitglieder bewilligt.

Appellation der Local Union 715, Manhattan, N. Y., gegen die Entscheidung des General-Sekretärs im Falle von Margaret Sweeney, Sterbegeld betreffend. Abgelehnt und Entscheidung aufrecht erhalten.

Ein Schreiben des District Council von Philadelphia liegt vor, den Board ersuchend, sich nach dieser Stadt zu begeben, um innere Streitigkeiten zu sichten. Der Board beschließt, diese Anwesenheit erst dann in Erwägung zu ziehen, nachdem der General-Präsident über die eingelaufenen einschlägigen Appellationen verfügt hat.

Der General-Sekretär unterbreitet neue Bürgschaftspapiere, da die alten am 15. August ablaufen. Die Mitglieder des Board unterzeichnen die Papiere und beordern deren Abienung an die Bürgschaftsteller, die United States Fidelity and Guarantee Co.

Der Rechnungs-Experte unterbreitet nachstehenden Bericht, welcher den Akten einverleibt wird:

„Wir haben die Ehre, zu berichten, daß wir die Finanzen Ihrer Organisation für das mit dem 30. Juni 1903 endende Quartal geprüft, für richtig befunden und daß dieselben in sorgfältiger Weise geführt sind.“

„Inbrand Bros., Ross & Montgomery.“
Die Revision der Bücher wird fortgesetzt.

28. Juli.

Der Finanzbericht für das am 30. Juni endende Quartal wird unterbreitet und angenommen.

Hierauf folgt Vertagung.
(Finanz-Ausweis, siehe englischen Bericht.)

M. D. Post, Sec. des G. E. C.
Frank Duffy, Gen.-Sec.

Die Gewerkschafts-Organisation sollte stets allen anderen Organisationen vorgezogen werden. Ohne sie, die unsere Löhne hochhält, würden wir nicht in der Lage sein, unsere Beiträge an Unterstützungs- oder Vergütungs-Gesellschaften zu emittieren. Letzteren anzugehören ist nicht verwerflich, besonders dann nicht, wenn sie aus Lohnarbeitern bestehen. Derentwegen dürfen wir aber nicht unsere Pflichten der Gewerkschafts-Organisation gegenüber vernachlässigen.

LOCAL UNION 1227, Waltham, Mass.

Whereas, It has pleased the Divine Architect of the Universe to remove from our midst our beloved brother, Charles Warren; and,

Whereas, The deceased was a member in good standing in our brotherhood, a good citizen, honest, upright and industrious and respected by all who knew him, therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Warren our union suffers the loss of a faithful member, a man with few faults and many virtues, who was ever ready to help a friend and brother in distress; and be it further

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days; that a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of our deceased brother; that a page of our minutes be set aside for these resolutions, and that a copy be sent to our official journal, THE CARPENTER, for publication.

LOCAL UNION 1072, Muscogee, Ind.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from among us our esteemed brother, H. H. Hutchison, who had but recently become a member of this local union; and,

Whereas, We deeply regret his death, as we lose in him a good member, one who was respected by all who knew him, therefore be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the departed that we express our regret at his removal from our midst and to mourn one month of respect; and be it further

Resolved, That we sincerely condole with his family on the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best and whose chastisements are enacted in mercy; and be it further

Resolved, That this testimonial of our heartfelt sympathy and sorrow be presented to the family of our deceased brother; and be it further

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days; that we devote a page of our minutes to these resolutions, and that a copy be sent to our official journal for publication.

LOCAL UNION 403, Lynchburg, Va.

Whereas, The Great Ruler of the Universe, in His infinite wisdom, has removed from our midst our worthy and esteemed brother, Wyatt L. Powell; and,

Whereas, The intimate relations held by him with the members of this local union during his fraternal connection with them, make it fitting that we record our appreciation of him, therefore be it

Resolved, That the removal of the brother from our midst leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized by all members of the union and its friends, and will prove a grievous loss to all; and be it further

Resolved, That with deep sympathy for the afflicted relatives and friends of the deceased, we express an earnest hope that even so great a bereavement may be overruled for their highest good; and be it further

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days, and a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased; that these resolutions be spread on our minutes, and a copy forwarded to our official journal, THE CARPENTER, for publication.

LOCAL UNION 426, Los Angeles, Cal.

Whereas, In view of the loss Local Union 426 has sustained by the demise of our friend and brother, David Greenburg, and of the still further loss sustained by those who are nearest and dearest to him, therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of our brother we have lost one of the links in the chain of brotherly love which spans the earth; one of the defenders of human rights. We grieve to know that he has stepped out of our ranks forever. Others will step in to fill up the gap in the ranks of labor's hosts, and the battle of human rights will go on, but the vacancy caused by our brother's demise will remain; his life work is over, he has gone to reap his reward. God bless his memory.

We extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy. Words fail us in the bitterness of our sorrow. We would urge you to face life bravely, realizing that he whom you now mourn fell as a hero in the battle of humanity and has gone to his reward in the great unknown. May God give you courage to face this sorrow bravely and meekly and with fixed determination to aid in carrying out your part of the great struggle in which he did his share nobly. Peace to his memory.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the records of this union, and that a copy be tendered to the bereaved family of Brother Greenburg.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in our official journal, THE CARPENTER.

Business Agents' Badges

In compliance with numerous requests the General Office will hereafter supply badges for business agents on application of any District Council or Local Union at the price of $3.50 a piece. The badge is a neat design, with U. B. emblem, has enameled lettering, and is very substantial. District Councils or Local Unions requiring badges should send their orders to the General Office.

Rejection of Candidates

Peter Snyder has been rejected as candidate, by Local Union 768, Dorrancetown, Pa., three times in succession and in accordance with Sec. 78 of the General Constitution.

B. D. Taylor has been rejected, by Local Union 1521, Jacksonville, Fla., at three successive meetings; he not being eligible to membership, according to Sec. 61 of the General Constitution.

The Best State

The best state of human nature is that in which, while no one is poor, no one desires to be richer, nor has any reason to fear being thrust back by the efforts of others to push themselves forward.—John Stuart Mill.

WHEN a body of men agree to divide work, they are right on general principles. It shows a willingness to live and let live—the very essence of trade-union principles.

To Boom Our Union Label

We offer an article designed to keep before the public an imprint of our new union label which is being registered as rapidly as possible in the different states—our MATCH-BOX, an article of great utility, keeping constantly before the public the fact that the Brotherhood has a union label. As will be seen by the illustration our match-box is an article which will be appreciated, not only by members of our Brotherhood, but by members of other unions, and one that will serve the purpose of reminding the public of our label. The Brotherhood union label on one side of the box and the emblem and motto on the other are lithographed in beautiful colors on white ground, representing enamel.

No better investment could be made by local unions than the purchasing of our match-boxes for agitation purposes. They are also a creditable souvenir to be used at the occasion of festivals.

The General Office is in a position to furnish any quantity of the article at the established price of 15 cents each. A sample will be sent immediately upon request accompanied by the necessary amount.

So long as one single trade or calling remains unorganized labor organization needs perfection.

THE man who has no object or interest in life beyond "getting a living," who accepts and lives by the rule of "Each for himself and the devil take the hindmost," wherein is he nobler than the beast in the sty? The porker is even more successful according to that rule than man; he gets a better living according to his taste, gets it with less trouble, and probably dies an easier death. In order to be entitled to look down upon the pig as an inferior being you must think and feel for a self larger than that enclosed in your precious skin—a social interest, not outside you, but including you and more.

"Bommer" Adjustable Box Flanged Hinge and Strike

Bommer Bros., 257-271 Classon avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., have made a valuable improvement in that class of spring hinges and strikes for lavatory trim in which one flange is made box-shaped so that it may be clamped directly to the marble partition.

In this new hinge and strike the box flange is adjustable. As the slabs of marble used in lavatory work vary greatly in thickness, the advantage of this feature is easily apparent.

Where the old-style solid box-flanged hinges are used it frequently happens, when the partitions are ready to have the hinges fitted on, that some of the hinges can not be fitted onto the slabs and the boxes must first be filled out; others will fit too loosely and must be underlaid with cardboard, which makes an unsightly job, all because the thickness of the slabs vary.

These new "Bommer" adjustable box-flanged spring hinges and strikes solve the problem and save all worry and trouble as to the fitting of the boxes.

A full line of sizes are made, including 1, 1 1/4, 1 1/2, 1 3/4 and 2 inches, each size being adjustable 1/8-inch over and under the stated size.

The strikes are fitted with rubber buffers to take up the shock as the door swings to.

Both hinges and strikes are accurately formed on dies from sheet metal, one part of the box sliding within the other in the limits named, the finely finished bolts and nuts clamping the parts securely together.

Bommer Bros. will send you their catalogue for the asking.

Labor and What It Does

Labor is robbed by the politician and votes for the robber.

Labor produces wealth and votes it to the non-producer.

Labor builds fine houses and votes them to those who don't labor.

Labor produces everything to eat and votes it to those who are not hungry and goes hungry itself.

Labor makes fine clothes for those who don't labor.

Labor builds fine carriages for drones to ride in.

Labor builds fine railroads and is robbed by the railroad companies.

Labor makes fine farms to mortgage to the usurer.

Labor creates capital and is tyrannized over by capital.

Labor invents machinery and is thrown out of employment by the invention.

Labor feeds the world and goes hungry itself.

Labor clothes the world, but wears ragged clothes.

Work, not Alms

What! Charity! No, thank you, sir!

I haven't come to that!

I'm poor—in want—but I'm not here

A-holding out my hat.

I've two arms, a willing strength,

I'm not a man to shirk.

I don't ask alms, sir. All I want

Is just a chance to work.

I'm not a beggar, sir, thank God!

I only ask my right—

A chance to earn what me and mine

Require, and in the sight

Of fellow-men to be a man,

And hold my head up straight,

Whose child, your child, sir, could not scorn

As an associate.

My wife and child need food and warmth,

And I can give them all

They need, with work—and help as well,

At any neighbor's call.

But idle hands are helpless, sir,

And so I ask of you

A chance to show what mine are worth,

Some honest work to do.

I'm only one of thousands—and

We are not beggars, sir!

We're just as willing now to work

As good men ever were.

Don't treat us, sir, like mendicants

Whom you would fain avoid,

But give, for God's sake, if you can,

Work for the unemployed.

A TWENTIETH CENTURY TOOL

The Blocker Saw Filing Guide.

It is light, durable and well finished.

By its use a saw can be filed accurately and easily. The uniformity of the points is obtained by holding the file so the guide arm is parallel over them when the file is started across the saw. This insures the same bevel and pitch to all the points.

It is attached directly to the file by a thumb-screw. The guide arm is connected to a double index device, which can be set to give any angle or pitch desired. It is adjustable to any size file used for hand-saws. Skilled workman not required to use it.

Price, $1.50 by mail, postpaid.

MATHEMATICAL and GRAPHICAL

Roof Framing

By G. D. Inskip

This Work is specially prepared and written for the Mechanic. By the use of tables he can compute any length of Rafter, Hip or Valley, with ease and accuracy, from 1/4 of an inch to 150 feet. It is in two volumes. Vol. I is handsomely illustrated with diagrams, conveying to the mind of the reader the practical way of cutting Roof Members. It takes in all manner of Pitches, Degrees and Minutes, or any possible Plan of Roof, and gives all measurements full size. Scale measurements are dispensed with, and the steel square is used only as a bevel and is of no moment in acquiring lengths and intersections.

This series of Fred T. Hodgson's new works are to-day the approved and most helpful set of practical builders' "locators" published. They have been tried and found by architects, contractors, carpenters and builders to be efficient "aids" for advancement and thoroughly reliable for daily consultation as books of reference, covering as they do thousands of "self-help-points" necessary for all workers of wood.

The books are positively up-to-date and the "Carpenter" most heartily recommends them to everyone as the most valuable series of books for self-instruction published in the world on the subject treated.

THIS OFFER WILL EXPIRE WHEN THE 5,000 SETS ARE SOLD. AFTER THAT, THE BOOKS CAN ONLY BE HAD AT THE RETAIL PRICES.

If you want a prospectus which gives the full contents of this valuable work write us for it. Sent Free. Send Post Office or Express Money Order to avoid delay. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if the books are not as represented. Address All Orders to

The Invention of the Age!

Must Interest all Mechanics!

Nothing Equals it!

(Patented June 9, 1903.)

WHY?

It is accurate, serviceable, durable and compact as to size. Made of the very best material. It is superior to any thing in the market for its convenience in handling. It can be readily attached to a straight-edge of any length, and accurately adjusted by the set screws.

NOTICE.—When closed the level glass is covered with the protector, thus preventing the glass from being broken by coming in contact with other tools, as is the case with old-style levels.

A trial will convince any mechanic that it is all that we claim it to be; and further, the money it costs is money well invested—it will repay itself by the saving of time and labor.

Price, $1.25 (complete), F. O. B. New York.

Extra Hooks, 25 cents each.

The Advantages are Many:

It will be found very convenient for Mitre work, because, having obtained the degree of pitch you can easily get the plumb and level cut by shifting the glass holder around in the different positions.

To Grade, place the level upon a straight-edge of desired length, adjust the glass holder to meet the pitch required.

Quadrant at Any degree can 40 Degrees be obtained.

Notice the degrees all marked out on the plate. The value of this is appreciated when you need it and haven't it handy.

It is so constructed as to be indispensable to ceiling workers for its particular convenience in testing the level of a ceiling.

LEAD, S. D.—We wish to notify the brothers through THE CARPENTER that there is no demand for carpenters out here in the Black Hills. Those contemplating coming here should first investigate the situation in this locality.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—This city is overstocked with machine hands, numbers of them walking the street without the slightest chance of securing employment. Machine hands should not venture out here at the present time. They will surely regret it. Keep away.

DEFIANCE, O.—We would advise all carpenters to stay away from this locality as trade is very dull. There are as yet no working rules established here: everybody is for himself. You may classify Defiance among the cities paying the lowest wages in western Ohio.

CHESTER, PA.—Everything is serene in this town; our men are all at work, except four, who completed their job this week. We succeeded in securing employment for all the strikers, and our trouble is over. Work is somewhat dull, but in a couple of weeks it will be all right.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—This city has been overcrowded with carpenters, both union and non-union, and at such a rate that at present there are fully two carpenters for every one man's job. Besides this, the cabinetmakers are on a strike for a nine-hour workday. We therefore would advise every carpenter to stay away from Minneapolis. No one here is sure of being in employment next day.

WESSINGTON SPRINGS, S. D.—We would caution all carpenters not to pay attention to reports of scarcity of men in this town or abundance of work. This is only a small town and the work actually to be done here this year can be done by half of the men already here. The prospect of a short crop makes the outlook still gloomier. Carpenters should keep away from this vicinity in their own interest, as well as in the interest of the men here who have to struggle for a living.

HAGERSTOWN, MD.—Our demand for an advance in wages as yet not having been acceded to by the builders we would urgently request all carpenters to give this place a wide berth until the differences have been settled.

CANASTOTA, N. Y.—Local Union 1457, organized last March, is still intact. All our contractors, with the exception of three, having signed our agreement our new scale of wages took effect on May 11th. The contractors, refusing to pay the scale are W. E. Barrett, Geo. Blue and H. Peckham; they have been placed on the unfair list, and no member is allowed to work for them until they have come to time. We would request all brothers to keep away from Canastota pending the difficulty.

WACO, TEX.—Local Union 622 is in good condition and one of the most advanced on trades union lines in the South-West. Every salient point reached out for has been gained with little or no friction. There is a little scab work going on here backed by Wm. Cameron & Co. The management of the job is keeping in the dark but will certainly stop when catching up with procedure. There is not enough work here at present to occupy all our men and as work will be slack for some time we would advise brothers in search of employment to stay away from this place until further notice.

TOULUMNE, CAL.—Our local union having placed the Westside Lumber Co. of Toulumne on the unfair list we would appeal to all our local unions and members, especially those on the Pacific Coast to discriminate against this firm's material and to render us all moral assistance possible to make our cause a success. This company persistently refuses to recognize the union or to employ union men. As soon as they learn of the adhesion of any carpenter to the union or if he demands the union scale $3.50 per day he is immediately ordered to the office and to pack up his tools. Leave the Westside Lumber Co.'s material severely alone.

DALLAS, TEX.—Carpenters as well as other craftsmen will do well by steering clear of this city as we are still badly torn up owing to our lock-out, declared on Jan. 21st this year. Our greatest drawback is the so called union men coming here who give us the shake and do not show up at our meeting hall but go to work on any job, fair or unfair, and when approached by the Business Agent plead innocence and tell a hard luck story as long as your arm. Avoid Dallas, Texas, and give us a chance to enforce our trade rules.

PASSAIC, N. J.—Local Union 1157, organized just about a year ago, is prospering and in good condition both numerically and financially and our meetings are well attended. The two local unions here have now formed a District Council. The working hours are eight and the wages $2.80 per day.

SILVERTON, COL.—Our new schedule has as yet not received the signatures of our employers and work being very dull we are constrained to call on all carpenters, bench hands and mill men to stay away from this locality for the present. There is scarcely anything doing here and most of our men are walking the streets, while living is high, $30 per month is usual rate for board. Carpenters coming here now will certainly rue the day.

LAURENS, S. C.—It is with pleasure we inform the members of our U. B. that our Local Union here is in splendid working order and has been very successful so far and in every respect. We are glad to say that work is plentiful at present. Several large contracts are being executed which will give employment to all our men for some time to come. We are marching on cheerfully and shall never let the banner of unionism trail in the dust.

COLUMBUS, O.—Local Unions 61 and 494 are in fine shape. Eighty-two members were admitted during April and May and 50 applications are this moment in the hands of the Business Agent. Our bosses are gradually adhering to our new schedule and the men are observing our trade rules. As a result many non union men begin to realize their error in keeping aloof from the U. B. Many bosses are voluntarily advancing the wages in order to secure men to do their work. However, there are more carpenters in this city than required to do the work and we would request traveling brothers to stay away.

LINCOLN, NEB.—Our committee appointed for the purpose of endeavoring to unionize the four sash-door and planing mills in the city has been successful in three cases, only the Curtis & Bartlett mill is holding back. The three others employ union men exclusively. The Lincoln Sash and Door Manufacturing Co.

and the National Manufacturing Co. are very anxious to be accorded the privilege of using the U. B. union label.

TELLURIDE, COLO.—There being no carpenter work required at the mines trade is very dull this season. There is not half enough work here at present to occupy resident carpenters, and we would request all craftsmen to keep aloof from this town. Please place Telluride, Colo., on the dull list.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The carpenters' union existing here for quite a number of years under the jurisdiction of the Knights of Labor has come over to the U. B. The members of this new local union have always been staunch union men, some of them upwards of twenty years. They undoubtedly will be a credit to our organization.

ENNIS, TEX.—Eight hours a day is the rule here for union carpenters since January 1st of this year. Still we have several contractors who are unfriendly to organized labor, refuse to adopt the shorter workday system, and employ non-union men. Work is dull at present, only one single job starting up. We are trying to unionize this job, and hope to be successful if we succeed in intercepting non-union men who come here, and if union men stay away. Steer clear of Ennis, Texas, until further notice.

PONTIAC, MICH.—In March, 1902, one single union existed in this city; to-day there are eleven different trades organized. At the above time carpenters received $1.50 to $2 per day of ten hours. In May, this year, five of the leading contractors signed an agreement with L. U. 1032 granting us the nine-hour day, wages to be $2.25 minimum. While we have been successful in our trade demand we do not have all sunshine here. We find it a rather difficult task to get the non-union carpenters, who are greatly in the majority, to join our union.

BENTON HARBOR, MICH.—We are really in a precarious condition owing to the unsolidary attitude and we may even say ungratefulness of the brickmasons. By refusing to work with any non-union brickmason we have compelled the men of this craft to form a union. In fact we have put the bricklayers union on their feet and now most every brick building going up is done by so-called union bricklayers and scab carpenters. The brickmasons, contrary to our action, make no demand for union carpenters on their jobs, thereby injuring our union and all other trades. They say to us: you must help yourself, we can not help you to maintain your union. We are now determined to follow their advice but in a manner which may be surprising to them.

YOUNGSTOWN, O.—On account of a building boom lasting for some time this city is overrun by carpenters, many of them coming here misled by notices from contractors, which appeared in various papers of surrounding cities, stating that carpenters are wanted here. The supply of men here far exceeds the demand, and carpenters would do well to steer clear of Youngstown for the present.

COALGATE, I. T.—During the past three months we had plenty of work, but at present trade is exceedingly dull, and as a consequence 50 per cent. of the 200 carpenters here are walking the streets. Some unscrupulous party inserted an advertisement in the Dallas News stating that men were needed here in a planing mill, while Coalgate has no such mill at all. We are apparently on the verge of a big fight, and the contractors may attempt to work non-union men after July 1st. We trust that under these circumstances all carpenters will remain away from this place for a while at least.

ST. JOHN, N. B., CAN.—While our demand for a minimum rate of wages was granted by the fair-minded contractors on April 1st, there are a number of others who will neither pay union wages nor hire union men. Some of these unfair concerns are now advertising in Boston papers for help; therefore we would warn all carpenters not to heed these advertisements, inserted with a design to flood this city with carpenters who are willing to submit to the unfair conditions of these concerns, and to disrupt our union. Brothers will please assist us in frustrating the dastardly efforts of these scab contractors by remaining away.

ANDERSON, S. C.—We have really had a hard time since L. U. 1488 was organized, still we are getting along very nicely and hold the fort. The greater part of the trouble we are having here is caused by the owners of several cotton mills under construction, they having recently discharged twenty of our men because they belonged to the union. For so doing, and for their unfairness to union men in general, we have placed the following firms on the unfair list: The Anderson Cotton Mill, Brogan, Orr, Riverside, Piedmont, Toxaway and Gluck Cotton Mill. We would call on all organized labor to discriminate against the products of these mills, and we ask the brothers to stay away from Anderson for the present.

BELLEFONTE, PA.—About a year ago Local Union 1190 was organized with 18 charter members; now we number 51, all in good standing. Previous to our organizing the best mechanics were paid 16 cents an hour, while at present our minimum scale is 25 cents an hour, nine hours constituting a day's work. We have all the mills and all the contractors but one on our side. Stonemasons, bricklayers, plasterers, clerks and plumbers have followed our example; their organizations are now in good shape. We had the pleasure of having Bro. Post, Secretary of the G. E. B., with us at our last meeting, his visit resulting in our members becoming inspired with the idea that our U. B. is an organization to be proud of.

FRANKFORT, IND.—Local Union 1465 desires carpenters to keep shy of the Federal Canning Factory now being erected in this city under the management of E. A. Stare. The work is being carried on entirely under non-union conditions, the manager persistently refusing to employ or recognize union labor.

FREMONT, O.—On June 18th our Local Union 1166 was one year old, and we had a great old time in celebration of our first birthday. We are proud to say that in this city of 10,000 inhabitants we were the first one of the building crafts to organize, the bakers, blacksmiths and laundry workers, through our instrumentality, following suit subsequently. Our own local union has now a membership of 65 in good standing, which is certainly a good showing for a union which has been in existence but a year. Who can beat us?

Keep Away From Rochester, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Our strike, entered into on May 1st, is still on and so far there are no indications pointing to a settlement. Carpenters and more especially cabinetmakers and machine hands are urgently called upon to stay away from Rochester until further notice.

A Traitor Expelled

PORTLAND, ORE.—Clinton Crosswhite, a member of Local Union 50 of this city, during our recent strike showed himself one of the meanest scoundrels that ever belonged to a labor union. He kept the master builders informed as to every move the union was about to make and reported to the mills what jobs the union men were working on, whereupon the lumber was shut off. He admitted his villainous action before the trial committee and was promptly expelled by the union.

Don't Purchase Marsh Bro's, Brockton, Mass., Motor Cycles

BROCKTON, MASS.—Local Union 624 has placed the Marsh Motor Cycle Co., of this city, on the unfair list. This firm has positively refused to recognize union labor in any of its branches. During our strike a committee of our union waited on the firm's representatives with a view to have the work on their plant done under union conditions. Several appointments were made for a conference committee to meet and discuss the differences but the representatives failed to appear. At the very time when the last appointment was to be fulfilled they went to neighboring towns to procure non-union carpenters to do their work. We now call on all brothers and organized labor in general not to purchase the Marsh motor cycles nor to patronize any agencies handling their machines.

The S. Howes Co. of Silver Creek, N. Y., On the Unfair List

SILVER CREEK, N. Y.—During the lock-out we succeeded in unionizing the shop of H. W. Allen & Co. and in securing an advance in wages of 25 cents per day for their employees. The action of this company, however, in conceding the reasonable and just demands of the union aroused the animosity of the unfair employers to such an extent that they resorted to all kinds of coercive measures against the Allen Co., resulting in their selling out their business to another firm and the dismissal of all union men. We have positive proof of the unfair manufacturers being bent on the complete destruction of our union. They are even going so far as preventing our members from obtaining employment elsewhere. L. U. 853 has now decided to retaliate by placing the firm of S. Howes & Co., who are taking the leading part in the crusade against organized labor, on the "unfair list," and would most urgently call on all sister local unions and members to discriminate against their material.

Localities Where Work Is Dull

Carpenters are requested to stay away from the following places. Owing to trade movements, building depression and other causes, trade is dull:

Iowa City, Ia.	North Yakima, Wash.
Palo Alto, Cal.	Houghton, Mich.
Washington, Pa.	Mart, Tex.
Detroit, Mich.	Sioux City, Ia.
Asheville, N. C.	Defiance, O.
Norwalk, Conn.	Telluride, Colo.
Salina, Kans.	Alameda Co., Cal.
Morristown N. J.	Pittsburg, Pa.

Purvis Bros., of Butler, Pa., Unfair

BUTLER, PA.—Local Union 500 has placed the mill firm of Purvis Bros. of this city on the unfair list. This firm employs none but non-union men, refuses to recognize our union and works ten hours, one hour longer than any other mill or contracting firm in Butler. This firm not only furnishes material for buildings here, but also ships quantities of joinery to other localities, making the supplying of breweries a special business. Local Union 500 has now decided to take a decisive stand against Purvis Bros., and on and after June 15th we shall refuse to work material coming from any non-union mill, and would ask sister locals to proceed likewise. Trade is dull here and a number of our men are idle, so carpenters will please keep away.

As Yet Not Located.—Spot Him!

The above is a picture of John Meyers, a carpenter and ex-Cincinnati, O., fireman, who, as stated in the February CARPENTER, basely deserted a faithful wife and two children, leaving them in destitution. Meyers has as yet not been located; he is about thirty years old, of slender build, has brown eyes and a small scar on his cheek near the mouth where the hair will not grow. It is surmised that he is at present working in St. Louis, Mo., or Chicago, Ill., under the assumed name of W. Meierott or John Wolfgang. Members or readers being aware of his whereabouts will please communicate with the General Office.

Movements for Better Conditions

LOCAL UNION 159, CHARLESTON, S. C.—Last April we organized a Building Trades Council in this city, with the object in view of more thoroughly unionizing the building trades, and notified the bosses that after June 1st, 1903, we would not work with any man not equipped with the building trades working card. Now the employers are organizing a Builders' Association, endeavoring to break up the unions in this city and threatening a lock-out. Nevertheless, we are gaining new members at every meeting and old members dropped out are coming back. We would warn all carpenters to stay away from Charleston, S. C., until complications are removed.

Successful Trade Movements

ALEXANDRIA, IND.—Perfect peace is prevailing here at this time and everything is satisfactory. Our contractors have agreed to our new schedule and acceded to our demand for an eight-hour work-day and 35 cents an hour minimum.

CINCINNATI, O.—The master stairbuilders of this city and vicinity have signed the schedule submitted by L. U. 664, stairbuilders to remain in force until May 31st, 1905. The terms agreed to are: eight hours to constitute a day's work; wages, 40 cents per hour, minimum; time and a half for overtime, and Sunday work to be paid at the rate of double time.

NEWTON, N. J.—We take pleasure in stating that our fight is won; all our men are working under the new schedule of $2.50 per day of nine hours. Three of the contractors are still fighting us, but we have not much to fear from them; one of these is in such shape that unless he comes to terms very soon he will lose a large contract. We have removed our quarters to the Broda Building and fitted them up ourselves. We shall soon be firmly on our feet again.

DIXON, ILL.—The present situation here is most satisfactory. The minimum scale of $2.50 for outside and $2.25 for mill men has been acceded to us—in fact we have won out on every point we asked for, and have done away with all non-union men in the town. Our members are in better spirits now than ever. There are two firms, small concerns, still unfair, whom we will undoubtedly bring to time as soon as they have some building work to do. We expect but little trouble with them.

DETROIT, MICH.—The last meeting held by L. U. 1572 (composed of car-builders), ratified an agreement entered into between the union and the company employing its members. The agreement provides for a nine-hour workday with ten hours' pay, time and a half for overtime and double pay for Sunday work. It further provides for full recognition of our union and the observance of our working rules by the company. Our union is only about a month in existence and the establishing of the new conditions shows what can be accomplished by organization. The brothers felt so elated over their success that after adjournment they and the visiting brothers celebrated the event by speech-making and other features of amusement. The occasion was a very enjoyable one, enhanced by refreshments and union cigars. All unions here are making solid and substantial progress.

WINFIELD, KANS.—The raise in wages from 23 to 28 cents per hour demanded by our local union this spring was conceded by the employers and took effect on May 18th. We won out without the least bit of trouble. The stone masons and plasterers here are pretty well organized, and the painters are also getting ready to fall into line. Trade is fairly good in this locality.

DENISON, TEX.—After a strike of ten days' duration the contractors conceded all our demands and signed our agreement. We are at present working nine hours per day at a minimum rate of $2.50. The public sentiment ran strongly in our favor all through the controversy and was undoubtedly an important factor in bringing about the favorable result. At this moment work is dull, but the outlook for the summer season is good. All branches of industry are well organized in this town.

NEWPORT, R. I.—On May 1st our employers granted our demands with the proviso that we sign an agreement submitted by them and to be decided on by us within a week. The D. C. took the matter under consideration and made some changes in the terms of the agreement, which were, however, rejected by the employers. Since this occurrence we have not heard anything more about agreements, but we are receiving the $3.00 per day asked for and are paid weekly. Very few men are idle here at the present time.

YONKERS, N. Y.—A settlement of our strike here has been reached on the 15th of June, but its terms are not as satisfactory as we wished and expected. The Amalgamated Society men came here and took our places, and not having sufficient money to keep them out we saw ourselves compelled to relinquish our demand for 48 cents per hour and compromised on the basis of 41 cents per hour, to be paid until August 1st, 1903, when the minimum scale of 44 cents per hour will take place and, as per agreement, remain so until April 1st, 1904.

STOUGHTON, MASS.—As a result of arduous toil and strenuous efforts of the members of L. U. 1063 the eight-hour workday was inaugurated in the Stoughton district as early as April 16, 1902. Now we have obtained the signatures of our employers to an agreement beginning June 1, 1903, to be in operation until June 1, 1906, providing that the minimum rate of wages shall be $2.75 per day for the first year and $3.00 per day for the following two years. Heretofore the wages were $2.25 and $2.50 per day. Our accomplishments certainly speak well for a union which has been in the field but a year. Work is rather dull here this season.

JEFFERSONVILLE, IND.—Our strike is off! We have gained the nine-hour workday and payment by the hour, but had to make a few concessions in other respects. The new agreement, which also gives us the privilege of appointing a steward to look after our interests and negotiate with the bosses in cases of emergency, will be in operation until May 1, 1904. While we failed to get full recognition of our union, the bosses agreed not to hamper us in our efforts to induce non-union men to join. We are determined to make use of this privilege to its fullest extent, and hope to be successful in a short time.

LACROSSE, WIS.—Everything is all right here at this time. The bosses have signed our agreement calling for nine hours' work and a minimum scale of 22½ cents per hour. All our men are at work.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—The terms of settlement of our difficulty are the following: The contractors agree to employ union men without discrimination at a minimum scale of 35 cents per hour, eight hours to constitute a day's work, overtime to be paid at the rate of time and a half.

ANNISTON, ALA.—We have practically won the fight at last, and almost everything is satisfactory. All our men are now working nine hours. We have two or three contractors, however, who are still persistently refusing to grant the nine-hour day, one of them being a mill owner. We are determined to keep up a regular warfare against these concerns until they accede to our demands.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Our movement for eight hours and increase of pay has been successful, and all the brothers are working. Now that our trouble is ended, we are, as a matter of course, anxious to firmly secure the advantages gained, which may prove a rather difficult task should carpenters continue to come here as they have been doing. We would request all traveling carpenters to remain away from Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island and Moline, Ill., until further notice.

SILVERTON, COL.—No assistance from headquarters will be required here, and there is no danger of a general strike breaking out. The contractors have adopted our new schedule, nine hours constituting a day's work. Our wages are 45 cents an hour, time and a half being the rate for all overtime. There are two or three mining and milling companies which insist on working ten hours, paying $4.00 per day. We have declared these mills unfair and called our members employed by them off. This is not to be considered as a strike; we simply ordered our men out in maintenance of our trade rules calling for $4.05 per day of nine hours.

TRURO, N. S.—At this time all our members are at work at nine hours per day and an increase in wages of five cents per hour. Our success is certainly due to the organizing of our local union in November, 1902, and the hard fight we have been able to put up through concerted action, and to a great extent to the able assistance rendered us by Bro. Brooks of the Halifax Local. We finally won over all contractors but two, one of them a churchman who thought it consistent with his duty as a Christian to hold off and not sign our agreement. Our members are proud of the successful issue of our demand; their watchword is to stand shoulder to shoulder and pull together for a still fairer livelihood.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The carpenters are able to record their first victory won in this city, and they have won it after passing through the severe strain of a five weeks' strike. This is a remarkable event, when we take into consideration the former conditions in this city, where for years the carpenters have been dormant, and the bosses had become arrogant in their treatment of the men. Our men put up a stiff and determined fight; they all acknowledge, however, that had it not been for the support rendered them by the General Office, they would never have emerged victoriously out of this struggle, for a struggle it was, indeed. We have won all that we struck for, 37½ cents per hour, eight hours to constitute a day's work.

MONTREAL, CAN.—The members of Millmen's Local Union 1127 returned to work on June 29th after a strike of several weeks' duration. The men struck for 22½ cents per hour minimum, being an increase of five cents per hour over previous rates. The members are elated over this victory; they are very enthusiastic and determined to force the few employers who are still opposing the new scale also to fall in line.

The Lockout in Omaha, Neb.

After two years of comparative quiet and smooth sailing organized labor in Omaha is up against great odds. A battle is being waged by the Business Men's Association against unionism, which they are doing their utmost to exterminate in this city. In April last the material men decided not to sell or deliver any material on any job where union men are employed. This action was followed by a proclamation of the entire Business Men's Association locking out all building and other trades until such time as the men renounce all adherence to labor organizations. As a result all building operations here have practically been at a standstill since May 1st. Being well aware of this fact, the business men would counsel us to be good boys and submit to the powers that be, if only for the sake of harmony and the benefit of the employers; but we consider that we have greater interests at stake than the welfare of those whose only interest in us is the profit they make off our labor. We would ask all brother chips to stay away from Omaha until peace is declared, of which we will be glad to give due notice through the columns of THE CARPENTER.

Dastardly Work of Westchester, N. Y., Contractors' Association

The Westchester Contractors' and Builders' Association of Tarrytown and vicinity are resorting to a practice which merits universal contempt and condemnation. This association has adopted a method of blacklisting and persecuting the men devoted to labor's cause. They are deliberately assailing their inalienable right as citizens of this liberty-loving country to earn a livelihood and to belong to the union of their craft. The contractors themselves, while denying this right to their men, are well organized—organized for unlawful purposes, even, and have a business agent in the field looking after their interests. Brothers from the Irvington local union, involved in the strike in that town, who recently secured employment in the towns of Peekskill, White Plains, Dobbs Ferry and Hastings, were unscrupulously discriminated against by members of the association. Two of the brothers of that local union had obtained a job with the firm of Hopkins, Regan & Hopkins, and, after working a few days, the association's business agent came around and had one of them discharged on the ground that prior to the strike, entered into on April 1st, he worked for an association boss. The other brother, who had not been previously employed by a member of the association, was not molested for the time being. A number of the brothers who, prior to the strike, had been working in Dobbs Ferry, and who had been idle since its commencement, secured employment in that town after the strike was settled, when on June 11th the business agent of the Contractors' Association appeared before their employers demanding the discharge of these men. This the bosses refused to do. On Friday following, however, the association held a meeting in Tarrytown, which passed a resolution ordering the members to discharge any union man hailing from a strike district, under penalty of a fine of $150. On the subsequent Saturday all union men employed in the town were laid off, and, from all accounts, amid the expressions of deepest sorrow from the respective employers and the general rejoicing of the instigators of this twentieth century outrage.

Instead of being discouraged by the effects of the dastardly work of the Westchester C. and B. Association, Local Union 149, Irvington, is more determined than ever to turn out the winner in this fight. Hand in hand with Tarrytown local union we will firmly stand by our demands until the contractors surrender and cease their unlawful practices. We shall give them a taste of their own medicine.

STRIKE COMMITTEE,

Irvington, N. Y.

Local Union 149.

From Rocky Mount, S. C.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Thinking that something should be said in our journal about this city and that the members of our U. B. might take interest in our work, our last meeting instructed me to send you this communication.

Local Union 1215, of Rocky Mount, was organized last July, with a membership of 45. Since that time we have gained 20 new members, making our total membership at the present time 65 in good standing, with a fair prospect for a further increase in the near future. We have organized two other local unions and are now reaching out for other localities with the same object in view.

We do not feel as having accomplished a great deal until we have succeeded in organizing every eligible carpenter within reach in this section of the country, and of getting them to help us turn the wheel of advancement of our craft, and at the same time to share in the benefits offered by our brotherhood. There is one drawback here, however, which is affecting our workings and hampering our progress to a certain extent. This is the competition from negro labor, a problem the solution of which would be a God-send to all southern states and enhance the cause of unionism very much.

We are not desirous of getting involved in any labor troubles; we would rather have our employers to feel that, while we manfully assert our own rights, we are asking nothing more from them than what is just, and work in their interest as well as ours. The object of our organization, as we understand it, is to better the condition of our craft and help one another on fraternal lines. We would advise all non-union carpenters to stay away from this locality and vicinity.

J. F. KODMAN, Pres.

Rocky Mount, S. C. Local Union 1215.

The New York Strike and Lockout.

BY FRANK DUFFY.

The situation in New York City is still a peculiar one. Powerful organizations of employers have combined under one head and are now known as the Building Trades Employers' Association of New York. Their object in coming together is for the sole purpose of fighting, conquering and disrupting, if possible, organized labor of that city. They have taken upon themselves a task impossible to accomplish. While they boast of their strength, means, influence and standing in the community, yet they will find with all this array of power that they can not subdue or intimidate the organized workers. This association is composed as follows:

Mason Builders' Association, Marble Industry Employers' Association, Wire Work Manufacturers, Architectural Iron Workers, Ornamental Bronze and Iron Masters, Association of Interior Decorators and Cabinetmakers, Parquet Floor Association, Hoisting Association, Electrical Contractors' Association, House Movers' and Shorers' Association, Master League Cement Workers, Tile, Grate and Mantel Association, Composition Roofers' and Water Proofers' Association, Iron League, The Roof and Sheet Metal Workers of Greater New York and adjacent cities, Manufacturing Woodworkers' Association, Metal Cover Doors and Window Association, Mason Contractors' Association, Steam and Hot Water Fitters' Association, Plasterers' Association, Master Carpenters' Association, Mosaic Employers' Association, Lighting Fixtures Association, House Painters and Decorators.

According to their code of rules it is none of the business of the employees where they get their material from. They will buy it in the cheapest market, whether it is union or non-union. The employees must not strike under any conditions, nor for any cause. They will not treat with any central body, but with each union separately, and above all the shop and job stewards must go, and the poor walking delegate must be relegated to the rear, or done away with forever. While they are telling us all these things and laying down the law in black and white, they are violating the principles that they want us to adopt. They say sympathetic strikes must be abolished altogether, yet they are at the present time engaged in a sympathetic lockout in the building industry of the entire city in order to force the unions to adopt the following plan of arbitration, as they call it, for securing industrial peace in the city of New York.

PLAN OF ARBITRATION.

In general, the employers and employees of each trade are organized. This applies particularly to the mechanics of the trade and those helpers' organizations from which the mechanics of that trade are largely derived.

When the employers have an agreement with their employees they shall have a Trade Arbitration Board where all difficulties of that trade can be discussed and adjusted; but in addition there shall be a higher court or General Arbitration Board for the settlement of all disputes between employer and employees on any question of mutual interest.

FORMATION OF A GENERAL ARBITRATION BOARD.

Each association represented in the Building Trades Employers' Association in the city of New York shall elect two arbitrators who shall serve for not less than six months.

Each union, the employers of which are represented in the Building Trades Employers' Association, shall elect two arbitrators who shall serve for not less than six months, and who shall be in the employment of the Building Trades Employers' Association at the time of their election.

The arbitrators from the union shall not be business agents or members of any central board of employees. From this body of General Arbitrators not less than four (two from the Employers' Association and two from the employees' union) shall constitute a Court of Appeals. They shall meet within 48 hours when notified so to do by the General Secretary.

The arbitrators from the union are guaranteed re-employment by their former corporation when the special case on which they have served, has been disposed of.

Unions as a whole, or as a single union, shall not order any strike against a member of the Building Trades Employers' Association, collectively or individually, nor shall any number of union men leave the works of a member of the Building Trades Employers' Association, nor shall any member of the Building Trades Employers' Association lock out his employees, before the matter in dispute has been brought before the General Arbitration Board for settlement.

In those trades which have Trade Arbitration Boards any difficulty between employer and employees shall be adjusted in the Arbitration Board of that trade, if possible. In case, however, of continued disagreement the matter in dispute must be referred to the General Arbitration Board before a strike or lockout is resorted to.

Complaints shall be first addressed to the General Secretary of the Arbitration Board, who shall be a paid employee, and by him be referred to the Executive Committee of the General Arbitration Board, composed of an equal number of employers and employees, and it shall be their duty at once to organize a special Arbitration Board to decide the point at issue.

It shall be the privilege of any union, or member of the Employers' Association, to select from the General Arbitrators the individuals they desire to act for them, but no General Arbitrator can act when the dispute is occurring in the trade which he represents.

The General Arbitrators must be given power by the interest they are acting for.

Arbitration papers are to be drawn up, stating specifically the matter in dispute, and that both sides agree to abide by the vote of the majority of the Board, or the decision of an umpire. The umpire must be selected before the case is opened.

These papers must be properly signed and sealed by the members of the Board, each side receiving its copy. Then, after a careful hearing of the case, stenographically reported, the verdict obtained by the majority vote, or decision of the umpire, shall be final and binding. After a few trials precedence will be established which can be used to strengthen the opposition of either side in subsequent trials, and can be quoted, as in courts of law.

A few weeks ago Business Agents McCracken and Thompson, by instructions of the District Council, presented their credentials to the United Board of Building Trades, but were refused admission until such time as the agreement entered into on May 13th (copy of which is printed in the June issue of THE CARPENTER) between the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, of New York City, and the Association of Interior Decorators and Cabinetmakers and the individual boss carpenters be revoked and canceled. The refusal to admit our representatives to the Board caused much dissatisfaction among the trades represented therein, and as feeling already ran high relative to the teamsters' strike, sixteen trades bolted, thus splitting the most powerful central body of labor that ever existed in the city of New York. The bosses were quick to take advantage of this split and declared a sympathetic lockout until each individual organization accepted their plan of arbitration. This action of the employers throws our men out of work again, but from the rank and file of our membership not one word of complaint is coming. They are determined to fight this issue to a finish, even if they have to starve themselves and their children in doing so. Our men have already lost nearly one million dollars in wages, and the local unions represented in the District Council have paid out strike certificates amounting to $70,000 within the last few weeks. This is not taking into consideration at all the support they already received from the G. E. B.

Our members deserve the greatest credit for the peaceable manner in which they conducted themselves under such trying and aggravating circumstances. They are not beaten yet, and they do not intend to allow themselves to be beaten. As this issue goes to press I am informed that they have refused to accept the plan of arbitration as submitted by the Building Trades Employers' Association.

The New England Convention

The New England Convention of the United Brotherhood held in Manchester, N. H., June 15, 16 and 17, was voted a success in every way by the delegates. A feeling of good fellowship was manifest (after the first ripple of organizing) throughout the whole of the convention, and the parting of the delegates was with the hope that we would meet again next year in Burlington, Vt.

While the amount of work done might not compare with that of the National Convention of the U. B., nevertheless the twenty-seven resolutions introduced and acted upon were, with two or three exceptions, to the point and to the advancement of the interests of the U. B. Notable among these were those urging the adoption of the union label of the U. B. on doors, sash and trim, the adoption of a minimum wage instead of a sliding scale, and others urging a line of action or defense against the encroachment of the Amalgamated Society and the Amalgamated Woodworkers. I think it was made perfectly clear to the brothers from the smaller cities and towns that the conditions existing in New York and other large cities are contagious, and that the safety of the U. B. depends upon immediate action and a thorough and complete organizing of the forces. It is often said that these conventions are a waste of time, money and energy; but from my point of view the money and time are well spent, and perhaps the future of many locals is shaped by the information gained by the delegates through an exchange of views with the other delegates.

In listening to the reports of the delegates of the trade, wages and the condition of their respective locals, I was pleased to note that in nearly every case there has been a marked improvement in the past year, and that the percentage of non-union men was very small. As a delegate from the shop and mill hands, my fight is for the adoption of our label and an eight-hour workday in the mills. Science teaches us that the reduction of the hours of labor is the first step towards the emancipation of the working class, and with the amount of material now produced in the mills by the use of improved machinery there is less excuse for us in the mills to work long hours than for the men on the outside, where everything must still be done by hand. That the use of the label would be of benefit to us needs no great degree of intelligence to understand. Machines are idle in Boston, while freight cars groan under their load of "scab stock" from the mills of the south and west. What is to be done? It seems to me that the duty of the U. B. is perfectly plain. Get together and unionize the mills throughout the country, stick on the label and then stick to the label, as the cigarmakers do. If union conditions prevail, the work will be more confined to that locality, and one town will not be sacrificed at the expense of another. The contractor will be forced to buy at home and so increase the circulating medium to the benefit of all concerned.

I. E. WORCESTER,
Boston, Mass. Local Union 1410.

In Defence of the Eight-Hour Day

The sash, door and planing mill owners in the Bronx, N. Y., who in former years were notorious scab concerns, but who, a few years ago, were compelled by our brothers in the Bronx and Manhattan to inaugurate union conditions in their plants, are again falling into their old ways and errors, as the following resolutions, adopted at a meeting of mill hands held under the auspices of the Bronx District Council on June 16th, will show:

NEW YORK, June 6, 1903.

WHEREAS, The mill owners of this district have organized and combined for the purpose of disrupting the labor organization of our craft, inasmuch as they have locked out all of their employees and informed them as individuals that if they desire to return to work they can do so, providing they work nine hours per day, or fifty hours per week; and

WHEREAS, By this action it is self-evident that in the future, if this state of affairs were tolerated, that it would become necessary for any employee who might have a grievance to present it as an individual, and not through his labor organization; and

WHEREAS, The mill owners demand the right to organize for the express purpose of disrupting the organization which has through years of arduous toil, and at a great expense, brought the conditions of our craft to its present standard; and

WHEREAS, If they have the right to organize, we believe that we, as American citizens, have the same right to support and maintain the organization of our calling for our mutual benefit and protection; and

WHEREAS, The organization which the mill owners desire to disrupt has, at a great expense and sacrifice to its members, protected this element against unfair competition, and thereby made it possible for them to acquire the ammunition with which they are now fighting us; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That we, the men employed in the mills, in meeting assembled, do hereby absolutely refuse to be dealt with as individuals, and that we do positively refuse to return to work under the nine-hour system; and be it further

RESOLVED, That in the future any proposition made by the employers, in order to be considered, must be addressed to the Bronx Borough District Council of the U. B. of C. and J. of A., in whose integrity we have the utmost confidence; and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to our General Office, to the press of this city, and that one be sent to each mill owner in this district.

(Signed) MILL EMPLOYEES OF THE BRONX DISTRICT.

The meeting was an unprecedented success, very well attended and enthusiastic. The resolutions were adopted without a single dissenting voice, and the meeting decided unanimously under no circumstances to relinquish the eight-hour workday, but to stay out until the mill owners surrender, or indefinitely, if emergency should require.

Wanted—The Relatives of Emil Switzer

Emil Switzer, a member of L. U. 1515, Thebes, Ill., became the victim of a railroad accident in St. Louis, Mo., on the 26th of June. Neither the St. Louis D. C. nor the Thebes local union having been able to locate and communicate with his relatives, he was buried in Potter's Field on the 30th of June. When Bro. Switzer's body was brought to the morgue he had in his possession deeds for some property in the West. His relatives, or members or readers who can give any information as to the formers' whereabouts, will kindly communicate with the General Office.

In Issuing Clearance Cards Adhere to Section 113 a of General Constitution

Frequent complaints are reaching the General Office of Financial Secretaries collecting dues on clearance cards in excess of the dues for the current and ensuing month as provided by Section 113 a of the General Constitution. It appears that in many instances the collecting of the amount thus overpaid from the local union having granted the clearance card causes a great deal of annoyance and unnecessary correspondence to the local union receiving the same.

Financial Secretaries should understand that local unions are perfectly justified in refusing to accept any clearance card on which dues have been overpaid, and the holder of the card may be compelled to remain in idleness until the matter has been adjusted between the Financial Secretaries on both sides.

The collecting of dues on clearance cards in excess of the current and ensuing month is an illegal proceeding, and we urgently call on all Financial Secretaries, when issuing clearance cards, to strictly adhere to Section 113 a of the General Constitution.

Our Transfer Union Label

The General Office is now in a position to supply all demands for our "Transfer Union Label" for special use on bar and office fixtures and kindred work. It is issued in a large and a small size on the following terms:

Large size, 4 x 7/8", per thousand, $10.00.
Small " 2 7/8 x 3/4", " 7.00.

The label for use on sash, doors and other trim work or interior decorations is issued by the various District Councils, or by Local Unions, where no District Council exists, after the label has been registered in their respective States. The cut for this label will be furnished gratuitously by the General Office under conditions as provided by Sec. 183 (i) of the General Constitution.

The Brotherhood Pin

This pin should be worn by every member of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, as a proof of affiliation with this organization. The pin is gold-plated and enameled in two colors, is of exquisite design, and will be greatly appreciated by the owner. The price in any quantity is 25 cents each. Orders should be sent in by local unions, not by individual members, and will be filled promptly when remittance is received at the General Office.

Business Agents' Badges

In compliance with numerous requests the General Office will hereafter supply badges for business agents on application of any District Council or Local Union at the price of $3.50 a piece. The badge is of a neat design, with U. B. emblem, has enameled lettering, and is very substantial. District Councils or Local Unions requiring badges should send their orders to the General Office.

Special Announcement

The publication of the list of Financial Secretaries in addition to that of Recording Secretaries in its present voluminous size occupies more than seven pages of THE CARPENTER.

As a consequence the space devoted to reading matter has become very limited and entirely inadequate.

Under these circumstances, and in order to do justice to our numerous correspondents and contributors, as well as to our members and readers, we have now decided on a new departure in the publication of the journal.

The R. S. and F. S. list WILL BE OMITTED FROM THE SEPTEMBER AND OCTOBER ISSUES. It will again be published in the November issue and thereafter ONCE EVERY THREE MONTHS.

In giving due notice of this new departure, we would especially call on all Secretaries of District Councils and Local Unions TO PRESERVE THE COMING AUGUST CARPENTER, as well as all following issues containing the R. S. and F. S. list, and to keep these issues on file for future reference.

From the causes stated above numerous correspondences, among them a number of articles commenting on the appointment of a colored organizer, have repeatedly but unavoidably been held over. They will appear as soon as the space of the journal will permit their publication.

General Secretary.

Proposes Erection of Building for U. B. Headquarters

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

In every issue of THE CARPENTER there appears an expense item of $75 to $100 for General Office rent which, of course, is unavoidable at present. Now, in my estimation, any strong and powerful organization, such as our U. B., should own the building holding its headquarters. Having as yet not seen anything published in THE CARPENTER on this subject, I venture to call on each and every member all over the country to give this matter the most earnest consideration. I firmly believe that our U. B., by erecting and possessing an office building of its own for the accommodation of our headquarters, would soon make this institution a self-sustaining one. Instead of paying rent, as we do to-day, we could let part of the building to other parties and have an income of rent. As regards the raising of the necessary funds, I would suggest the following plan: Let us say we have 150,000 members, let each one of them pay a per capita of $1.00 into a sinking fund. At that rate we would raise an amount of $150,000 for building purposes, and I think the brothers could stand this sacrifice for a good cause and not feel it. The proceeds of the dollar extra tax would provide the General Office with the necessary means for the erection of a handsome office, and I am of the opinion that the boys would dance to that tune quite lively.

War Against Unfair Trim

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Having noted your request in a previous issue of THE CARPENTER, urging secretaries to send in reports on conditions of trade and organization in their respective localities, I will state that L. U. 262 (millmen) is prospering finely. Our membership has increased to 220 in good standing, and more applications are coming in every week.

We recently adopted a new schedule, to go into effect on July 1st of this year. So far as general mill work was concerned, it was an easy matter to get the employers to agree to the payment of the rate of wages stipulated in the new schedule for that class of work; but when it came to the sash and door departments we were up against the real thing. Here we found that the firm which employs about fifty per cent. of our members was the only one granting our demands. This firm employs union men exclusively and works eight hours, paying the same wages as the unfair firms do, who are running their plants ten and even eleven hours per day, and with whom it is constantly placed in competition. At the time when this firm adopted the eight-hour system we agreed to do all in our power to help them dispose of their material, and being well organized, we succeeded in doing so in many instances. San Francisco, Alameda and Santa Clara Counties also rendered us valuable assistance in this respect; the U. B. members in these counties are refusing to handle any material not provided with our label.

There are two or three of the unfair firms of this State who send their material East, not being able to dispose of it here to any great extent. These firms we want to bring to time, and in this endeavor we appeal to our brothers all over the country to discriminate against all material not bearing the U. B. label.

We are at this moment issuing a circular letter to be sent to all our local unions as far East as Denver, Colo., asking them to take a firm stand against non-union material and to keep a close watch on sash and doors shipped from California. We are confident that if the brothers do their duty towards us and themselves, it will have the effect of bringing the scab mills to time.

Our General Treasurer

The picture below represents our General Treasurer, Thomas Neale. Brother Neale was born in England in 1869. Following the occupation of his father, he learned the carpenter trade. In 1888 he came to this country, landing in Toronto, Can. In 1890 he settled in Pittsburg, Pa., where he became a member of L. U. 142, of that city. He came to Chicago in 1891, and deposited his Pittsburg card of membership with L. U. No. 1, which afterwards elected him Recording Secretary for three terms. In July, 1898, he was chosen Secretary-Treasurer by the Chicago District Council, and re-elected to the same position each term prior to the Atlanta convention.

THOMAS NEALE,
General Treasurer of the U. B. of C. and J.

Bro. Neale participated in the great building-trades lockout of 1899, which so severely tested the stability of an officer in his position. His faithful services as Secretary-Treasurer of the Chicago D. C., his highly developed sense of duty and sterling honesty, won him the highest appreciation, not only of the Chicago membership, but that of many sister local unions with whom, in the performance of his official duties, he held intercourse. At the Atlanta convention he once became a popular figure and that convention elected him to the position of General Treasurer.

"Am I My Brother's Keeper?"

BY HAL SCRIVER.

WE sometimes hear well-paid and well-organized mechanics speak with lofty contempt of their less fortunate fellow-workingmen, the "common" or "unskilled" laborer, and mock at the idea that these men have an equal right to consideration in the labor movement. Such a feeling is utterly out of harmony with the spirit of the labor movement, and a policy based upon it—a policy which regards the interests of the skilled workmen as superior to or separate from those of the unskilled—is sure, sooner or later, to bring its own retribution.

Carlyle, somewhere, tells a story of the days when the English prisons, through the cruel neglect of the magistrates, were hotbeds of disease, so much so that a special form of malignant and highly infectious fever developed, known as "jail fever." So long as it was only the poor devils of prisoners that suffered, judges and officers of the law paid little attention. But one day it happened that a miserable, ragged old woman was hauled from such an infected prison and brought to the bar for trial. Hardly were the proceedings opened before the judge, the sheriff, the attorneys and the jurymen were taken with the terrible symptoms of jail fever. Court was adjourned and within a few hours all were dead. Thus, says Carlyle, did this wretched old vagrant prove her sisterhood with MY LORD justice. The moral and its application should be clear. If skilled workmen, who get relatively high wages and have powerful organizations, forget the responsibility which their good fortune imposes upon them to help raise and strengthen the ill-paid and poorly organized; if, while recognizing the bond of fraternity within their several crafts and with other skilled mechanics, they refuse to treat the less skilled men as brothers and equals, then assuredly, in the long run, those laborers will prove their brotherhood to the bitter cost of them that denied it.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" Will you, or not? Yes, you are your brother's keeper as he is yours, and on him among many brothers that is strongest to do and endure rests the greatest burden of responsibility, and he that is weakest has the greatest claims upon all. This is not mere fine sentiment and idealistic talk. It is hard fact, and the sooner it is recognized the better for all.

The brotherhood of labor is a brotherhood in sufferings and wrongs. The workers are the disinherited of the earth. They must toil in order to live. They can toil only by a master's consent, granted only for his profit. Because they are so many and so poor they are driven to compete for permission to work, and by their competition they are kept in poverty. It is this fact of competition—this fact that they are able to take each other's places, and by the necessities of their position they are often forced to do so—it is this fact, in one sense, that proves the brotherhood of the workers, just as their common liability to infection proved the human sisterhood of the ignorant old woman in rags with the learned judge in gown and wig.

"But," the highly-skilled mechanic may say, "these common laborers will never be able to take my place; I don't need their help nor need I fear their enmity." Don't be too sure of that, friend. Wonderful things happen in this world, granted only a little time. More than once, when the workmen of some trade have thought themselves secure against any attack, an inventor has come along with a little device that knocked them sky-high—revolutionizing the whole trade, so that men could learn it in a few weeks instead of having to spend years in apprenticeship. Then the men of that trade felt the need of friendly and fraternal feeling on the part of other workmen to protect and help them in rebuilding their organization and winning back the ground lost. And, even though nothing of that kind happens, don't forget that the boss can often afford to wait a good deal longer than you can; that there are bright young fellows among those laborers who only need the opportunity for a little training and practice in order to learn your trade well enough to do at a pinch, and that if you fail to help them now when they are in need they are going to feel that they have a perfect right to take advantage of your time of trouble to raise themselves to your level and help your boss against you in doing it.

Be sure that your bosses—not only out of their own mouths, but especially through their subsidized professors and editors and preachers and other spokesmen—are going to use every opportunity to create dissension and division within the ranks of the working class. If you, being relatively fortunate now, look with scorn on your poorer brother, you need not be surprised if he looks with envy on you. It is a bad thing to envy; it is a worse thing to be envied. The boss knows that, if you don't. He will teach it to you, if you don't learn otherwise.

But if those common laborers are capable of injuring you, so are they capable of helping you. They would rather help you than hurt you, if you give them half a chance. If you, who get your $3.50 a day, show yourself willing to go on a strike, if necessary, to help those poor fellows add a quarter to their $1.50; if you show a fearless front to the boss on their behalf, you may be sure that they are going to appreciate and remember it.

A chain, it is proverbially said, is no stronger than its weakest link. The unskilled workers now constitute that weakest link in the chain of the labor movement. It is our duty and interest to strengthen it.

SOME men are so mean that, if they should accidentally slip into the livery of heaven, they would be miserable because they could find no mud to throw at the angels.

Panic or Prosperity?

MARGARET SCOTT HALL

WHAT is before us in this line no prophet or politician can accurately foretell. Capital says prosperity, but what can labor expect when capital expects prosperity?

When a man claims a million dollars more than he needs and foretells prosperous times, what must the man expect whose daily attention is given to making one dollar fill the lack of ten dollars that he needs? Will the lines of economy not be closer drawn for labor if capital increases its own prosperity? Verily, experience is an unerring teacher. "Blessed is he that expects little for he will not be disappointed." Those who thrive in luxury on the privations and toil of others can not make unprejudiced assertions of favorable conditions for those who labor, because self-interest demands all that may be extorted from that source.

Those who have prostituted their God-given intellect by the selfish appropriation of other men's earnings would scarcely be expected to exert any influence to counteract the conditions favorable to themselves.

The industrial problem grows more and more intricate; however, labor must study and solve its own problems.

There is one fact that time emphasizes more forcibly year by year: Labor has a vast and increasing majority. Whether such force of numbers will prove advantageous to capital or labor is yet to develop. Organization will sooner or later determine whether capital—the master labor creates for itself—shall rule justly and humanely or continue in tyranny to "grind the faces of the poor."

In many parts of the country organized labor has passed the critical formative period, and is fast getting into shape for intelligent administration. It is no longer an experiment only, but is an assured fact, assuming startling proportions and no longer to be ignored by the money powers.

"The cause of labor, if rightly understood, is the cause of humanity." Its progress is toward higher and nobler achievements than monopoly has given it credence for.

Where once capital scorned the importance of such organization it now recognizes strength. Capital, capable of so much good, is in equal measure capable of, and responsible for, much evil. Through the long investigation of the coal operators' mining trouble unbought, unperjured men have been brave enough to condemn capital's course as "living on the blood of human beings." (Words of Bishop Spaulding in a recent speech at Peoria, Ill.)

Such utterances from men who have studied the situation, who have compared the lives of capitalist and laborer in all the powerful contrast they present, who have noted the circumstances of the oppressor and the oppressed—such fearless and honest utterances must cause capital some uneasiness. When men of sufficient means—independent of the rich man's smile or frown; standing firm under capital's disapprobation—thoroughly investigate differences and bravely expose to the public the true state of capital's attitude toward labor the world is shocked at the greed of one and long suffering of the other.

The toiling masses realize that they can not depend on the justice or generosity of those whom they serve, but must save themselves from monopoly by active and thorough organization.

Capital needs no accuser, it convicts itself as being without mercy for labor, using those who toil merely as tools—a necessary means to a desired end.

But who can fathom the despair of hopeless poverty? The every-day struggle of a poverty-cursed existence must be experienced to be fully appreciated in all its barren hideousness. Though riches have the temptation of disregarding responsibilities, poverty is a prey to many demons that misfortune alone is heir to. If it is to be likened to "a camel going through the eye of a needle" for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven, it would seem impossible to human reason that any poor man should be saved.

Pittiless fate—hopelessly cursed in this life for lacking what one wants, and condemned eternally for wanting what one lacks! It is said that this country is experiencing an era of unprecedented prosperity. Then why so much unrest in the working world?

If the actual living expenses (a bare living at that) consumes a man's daily wages, when accident, sickness or death comes, what would be the position of that man's family. Paupers and outcasts of society, dependent on the charity of the generous fortunate. Better adequate remuneration for toil than much-boasted philanthropy. Labor, through organization, seeks, while improving its own condition, to uplift the weak and aid them to become self-supporting.

Through prosperity or the panic of financial depression the end and aim of labor organization is for the real good of humanity. Union principles are soundly upright, not seeking excessive prosperity at the expense of hope and happiness filched from the lives of weaker fellow-mortals. Organized labor will bear investigation and submit to arbitration.

Capital is a good thing, and without doubt many good and high-principled men have accumulated fortunes by using judiciously the advantages afforded by the pre-established tricks of trade.

Capital is at the foundation of noble charities; it is the vital principle of progress, and it is the accumulated result of centuries of concentrated effort. Instead of being a tyrannical master abusing the slave capital ought to be the co-partner of labor, for each is dependent on the other. But in this, as in any individual partnership, one party by accident or cunning gets the advantage of the other, receiving all the benefits of the business, while the other does all the work.

Usually there comes a crisis in all such partnerships, and a day of reckoning, with more or less of bitterness and strife. What else can the present state of industrial disquietude mean than that the day of settlement is approaching?

Under the old regime capital became over-zealous in selfish acquirement, and labor was driven by cruel force of circumstances to protest. Organization was the result—imperfect at first, but developing strength and courage with the years.

If capital is satisfied to fasten like a vampire on the laboring element, and fatten unbribed on the very life-blood of the helpless victim, organized labor, dissatisfied under these conditions, would prefer a new order of dealings.

Panic or prosperity—which shall it be? The responsibility rests mainly with capital whether panic, with its inevitable destitution, shall overwhelm, or prosperity diffuse its blessings proportionately over the assorted classes of America. Should panic come, labor is inured to suffering—too well accustomed to privation to shrink from impending adversity. If prosperity is assured, rightfully applied, it will mean education and a de-

La Situation Économique des Ouvriers Travaillant le Bois

IV.

Nous avons vu dans notre correspondance précédente, quels étaient les conditions donnés aux différents groupes de notre métier; nous allons considérer la situation spéciale faite aux ouvriers travaillant le bois, au moyen de grande machine.

Nul part dans l'Univers, l'outillage à travailler le bois est aussi compliqué, aussi savamment combiné et perfectionné qu'aux États Unis d'Amérique.

Lorsque la vieille Europe se sert encore d'un outillage à main qui ne diffère pas sensiblement de celui que nos grands pères usaient, l'Amérique du Nord possède des machines pour chaque genre de manœuvre du bois. A commencer par les grandes scies, les énormes raboteuses, nous passons par les perceuses, les machines à moulures, à tenons, à chevilles, etc.; on peut dire qu'en dehors de l'assemblage du meuble il n'est de travail fait au bois, ou avec du bois qui ne puisse être fait par la machine. Jusqu'à la machine à sculpter qui pour une grande part remplace le travail manuel, et laquelle a été considérée comme le privilège d'une classe d'artistes, s'est mise au rang et a porté de l'ouvrier machiniste du bois.

Les grandes variétés de machines ont développé l'industrie du bois à un point considérable. D'un faible commencement la machine a pris la place prépondérante dans la fabrication d'aujourd'hui, et c'est une bien grande armée d'hommes, qui gagnent leur vie à servir ces compagnons en fer et en acier.

C'est un travail bien dur que celui des ouvriers machinistes du bois. Bien des dangers l'entourent, et l'on peu dire qu'aucun d'eux n'est certain, en partant le matin, tous ses membres, de rentrer le soir, bien vivant et ayant tous ses doigts au complet. Nous nous rappelons, il y a treize ans, avoir fait un voyage pour compte de l'organisation des ouvriers ébénistes; c'était dans la ville de Allentown, Pennsylvanie. Une jeune chambre syndicale avait été formée récemment. Le président était un ouvrier tapissier; il était le seul qui ne fut pas estropié. Tous les autres officiers de la chambre syndicale l'étaient d'une façon quelconque. A l'un manquait trois doigts de la main droite, l'autre avait une énorme cicatrice au front, provenant d'une entaille faite à la tête par une scie à ruban. Un troisième avait eu le pouce de la main gauche tranché par une scie circulaire. Quelques jours de présence dans cette ville me démontraient, que 90 pour cent, de tous les jeunes gens, entre 16-24 ans, étaient estropiés d'une manière quelconque. Cela me donnait le frisson, mais plut tard, ayant eu l'occasion de voir d'autres villes, avec une industrie du bois plus importante, tel que Grand Rapids, Cincinnati, Shelbyville, etc., j'ai pu constater que ce n'était pas là l'exception, mais bien la règle. L'on sait que la plupart des grands fabricants paient les compagnies d'assurances contre les accidents de fortes sommes annuellement, ce qui prouve mieux que tout autre chose les dangers qu'environnent les travailleurs machinistes du bois.

En entrant dans une grande fabrique de ce genre, on est tout d'abord étourdi par le bruit épouvantable qui y règne; ensuite on se sent suffoqué par une poussière intolérable, et si vous voulez adresser la parole à quelqu'un, vous serez obligé de sortir avec la personne, au d'attendre que les machines soient arrêtées. L'air, rempli de cette poussière, est un pure poison pour les poumons, et les courants qui règnent constamment dans ces énormes Langars sont fort propices pour faire attraper une fluxion de poitrine à quiconque n'est pas habitué à une atmosphère pareille. Les yeux souffrent de ce contact, et malgré les lunettes que bien des ouvriers machinistes portent constamment, bon nombre d'entre eux sont forcés d'abandonner ce travail pénible, ou de perdre la vue de bonne heure.

Souvent les contes de ma jeunesse me revenaient à la mémoire, en entrant une de ces usines.

Toutes les histoires d'enfer et de purgatoire souvent ne sauraient être mieux décrites, que par la descriptions de ces dernières.

Pour exercer un métier pareil, l'on devrait croire, que c'est la forte paye qui engagerait cette classe de travailleurs. Bien loin de là. Le salaire des ouvriers, qui, étant en dehors de la protection de l'union ouvrière, est fort minime. Nous avons comme dans ce métier des contremaîtres avec $12.00 par semaine, et des jeunes gens travaillant à la raboteuse pour $6.00 par semaine.

Malgré que les ouvriers, appartenant à la chambre syndicale, gagnent de 18 à 20 dollars par semaines, dans quelques grandes villes seulement, nous déclarons ce salaire dérisoire, vu les grands et constants dangers auxquels ils sont exposés. Pour les ouvriers machinistes du bois comme pour tous les autres spécialistes de notre métier, il n'est qu'un salut. Voulez vous mener une existence digne d'un homme, voulez vous nourrir votre famille convenablement et donner une éducation appropriée à vos enfants, joignez nos rangs. Seul la Fraternité des ouvriers travaillant le bois, d'accord avec toutes les chambres syndicales réunies, pourra vous aider à obtenir tout cela.

ALPHONSE H. HENRYOT.

Le Mouvement Syndical en France

PAR GEORGES GUÉNARD, PARIS, FRANCE.

I.

En France, comme partout d'ailleurs, le progrès—ou du moins l'utilisation sociale des progrès réalisés dans les diverses branches des connaissances humaines—ne va pas parfois sans trainer derrière lui un triste cortège de misère. C'est dans l'industrie que sous toutes les latitudes, le fait est le plus facilement vérifiable. Le machinisme, loin d'alléger la tâche des travailleurs, n'y a souvent pour premier résultat qu'une intensification nouvelle de la production et jette pour un temps plus ou moins long, selon les circonstances, une véritable perturbation dans les conditions de la production. Par suite de la diminution considérable du nombre des bras nécessaires à la transformation des matières premières, quantité d'ouvriers possédant les connaissances techniques indispensables à cette transformation—les plus âgés généralement—se voient brutalement rejetés et, déclassés, vont grossir l'armée des sans travail et des manœuvres, toujours en quête d'un misérable et précaire emploi.

Pendant quelques jours les ouvriers allumettiers viennent d'avoir chez nous cette épée de Damoclès suspendue au dessus de leur tête. Disons tout de suite qu'ils n'ont réussi à conjurer le danger qui les menaçait que grâce à leur cohésion, à leurs parfaite discipline. Le commerce des allumettes est, en France, un monopole de l'Etat qui en assume effectivement la fabrication et la vente. Il est pour le budget une importante source de revenus. On aurait pu supposer que les ouvriers travaillant pour l'Etat—patron étaient en droit de se croire à l'abri des conséquences de ces petites révolutions économiques dont nous venons de parler. Il n'en était rien, puisque ces temps dernières une avis du ministère des finances portait à la connaissance des intéressés que, par suite de l'introduction des machines à fabrication continue dans une usine des environs de Paris, le personnel de cet établissement allait être en grande partie licencié. Cette communication ne manqua pas de déterminer une véritable effervescence parmi les travailleurs menacés. Il se réunirent immédiatement et examinèrent les mesures à prendre d'urgence. Des démarches furent commencées sur le champ et des négociations engagées avec les pouvoirs publics. Le Congrès de la Fédération des allumettiers, qui devait se tenir le 25 mai fut avancé et fixé au 16 du même mois. Les syndicats de province sentant qu'ils ne tarderaient pas à être aussi victimes de la décision de l'administration, se solidariserent avec celui d'Aubervilliers et préparèrent la résistance, se montrant dès le début disposés à aller jusqu'à une suspension générale de travail pour triompher des prétentions de leur directeur. De son côté l'Union des syndicats du département de la Seine appuyait la protestation des allumettiers. Enfin le Conseil central de l'Union fédérative des travailleurs de l'Etat convoquait pour le 20 mai, à la Bourse du Travail de Paris, une réunion générale de tous les travailleurs de l'Etat: allumettiers, tabacs, postes et télégraphes, arsenaux de la guerre et de la marine, monnaies, imprimerie nationale, etc.

Une fois réuni, le Congrès des allumettiers vota une ordre du jour où il posait nettement la question et adressait un appel pressant aux députés sympathiques à la cause ouvrière. Il sollicitait également l'appui des autres ouvriers de l'Etat, notamment de la Fédération des Tabacs et indiquait à tous les syndicats ouvriers la déplorable situation qui allait leur être faite. Une délégation fut envoyée au Palais Bourbon auprès du président de la commission du budget et du rapporteur du budget des finances qui se déclarèrent disposés à intervenir pour que satisfaction soit donnée ou revendications légitimes formulés devant eux. Une autre délégation était également envoyée au ministre des finances pour lui exposer les réclamations des ouvriers. Les résultats de cette dernière furent des plus heureux puisqu'elle put apporter au Congrès la promesse du ministre que, jusqu'à nouvel ordre, aucun licenciement n'aurait lieu dans les manufactures.

La solidarité des travailleurs de l'Etat avait donc pour une fois triomphé des résistances de l'administration. Mais la question n'en reste pas moins entière, car elle n'est qu'ajournée et les ouvriers allumettiers auront à l'examiner de nouveau dans un avenir prochain, des machines devant être installées dans plusieurs manufactures. Le principal pour eux c'est qu'ils soient assez puissants pour empêcher que cette installation se fasse à leur détriment. Le succès qu'ils viennent d'obtenir est d'un bon augure.

Il était au moins curieux de signaler aux travailleurs américains qu'en Europe les procédés de l'Etat—patron ne diffèrent en rien de ceux employés dans l'industrie privée et que dans les administrations publiques les conditions de l'ouvrier ne pèsent pas d'avantage, ne sont guère plus sauvegardées que chez les autres industriels.

LES CONGRÈS OUVRIERS.

Plusieurs congrès ont tenu leurs assises au cours du mois de mai. Nous allons rapidement rendre compte des trois plus importants: le congrès des chemins de fer, de dockers et des mineurs.

Congrès des chemins de fer.—Le quatorzième Congrès du Syndicat national des travailleurs des chemins de fer s'est ouvert le 1^{er} mai à la Bourse du Travail de Paris. C'est avec celles des typographes, des mineurs, des métallurgistes et des travail-leurs de l'Etat, une des organisations qui groupe le plus grand nombre d'ouvriers. Encore une fois, le point le plus important de l'ordre du jour de ce Congrès était le projet de loi, connue sous le nom de "loi Berteaux-Rabier Jaurès", voté par la chambre des députés et sommeillant actuellement dans les cartons du Sénat. Cette loi ballottée depuis plusieurs années du Palais Bourbon au Luxembourg (Sénat), a pour objet certaines améliorations à apporter dans les conditions du travail du personnel des voies ferrées, notamment la fixation d'un repos régulier tous les dix jours, d'un congé annuel de quinze jours, la limitation à dix heures de la durée quotidienne du travail, enfin une nouvelle réglementation des retraites. Le Congrès a sanctionné les décisions prises antérieurement et a décidé de faire le nécessaire pour amener la Haute-Assemblée à voter cette loi le plus rapidement possible.

Il existait à Paris un système de réclamation assez original qui consistait dans la délivrance, par les commerçants qui l'emploient, de tickets—primes donnant droit, quand l'acheteur en a réuni un certain nombre, à un petit remboursement soit en numéraire, soit en marchandises. Le Syndicat national des chemins de fer, dont les ressources financières sont très limitées puisque la majorité des groupes montrée hostile à toute augmentation de la cotisation (elle est de 4 fr. par membre et par an et le précédent Congrès proposait d'en élever le taux à 6 fr.) le Conseil du Syndicat national avait songé à utiliser ce système de réclamation pour augmenter les fonds mis à sa disposition en créant le "sous-syndical", avec cette différence qu'au lieu que le bénéficiaire aille à l'acheteur il tombait dans la caisse syndicale et servirait à accroître la propagande. Le Congrès a repoussé cette proposition sous le prétexte qu'elle constituerait une véritable concurrence aux coopératives de consommation aux quelles adhèrent un grand nombre d'agents de chemins de fer. Il a été néanmoins décidé qu'une expérience en serait tentée sur le réseau de l'Etat.

Parmi les autres décisions du Congrès nous relevons: la participation du syndicat national aux élections du Conseil supérieur du travail, l'extension des comités du travail à tous les réseaux, la mise en application des arrêtés ministériels prescrivant la fermeture des gares de petits vitesses les dimanches et jours fériés, l'approbation du rapport du Conseil concernant la création d'un orphelinat, l'extension de la juridiction prud'homme aux employés de chemins de fer, etc.

Is It Worth While?

Is it worth while that we jostle a brother
Bearing his load on the rough road of life?
Is it worth while that we jeer at each other In blackness of heart—that we war to the knife?
God pity us all in our pitiful strife!

God pity us all as we jostle each other?
God pardon us all for the triumphs we feel
When a fellow goes down 'neath his load on the heather,
Pierced to the heart. Words are keener than steel
And mightier far for woe or for weal.

Were it not well in this brief little journey
On over the isthmus, down into the tide,
We give him a fish instead of a serpent,
Ere folding the hands to be and abide Forever and aye in dust at his side?

Look at the roses saluting each other;
Look at the herds all at peace on the plain.
Man, and man only, makes war on his brother
And laughs in his heart at his peril and pain,
Shamed by the beasts that go down on the plain.

Is it worth while that we battle to humble
Some poor fellow soldier down into the dust?
God pity us all! Time eftsoun will tumble
All of us together, like leaves in a gust,
Humbled indeed down into the dust.

Joaquin Miller.

Panic or Prosperity?

cent, comfortable livelihood for the families of laboring men.

Capital, disturbed in its feast of humanity's blood, already grows savage defiance at organized labor's interruption. If rough, untutored laborers, driven to bay by oppression, appear to refined capitalists as "Huns and vandals," who is to blame for their pitiable deficiency? There is a reckless, lawless element among the youth of the "low classes" that in very truth, without cultivation, will sooner or later prove a menace to the government. Will capital give labor a chance to improve and lift the multitude above the struggle for mere animal existence? It rests with those who control the finances of the country whether the rejected, refuse class of "Young America" shall become respectable, law-abiding citizens, capable and self-supporting, or mature into vagabonds and "vandals," respecting neither God nor man, trusting only in brute force and superior numbers to avenge their real and fancied wrongs.

What they do should be done quickly, for such a national disease would be better prevented than cured when the case fully develops.

God is on the side of right, and unionism must accomplish the object for which its orders were created. Brotherly love binds all organized labor in sympathetic co-operation, and union must beware of strife in its ranks. We may pass through business panic, but organized labor will find prosperity just beyond.

Kirkwood, Ga.

High Dues

Trade unions, to be entirely successful, must adopt the high dues and beneficial system that has proved so successful in those unions that have applied them. During times of trade activity the unions with little or no funds will prosper, but the crucial test comes during the ever-recurring periods of industrial stagnation. During such times the unions without funds and without a system of benefits suffer great loss of membership and loss of wages and are compelled to spend a portion of the good times in rebuilding their organizations. Cigarmakers, who so well understand this, can do the general movement great service by calling the attention of other unions to the importance of this question. The time will come in the near future when all unions, even in good times, will be put to a severe test in the matter of funds, say nothing of the terrible straits they will be put to during the times of stagnation. The really first duty of the hour is to put the unions on a solid financial basis. This, we hold, is of more importance than mere numbers. A union numerically great but financially weak is never safe.—The Tribune, Sacramento, Cal.

Der Kreuzzug gegen die Gewerkschaften.

I.

Der gewaltige Umfang der heutigen gewerkschaftlichen Frühjahrs-Bewegung hat unter dem Unternehmertum keine geringe Bestürzung hervorgerufen, doch es steht den Vorgängen auf diesem Gebiete keineswegs müßig gegenüber. Allorten bilden sich Arbeitgeber-Verbände, die sich zum Widerstand und sogar zum Angriff rüsten, die es sich zur Aufgabe machen, weitere Forderungen ihrer Arbeiter für kürzere Arbeitszeit oder höhere Löhne zu bekämpfen und womöglich deren Organisation völlig zu vernichten.

Die schändliche Freiheits-Verkürzung der Lohnarbeiter durch Erlassung der unerhörtesten Inhaltsbefehle kapitalistischen Interesses dienender Richter, die Bereitwilligkeit der Staats-Gouverneure ähnlichen Kalibers, Ausstände mittels der Miliz gewaltsam zu unterdrücken, scheinen dem Unternehmer- und Ausbeutertum nicht mehr zu genügen. Es erfindet neue Mittel und Wege, um alle Vorstöße der Arbeiter zur Verbesserung ihrer Lage vereiteln zu können. So haben die Arbeitgeber an verschiedenen Orten, nach dem Muster der gelben Gewerkschaften in Frankreich, Organisationen sogenannter „freier Arbeiter“ in's Leben gerufen, deren Zweck die systematische Hintertreibung der Gewerksforderungen und die Liefierung von Streikbrechern bei Ausständen sein soll.

Es wird den Arbeitern die Zweckmäßigkeit der Inkorporation ihrer betreffenden Gewerks-Organisationen in allen Tonarten vorgesungen, ja sogar, wie in dem Staate Connecticut, der Versuch gemacht, diese Inkorporation seitens der Gesetzgebung obligatorisch zu machen, d. h. nicht inkorporierte Gewerkschaften zu ungesetzmäßigen Vereinigungen zu stempeln und sie vogelfrei zu erklären.

Gegenwärtig ergeht der Ruf aus allen größeren Städten nach Vereinigung aller Kapitals-Interessen des ganzen Landes unter einer einzigen Central-Leitung, zur Gründung eines nationalen Fabrikanten-Bundes und Inszenierung eines Kreuzzuges, auf der ganzen Linie, gegen die Gewerkschaften.

Es lohnt sich wirklich nicht der Mühe, über diese freien oder gelben Gewerkschaften viel Worte zu verlieren, denn Jeder, der nur ein wenig Erfahrung in der gewerkschaftlichen Bewegung und Organisation gesammelt hat, wird sich sagen, daß in einer Vereinigung, bestehend aus rückständigen oder gewissenlosen Kreaturen, die sich dazu hergeben, die Interessen der Arbeitgeber, unter deren Leitung sie stehen, gegen ihre eigenen Interessen zu verteidigen, die Geister über kurz oder lang auseinander plagen müssen. Sie wissen, daß einer so heterogenen Vereinigung keine längere Lebensdauer beschieden sein kann. Trotzdem sieht zu erwarten, daß diese „Scab“-Organisationen, weil seitens der Arbeitgeber mit genügenden Hilfsmitteln ausgerüstet, in einzelnen Fällen ihr unsauberes Handwerk mit Erfolg ausüben werden, und es ist daher notwendig, daß die organisierten Arbeiter ein wachsameres Auge auf sie werfen.

Auf den Inkorporationsplan sind leider schon einzelne Gewerksvereine, selbstverständlich konservativer Richtung, hereingefallen. Im Allgemeinen aber haben die organisierten Arbeiter die Gefahr erkannt, welche die Inkorporation in sich birgt; sie weigern sich entschieden, ihre Kassenbestände und ihre Beamten einer Gerichtsbarkeit preiszugeben, welche dem Unternehmertum in jeder Beziehung zu Willen steht, deren Entscheidungen bei Streitfragen zwischen Arbeitgeber und Arbeitnehmer, wie die zahlreichen Inhaltsbefehle auf das eklatanteste zeigen, immer nur zu Gunsten der ersteren und gegen letztere ausfallen würden.

Bei einer solchen Abneigung gegen das Inkorporations-Verfahren unter den Arbeitern wäre es eine Ungeheuerlichkeit und eine Bergewaltigung, wollte man Gesetze erlassen, welche dieses Verfahren vorschreiben und die Nicht-Inkorporation strafbar machen würde. Und doch, wie oben erwähnt, ist bereits ein dahingehender Versuch im Staate Connecticut gemacht worden, und wir können darauf rechnen, daß wenn, oder auch nicht, es dem Unternehmertum in diesem Staate gelingen sollte, ein auf die Gewerksvereine anwendbares Inkorporationsgesetz seitens der Legislatur zur Annahme zu bringen, daß dieses Beispiel auch in anderen Staaten Nachahmung finden wird. Und zwar würde dies gerade in solchen Staaten der Fall sein, in denen die Arbeiterorganisation noch nicht genügend erstarkt ist und die Arbeiter am allerwenigsten in der Lage sind, einem derartigen kapitalistischen Uebergriffe den nötigen Widerstand entgegenzusetzen. Die Arbeiter dieser Staaten, die den freien Gebrauch ihrer ohnedies schon beschränkten Rechte zur größeren Entfaltung ihrer Organisation so dringend bedürften, würden durch den Erlass eines Inkorporationsgesetzes um so härter betroffen werden, sie gänzlich der Kontrolle ihrer Arbeitgeber unterstellen, ihre Organisation lahm legen und sie kampfunfähig machen.

Die Erlassung von Gesetzen ist ein politischer Akt, und wenn wir gegen ein Gesetz, welches uns die Inkorporation unserer Gewerksorganisation aufzwingt, Protest erheben wollen, so betreten wir unwillkürlich politisches Gebiet, und wir müssen nothwendiger Weise unsere Blicke dahin richten, wo dieser Akt vollzogen wird: auf Senat und Repräsentantenhaus. Wir müssen uns fragen: Wie sind diese Körper bestellt? Aus welchen Elementen sind ihre Mitglieder zusammengesetzt? Vertreten dieselben kapitalistische Interessen oder die Interessen der Lohnarbeiter? Werden sie es als ihre Pflicht und Schuldigkeit erachten, die Annahme eines Gesetzes, welches die Existenz unserer Organisationen gefährdet, zu verhindern? In der Beantwortung dieser Fragen müssen wir uns sagen, daß wir mit Ausnahme des Staates Massachusetts keine einzige Staats-Gesetzgebung haben, deren Mitglieder sich nicht sämtlich entweder dem republikanischen oder demokratischen Parteiprogramm verpflichtet und sich somit den Interessen der Unternehmer dienstbar gemacht haben.

Unter diesen Umständen wäre es durchaus nicht überraschend, wenn die Frage der Inkorporation der Gewerksvereine nächstens auch die Legislaturen anderer Staaten außer der von Connecticut beschäftigen würde.

Die Gründung eines nationalen Fabrikanten-Bundes mag vorläufig noch als frommer Wunsch des Unternehmertums betrachtet werden, der aber früher oder später sicherlich seine Verwirklichung finden wird. Wir Arbeiter, die wir das Recht der Organisation in ausgedehntestem Maße beanspruchen, können und wollen den Unternehmern dieses Recht nicht abspreschen; bezeichnend aber ist die Thatsache, daß die gegenwärtige Bewegung unter den Unternehmern besonders dahin gerichtet ist, die Organisation eines großen Theiles der Lohnarbeiter, der sogenannten ungelerten Arbeiter, den Garaus zu machen, also ihnen das Organisationsrecht streitig zu machen.

Hieraus läßt sich schließen, daß das Unternehmertum entschlossen ist, die Vervollständigung der Organisation der Lohnarbeiter und deren kompaktes Vorgehen zu hintertreiben, und daß wir, um dieses Ziel zu erreichen, was für uns eine Lebensfrage ist, noch manches Schammügel auszufechten haben werden.

Wir haben in früheren Artikeln öfters darauf hingewiesen, daß das große Anwachsen unserer Organisationen und ihre Vorstöße auch größeren Widerstand des Unternehmertums hervorgerufen, daß sich dasselbe nicht ohne Anwendung der äußersten Mittel aus seiner gegenwärtigen Machtposition verdrängen lassen werde. Die Vorgänge der letzten Monate im kapitalistischen Lager scheinen darauf hinzudeuten, daß der Zeitpunkt einer allgemeinen Mobilmachung unter diesen Kreisen zwecks eines formidablen Kreuzzuges gegen die Gewerkschaften begonnen hat. Die von letzteren zu ergreifenden Mittel zur Abwehr und deren unserer Ansicht nach zu beobachtendes Verhalten diesen Vorgängen gegenüber wollen wir in einem weiteren Artikel besprechen.

Ein Urtheil über Streiks.

Im Maihefte der Annalen des Deutschen Reiches, Monatschrift für Gesetzgebung, Verwaltung und Volkswirtschaft, findet sich ein Artikel über die Tendenzen in der internationalen Streikbewegung. Der Verfasser, Dr. Galey-Berlin, setzt seiner Abhandlung als Motto einen Satz aus dem Vorwort zur amtlichen deutschen Streikstatistik für das Jahr 1899 voraus, das lautet:

„Streiks und Aussperrungen, wie sie infolge von Streitigkeiten aus dem Arbeitsverhältnisse zwischen Arbeitgeber und Arbeitnehmer durchgeführt werden, sind von so erheblicher Bedeutung für das wirtschaftliche Leben geworden, daß ihre nähere Erforschung dringend geboten erscheint.“

Nach längeren Ausführungen über die Streikstatistiken und die Ausdehnung der Streiks in den verschiedenen Ländern, behandelt Galey die allgemeinen Ursachen des Streiks. Er sagt da:

„Auf das erstere hat der Arbeiter wenigstens theilweise einen Einfluß; das zweite Moment ist völlig unabhängig von ihm, von seinem Einzelwillen. Ob er Arbeitsgelegenheit findet, darüber entscheidet die Situation des Arbeitsmarktes. Es genügt nicht, daß er gewillt und befähigt ist, zu arbeiten. Es muß auch einen Unternehmer geben, der diesen Willen und diese Fähigkeit ausnützt und verwertet. Dies geschieht in der Regel auf Grund eines Vertrages, der zwar von den Arbeitern aus freien Stücken abgeschlossen wird; aber doch nur de jure; in Wirklichkeit hat der Arbeiter beim Abschluß seines Arbeitsvertrages keine unbedingt freie Entscheidung. Gewiß gibt es keine gesetzliche Gewalt, die den Arbeiter nöthigt, daß und unter welchen Löhnungsbedingungen er den Vertrag eingehen soll; wohl aber eine Kraft, deren Wirkung weit stärker und härter ist: die Noth und der Selbsterhaltungstrieb. Der Arbeiter kann nicht—so lange er isolirt dasteht—vor den Kapitalisten hintreten und sagen: Wenn du mir nicht diesen und diesen Lohn gibst, so arbeite ich nicht bei dir, und warte lieber bis morgen oder übermorgen oder bis zur nächsten Woche, so lange, bis ich einen Arbeitgeber finde, der mir die verlangte Summe bezahlt.“ Denn der Unternehmer kann leicht Arbeiter finden zu billigeren Bedingungen, während der Arbeiter in jedem Augenblick daran denken muß, daß der Hunger hinter ihm steht.

„Infolge dieser beständigen Abhängigkeit des Arbeiters von dem Kapitalisten, muß er oft auf Bedingungen eingehen, die er, wenn er tatsächlich freie Entscheidung besäße, niemals angenommen hätte. Das ist namentlich der Fall in wirtschaftlich ungünstigen Zeiten, wenn die Nachfrage nach Arbeitskräften gering ist und die Zahl der Arbeitslosen sich vergrößert. Dann wird der Arbeiter mit dem Nothwendigsten zufrieden sein müssen. Bessern sich die Produktionsverhältnisse, so wird er unter Umständen in der Lage sein, höhere Forderungen zu stellen, aber nur, wenn er sich mit einer größeren Anzahl seiner Standesgenossen vereinigt. Der einzelne Arbeiter hat weder einen genauen Ueberblick über den gegenwärtigen Stand des nationalen oder lokalen Wirtschaftsmarktes, noch hat er überhaupt die Kraft, dem Unternehmer gegenüber bestimmte Ansprüche geltend zu machen. Dazu ist solidarisches Vorgehen und eine möglichst umfassende Koalition nöthig. Diese gestatten es dem Arbeiter, die Vortheile der Konjunktur auch zu seinen Gunsten auszubeuten. Sie machen die rechtliche Freiheit, die er bei Abschluß des Lohnvertrags besitzt, erst zu einer tatsächlichen.“

So urtheilt ein bürgerlicher Nationalökonom über die allgemeinen Ursachen der Streiks. Nachdem er noch umfassende statistische Untersuchungen angestellt hat über die speziellen Ursachen der Streiks, über die Thätigkeit der gewerkschaftlichen Centralverbände bei Lohnbewegungen, über die Dauer der Streiks in den verschiedenen Ländern und über die Streiktaktik, hebt er hervor, daß nach der deutschen Kriminalstatistik auf je 1,000 strafmündige Personen im allgemeinen jährlich 10,8 Bestrafte kommen, während von 1,000 Streikenden trotz der geradezu rigorosen Anwendung der Strafbedingungen auf sie in den Jahren 1896-1898 nur 2 bis 4,8 Bestrafte entfallen, ein Beweis, wie peinlich die Streikenden bemüht sind, die ihnen sehr ungünstigen Gesetze streng einzuhalten.

Galey gelangt zu dem Schlusse, daß der ruhigere Verlauf der Streiks in erster Linie den Arbeiterorganisationen zu verdanken sei. Unter ihrem Einfluß habe der Arbeiter verstehen gelernt, daß die gegenwärtige Gesellschaftsordnung nicht von ungefähr entstanden, sondern das Produkt der ganzen vorausgegangenen wirtschaftlichen und geistigen Entwicklung und darum auch wandelbar sei. Auch innerhalb der heutigen Gesellschaftsordnung lasse sich die Verbesserung der sozialen Lage der Arbeiter ermöglichen, ohne einen radikalen Umsturz der bestehenden Wirtschaftsordnung.

Auch damit hat Dr. Halevy recht; aber er darf nicht glauben, das Proletariat verzichte auf die Beseitigung des kapitalistischen Klassenstaates, weil durch die Gewerkschaften die Abhängigkeit des Arbeiters vom Kapital ein wenig gemildert werden kann.

Im Gegenteil, die Einsicht, daß nur eine Milderung möglich ist, solange der auf die kapitalistische Wirtschaftsordnung sich stützende Klassenstaat besteht, die Ursachen der Arbeiterunterdrückung aber weiter bestehen und immer neue Uebel zeitigen, veranlaßt die Arbeiter erst recht, auf die Beseitigung dieser Ursachen hinzuwirken. Wir verzeichnen eben nur mit Genugthuung, daß ein bürgerlicher Nationalökonom auspricht, was durch die Sozialdemokratie längst festgestellt ist.

„Tabak-Arbeiter.“

Vierteljährlicher Bericht

des General-Präsidenten an den General-Executiv-Board.

Unsere während des verflossenen Vierteljahres zu verzeichnenden Errungenschaften stehen einzig da in der Geschichte unserer Bruderschaft. Seit dem 1. Januar 1903 wurden zirka 20g neue Lokal-Unions mit 40,000 Mitgliedern aufgenommen, und immer noch strömen uns neue Schaaren zu. Dieser Erfolg ist größtenteils dem regen Interesse zuzuschreiben, welches unsere Mitglieder der Organisation darbringen, und welches daher die höchste Anerkennung verdient.

In Uebereinstimmung mit einer von der in New Orleans abgehaltenen Convention der American Federation of Labor gefaßten und von Max Hayes eingebrachten Resolution, trat ein Comité unserer Bruderschaft mit einem Comité der Amalgamated Society of Carpenters in Beratung. Erwähnte Resolution lautet folgendermaßen:

„Die Convention beschließt hinsichtlich der Streitfrage zwischen der Bruderschaft und der Am. Society of Carpenters, daß jede der beiden Organisationen zwei Vertreter erwählen und die so erwählten vier eine uninteressierte fünfte Person erwählen sollen, um am 1. März oder vorher zusammenzutreten, um über eine Federation oder Verschmelzung zu beraten und dieselbe auf einer Basis zu arrangieren, auf welcher die Am. Society als Glied der Ver. Bruderschaft eingereiht wird. Doch soll den Mitgliedern der Am. Society das Recht gewahrt bleiben, sich ihre persönlichen Benefits zu erhalten, wenn sie es wünschen, und die Ver. Bruderschaft soll mit der Am. Society of Carpenters in Europa und Australien eine Federation bilden unter gegenseitiger Anerkennung ihrer Reisefarten.“

Diese Resolution wurde dahin amendiert, daß das Comité beiderseits aus fünf anstatt aus zwei Mitgliedern bestehen, und das Gesamt-Comité eine elfte Person als Schiedsrichter erwählen soll.

Die beiden Comités konnten sich jedoch nicht einig werden. Die Am. Society wollte sich nur zur Annahme gemeinschaftlicher Gewerksregeln verstehen; den dahin gehenden Vorschlag konnte unser Comité nicht annehmen, da er im Widerspruch mit dem Geiste der New Orleans'er Resolution stand, machte dagegen aber der Amalgamated Society die liberalsten Zugeständnisse, welche geeignet waren, das von der letzten Convention der American Federation of Labor gewünschte Resultat herbeizuführen. Diese Offerten sind in dem in der März Nummer des CARPENTER veröffentlichten Comité-Bericht enthalten. Aus diesem Berichte werden Sie ersehen haben, daß die Ver. Bruderschaft bereit war, obige Resolution in ihrer ganzen Tragweite auszuführen, indem unser Comité dafür eintrat, daß die ganze Angelegenheit dem ersten Mitgliede und Schiedsrichter zur Entscheidung unterbreitet werde. Die Vertreter der Am. Society weigerten sich aber, sich den Schluß-Consequenzen dieser Resolution zu unterwerfen. Ich benachrichtigte Herrn Samuel Gompers, Präsident der Am. Federation of Labor, von dieser Weigerung, unter Beifügung einer Abschrift der von der

B. B. der A. S. of C. gemachten Offerten, sowie einer Abschrift der Comité-Verhandlungen, und ersuchte ihn, in der Sache zu handeln.

Vertreter beider Organisationen kamen abermals, und zwar am 22. April, in einer Sitzung des Executiv-Councils der A. S. of C. in Toronto, Canada, zusammen und unterzeichneten eine von dem Executiv-Council unterbreitete Resolution, in welcher vereinbart war, daß sich die Comités beiderseits über einen Referenten einigen und dann über die Verschmelzung beider Organisationen schlüssig werden sollen. Es wurde beschlossen, daß dieses Comité am 4. Mai zusammentreten solle. Ich selbst fungierte als Mitglied dieses Comités. Kaum eine Woche nach meiner Rückkehr von Toronto erhielt ich ein Schreiben von Thos. Atkinson, dem Sekretär der Am. Society, und ebenfalls Mitglied obigen Comités, in welchem er mir mitteilte, daß er die Theilnahme an einer weiteren Sitzung zur Ausführung der von dem Executiv-Council der A. S. of C. vorgeschlagenen und von ihm selbst und unserem Comité angenommenen und unterzeichneten Resolution verweigere.

Ich wandte mich wiederum an Samuel Gompers, fügte eine Abschrift des Atkinson'schen Schreibens bei, und verlangte von ihm, daß er sofort Schritte thue, um die Am. Society zu veranlassen, die angenommenen Beschlüsse auszuführen. Bis auf heutigen Datum ist mir keine Antwort in der Angelegenheit seitens Präsident Gompers' zugegangen.

Ich wünsche die Aufmerksamkeit des Executiv-Boards auf eine Frage zu lenken, die gegenwärtig von größter Wichtigkeit ist. Meines Ermessens nach ist es absolut notwendig, die General-Kasse so zu stärken, daß sie nicht nur den Anforderungen, welche die jetzige Frühjahr-Bewegung an sie stellt, sondern auch den Anforderungen der Zukunft, Genüge leisten kann. In Anbetracht des Kampfes mit der Am. Society, in welchem wir uns befinden, und in Anbetracht der hohen Sterbe-Rate in unserer Organisation, ist es notwendig, der General-Kasse mehr Gelder zuzuführen. Obwohl es ja Thatsache ist, daß wir genügend Geldmittel besitzen, um alle Ansprüche der Gegenwart zu befriedigen, so müssen wir doch auch für zukünftige Nothfälle wohl vorbereitet sein. Um diesen Stand zu erreichen, empfehle ich die Ausschreibung einer von allen Mitgliedern zu entrichtenden Steuer, deren Betrag der Executiv-Board selbst bestimmen möge. Im Anschlusse hieran empfehle ich ferner, daß der General-Sekretär instruiert werde, ein Cirkular an alle Lokal-Unions zu erlassen, welches die Gründe dieser Maßregel anführt, deren Nothwendigkeit klar macht und die Zeit der Entrichtung dieser Steuer auf den 1. Juni 1903 festsetzt. Es sind gegenwärtig überall Bewegungen im Gange, welche auf eine Verbesserung der Lage unserer Mitglieder hinielen, denen wir unter allen Umständen gerecht werden und soviel Hilfsmittel zuzuführen sollten, als es in unseren Kräften steht. Lasset uns die General-Kasse in den Stand setzen, allen Anforderungen entsprechen zu können. Vor Allem, laßt uns unser Möglichstes anbieten, den Beschluß unserer letzten Convention auszuführen, welcher auf die Schaffung einer einzigen einheitlichen Organisation des Holzarbeiter-Gewerkes gerichtet ist.

Im Verlaufe des letzten Vierteljahres ernannte ich noch ein anderes Comité, nämlich zur Conferenz mit den Amalgamated Woodworkers in der bekannten Streitfrage. Dieses Comité tagte hier in Indianapolis, und werde ich Ihnen das Original der vollständigen Verhandlungen unterbreiten, wie mir dies vom Comité eingehändigt wurde. Ich bin überzeugt, daß Sie dieser Angelegenheit die nötige Beachtung schenken und solche Maßnahmen treffen werden, wie sie der Ernst und die Wichtigkeit der Sache erfordern.

Ich habe dem Executiv-Board noch eine ganze Reihe anderer Vorschläge über verschiedene Gegenstände zu machen, die das Interesse und das Wohl unserer Bruderschaft nahe berühren, werde dies aber mündlich thun, so bald es die Geschäfte des Board zulassen und es für die Erledigung derselben am förderlichsten ist.

Brüderlicht Ihr
Wm. D. Huber, Gen. Präsi.

Der Kampf um das Gewerkschaftsrecht in England.

Daß die englische Justiz heute die alten Gewerkschaftsgefeße derart auslegt, daß es den Arbeitern verboten ist, Streikposten aufzustellen, und daß die Gewerkschaften für den einem Unternehmer durch einen Streik entstandenen Schaden haftbar sind (Taff-Bale Entscheidung), ist bekannt. Um hier Wandel zu schaffen, stellten die Gewerkschaften im Parlament folgenden Antrag:

„1. Eine oder mehrere Personen, die in ihrem eigenen Namen oder im Namen einer eingeschriebenen oder nicht eingeschriebenen Gewerkschaft oder Vereinigung handeln, sollen zwecks Vorbereitung oder Fortführung eines gewerblichen Konflikts das Recht haben, sich neben einem Hause, Plaze, Arbeits- oder Geschäftsraume aufzustellen, um erlittenen Nachtheilen in friedlicher Weise zu empfangen und zu ertheilen; zweitens, Personen in friedlicher Weise zu überreden, die Arbeit fortzusetzen oder niederzulegen.“

2. Ein Uebereinkommen oder eine Vereinbarung von mehreren Personen, um zur Vorbereitung oder Förderung eines gewerblichen Konflikts irgend eine That auszuführen oder ausführen zu lassen, soll nicht strafbar sein, wenn eine solche That, von einer einzelnen Person ausgeführt, nicht strafbar ist.“

Der Zweck dieses Entwurfs ist klar. Das Streikpostenfehen (picketing) sollte gesetzlich gemacht werden, und die Gewerkschaftler sollten gegen Klagen wegen Verschörung geschützt sein. Hervorgehoben wurde dieser Entwurf durch den bekannten Taff-Bale Entscheidung vom 22. Juli 1901, der die Gewerkschaft als Ganzes mit ihren Kassen für irgend eine ungesetzliche Handlung, die während eines Streiks von den Gewerkschaftlern begangen wird, haftbar macht. Diese korporative Haftbarkeit war im Gewerkschaftsrecht aus den Jahren 1871, 1875 und 1876 nicht vorgesehen. Sie ist eine Neuerung, offenbar zum Schaden des Gewerkschaftswesens. In dem Zeitraum 1871 bis 1901 wurden für ungesetzliche Handlungen nur die Personen bestraft, die sie begangen hatten; die Strafe war entweder eine Geld- oder Gefängnisstrafe. Jetzt kommt noch zu diesen persönlichen Bestrafungen die Schadenersatzpflicht der Gesamtgewerkschaft hinzu.

Der den Gewerkschaften freundliche Antrag wurde aber mit 246 gegen 226 Stimmen abgelehnt! Premierminister Balfour erklärte sogar, ein Gesetz zum Schutz der Arbeitswilligen sei zu schaffen, also eine Nachahmung der deutschen Buchtausgesetzvorlage! Man sieht, wohin der Weg geht. Aber auch in der englischen Arbeiterschaft wird es lebendig. Im Organ des Maschinenarbeiterverbandes schreibt ein Arbeiter:

Der Artikel schließt:

„Noch nie war die Rückkehr zur politischen Unabhängigkeit so nötig, wie jetzt. Der Unterschied zwischen Tory und Whig, Konservativ und Liberal, ist verschwunden. Beide sind Feinde der Arbeiterschaft. Strikte, unerbittliche Unabhängigkeit von der bürgerlichen Politik, unentwegte Feindschaft gegen alle, die von unserer Arbeitskraft leben, ist die oberste Bedingung des Fortschritts. Die Sünden der Väter suchen die Kinder heim. Wir haben jetzt alle Ursache, zu bedauern, daß sie von den Wegen abwichen, auf denen sie im Jahre 1875 zum Siege marschirten.“

Aus der deutschen „Holzarbeiter-Zeitung.“ — Die Gewerkschaft der Bauschreiner und Zimmerer von Amerika (United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners) hat im vergangenen Jahre bedeutende Fortschritte zu verzeichnen gehabt. Als die letzte zweijährige Generalversammlung im Herbst v. J. in Atlanta stattfand, zählte die Gewerkschaft 126,500 Mitglieder in über 1,200 Ortsgruppen. Im Jahre 1901 hatten dagegen erst 877 Ortsgruppen mit zusammen 87,148 Mitgliedern bestanden. Die Einnahmen der Centrale für das Verwaltungsjahr 1901-2 beliefen sich auf $244,545, die Ausgaben auf $188,988, worunter Streikunterstützung mit über $26,000, Invalidenunterstützung und Begräbnisgeld mit über $101,000 figuriren. Die Herstellungskosten des nun monatlich 20 Seiten stark erscheinenden Gewerkschaftsorgans betrugen über $15,000. Im Berichtsjahre war kein verlorener Streik zu verzeichnen gewesen. Nach einem fast vierjährigen Arbeiterkampf ist es im Februar 1903 gelungen, die Unternehmer in Scranton, Pennsylvanien, zur Anerkennung der Gewerkschaftsforderungen zu zwingen, nämlich Gewährung des achtstündigen Arbeitstages und Zahlung eines Mindestlohnes von 30 Cents für die Stunde. Die Geschäftslage war am Ausgange des Winters in manchen Orten eine recht ungünstige, was sich aber nun bald bessern dürfte. Bedauerlich ist, daß der Beschluß, welcher auf der Jahresversammlung des amerikanischen Arbeiterbundes im November 1902 gefaßt wurde, dahingehend, daß die amerikanische Sektion der englischen Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners sich der in Rede stehenden United Brotherhood anschließen sollte, um eine einheitliche Organisation zu Stande zu bringen, nicht durchgeführt werden konnte, da die Amalgamated Society, die bedeutend kleinere Vereinigung, ihre Selbständigkeit um jeden Preis wahren will. Eine zu dem Zweck der Verschmelzung kürzlich abgehaltene Konferenz von Vertretern der beiden Organisationen ist resultatlos verlaufen. Die Thatsache, daß eine derartige Sonderbündelung nicht zu Gunsten der Arbeiter ausläuft, sondern immer nur den Unternehmern Vortheile bietet, ist den deutschen Holzarbeitern nur zu bekannt, als daß sie hier nochmals erörtert werden müßte.

Einen Minimallohn hat der Verwaltungsrath der Provinz Fennegau in Belgien für alle öffentlichen Arbeiten erlassen. Nach diesem ist der Minimallohn für die Arbeitsstunde, je nach Beruf, auf 30 bis 45 Cents festgesetzt für den Arbeiter, 27 Cents für den Helfer und 18 Cents für den jugendlichen Helfer (unter 17 Jahre). Leider fehlt in dem Tarif ein Passus, der bestimmt, in welcher Verhältniszahl jugendliche, d. h. billige Arbeitskräfte angewendet werden dürfen. Der Tarif muß auf den Bauplätzen und an den von dem leitenden Funktönär bezeichneten Stellen angeschlagen werden. Die Provinzverwaltung behält sich das Recht vor, sich jederzeit und durch jedes ihr gut scheinende Mittel zu überzeugen, ob diese Löhne auch tatsächlich gezahlt werden. Jedes Verfahren, besonders Abmachungen mit Zwischenweilern und Arbeitern, die auf Umgehung der Tarifbestimmungen hinausgehen, sind verboten. Die Unternehmer sind unter Strafe gehalten, die Lohnzettel in den 48 Stunden der Zahlung der Vaudirektion vorzulegen. Jede Uebertretung des Tarifs wird mit 5 Francs pro Tag und Arbeiter geahndet. Ein Artikel bestimmt, daß die an den Arbeiten der Provinz Beschäftigten sich gut zu führen haben und ihren Beruf vollständig kennen müssen. Wer in betrunkenem Zustand oder bei der Einführung alkoholischer Getränke betroffen wird, muß einen Tag aussetzen; im Wiederholungsfall tritt definitive Entlassung ein.

A. MCLBOD,

LOCAL UNION 1105, Springfield, Mass.

Whereas, It has pleased the Supreme Father of the Universe to remove from our midst our late brother, James White; and

Whereas, The intimate relations held by our deceased brother with the members of the union render it proper that we should place on record our appreciation of his services as a brother and his merits as a man; therefore be it

Resolved, By the members of L. U. 1105, that while we bow with humble submission to the will of the Most High, we do not the less mourn for our brother, who has been called from his labor to rest;

Resolved, That in the death of James White the union loses a brother who was always active and zealous in his work, ever ready to succor the needy and distressed, prompt to advance the interests of the union, devoted to its welfare and prosperity, an honest and upright man, whose virtues endeared him not only to the brothers of the union but to all of his fellow-citizens;

Resolved, That this union tender its heartfelt sympathy to the family and relatives of our deceased brother in this their sad affliction;

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of this union, and that a copy of them be sent to the family of the deceased brother.

LOCAL UNION 810, San Diego, Cal.

Whereas, In view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and brother, Matthew P. Edman, and of the still heavier loss sustained by those who are nearest and dearest to him; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our midst we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard; and be it further

Resolved, That we sincerely condole with the family on the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best and whose chastisements are meant in mercy; and be it further

Resolved, That this heartfelt testimonial of our sympathy and sorrow be forwarded to the family of our deceased brother, a page of our minutes set aside and these resolutions spread thereon, and a copy sent to our official journal, THE CARPENTER, for publication; and be it further

Resolved, That our charter be draped in black for thirty days.

DONALD MCKENZIE,
JAMES MCCORMACK,
J. E. CHERRY, } Committee.

LOCAL UNION 1198, Independence, Kans.

Resolved, That in the death of our brother, Joseph Hughes, we have lost one of the links in the chain of brotherly love which spans the earth, one of the defenders of human rights. We grieve to know that he has stepped out of our ranks forever. Others will step in to fill up the gap in the ranks of labor's hosts, and the battle for human rights will go on, but the vacancy caused by our brother's demise will remain vacant. His life work is over; he cast his lot with us for justice and humanity; he has gone to reap his reward. God bless his memory!

We extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy. Words fail us in the bitterness of our sorrow. We would urge you to face life bravely, realizing that he whom you now mourn fell as a hero in the battle for humanity and has gone to his reward in the great unknown. May God give you courage to face this great sorrow bravely and meekly and with a fixed determination to aid in carrying out your part in the great struggle in which he did his share so nobly. Peace to his memory! Peace! Peace!

Resolved, That the charter of L. U. 1198 be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the records of this union and that a copy be also tendered to the family of Brother Hughes.

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the home papers.

Prepare for Labor Day

ORDER NOW

THE ONLY OFFICIAL COMBINATION PARADE AND FUNERAL MULTIPLE BADGE

Local Unions contemplating the purchase of badges will be supplied with SAMPLE FREE when requested under the seal of Local Union.

This badge is the handsomest design ever produced with the official emblems of the Brotherhood thereon, and can be obtained through the General Office of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

THE MULTIPLE BADGE

Is a genuine departure from anything now used in the shape of a REVERSIBLE BADGE. In the top bar is a reproduction of the Brotherhood Union label, handsomely lithographed in colors, and in the second bar can be had the title of officers on those which may be ordered exclusive of those wanted with the word "MEMBER" thereon, without any additional charge for this service.

This badge is particularly commended in view of the fact that it is adapted for use in three ways:

A Meeting Room Badge, a Parade Badge and a Memorial or Funeral Badge.

THE ENTIRE BADGE can be used on the occasion of a parade or funeral, or for a meeting room badge, and when a smaller and more dignified badge is wanted the metal part can be COMPLETELY DETACHED and the ribbon placed away, thus protecting it against soiling. This is indeed a work of artistic beauty and symmetry, an emblem which every member of the Brotherhood can wear with pride.

The net prices on this badge are as below:

12 to 150.....60 cents each.
150 and over at.....56 cents each.

Above prices includes stamping the number and location of Local Union on parade side of ribbon in gold leaf and on reverse or funeral side in silver.

Don't delay ordering if you want badges in time for Labor Day.

THE GEM SCRIBER

useful to all mechanics, carpenters especially, and being very small, can be carried in the vest pocket. Cut is two-thirds actual size. Ask your hardware dealer for it and see that it bears the stamp of F. BRAIS & Co. For further information address

This series of Fred T. Hodgson's new works are to-day the approved and most helpful set of practical builders' "locators" published. They have been tried and found by architects, contractors, carpenters and builders to be efficient "aids" for advancement and thoroughly reliable for daily consultation as books of reference, covering as they do thousands of "self-help-points" necessary for all workers of wood.

The books are positively up-to-date and the "Carpenter" most heartily recommends them to everyone as the most valuable series of books for self-instruction published in the world on the subjects treated.

Doubled His Salary Through the I. C. S.

Before studying the Complete Architectural Course I was very skeptical as to the benefits of correspondence instruction, but can now say from experience that the I. C. S. method is very thorough and practical. Difficulties that appear insurmountable are led up to and explained in a way that makes one understand. The Bound Volumes are very valuable as a reference work, and the more they are used the more they are appreciated.

When I enrolled I had been working at carpentry for years. Thanks to the knowledge obtained from my Course, I am now a contractor at double my old wages. I make all the drawings and calculations required in my work, and superintend construction.

RAHWAY, N. J.—We are enjoying the eight-hour workday since last April, one year ago, and think we are entitled to be listed with the other eight-hour cities in THE CARPENTER.

SANTA ROSA, CAL.—The eight-hour workday being in operation here since the first Monday in May, 1902, Santa Rosa, Cal., is an eight-hour city and deserves a name on the list published in THE CARPENTER.

SPARTA, ILL.—Our local union has entered a new life in the last ninety days; it is full of vim and vigor and going ahead at a rapid rate. While there is lots of work, we have about enough resident carpenters to do it.

CLINTON, IA.—Fully ninety per cent. of the carpenters of this city are members of our union. While work is fair, we have no cause to brag about it. There is not the least sign of a boom here and more than enough resident carpenters to do the work on hand.

ENSLEY, ALA.—Work in the Birmingham District is opening up with a fair prospect for the coming season. The wages here are to remain the same for the current year, viz.: $2.80 per day of nine hours. Please list Ensley, Ala., among the eight-hour cities.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Local Unions 350 and 1444 of this city have organized a District Council. Both unions are in good working order; 1444, though still in its infancy, having been chartered in February of this year, is doing well and bids fair to grow in membership and otherwise.

RENO, NEV.—Bro. Hy. Meyer, the chairman of the G. E. B., paid us a visit on March 30, and after doing some missionary work during the day addressed a mass meeting in the evening. Bro. Meyer delivered a brilliant address in the proper strain, and we believe we have been greatly benefited by his visit.

WATERBURY, CONN.—The articles of agreement by which we are governed in our trade affairs having been signed for one year, we do not expect any trouble this spring, unless the master builders in this section of the State undertake to force the reference card on us, which we have decided not to handle, or recognize under any circumstances.

ANNISTON, ALA.—A movement being in progress for the adoption of a new scale of wages on May 1st, we would request all carpenters to steer clear of this place until we have accomplished our purpose. We have converted many craftsmen to unionism within the past year, and hope to be in a position to control all carpenter work in this locality in the near future.

LOVELAND, CAL.—In looking over the towns that are working under the eight-hour system we notice that our town is not on the list. We adopted the eight-hour system on the first of January; our wages are $3 per day. We had a good run of work but this season bids fair to be slack, and we would advise carpenters to avoid this place. The outlook is very unfavorable.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—Three years and a half ago there was no union in existence here; carpenters were at that time working nine hours at the rate of $1.80 per day. To-day New Albany is one of the best organized cities in the country; the eight-hour day is in operation, our minimum rate of wages is 31¼ cents per hour, and our union is strictly recognized by the Builders' Exchange.

MARSAILLES, ILL.—Work was plentiful last season, but, while we have not many men idle and prospects in general are fair, there is as yet no sign of a revival of business the coming season. Local Union 1057 was organized a little over a year ago and, with the assistance of our sister Local Union 661, of Ottawa, we succeeded in establishing the nine-hour day with a small increase in previous pay. We have 88 members in good standing. There are only a few carpenters here remaining aloof from the organization, and these do not work at the trade for a livelihood.

BRAZIL, IND.—Our local union is in a flourishing condition, and our members are very enthusiastic in the work. Our meetings are well attended and much good is being accomplished. There never was a better prospect for a good summer's work than at the present time; every one of our members is employed and there is a demand for men. Our relations with the contractors are satisfactory; they are giving us no cause for complaint.

GALVESTON, TEX.—Kindly take the name of Galveston, Tex., out of your list of localities where work is dull as it appears in the journal. This request, however, does not signify that trade conditions here have materially improved. But there are a number of non-union men working here, while at times we might possibly place union men in their places were they to be had. In our estimation the appearance of the "Dull List" and "Keep Away" notices in THE CARPENTER merely has the effect of keeping the union men away, while the non-union men, attracted by the notoriety given such places, are flocking to the very localities.

Keep Away From These Places

STEBENVILLE, O.—We would most urgently request all carpenters to stay away from this locality pending trade difficulties.

RED LODGE, MONT.—This is a very dull place at present; there are three union carpenters for every job. We have declared W. S. Smith, a contractor of this city, unfair for importing men here under false pretences. We advise carpenters to remain away.

MT. GARMEL, PA.—Owing to some difficulty existing between the contractors and our local union, and in the anticipation of trouble, we would request all carpenters to stay away from Mt. Carmel, Pa., until the controversy has been satisfactorily settled.

MASON CITY, IA.—Work is very scarce in this locality and numbers of our members are idle and walking the streets. We are encountering difficulties with our employers, owing to trade demands, and would ask all carpenters to stay away from this place for the present.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—All union and non-union carpenters are requested to stay away from St. Louis, as the city is overrun by mechanics of all building trades, and if you come without money you are taking desperate chances on getting your meals regularly, as hundreds of carpenters are stranded here, due to the efforts of newspapers in picturing St. Louis as the booming city on account of the World's Fair. Don't be misled; steer clear of St. Louis until further notice.

WAYNESBURG, PA.—Work in this city is quite dull at present, and a number of men are idle. Furthermore, we anticipate trouble with two planing mills that insist on working ten hours, while our trade rules call for nine hours. Wages range from $2.00 to $2.75 per day. Stay away from Waynesburg, Pa.

CALIFORNIA, MO.—Everything is starting off nicely this season, but there being plenty of men here to do all the work contracted for, we would advise carpenters to remain away for a short time at least. Prospects for a busy building season being fairly good, our next report may contain gladder tidings.

BERWICK, PA.—We desire to notify all brothers, that, having failed to secure the signatures of some of our employers to our new trade rules, we were compelled to place them on the unfair list. Pay no attention to "ads" stating that carpenters are wanted in Berwick; there are plenty of men here to do the work.

JONESBORO, ARK.—Although we are very reasonable in our demands, asking only for a reduction of an hour per day, and business being prosperous, too, it is hard to tell what the outcome of the difficulty will be on the 1st of May. We would advise all carpenters to keep away until we have come to an understanding with the contractors.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Cabinetmakers and machine hands are urgently requested to remain away from this city, nearly one hundred men having been thrown out of employment through the recent fire which destroyed the entire plant of the Hayden Company. This company was the first firm to grant the nine-hour day and an advance from ten to fifteen cents without a struggle, and also the first firm to grant the eight-hour day and thirty cents per hour, to become effective on May 1st. Under the circumstances this calamity is a blow to Local Union 231; the members thus afflicted have our full sympathy in their heavy loss, and deserve the sympathy of the members of the U. B. at large, which we trust they will manifest by staying away.

BETHLEHEM, PA.—Anticipating trouble on or after May 1st, when we expect our demands to take effect, we desire all carpenters to stay away from this place until the difficulty has been adjusted.

LINTON, IND.—Work being very slack here at present we would advise all carpenters to steer clear of this place until further notice. Quite a number of our members are unable to secure employment because of lack of work.

BOWLING GREEN, KY.—Owing to very unsatisfactory trade conditions in this city and vicinity we would advise carpenters traveling through the State not to stop at Bowling Green. Work is scarce and the outlook gloomy.

PORT HURON, MICH.—In view of the unsettled trade conditions and our contractors still stubbornly combatting our demands, we would request all carpenters to assist us in our struggle by staying away until the existing difficulty has been settled.

CAMDEN, S. C.—Business is almost at a standstill here and there is nothing doing. Fifteen of our members are out of employment for some time, unable to secure a job. We would advise all carpenters to give this locality a wide berth pending a revival of trade.

MADISON, ILL.—In view of the fact that there is a great influx of craftsmen to this city seeking employment, which almost as a rule they fail to secure, we would inform the brother carpenters throughout the country that this is a good place to avoid this season. We have a good many of our own members idle as a consequence of slackness of work. Our jurisdiction includes Madison, Venice and Grant City.

NEWARK, N. J.—We again call on all carpenters to keep aloof from this city until our trade affairs have been satisfactorily adjusted, and would once more warn them against A. R. Wyatt, business agent of the Amalgamated of this city. We are now up against this injurious organization, and are sure to win if our men do their duty and outsiders remain away.

POMONA, CAL.—Our local union here is in a fairly good condition. We have over one-half of the resident carpenters in our folds. Still we don't propose to remain on our oars as long as nearly another half of the men of our craft remain on the outside; we would like, and are endeavoring to get them all to join. The brothers will greatly assist us in this endeavor by staying away until further notice. Business is dull; we have more men here than needed to do the work.

ALBERT LEA, MINN.—As far as indications go there will be plenty of work here this season, but there are more than sufficient resident carpenters to do it, and we would advise brothers to remain away from this place, the more so as our relations with the contractors are not at all what we wish them to be, they refusing to recognize our organization. We would warn all carpenters not to pay any attention to advertisements stating that help is needed here, as the contractors threatened they would import outside non-union labor to frustrate our efforts for better conditions. We have a good membership, and no doubt will bring the contractors to time if outsiders do not drop in on us while these unsettled conditions prevail.

WAUKEGAN, ILL.—We are out on strike for an advance in wages, and therefore would call on carpenters to stay away from this place until further notice. We shall send in a full report on the situation in a day or two.

AUBURN, N. Y.—Our demand for an increase in wages of 5 cents per hour, to take effect on May 15th, having been rejected by our employers, we urgently request carpenters to remain away until we have arrived at a settlement of the matter in dispute.

CLEVELAND, O.—As a consequence of the brickmakers' strike here the building business is to a great extent tied up and no work obtainable for new-comers, even not on clearance cards. We have large numbers of men walking the streets. Stay away until the brickmakers strike has ended.

BRUNSWICK, GA.—A good many carpenters are lately arriving in this city, apparently misled by the Steel Plant reports, and in consideration of this unwarranted influx of men at the present time we deem it our duty to let all carpenters know that not before the lapse of three months will there be any men wanted on this plant. It will be in the interest of idle brothers, as well as our own, to stay away from Brunswick until further notice.

CROWLEY, LA.—Never, since 1892, has business been so dull here as it is at the present time, the cause of it being a shortage of crops last fall. We have had a very wet winter and spring, which has demoralized everything in the rice belt, and plowing and planting is retarded. In spite of this deplorable state of affairs real estate agents are sending literature broadcast, painting a beautiful picture of this section of the country. Members of the U. B. are advised to pay no attention to this literature and keep away if they do not want to be idle.

Entertain Bro. Myers of G. E. B.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

In response to a telegram from the General Office announcing the arrival in Pueblo, Colo., of Bro. Myers, a member of the G. E. B., the members of Local Union 362 combined their efforts to entertain the visitor to the best of their ability. Bro. Myers addressed our meeting and interested our members for over three hours, pointing out the true road to reach the topmost round in the ladder of unionism.

After recalling a number of instances that happened at the Atlanta convention Bro. Myers opened the pages of our official journal, THE CARPENTER, and proclaimed to the members present that within its pages the fundamental principles of the most vital question of the present age—the economic question—are enunciated and advocated in a manner that the most humble wage-worker will ere long become thoroughly acquainted.

Every one in attendance at the meeting was most pleased with Bro. Myers' remarks, and after adjournment a committee escorted him to his hotel and on the following morning, after spending a pleasant hour at our meeting hall, the visitor was escorted to the depot. We are fully convinced that Bro. Myers' visit to this city had a very beneficial effect on our membership, and the occasion will long be remembered by Local Union 362, of Pueblo, Colo. R. A. RHODES, R. S.

Monster Parade in New York City

Over 12,500 men, members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, of the five boroughs comprising Greater New York, assembled in Washington Square at 10 A. M. on the 20th of April, and marched up to the Manhattan District headquarters, in East 73d street, under the marshalship of General Secretary Frank Duffy. There were 21 brass bands and 4 fife and drum corps heading the different sections. The parade, the largest ever held by any one single trade in New York City or any other place on the globe, was one of the most orderly and best disciplined that city ever witnessed. Its object was to arouse public sympathy in the interest of the Brotherhood in their strike against the Amalgamated Carpenters and to show their vast superiority in numbers and otherwise over this foreign organization with headquarters in Manchester, England.

Every man in line carried a small American flag, manifesting the patriotic character of their organization, some carrying banners bearing the inscription: "American Labor or American Citizens."

The parade had only been suggested three days previous and every one was highly elated at the big showing made and its decidedly grand success. After the procession had reached headquarters a big mass meeting was held, at which the strike situation was discussed and addresses delivered by General Secretary Frank Duffy, T. J. Sullivan, member of the General Executive Board; J. J. Manning, of Brooklyn, and others.

An Up-to-Date Book—No Infringement

It has come to our notice that the Industrial Publishing Co. has been circulating our local secretaries claiming that the book, "Modern Carpentry," by Fred T. Hodgson, was an infringement on the copyright of their "Steel Square," also making other remarks detrimental to the book advertised in this journal for the past three months.

There is absolutely no truth in these statements, as "Modern Carpentry" is conceded to be an up-to-date book.

Movements for Better Conditions

LOCAL UNION 931, MANCHESTER, N. H.—By a unanimous vote of this local union it has been decided that we demand a scale of $2.50 per day, the new scale to take effect on May 1st next. Our demands being very reasonable, we are confident of success in this move.

LOCAL UNION 961, SUMMIT, N. J.—After May 1st we expect an increase in wages of ten per cent. and a Saturday half-holiday, having made a demand to that effect upon our employers, and the trade conditions not warranting a refusal on their part. We are working eight hours.

LOCAL UNION 902, LAWTON, OKLA. TER.—This local union has decided to demand an increase in wages of 8¼ cents, making our minimum scale 35 cents per hour for nine hours' work. We do not anticipate any trouble in getting our demand granted, but would request all carpenters to keep away pending negotiations with our employers and until a satisfactory settlement has been effected.

DISTRICT COUNCIL, KNOXVILLE, TENN.—We have made a demand upon our employers for a minimum scale of 30 cents an hour and nine hours per day, but up to the present time no reply whatever from the contractors has been forthcoming. Work being rather scarce here just now, we would desire to be placed on the list of dull towns. We also request union men to stay away from Knoxville until our trouble is settled.

LOCAL UNION 626, WILMINGTON, DEL.—We have asked for a raise in wages, to become effective on the first Monday in May, 1903. Being fairly well organized, and prospects for the coming season's work being favorable indeed, we are hopeful of getting our demand granted without any difficulty. The eight-hour system having been inaugurated in this city in May, 1902, we would ask you to list Wilmington, Del., among our eight-hour cities.

LOCAL UNION 1286, BEATRICE, NEB.—We have established 25 cents as a minimum wage, to remain in force until March 1, 1904. This action of our union has prompted some unscrupulous contractors in circulating a report that we intend to raise wages to such a price that it will stop practical building in this city. We have refuted this misleading statement through the local press, and further misrepresentation will be met with more forcible logic and terms.

LOCAL UNION 1190, BELLEFONTE, PA.—We have asked the contractors for an advance in wages of 2½ cents per hour for carpenters and 1½ cents per hour for mill men, making the pay for carpenters $2.25 per day of nine hours and $2.40 per day of ten hours for mill men. Our committee waited on the employers and obtained the signatures of both mills and three contractors to the new scale. One contractor who refused to sign last August has signed this spring, while one contractor who signed last August is still off the list this time. The men employed by this contractor all being union men, they having quit on the first of April, and the contractor having a great deal of work on hand, he will undoubtedly come to time ere long. We can place all the union men still out with the other contractors.

LOCAL UNION 971, RENO, NEV.—While the old contractors are still holding out against us and refuse to recognize our union, they were compelled to adopt the eight-hour system and pay the union scale of wages. This change of attitude on the part of the old contractors was brought about by the competition of new contractors entering the field, who, being more friendly disposed toward organized labor, have agreed to all of our terms and employ all of our men. It is our belief that the old contractors will completely surrender before the close of the present season.

Successful Trade Movements

KOKOMO, IND.—All has been settled here satisfactorily and we will have no strike, the contractors having signed our agreement calling for 30 cents an hour.

OSSENING, N. Y.—Owing to precarious trade conditions in this locality, we were obliged to go easy in our demands, and the bosses meeting us half way, we have accepted their offer of three dollars per day of nine hours; thus a strike has been averted.

LOGANSFORD, IND.—Our contractors have acceded to our demands and signed the new scale providing for a wage of 30 cents an hour and 20 cents, or as much more as they can get, for men working at the trade two years. The mill men are receiving 25 cents an hour.

BRIDGEPORT, O.—There will be no trouble in this locality this spring, all of our demands having been granted by the contractors. We are now working eight hours for the same wages we received for nine hours. Work is plentiful at present and the outlook for the coming summer is good.

OSWEGO, N. Y.—Every one of our contractors has signed our new schedule providing for eight hours work and same pay as for nine hours, without any trouble. Nothing but repairs are being done at present, at which, however, nearly all our members are employed. Please place Oswego on the eight-hour list in our journal.

OTTAWA, ILL.—We are pleased to advise the brothers that all trouble that might have accrued from our demand for an advance in wages has been avoided the same as on previous occasions. On the 10th of April we had a third conference with our contractors, when they agreed to a minimum scale of 27½ cents per hour for nine hours' work.

CHANUTE, KAN.—It is with pleasure we report having a satisfactory contract with all but two of our contractors. Our working hours are nine per day and the minimum wage $2.50 per day, time and a half for overtime and double time on Sundays. The spirit of unionism is growing here every day; we have completed the organization of plasterers, hod-carriers, stonemasons and the steam laundry workers.

ANDERSON, IND.—The movement entered into recently for a uniform eight-hour day and a scale of wages of 35 cents an hour minimum has met with complete success, all of our demands having been granted in full by the employers. Great enthusiasm prevails among our men over this easily won victory, and we wish all our struggling sister locals the same success.

CLINTON, IA.—After a strike of one week's duration our bosses have conceded to us the minimum wage scale of 30 cents an hour. While on strike we offered the public to do all work required ourselves and at the old rates. This had the effect of bringing the employers to time within a week. We are now working for the bosses again, and everything is running along nicely.

LINCOLN, NEB.—With the exception of mill-hand affairs everything is going along smoothly at this time of writing. The eight-hour system took effect on April 7th and, as far as carpenters are concerned, Lincoln, Neb., is now an eight-hour city. We have a committee at work which is endeavoring to bring the mill men also in line, and we hope that their efforts will be crowned with success.

KENOSHA, WIS.—On April 1st we demanded eight hours a day and a scale of 35 cents an hour minimum, which demand was granted by all firms but one. On April 2d, through the moral assistance rendered us by the bricklayers, this firm was also brought to time, and we had won the day throughout. At the present time we are not aware of any of our members being out of employment, and everything seems to be running smoothly.

SPARTA, ILL.—Before the close of the past year we made a demand upon our contractors for an eight-hour day and 30 cents per hour minimum, to take effect on January 1, 1903. We agreed to finish all contracts entered into by any contractor previous to the above date at the old scale and had the satisfaction of having our demands acceded to without the slightest dissension. Please add Sparta, Ill., to the eight-hour column of our official journal.

ABERDEEN, WASH.—We commenced working eight hours on April 1st, our demand having been granted without any trouble; every brother went to work on that day just the same as before. Two years ago we were working ten hours per day for $2.50 per day; under the present system our minimum scale is $3.00 per day, some receiving $3.50. Every one here has his eye on the carpenters' union, as it seems to take the lead in all undertakings in labor's interest.

SPRING VALLEY, ILL.—Our new schedule providing for an eight-hour work day, 32½ cents an hour minimum, and 40 cents an hour for foremen, went into effect on April 1st, a settlement having been reached without any difficulty. We enjoy at present the most prosperous conditions and the relations between the union and the contractors, as well as between our membership, are perfectly harmonious. The avoidance of all trouble is partly due to the fact that a number of our contractors are members of the union.

FREDERICKSBURG, VA.—Local Union 1078 of this city has secured the nine-hour day, the reduction of hours to take force on July 1, 1903. We are now engaged in organizing other trades in this locality, and should success crown our efforts, we will be in a position to make a demand for eight hours per day and an advance in wages as well. The working population of this vicinity is somewhat retarded and unionism is to them a novelty; consequently we must go slowly, hoping that time and circumstances will bring us a change for the better.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—There is no likelihood of a strike here this season, our demand for an advance in wages of five cents per hour having been acceded to and our agreement signed by the contractors. The new scale providing for an eight-hour workday, as before, and 35 cents an hour for carpenters, and nine hours per day and 27½ cents per hour minimum for planing mill men, will take effect on May 1, 1903. We gained this victory through negotiations with the employers and without having to resort to a strike.

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y.—As a result of our negotiations with a committee of the Builders' Association, our difficulty here has been adjusted to the satisfaction of both parties concerned. We have adopted a minimum wage scale of $2.25 per day, being an increase of 36 cents. The Builders' Association has also agreed to recognize the union, even the cartmen and the teamsters delivering material on the jobs will henceforth have to be union men. This alone is a gain much to be appreciated, as it will strengthen our position for future emergencies.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—Local Unions 69 and 949 on the 16th day of March demanded the nine-hour day, and the employers refusing to accede this demand, all union men quit work. After a strike of only two days duration the shorter workday was granted us, and this time the non-union men had to get off the jobs. The result of this success was a gain in membership for the two unions of about 100 men. Everything is quiet at present and we are well satisfied with the situation, although work is somewhat slack at this moment. Let the good work go on.

CLEVELAND, O.—We have good news for the brothers. An agreement has just been reached between the District Council and the contractors providing for a wage scale of 37½ cents per hour from April 1st to June 1st, and 40 cents per hour from June 1st to April 1st, 1904, and further providing for the employment of union men exclusively. On March 31st we had the largest meeting of carpenters ever held in this city, at which great enthusiasm prevailed over the successful outcome of our move. The carpenters in this part of the country are becoming thoroughly aroused to their interests; they are beginning to make way.

WINDSOR, ONT., CAN.—Our demand for nine hours and 25 cents per hour minimum has been acceded to by our employers without any struggle, and everything is going on nicely. The mill owners signed our agreement in the afternoon and the last one of the contractors on the evening of March 31st. The employment of union men exclusively was also conceded to us. On the evening of the 31st we held a rousing meeting, nearly every member turning out to hear the favorable report of the committee, which, when rendered, was received amid great enthusiasm and greeted with resounding cheers. Prospects for a good season's work are bright. We wish all other unions the same success that we have met with.

DUQUESNE, PA.—The eight-hour workday was established here on the 1st of April. Sharpsburg, McKees Rocks, Clairton and Wilmerding, all in this State, are also working eight hours. These five towns are entitled to a place in our eight-hour list.

BOONVILLE, IND.—The contractor who has caused so much trouble has come to terms, and all of his men have resumed work. We have secured the nine-hour day with a minimum scale of $1.75 per day. Everything having been settled satisfactorily, affairs are moving along as smoothly as ever.

OSWEGO, N. Y.—We are glad to be in a position to inform the brothers that our trouble with the bosses has been adjusted and the eight-hour day conceded to us. All the contractors have signed our agreement as we presented it to them, and we are now entitled to a place among our eight-hour cities. All the building trades here, excepting the metal workers, who work nine, are now working eight hours.

DETROIT, MICH.—Thirty-five cents an hour minimum is the new scale in force here since the first of April, a gain of five cents per hour over last year's wages. Over eighty contractors have signed our agreement and are paying the increase without a murmur. A small cloud is looming up, however, regarding non-union material, but, thinking that we can handle this matter without any trouble, we are not worrying much about it.

PERU, ILL.—Our strike has ended with a victory for our union. It was declared off on April 16th, after the Board of Arbitration, which had taken hold of the matter, after four hours of investigation and deliberation on the contested points, had decided in our favor. By the board's decision we are to get 36 cents per hour minimum, an increase of 9 cents per hour. Much credit is due Bro. Scott G. Cunningham, sent on here by the G. P., for the successful issue of our movement; he proved an able representative. Peru, Ill., is now entitled to be classed among the eight-hour cities.

BURLINGTON, IA.—Early in February we appointed a committee for the purpose of submitting our new trade rules, calling for eight hours per day and 35 cents an hour, to the associated bosses. They refused to take action on them, and stated through the daily papers that they would neither recognize our union nor meet our demands. Through the efforts of Bro. Kent, the general organizer, sent on here by our G. P., the controversy has been satisfactorily settled; we have obtained the eight hours and accepted 32½ cents per hour as our minimum scale. Please place Burlington, Ia., on the list of eight-hour cities.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS, ILL.—Our agreement with the Contractors' and Builders' Association, pending settlement since last January, is to-day "signed up." With the exception of one or two minor points our victory is complete. The only point severely contested was our demand for 45 cents per hour, an advance of 7½ cents over last year's wage scale. Conceding two minor points, the loss of which is not worth mentioning, we obtained the coveted 45 cents. We organized on October 16, 1899, with a membership of 20. At that time working hours were ten per day and wages 17½ cents per hour, accompanied by abuse common to unorganized labor. In four short years we have increased our wages to 45 cents per hour and shortened the hours from ten to eight, or 48 hours per week. After this latest victory we feel justly proud in stating that we have surely drawn our share of the craft out of the gutter into the light of living wages, and are still commanding the respect of our employers. There is little show for traveling carpenters at this moment, but we hope the field will be open for more later on.

BRADFORD, PA.—As late as March 28th we received an answer from our bosses to our demand made upon them on January 1st for an advance of 25 cents per day over last year's scale. This answer not being satisfactory, all men working for contractors who at that time had not signed our new scale, went out on strike on April 8th. On the 14th, however, the builders association acceded to our demand and the strike was declared off.

St. JOSEPH, Mo.—On January 1st, this year, we notified all contractors by mail that on and after April 1st carpenters' wages would be 37½ cents per hour minimum. While we received no advice from our employers as to their intentions in regard to the advance demanded, at our meeting held on Saturday following the 1st of April, all reported having been paid 37½ cents per hour. Hence our demand has been acceded to.

SANDUSKY, O.—The pleasant relations existing between the union and the contractors will continue undisturbed this season. A committee representing both parties met in conference on the 18th of April when the contractors agreed to pay the scale of 27½ cents minimum for nine hours demanded. Everything appears to be all right.

LOCKPORT, N. Y.—Thanks to the good advice from the General Office and the assistance rendered us by its representative, Bro. McFarlane, we have succeeded in obtaining the increase in wages demanded. Our former scale of wages was $2.43 per day, and at present we are receiving 30 cents an hour minimum.

Who Can Locate Them?

Walter Eugene Bates disappeared from his home in Minneapolis, Minn., on April 10th, and his wife is unable to find any trace of him. He is a member in good standing of the U. B. in above city; he is 41 years of age, smooth shaven, about 6 feet in height, blue eyes, of medium light complexion, and weighs about 165 lbs. Members or readers who can give any information as to Brother Bates' present whereabouts will kindly communicate with the General Office.

Paul Kapfer, formerly a member of Local Union 402, Pittsburg, Pa., left that city, in October last, and since that time his friends have been unable to locate him. Any member, or reader of this journal, being aware of the whereabouts of said Paul Kapfer, who may also be known by the name of Kupfer or Kapler, will confer a great favor upon his friends by communicating with the General Office.

Want to Inaugurate Reference Card System

The contractors of Bridgeport, Conn., affiliated with the Interstate Employers' Association, have hit on a novel plan to exclude men objectionable to them from employment. This plan, should the men permit it to become operative, would deprive them of the liberty to work for whom they choose and place them on the same level with female or male domestics whose services are not limited to certain working hours, dwelling and living with their employers. This novel idea had its origin in the brain of A. W. Burritt, a Bridgeport builder, who has made himself notorious for his antagonism to organized labor, and who apparently has succeeded in obtaining the adherence of the larger portion of the Bridgeport contractors to his scheme, and they have adopted the reference card system, in which three different cards are used, of which the subjoined are fac-similes:

This REFERENCE CARD CERTIFIES that
Name of workman.....
Name of his craft.....
Has been employed as such by the undersigned
Signature of member
Date.....190... Bridgeport, Conn.

USE THIS WHEN WORKMAN LEAVES YOUR EMPLOY.

Bridgeport, Conn. Date1903.
The workman named below left the employ of the undersigned to-day:

USE THIS WHEN WORKMAN HAS NOT BEEN PREVIOUSLY EMPLOYED BY A MEMBER OF THE ASSOCIATION.

Bridgeport, Conn. Date1903.
Hired to-day (workman's name)
Name of his craft.....
He was formerly employed by
In the town of.....
Signature of member

The first one is used when a man, previously in the employ of a member of the Employers' Association, applies for work.

The second is used when the workman is for the first time employed by a member of the Association, and the third one is a card given those men who are in no wise objectionable to the employers.

The contractors claim that these reference cards are really meant to protect the men, and that no square and faithful worker need be afraid of these cards; but even their glib-tongued agent, Thad. B. Beecher, fails to show the men where that protection comes in. The contractors, by inaugurating this reference card system, intend to protect themselves only, if any one, and their object is as clear as daylight to any unbiased mind. They contend that the benefit they expect to derive from the use of this card is, that it enables them to tell whether the men applying for work are competent mechanics, suitable or otherwise, and whether they have been involved in any strike or other trade disturbances, or not.

This evidently shows that by means of this card the contractors intend to discriminate against those men, however competent they may be, who are devoted to labor's cause and take an active part in their union's affairs.

A man who may be the best fitted in his craft may, by the use of this card, be shifted from one employer to another, and from one locality to another, without becoming aware that he is the object of cruel and relentless discrimination. This reference card puts the slave yoke on a man's neck and brands him as the negro was branded in the days of slavery. It is an onslaught on the fundamental principles of all labor organizations, aimed at their disruption and destruction. The system is unjust and un-American; should it become operative, it would put the laboring class back into the middle ages during the time of the inquisition. We trust that our brothers in Connecticut will not surrender their dignity as citizens of this republican country and members of this great United Brotherhood. We hope that the various local unions in the State will co-operate with each other, take a decided stand in the matter and fight this system to the bitter end.

The Strike in New York City

On the 7th of April the District Council of Manhattan, N. Y., declared a strike on all buildings where members of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters were employed, as well as in all shops turning out trim work for these buildings. This action was taken by the Manhattan D. C. as a last resort to right a crying wrong for which our New York brothers have repeatedly but vainly sought redress.

For a number of years past the Amalgamated has deliberately violated the agreement entered into between it and the U. B. by admitting delinquent U. B. members and members under fine, and has, in many cases, displaced our men on the best jobs and taken the places of our men out on strike.

Finally, in the early part of 1901, the conditions became so unbearable that the Manhattan District Council decided "immediately to take steps to bring about one organization of carpenters." The Building Trades Council, with which both organizations were affiliated at that time, was notified of this resolution, but took no action. Shortly thereafter a firm of builders undertook to use non-union trim on two buildings located at Sixty-third street and Madison avenue, and at Battery Park. The Brotherhood men working on the building in Sixty-third street were discharged, being told that they would not handle that stuff anyhow, it being non-union material, and, on the following day Amalgamated men took their places. The District Council then declared a strike on all work being done by this firm, and the war against the Amalgamated was on. Despite the efforts of the Amalgamated Society to fill the places vacated by the Brotherhood by importing men from Boston, Washington and other cities, and advertising for non-union men to take out cards in their organization and fill the places of the strikers, they failed; and after a few days the Brotherhood won and all Amalgamated men were removed from these jobs. It was then they sought the assistance of the Building Trades Council, and that body demanded that the Brotherhood abrogate their agreement with this firm and have the Amalgamated men reinstated, which the Brotherhood refused to do. Suspension from the Building Trades Council followed, and the Brotherhood entered the Board of Delegates of the Building Trades. All trades connected with the Council then struck against this firm to secure the reinstatement of the Amalgamated men on their work, and, after a strike of several weeks' duration, were defeated, returned to work, dissolved the Building Trades Council and joined into a new body with the Board of Delegates under the name of United Board of Building Trades, which body is in existence to-day. By this action both the Brotherhood and the Amalgamated again became members of the same central body.

However, immediately after the formation of this body it decided "that all trades remain neutral in all matters as to and between the United Brotherhood and the Amalgamated Carpenters." The war went on. The Amalgamated persistently refused all overtures and propositions for an amalgamation of the two organizations.

Last spring a strike of nearly two hundred Brotherhood men took place on the Stokes Hotel at Seventy-third street and Broadway against unfair trim received from Detroit. No Amalgamated men were then working on the job. This grievance was found just, and was supported by all other trades stopping work in sympathy with the Brotherhood. In a week's time the matter was settled by the contractors signing an agreement to rectify the matters complained of, and the trades returned to work. Within a day or two, however, it became apparent that the contractors did not intend to perform their part of the agreement, and the Brotherhood men again stopped work. Then the Amalgamated carpenters went to work in the places of the striking Brotherhood men. Complaint being made to the Board of Delegates by the Brotherhood, they refused to take action, and the Brotherhood consequently severed its connection with the Board.

Some time previous to their withdrawal from the Board the Brotherhood representatives asked that body for the endorsement of a demand for an increase in wages from $4.00 to $4.50 per day, to take effect on July 1, 1902. A decision was passed by the Board and accepted by the Brotherhood delegates, changing the date to September 1st and endorsing the demand. The increase was obtained after a two days' battle, during which the Amalgamated Carpenters this time joined hands with the Amalgamated Woodworkers in supplying the employers with men, they themselves filling our men's places wherever and however they possibly could. The Amalgamated Carpenters thus openly violated the Board's decision endorsing the demand for an increase; nevertheless that body, when appealed to by the Manhattan D. C., again refused to take action against the Amalgamated.

To any one not familiar with New York conditions the attitude of the Board relative to the differences existing between the Amalgamated and the U. B. may be, to say the least, inexplicable. Any casual observer will naturally be at a loss to understand the reason why the members of the various building trades represented in the Board failed to call their delegates to account for discriminating against the American union, nearly 6,000 strong in Manhattan Borough alone, and taking issue with a foreign organization, with headquarters in Manchester, England, and only counting 3,515 members in the United States and Canada, according to their own official report. It must, however, be understood that the delegates to the Board of Building Trades in New York City are exercising an influence over their constituencies unequalled by those of any other city or town. Aside from this, and in consequence of the divisions and the incessant, long and wearisome factional strifes among the carpenters in New York during the past ten years or more, the membership in the building trades, almost as a rule, looks at any matter in dispute in the carpenter trade with indifference, if not with disgust, leaving it to the discretion of their representatives in the Board to act and use their own individual judgment in these matters.

A very significant feature in this fight is the support rendered the Amalgamated and the Board of Building Trades by the boss carpenters and manufacturers, their policy being to nurse the existing differences in order to keep the men of our trade divided against each other, to play one organization against the other to their own advantage and to prevent the formation of one single organization of the carpenter trade in this country, which is the aim and endeavor of the United Brotherhood.

As on previous occasions, the Amalgamated Carpenters, as well as the Amalgamated Woodworkers, are daily advertising for non-union men to join their organization and take our men's places. They have established employment bureaus in New York and other cities, and although they have imported men from Boston, Washington and other cities, they still have failed to supply sufficient men to keep the most important jobs going. This strike has unmistakably demonstrated the fact that the bosses have to rely on the Brotherhood members to do the carpenter work required in New York City, and whatever the outcome of it may be, this alone is an achievement which sooner or later will bear fruit.

First Vice-President (A. F. of L.) Duncan's Report on Joint Conference

In accordance with an invitation from the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. delegates representing the U. B. of Carpenters and Joiners, and the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, both of New York City, met President Gompers and Vice-President Duncan, representing the A. F. of L., in the Ashland House, April 10, to discuss the causes leading up to the pending strike.

Incidental to the situation the statement was made that as a result of correspondence between President Gompers and the national executive officers of both organizations, arrangements had been made for a conference to consist of five delegates from each organization, those ten to select an eleventh man as umpire, which board was to arrange for amalgamation as per the resolution on that subject passed at the new Orleans convention of the A. F. of L. last November.

This information, after considerable discussion, was favorably received by both delegations, as it would not only be a solution of the pending dispute in New York City, but also similar troubles in the carpenter trade throughout North America. After consideration of the question, and in order to re-establish full operation of all carpenter work in New York City, the following was offered by Vice-President Duncan as a basis for settlement:

First. That all contention between the two organizations should cease, pending adjustment of the dispute by the above-mentioned conference.

Second. That working conditions as they existed immediately before the present strike shall be restored; and there and then all employment for union carpenters in New York City shall be open to carpenters carrying the card of the U. B. or of the A. S.

Third. That the United Board of Building Trades be notified by the A. S. of this adjustment, so that action taken in support of the A. S. might be altered to conform with the foregoing conditions.

Fourth. That the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. urge upon the executive officers of the U. B. and of the A. S. to hold the joint conference at the earliest possible date, preferably within the next ten days, so that friction shall cease and harmony be restored for the welfare of the second largest trade union in North America.

As a basis of settlement the foregoing was satisfactory to the delegates of the U. B. but was rejected by those representing the A. S., who also desired an opportunity to consult the United Board of Building Trades before taking final action.

Ultimatum Presented by Amalgamated Society Delegates

We do not deem it advisable at the present time to enter into any arrangement with this conference without first consulting the United Board of Building Trades, inasmuch as the conditions prevailing in our craft in this city are the result of the acts of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners discriminating against our members, and; therefore, we respectfully state that it devolves upon the U. B. of C. and J. to take the necessary action to restore normal conditions whereby the members of both organizations (the U. B. of C. and J. and the Amal. Soc. of C. and J.) can work together in harmony.

This is the ultimatum presented by the Amalgamated Society delegation, through Sam'l Roberts, on pending dispute (April 10, 1903) among New York carpenters.

Resolutions Adopted at Exec. Council Meeting A. F. of L.

The following resolutions were adopted by representatives of the U. B. and the Am. Society of Carpenters and Joiners at the meeting of the Executive Council of the A. F. of L., held at Toronto, Canada, April 22, 1903:

We, the representatives of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America and of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, agree to recommend the following as a basis for the settlement of the New York controversy in our trade, and for a meeting of the committee of five of our respective organizations to select an eleventh member of the committee to act as umpire, as provided by the decision of the New Orleans Convention of the American Federation of Labor:

First. That all contention between the two organizations should cease, pending adjustment of the dispute by the above mentioned conference.

Second. That working conditions, as they existed immediately before the present strikes, shall be restored, and, there and then, all employment for union carpenters in New York City shall be open to carpenters carrying the card of the U. B. or of the A. S.

Third. That the United Board of Building Trades be notified by the A. S. of this adjustment, so that action taken in support of the A. S. might be altered to conform to the foregoing conditions.

Fourth. That the Executive Council of the A. F. of L. urge upon the executive officers of the U. B. and of the A. S. to hold the joint conference at the earliest possible date, preferably within the next ten days, so that friction shall cease and harmony be restored for the welfare of the second largest trade union in North America.

Fifth. That if the representatives of both organizations make this recommendation, the Executive Council here in session will also urge the United Board of Building Trades of New York City to agree to the same.

Sixth. That the committee of five representing each organization meet within twenty (20) days for the selection of the eleventh member of the joint committee to act as umpire and proceed to carry out the decision of the New Orleans Convention of the American Federation of Labor, which reads as follows:

"The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and the Amalgamated Association of Carpenters and Joiners request that the committee consist of five from each organization, they to select an umpire or arbitrator, to meet on or before the first day of March, 1903, for the purpose of amalgamating the two organizations."

WM. D. HUBER,
President of U. B.
WM. B. MACFARLAND,
THOS. ATKINSON,
Amalgamated Society.
THOS. BARROW,
JOHN COLEMAN.

By Order of the Executive Council,
SAMUEL GOMPERS,
President of A. F. of L.

Attest:
FRANK MORRISON,
Secretary of A. F. of L.

Report of Committee on Amalgamated Woodworkers

The committee appointed by you to meet a like committee from the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union for the purpose of defining the jurisdiction of the respective organizations, would respectfully submit the following report:

The committee of the United Brotherhood, as per request, met at the General Offices in Indianapolis, Monday, February 23, one day prior to the time of the convening of the joint committee, and agreed to adhere strictly to the jurisdiction as laid down in Sec. 64 (a) and (b) of our General Constitution.

On Tuesday, February 24th, at 10:00 A. M., the joint committee met in the parlor of the Occidental Hotel. Present on behalf of the United Brotherhood:

George J. Bohnen, Union No. 476, New York City; J. E. Potts, Union No. 33, Boston, Mass.; J. H. Clark, Union No. 964, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. H. Brower, Union No. 363, Elgin, Ill., and R. Fuelle, Union No. 47, St. Louis, Mo.

On the side of the Amalgamated Woodworkers International Union were:

Thos. I. Kidd, Chicago, Ill.; R. Braunschweig, Chicago, Ill.; C. F. Gebelein, St. Louis, Mo.; E. D. Mulcahey, Detroit, Mich., and Geo. Guntner, Boston, Mass.

It soon became evident that both sides occupied entirely opposite grounds, and on motion it was agreed that both sides present names of an umpire, the same also to act as chairman of the meeting.

Before proceeding to this, your committee decided that it would be advisable, before entering into any negotiations, that an expert stenographer be employed to report verbatim the entire proceedings of the committee. The offer had been made by your committee to the committee representing the Amalgamated Woodworkers' Union, that if they desired to avail themselves of the services of such stenographer, and would pay one-half of the expense attached thereto, that the stenographer should be hired jointly and act as official stenographer for both sides. This they declined and stated their intention of engaging a stenographer of their own.

Your committee then requested the G. S., Bro. Duffy, to engage a stenographer for the services of your committee, and Secretary Duffy, in accordance therewith, did engage the firm of Garber & Carpenter, official stenographers of the Marion County Courts of the State of Indiana, who was present from the time of the convening of the committee until its close, and reported verbatim the entire proceedings of your committee.

The following names were presented for our consideration as umpire, or eleventh member of the committee, by the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union:

C. S. Darrow, E. A. Agard, W. D. Mahon, D. Black, C. O. Sherman, M. Donnelly, D. Kreyling, W. Klapetzky, P. J. Downey, H. G. Call, E. J. Lynch, W. Penje and M. Higgins.

We presented the names of:

W. B. Wilson, Jas. Hatch, T. D. Nichols, C. Dold, M. Barnes, J. L. Feltman, M. Taylor, J. P. Dempsey, C. M. Beatty, F. Shoppen, M. S. Hayes and O. M. Eidletz.

Max S. Hayes and C. Dold were positively objected to by the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, and your delegates substituted the names of J. J. Keegan and Samuel Parks for the above two.

After all of the above names had been voted for and rejected, and only the names of P. J. Downey of Albany, N. Y., and Samuel Parks of New York remained to be balloted for, by an error of one of the delegates of the United Brotherhood in casting a ballot for P. J. Downey, the latter received six votes and was thereupon declared elected as umpire. The committee then decided to notify P. J. Downey of his selection and adjourned to await his arrival.

Mr. Downey arrived on the forenoon of Friday, February 27th, and the joint committee went into session at 1:30 P. M. of the same day in the parlor of the Occidental Hotel. At the first session of the committee several preliminary questions arose for settlement, one of them being the presence of two stenographers—one for each side—and as the Chair desired a copy of the proceedings, the fact became apparent that possible differences in the report might occur between both stenographers, and it was decided that the chairman should each day be furnished with a verified copy of the proceedings of the preceding day, verification to consist of comparison of the reports of the two stenographers, and if any differences appeared, the same were to be corrected previous to adoption.

It was further agreed that the committee was to remain in session until all the evidence was in; that the umpire should then render his report and decision; that nothing should be admitted as facts unless substantiated by evidence, and that the committee should not adjourn sine die until the decision rendered by the umpire had been entered and made part of the record of the proceedings. This was insisted upon by your committee, practically for the purpose of avoiding any outside influence or interference in this controversy.

The committee then proceeded to the taking of evidence in the case proper.

Your committee being called upon to open the case, proved by the Constitution of the U. B. from 1886 to the present day that we did have jurisdiction over all shop men, machine woodworkers, bench hands, cabinetmakers, etc., engaged in the manufacture of trim or in shop-made carpenter work. As the Amalgamated Woodworkers' Int. Union claimed to possess that jurisdiction, we there rested to require them to show where they obtained such jurisdiction.

Circular Letter

Brother D. A. Post, Secretary of the General Executive Board, reports to me that many communications, appeals, grievances, demands, etc., are sent to him at his home address in Wilkesbarre, Pa., with a request that the same be submitted to the forthcoming meeting of the General Executive Board, thus giving him more work than was intended should fall to his lot.

In order not to show any discourtesy, Bro. Post has tried to answer all such communications up to the present time; but as this is not part of his duties, and as there are no provisions made for a recompense for time lost, he will refrain from doing so in the future.

This organization decided at the Convention in Atlanta, last year, and the same has been ratified by the vote of our membership at large, that the General Office of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners be located at Indianapolis, Ind. As we have only one General Office at the present time, it becomes necessary on my part to call the attention of our Local Unions, District Councils and entire membership to the fact that the business of this organization must be done through the General Office alone.

Besides that, Section 31 of our General Constitution very plainly and distinctly specifies that "All correspondence and appeals for the General Executive Board shall be sent to the General Secretary."

Let me hope that I will not have to call your attention to this matter again. We are now a great, big business institution, and business must be done in a business-like manner. Fraternally,

FRANK DUFFY,
General Secretary.

Local Secretaries, Please Take Notice!

The attention of all Local Secretaries is hereby referred to our list of Recording and Financial Secretaries as it appears for the first time in this issue of our Journal. The General Office has taken particular pains in having this list as complete and correct as possible. It comprises all names and addresses of both Recording and Financial Secretaries recorded at the General Office on the 25th of April, the day on which the issue went to press. Secretaries will please look over the list carefully, and, failing to see their name or address inserted, or discovering an error, communicate with the General Office without delay.

The blank postal card furnished every Local Union, containing a list of offices, should be filled out correctly and plainly, and in the event of any secretary not having any such card at his disposal when any change is required, he should send in name and address of the respective officer or officers, on a separate sheet of paper, and by letter.

Spot Him.

All brothers are warned against a man who last summer was initiated by Local Union 587, Coatesville, Pa., giving his name as Robert Spahr. He, after paying no further dues, and his membership card showing him to be four months in arrears, went to Harrisburg, Pa. He secured employment on the Y. M. C. A. building of that city, where the job steward on examining his card found his dues credited two months ahead. Through correspondence and investigation it was found that Robert Spahr, by forging the signature of S. A. Bell, F. S. of Local Union 587, Coatesville, on his membership card, had fraudulently credited himself with six months' dues. Upon the disclosure Spahr disappeared for parts unknown. He is short and stout, of sandy complexion, smooth face and very near-sighted. Spot him.

Their claim, as submitted to the umpire, was based on an alleged agreement made by the United Brotherhood with the Machine Woodworkers' International Union at the convention of the U. B. in 1894. Being challenged to produce the agreement referred to, they had to admit that no formal agreement was ever entered into or signed by their organization. They then fell back to show that the Machine Woodworkers' International Union had jurisdiction over machine men since its formation in 1890, and that the International Furniture Workers' Union had similar jurisdiction, as well as jurisdiction over cabinetmakers and bench men since its formation in 1873; that the amalgamation of the two above named organizations in 1895 under the name of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union carried with it the jurisdiction claims, rights and agreements of both organizations previous to amalgamation; and then they advanced the further claim that in 1897 a new agreement had been entered into between the General Executive Board of the United Brotherhood and the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union.

In entering on the evidence in rebuttal to these claims your committee showed that the Machine Woodworkers' International Union at its formation in 1890 was not chartered by the American Federation of Labor, owing to a protest entered by P. J. McGuire, and that charter was not issued until said protest was withdrawn, after a meeting of our G. E. B., at which meeting assurance was given by Thomas I. Kidd, of the Amalgamated Woodworkers, that they would not claim jurisdiction or infringe on the jurisdiction of the U. B. over machine hands engaged at that trade.

Further, that the report of the Organization Committee of the Indianapolis Convention of the United Brotherhood, before which Mr. Kidd appeared, as shown by the records of that convention, was not an agreement, nor was it intended as such, but was simply a presentation of the views of that committee, which was adopted by the convention, and subsequently, in a later proceeding of the same convention, abrogated and nullified, in that the same convention decided to take in and admit to membership, with the consent of the Local Unions and District Councils in the localities affected, all unions of cabinetmakers, framers or machine woodworkers engaged on carpenter work.

Also that the fact of Mr. Kidd appearing before the said convention and pleading for an opportunity to be given him to have the machine woodworkers in his organization was prima facie evidence that he did not have jurisdiction over machine woodworkers, or others engaged in carpenter shops, or at carpenter work. Your committee showed that had it been the intention of the Indianapolis convention to surrender jurisdiction over those branches of the trade, or men engaged therein, to the Amalgamated Woodworkers I. U., it would have been necessary for the convention to alter the section of the constitution relating to the qualifications for membership, debarring specialists engaged in that branch of the trade thereafter from membership in the organization, and would have been compelled to submit this question to the referendum vote of the organization, which was not done, and is further proof that no agreement of that kind had been entered into by the said convention. The admission of Delegate Kidd, of the Amalgamated Woodworkers I. U., that no formal agreement was entered into or signed at that convention, and that the only knowledge he has of any such agreement was a verbal communication given him by P. J. McGuire in the lobby of the Hotel English in Indianapolis, is further proof of that fact.

Further, your committee showed by the evidence submitted by the Amalgamated Woodworkers I. U., as regarding jurisdiction of the International Furnitureworkers since 1873, as per their constitutions submitted, that their jurisdiction, claimed and exercised, was solely over cabinetmakers, bench hands, machine woodworkers, and others engaged at furniture work. Further, that the consolidation of the International Furnitureworkers' Union and the Machine Woodworkers' International Union could not give them any jurisdiction which either did not previously possess, and had the effect of abrogating all agreements entered into between either of these organizations, as no agreement can outlive the life of the parties thereto, unless specifically stated in the agreement to that effect. We further showed that the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, since its formation, has for years endeavored to obtain from the United Brotherhood an agreement, and that is prima facie evidence that none existed, and it was shown further that the alleged agreement made between that organization and the General Executive Board of the United Brotherhood was never consummated. It was further admitted by the other side that the said proposed agreement was never ratified by the United Brotherhood.

Further, it was shown that the agreements given nationally, or understandings arrived at, were abrogated at the convention of the United Brotherhood held in New York in 1898, and therefore, even if it were held that the concession granted by the Indianapolis convention to the machine woodworkers was valid, that said concession was only operative to the consolidation of the machine woodworkers and furniture workers in the fall of 1895, or one year about; that the attention of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' I. U. was repeatedly called to that fact, subsequent to the amalgamation; that no agreement admittedly was entered into, and that we have held undisputed jurisdiction over all branches of the carpenter industry since the formation of our National organization in 1881.

We desire further to call your attention to the fact that despite the understanding entered into at the opening of these proceedings, Mr. P. J. Downey left the city and at the time of his so leaving had not any of the transcripts furnished by the stenographer of the closing arguments, and that upon returning he had a carbon copy of the typewritten decision in his possession, which was arrived at without any consideration of the closing arguments presented by either side and that said arguments were not taken into consideration in the decision arrived at.

On March 11th, 1903, at noon, all evidence having been submitted and the case closed for both sides, the committee adjourned subject to the call of the chair, to give the chairman time to digest and consider the evidence and arrive at a decision.

On March 16th, at 2:30 P. M., the committee reconvened to receive the decision of the chairman, which was read from typewritten copy, one copy being furnished to the Amalgamated Woodworkers' representative and one to the representatives of the United Brotherhood. The decision in full is as follows:

By the passage of a resolution at the New Orleans convention of the American Federation of Labor, the question of the differences existing between the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union of America and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America was referred to a committee to be composed of five representatives of each of the above named organizations for the purpose of effecting a settlement, and on their failing to agree an umpire was to be chosen to decide the points in controversy. Being convinced that it would be impossible for the two committees to arrive at a satisfactory settlement, and before commencing to produce evidence on the matter in dispute, they selected the undersigned as umpire, with instructions to hear all evidence and arguments on both sides, to give a decision and his reasons therefor.

Being entirely disinterested, and having no previous knowledge of the facts in controversy, with only a desire to promote harmony and good feeling, and after a careful consideration of the arguments and evidence produced, I submit the following decision and my reasons therefor, as in my best judgment I think proper, just and equitable.

First. Uncontradicted evidence was produced showing that the Machine Woodworkers' International Union was organized in 1890. P. J. McGuire, at that time General Secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, objected to the American Federation of Labor granting a charter to the machine woodworkers, but in 1891 Mr. McGuire withdrew his objection and the Machine Woodworkers' International Union was granted a charter by the A. F. of L. From 1891 to 1894 the Machine Woodworkers' International Union created an agitation amongst the mill men of the country for organization and no objection was offered by the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners. As a further incentive to the right of the machine woodworkers to the control of men who worked in mills, the convention of the B. of C. held at Indianapolis, Ind., September, 1894, passed the following resolution:

THE RESOLUTION.

"We, your Committee on Organization, having consulted the most active spirits in the following cities, viz.: Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, New York, Brooklyn, and Cincinnati, regarding the request of the Machine Woodworkers' International Union, beg leave to report as follows:

"We find that the universal opinion of the representatives from the above-named cities leads us to believe that it would be to the best interests of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and organized labor in general, that the Machine Woodworkers' International Union be granted entire jurisdiction over all mill hands, except carpenters, who may at times be engaged in mill work, or millwrights, or stair builders. In the event of a mill hand desiring to be transferred to the M. W. W. I. U. he shall be obliged to pay all indebtedness to the local union, and the M. W. W. I. U. shall place him immediately in benefit in that organization; and should a Mill Hands' Union be desirous of transferring to the M. W. W. I. U. it shall first pay all indebtedness to the U. B. and be granted a charter and outfit complete, free of cost, and each member be placed immediately in good standing in the organization.

"We recommend that the U. B. give their support to the M. W. W. I. U. in assisting them to organize their trade throughout the country."

At the Carpenter's Convention in 1894 a resolution was also offered by a Union of Mill Hands in Cincinnati, requesting the convention to endorse their label. The Carpenters' Convention, by resolution, referred the request of the Mill Hands' Union to the International Union of Machine Woodworkers. In view of the fact that they had granted the machine woodworkers exclusive control of all mill hands, this resolution was accepted by the representative of the machine woodworkers, who was present at the convention on behalf of his organization.

During a session of the International Furniture Workers, held at Cincinnati, O., in 1894, representatives of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, Machine Woodworkers and Furniture Workers held a meeting for the purpose of endeavoring to effect a consolidation of the three organizations. The attempt to unite the three bodies was ineffectual, the evidence showing that the representatives of the carpenters plainly stated that it was not practical for the carpenters' organization to be a part of the amalgamation. Notwithstanding this fact one union of cabinet makers in New York seceded from the parent body and was granted a charter by the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

THE AMALGAMATION OF THE MACHINE WOODWORKERS AND THE FURNITURE WORKERS' INTERNATIONAL UNION.

In 1895 the International Furniture Workers' Union (which was organized in 1873) amalgamated with the Machine Woodworkers' Int. Union. Both of these trades had jurisdiction over cabinetmakers, furniture workers and woodworkers in mills and factories.

In 1895 the representatives of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' Int. Union entered a protest with the Secretary of the U. B. of C. against the action of that organization granting a charter to the machine woodworkers of New York City. Mr. McGuire acknowledged that a charter was granted, but claimed the union which had received the charter was composed largely of men who were employed both in mills and on buildings, and assured the representatives of the Woodworkers' International Union that the Indianapolis agreement would be lived up to.

Some friction did exist between local unions of both organizations in the years 1895 and 1897, the officers of the Brotherhood of Carpenters claiming they were not responsible for local differences. The general officers of both organizations finally decided that something should be done to create harmony, and in the fall of 1897 the following agreement was drawn up and ratified by the Executive Boards of both organizations.

THE AGREEMENT OF 1897.

It is hereby jointly agreed by the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, hereafter to be known as the A. W. W. I. U., and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, hereafter to be known as the U. B., that, First, The A. W. W. I. U. be granted entire jurisdiction over all mill hands, except carpenters that may at times be engaged at mill work, or millwrights, or stairbuilders. Second, The terms of this agreement shall not apply to those that are now members of the U. B. and who are employed in planing mills. Third, The U. B. shall have sole jurisdiction over outside carpenter work and in the putting up of office and store fixtures.

THE CARPENTERS' CONVENTION.

The representatives of the U. B. of C. contend that their Constitution gives them jurisdiction over all planing mill bench hands and cabinetmakers engaged in carpenter work. They allege that the action of the Indianapolis Convention in 1894 was illegal and contrary to the Constitution of their organization; that they have never surrendered the right of their control of machine hands and cabinetmakers; that in order to be a successful and progressive organization they are entitled to jurisdiction and control of all men who work on woodwork used in the construction of and repairing of buildings. Whilst they admit that the agreements entered into in 1894 and 1897 can not be denied, they contend that the 1897 agreement made by their Executive Board was unconstitutional, as it was not ratified by the District Councils and Local Unions of the Brotherhood.

They (the carpenters) further state that in consequence of the evolution in the carpenter industry, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, in convention assembled at New York City in 1898, assumed jurisdiction over all millwrights, planing mill bench hands and cabinetmakers engaged at carpenter work, or running woodworking machinery, and that all contracts and all agreements entered into with any other organization of woodworkers were abrogated and declared off.

In 1900 the convention assembled at Scranton, Pa., reaffirmed and ratified the action of the convention held in 1898, by which the carpenters claimed control of machine and cabinetwork. At this convention (1900) they (the carpenters) absolutely refused to recognize any other woodworking organization, and claimed entire control of all men, in accordance with Sec. 64 of their Constitution.

GROUND FOR THE DECISION.

It is plainly evident from the testimony presented that the U. B. of C. and J. of A. deliberately violated all terms of the agreement made and entered into with the Machine Woodworkers at the Indianapolis Convention in 1894, and by and between the Executive Boards of the Amalgamated Woodworkers and the U. B. of Carpenters and Joiners in 1897, without consulting the officials of the Amalgamated Woodworkers, after the consolidation of the Furniture Workers with the Machine Woodworkers, and their adoption of the name A. W. W. I. U. gave the A. W. W. I. U. control and jurisdiction over all woodworkers in planing mills, furniture factories and cabinetmakers in interior finish factories.

No attempt was made by the Carpenters' Brotherhood to organize the above named trades in their organization, and no objection was offered by the representatives of the Carpenters' Brotherhood to impede the progress of legal right of the Machine Woodworkers to the control of men working in mills, furniture or cabinet shops. Under this agreement the Machine Woodworkers devoted their time and money to the organization of the unorganized men in mills, factories and cabinet shops with the firm belief that the agreement entered into with the carpenters would be kept inviolate.

Not until 1898, four years after the agreement was made, did the carpenters officially claim control of the trades under the jurisdiction of the woodworkers. All agreements with the woodworkers were abrogated, and without any official notification to the parties interested. Then the carpenters set to work to destroy the unions of the Amalgamated Woodworkers by offering inducements to the woodworkers' local unions to desert their organization and affiliate with the Brotherhood of Carpenters. Not a particle of evidence was produced to show that the Amalgamated Woodworkers did at any time violate any section or part of the contract entered into with the Brotherhood of Carpenters.

THE DECISION.

After a careful survey of the situation and in accordance with the evidence and testimony produced, and in view of the fact that the Brotherhood of Carpenters did give the Amalgamated Woodworkers control over the woodworking trades enumerated in the Constitution of the Woodworkers' International Union, I hereby decide that all woodworkers in planing mills, furniture and interior finish factories come rightfully under the jurisdiction of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, but the members of the said organization (the A. W. W. I. U.) shall not be conceded the right of jurisdiction over millwrights and stairbuilders, or to work on buildings, or in the putting up of store and office fixtures.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners shall have absolute jurisdiction over all work on new and old buildings, and in the putting up of store and office fixtures. It will be understood that this decision does not interfere with any local agreement that may now obtain, or be entered into hereafter; nor does it affect, interfere with or abrogate any agreement or agreements made and entered into with the Amalgamated Woodworkers and other unions, concerning the jurisdiction of other trades who may be employed on finishing, varnishing, wood carving or painting of wood and cabinet work in mills, factories or buildings.

Respectfully and fraternally submitted,
(Signed) P. J. DOWNEY, Umpire.

Your delegates refused to accept this decision on the following grounds:

First. That it is neither in accordance with the facts or the evidence.

Second. That it was distinctly understood when this committee met, and it is on the record, that a decision was to be given and arrived at here before the committee adjourned.

Third. That it was distinctly understood, when this committee convened, that nobody who had been in any way connected with the dispute previously, or had been a party to giving any of the the previous decisions, should be eligible as umpire. Mr. Downey has admitted during the course of these proceedings that he was the Secretary of the Grievance Committee of the Scranton convention of the A. F. of L., and according to our understanding he became ineligible to act as umpire, though we do not blame him for trying to be consistent in giving a similar decision.

THE COMMITTEE THEN ADJOURNED.

Objections were then entered by your representatives, who requested to be placed on record as refusing to accept the decision rendered, on the grounds stated above.

The committee then adjourned.

In substantiation of the above contentions we respectfully draw your attention to the following facts: On page 932 of the proceedings the umpire, in rendering his decision, says: "Being entirely disinterested and having no previous knowledge of the facts in controversy * * *." This is shown to be false, as it appears on the records of the Scranton convention of the American Federation of Labor where P. J. Downey, as Secretary of the Grievance Committee, reported on the resolution introduced by the Amalgamated Woodworkers against the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, and decided that we had violated the alleged Indianapolis agreement.

Further, on the same page, 932, he states that uncontradicted evidence was produced showing that the Machine Woodworkers' International Union was organized in 1890, and P. J. McGuire at that time protested against the American Federation of Labor granting a charter to the said organization, but that in 1891 said objection was withdrawn.

We call your attention to page 295 of the proceedings, wherein statements are made that the objections were withdrawn after the Machine Woodworkers' International Union had satisfied our General Officers and the General Executive Board that it did not intend to infringe upon the jurisdiction of the United Brotherhood over machine men engaged in their trade.

On page 933 the umpire says: "At the convention of the United Brotherhood, held in the city of Indianapolis, a resolution was passed, giving jurisdiction to the Machine Woodworkers' International Union." The proceedings show that no resolution was passed to that effect, but that the substance matter quoted by the umpire as a resolution was merely the report of the Committee on Organization of that convention.

On page 934 the umpire states that: "At the Indianapolis convention of the United Brotherhood, in 1894, a resolution was also offered by a union of mill hands in Cincinnati, requesting the convention to endorse the label; that the convention, by resolution, referred the request to the International Machine Woodworkers' Union, in view of the fact that they had granted the Machine Woodworkers' Union exclusive control of all mill hands."

The umpire fails to consider the fact that, as shown in the evidence, page 147, the Indianapolis convention, subsequent to concurring in the report of the Committee on Organization practically reconsidered and abrogated the said report by deciding to admit unions of cabinet makers, machine and bench hands, with the consent of the respective local unions and district councils in the localities interested. Further, that the concession granted by the report of the Committee on Organization was not intended to embrace machine woodworkers, mill hands, cabinet makers, or bench hands, employed in shops or factories engaged in the manufacture of trim and other shop-made carpenter work, as shown by the fact in evidence, pages 379-383, and the proceedings of the Indianapolis convention of the United Brotherhood in not altering the Constitution, so as to make those men ineligible to membership in this organization.

The report of the Committee on Constitution was given to and adopted by the Indianapolis convention to the report of the Committee on Organization, which shows that no such agreement as claimed by the Amalgamated Woodworkers, was entered into with the Machine Woodworkers' International Union, and Secretary Kidd admits, on page 120 of the proceedings, that no agreement to that effect was ever signed, and the only knowledge of the action of the convention was given him verbally by P. J. McGuire in the lobby of the Hotel English in Indianapolis.

The International Furniture Workers' Union and the Machine Woodworkers' Union, in a new organization called the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union, had the effect of abrogating all existing agreements between either of those organizations and the United Brotherhood, and that this fact was brought to the attention of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union by Secretary P. J. McGuire (see letter, page 387), and, further, that the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International Union recognized this fact by endeavoring from that time forward, as the evidence shows, to obtain from the U. B. a new agreement.

On page 938, the umpire states that "The U. B. admits that the agreements entered into in 1894 and 1897 can not be denied." This statement is unqualifiedly false, as the entire evidence submitted to you verbatim shows that the U. B. has never admitted anything of the kind, and that the entire contention and evidence produced by the U. B. from start to finish shows that we deny and have proven that no agreement was entered into at the convention in Indianapolis in 1894. On page 938, the umpire further on states: "The carpenters further state that in consequence of the evolution of the carpenter industry the U. B., in convention assembled in New York City in 1898, assumed control and jurisdiction over all millwrights, planing mill bench hands and cabinetmakers engaged at carpenter work or running woodworking machinery." This statement of the umpire is also totally false and without the slightest foundation. Nowhere in the evidence, as submitted to you, will you find any such contention made on the part of the carpenters, while on the contrary, the facts, as shown by the evidence submitted to the umpire, show our undisputed jurisdiction in all those branches of carpenter work since 1886 (see pages 101 and 104) to the present date, and also show that in 1890 the Machine Woodworkers' Union applied to the Brotherhood of Carpenters for concession to take in all machine woodworkers into their organization, and their claim of having jurisdiction dating from the alleged agreement made at Indianapolis goes to prove that they derived jurisdiction, if any they had, from the carpenters, and consequently the carpenters could not assume control over any branches of the trade which we have proven that we had control of since the formation of the organization.

On page 939 the umpire states that "No attempt was made by the United Brotherhood to organize the machine woodworkers, mill hands and bench hands into their organization, and that no objections were offered by the representatives of the Brotherhood of Carpenters to impede the progress or legal right of the machine woodworkers to the control of men working in mills, furniture factories or cabinet shops." This is again entirely disregarding the evidence submitted by the U. B., which showed that of the total number of local unions of the U. B. represented at the Indianapolis Convention twelve were composed exclusively of cabinetmakers and millmen, and that the U. B. had organized these special branches of the carpenter trade before the organization of the A. W. W. I. U. Also that we have continuously and successfully to the present time organized the above branches, and have at the present date about 45,000 members in good standing engaged in those branches of the trade.

On page 940, the umpire says: "Not until 1898, four years after the agreement was made, did the carpenters officially claim control of the trades under the jurisdiction of the woodworkers." The evidence submitted to the umpire, as shown by the certified records, proves by the Constitution and other evidence of the U. B. submitted, that at all times previous to 1894, and from 1894 to 1898, and from 1898 to the present time, the United Brotherhood did officially claim control of the above mentioned branches of the trade.

Again, on page 940, the umpire states: "Not a particle of evidence was produced to show that the Amalgamated Woodworkers did at any time violate any section or part of the contract entered into with the B. of C." It has already been shown above that no contract existed between the A. W. W. I. U. and the U. B. of C.; but if, by a wide stretch of imagination, the umpire construed the report of the Committee on Organization of the Indianapolis Convention, relating to the M. W. W. I. U., as an agreement, it was shown by your delegation, page 477, that this agreement was violated by the A. W. W., in that they entered into a local agreement in Chicago, demanding of the employers, parties thereto, the employment of men carrying the card of the A. W. W. I. U. exclusively, despite the fact that Mr. Kidd had agreed with the Organization Committee, as shown by their report, page 42, proceedings of the Indianapolis Convention of the U. B., to recognize the U. B. card in all factories, shops and planing mills.

An Appeal From the Horseshoers

NEW YORK, March 16, 1903.

To the Officers and Members of Organized Labor Throughout America and Canada, Greeting:

The International Union of Journeymen Horseshoers of the United States and Canada, affiliating with the American Federation of Labor, and the tenth oldest national organization in the United States, has been battling for its life in the city of New York. The strike dates from December 16, 1902, involving 600 men, and has cost our organization the sum of $25,000.

We have demanded an increase of pay and the use of the Union Label, but both demands have been ignored by the Master Horseshoers' Association, one of the strongest and most powerful organizations financially in America. The object of this association is to annihilate the last vestige of that unionism that asks for a reasonable remuneration for labor performed. During the strike forty of our members have been arrested and thrown into jail.

Our treasury has been taxed to its capacity in supporting 600 men in their battle for justice against injustice. The power of the Master Horseshoers has been concentrated to wreck our organization, and this association of despots, whose wealth has been wrung from ill-paid toil, has made judicial tribunals instruments of oppression to subjugate the brave men who have fought so valiantly for the deathless principles of organized labor. The battle of the Journeymen Horseshoers is a battle of humanity against greed. It is a war against that exploitation, which, if successful, would reduce the American laborer and mechanic to the menial and degrading position of a serf. No man, whose life is cramped within the narrow and contracted sphere of poverty, can be a good, law-abiding and self-respecting citizen. Our organization is demanding a remuneration and a recognition that will enable the members of our craft to live above the squalor of want and wretchedness. We appeal to the members of organized labor in every State of the Union and Canada to come to our rescue with financial support, and with the necessary sinews of war we can wrest victory from the iron hand of arrogant tyranny and soulless cupidity. ROADY KENEHAN, Secretary-Treasurer, International Union of Journeymen Horseshoers.

The Fight Getting Hot

Never in the history of the American Federation of Labor has such a systematic fight been made on a scab newspaper as that now being waged against the Los Angeles Times. While the fight against the New York Sun attracted national attention, it was not a national fight, as the battle was financed by the union printers of New York City.

In the movement against the Los Angeles Times, every member of the International Typographical Union—no matter where located—is contributing monthly. This is the first instance in the history of the International Typographical Union—the oldest labor organization in North America—where all of its members have contributed to be used in unionizing one paper.

President Gompers and all the national labor leaders are much interested in this fight, as the Los Angeles Times, in addition to being printed by scab labor, has done everything in its power to destroy organized labor on the Pacific Coast.

But it is now fighting for its life.

Seventy-six out-of-town ads. have been withdrawn since this movement commenced, the St. James Medical Co., Emil Frees' Hamburg Tea, Black Abbott, Carter's Little Liver Pills, Diamond Dyes and Paine's Celery Compound having withdrawn within the past two weeks.

Following is a list of advertisers who have spurned the requests of organized labor: "Cuticura," Potter Drug and Chemical Corporation, Boston, Mass.; "Force," The Force Food Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; "H. O." Hornby Oatmeal Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; "Postum" Postum Cereal Co., Battle Creek, Mich.; Lydia E. Pinkham Medical Co., Lynn, Mass.; "Tutts Pills," Tutts Mfg. Co., N. Y. C.; "Peruna," Peruna Medical Co., Columbus, O., and Wilson Whisky, Wilson Distilling Co., 100 Broadway, New York.

Will every reader of the Carpenter write letters to all of the above as well as withhold patronage until such time as their advertisements are withdrawn from the Times? This line of work has resulted in more than three-fourths of the "foreign" advertisers in the Times withdrawing from that paper, as they soon tire of the constant bombardment of letters.

This will cost you eight two-cent stamps. Will you spend this amount to defeat the worst enemy organized labor has ever had?

INSTRUCTIONS

Sur La Procédure A Suivre En Cas De Grève Ou Suspension De Travail Provisoire (Lock-Out)

1. Communiquez vos demandes à tous les patrons-charpentier, constructeurs et entrepreneurs de votre localité, par circulaires ou lettres, sous la signature et adresse de votre Secrétaire Archiviste et demandez une réponse écrite.

2. Nommez un membre ou un comité parmi les ouvriers de chaque atelier ou chantier, qui se rendra auprès du patron et ensuite fera son rapport à l'Union sur la réponse, favorable ou non, reçue du patron.

3. Exigez de votre Union Locale ou C. de D., s'il en existe, de nommer un comité de conférence composé de trois membres capables et prudents qui se rendra auprès des entrepreneurs et des patrons qui n'ont pas répondu aux circulaires ou lettres, ou qui refusent de consentir aux demandes. Ce comité devra être composé de bons ouvriers respectés dans le métier, il devra faire les plus grands efforts afin de régler la difficulté sans recourir à la grève. Le comité devra agir prudemment, être affable et se conduire en gentil-hommes. Il ne devra pas chercher à en imposer par de fausses représentations et par un déploiement de manières arrogantes et brutales. Soyez courtois et raisonnable et employez tous les moyens honorable qui pourront concilier les patrons. Allez voir chaque patron individuellement et s'il existe un Echange, ou Association de patrons, entrez en négociations avec les entrepreneurs faisant parti de ce corps, mais n'oubliez pas les patrons en dehors de l'Association, ils doivent eux aussi être visités et consultés. Si vos demandes contiennent plusieurs points et que vous ne pouvez obtenir le consentement des patrons à tous sans recourir à la grève, alors concédez en quelques-uns et par ce moyen évitez la grève.

4. Si vous ne réussissez pas par ce stratagème en temps convenable communiquez le fait au Bureau Général qui enverra un député avec mission d'effectuer un règlement à l'amiable si possible. Il arrive très souvent qu'un patron, pour des raisons personnelles et autres, préfère traiter avec un représentant de la direction générale de l'organisation pendant qu'il paie peu d'attention à une personne de la localité. De plus, il arrive que les personnes de la localité affectée, ont opposés les entrepreneurs et la présence d'un médiateur est nécessaire pour effectuer le rapprochement des deux partis.

5. Comprenez bien que les quatre formalités précitées doivent être remplies avant la déclaration de grève; et de plus, pour déclarer la grève il faut un vote au scrutin secret des deux tiers des membres en règle.

6. En cas de grève ou suspension de travail les membres impliqués doivent élire un comité de cinq membres prudents et capables qui devront se réunir chaque jour et qui devront élire un président, un secrétaire et un trésorier. Il est du devoir du secrétaire de transmettre régulièrement un rapport sur la situation et l'état des affaires au Secrétaire Général.

7. Les membres impliqués dans une grève ou suspension de travail doivent se rendre deux fois par jour, l'avant-midi et l'après-midi, répondre à l'appel. Des réunions des grévistes doivent avoir lieu le matin de chaque jour. Procurez vous, s'il est possible, de bons orateurs résidant dans la localité et faites leur adresser des paroles d'encouragement aux grévistes.

8. Des piquets doivent être placés à chaque gare de chemin de fer et à tout autre endroit donnant accès à la ville, et aussi des piquets doivent surveiller chaque atelier et chantier où les membres sont en grève. Ces piquets doivent se tenir dans les limites des lois civiles, éviter tout acte de violence et toute perturbation de la paix. Les piquets devraient faire un rapport au quartier général le soir de chaque jour ou plus souvent s'il est nécessaire.

9. Entretenez des relations amicales avec les représentants de la presse, les agents de police, les autorités municipales et le public pour que vous ayez leur bienveillante sympathie pendant le conflit.

Tout autre renseignement sera volontairement fourni en s'adressant aux sous-signés. Salut fraternel,

WM. D. HUBER, Pres. Gén.

FRANK DUFFY, Sec. Gén.

La Situation Économique des Ouvriers Travaillant le Bois

II.

Dans notre premier article nous avons parlé des dangers de notre métier, principalement de la branche des charpentiers. Nous allons donc voir, quel sont les désavantages du menuisier, c'est-à-dire, l'ouvrier qui pose et ajuste le travail fait dans l'atelier et la fabrique. Deux fois par an, en plein été et en plein hiver, le menuisier traverse une morte saison. Au printemps les bâtiments se construisent, et ne sont guère assez avancés pour permettre au menuisier de commencer son travail, tandis qu'en hiver, tantôt c'est le manque de travail, le plus grand nombre des constructions étant terminées, tantôt c'est le mauvais temps, le grand froid qui les empêche de gagner leur maigre salaire. Dans les villes du Nord Ouest, principalement au Canada, la moyenne des journées de travail dans une année se monte à peine à 200, ce qui met le salaire gagné à peine à 1, ou 1.25 doll. par jour. Ceci compte pour les ouvriers, qui jouissent d'une bonne santé; mais combien grand est le nombre de ceux, qui sont atteints d'une maladie, dû au métier. Les courants d'air qui traversent le bâtiment incomplet attaquent les bronches, les poumons, et propagent des maladies de poitrine. L'humidité qui règne, émanant des plâtres mal séchés, des eaux infiltrant les caves, des toitures mal jointes, mettent les germes du rhumatisme dans le corps de l'ouvrier. Sans compter les dangers d'une chute d'un échafaudage, d'une échelle, et de tout autres hasards qui constamment mettent la vie du menuisier en péril.

Il est encore un autre, non moindre désavantage, qui pour le menuisier crée une dépense extraordinaire, qui lui est nullement tenu compte, C'est l'entretien et l'achat de son outillage. Bien des travaux exigent un outillage qui ne coûte pas moins de 50 à 100. Non seulement qu'il faut souvent renouveler cet outillage, mais encore disparaissent-ils très souvent du bâtiment, ou des maraudeurs se mettent en possession de ces outils, qui coûteront les épargnes du menuisier pour plusieurs semaines.

D'autres sujets de plaintes s'offrent aux menuisiers. Le bâtiment est à peine terminé que le patron ou le contremaître le met à pied. Il n'y a pas assez de travail pour tous, donc on renvoie la moitié ou plus des hommes occupés jusqu'à présent. Le maçon n'est pas assez avancé ou la fabrique n'a pas livré les fenêtres, les portes, les boiseries ou le bois pour les planchers, alors il faut attendre. C'est des fois le plombier qui n'avance pas son travail, cela fait perdre du temps au menuisier. Il résulte de cela une perte de temps, qui rogne le maigre salaire de l'ouvrier, qui, malgré le chômage, doit nourrir sa famille, qu'il travaille ou non. Les enfants ont faim, la femme a besoin de vêtements, on ne peut vivre sans manger et se couvrir, mais le père ne travaille pas, donc, il faut se priver, et faire comme on peut.

Pour obvier à tout ces maux, il ny a que la chambre syndicale qui puisse le faire. Organisez vous, ouvriers menuisiers, joignez vos frères du bâtiment, et vous souffrirez moins de tous ces maux. L'union ouvrière vous aidera à avoir de meilleurs salaires, et vous permettra de diminuer les heures de travail. Elle vous donnera l'occasion de placer quelques cents par mois dans une caisse de secours mutuels pour les cas de maladies, et sera prête à supporter votre famille en cas de mort, quelle soit prématurée ou non. La somme minime que ceci vous coûtera par mois, vous rapportera le double et plus, sans compter l'avantage que vous aurez auprès de vos patrons et contre maîtres, eux sachant que vous appartenez à une organisation puissante qui saura vous protéger.

Ne voyez vous pas tous les grands entrepreneurs, constructeurs et patrons divers, s'organiser en trusts, empilant de gros capitaux, dans le but d'élever leurs profits et de diminuer vos salaires? Croyez-nous, ouvriers du bois, cette concurrence que se font les entrepreneurs, se fait sur votre dos, sur vos petits salaires, sur le pain quotidien de vos petits enfants. Suivez donc l'exemple d'organisation des patrons, et unissez vous, et comme eux vous serez fort, comme eux vous dicterez les conditions dans les quelles vous voulez bien accepter d'enrichir la classe de gens qui ne produit rien et consomme toujours, toujours à vos dépens.

Dans un prochain article nous parlerons des ouvriers ébénistes.

ALPHONSE H. HENRYOT.

Lorsqu'on posait la question à un vieux curé: Quand est ce que le Christianisme conquerra le monde? il replica: Lorsque tout Chretien sera missionnaire. Allez y donc confreres, que chaque un de vous soit un missionnaire pour notre fraternité unie. L'unionisme sera vainqueur lorsque tout unionist sera organisateur.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., April 13, 1903.

To the Committee of the U. B. in conference with the Committee of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters:

Deeming your action to be most equitable, just and fair, relative to your conference with the Amalgamated Society committee for the purpose as set forth in the convention of the A. F. of L., held at New Orleans, December 13, 1902, and as we desire to express our approval and indorsement of the good judgment, tact and earnest endeavors in the interest of the U. B., therefore be it

Resolved, That we voice the overwhelming sentiment which appears in favor of your action, and stamp with our approval every step and measure taken by your committee, meanwhile deploring the sad results which may temporarily embarrass our organization, but in time will only be disastrous to those in opposition.

Fraternally yours,

JAMES BLACK, Pres.

THOS. G. MALKINS, Rec. Sec.

Brooklyn, N. Y. Local Union 639.

E. C. ATKINS & COMPANY, saw and saw tool manufacturers, Indianapolis, Ind., have received cable advice from New Zealand that the championship in the sawing contest, held on Easter Monday, was won by the party using the Atkins saw.

Our General President.

William D. Huber, General President of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners, is one of the charter members of Local Union 726, Yonkers, N. Y. He has held every office in the gift of the Union and the office of President six terms. He was a member of the District Council of Westchester County and President of that body for one year.

At the Brotherhood Convention held in New York City in 1898 he was the only officer elected by a unanimous vote, except the General Secretary-Treasurer, having been elected First Vice-President by acclamation.

President Huber was one of the committee to direct the eight-hour movement in the Westchester district in 1897, and it was largely through his zealous efforts and untiring energy that the concession was granted without any trouble.

Upon the resignation of Bro. John Williams, William D. Huber assumed the office of General President, filling the former's unexpired term, and was re-elected to office by the ensuing convention held in Scranton, Pa., in 1900.

In January, 1902, while the general headquarters were still located in the city of Philadelphia, Pa., desirous of joining with the rank and file in the promotion of the interests of the Brotherhood, and in order to have an opportunity to take an active part in the advancement of the movement in general, President Huber transferred his membership to Local Union 277 of that city, of which he is still a member.

As a well-deserved acknowledgment of his devotion and the faithful services rendered the Brotherhood under the most trying circumstances during his previous terms, William D. Huber was again elected General President for the current term by the Twelfth General Convention held in the city of Atlanta, Ga., in September, 1902.

EXPULSIONS

A. F. Roth, of Local Union 212, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., has been expelled for misappropriation of funds while Treasurer of this Local Union.

John L. Mayers, of Local Union 411, Cambridge, Mass., has been expelled by that Local Union for embezzlement of funds.

SHORT hours and high wages mean prosperity not only to the wage worker, but to the entire community and the country at large.

Instruktionen zur Beachtung bei Gewerksforderungen und über Führung von Ausständen und Lockouts.

1. Schickt Eure Forderungen in Form eines Zirkulars oder Schreibens, unter Angabe der Adresse Eures Protokoll-Sekretärs, an alle Arbeitgeber Eurer Lokalität und verlangt darin, daß Obigem eine briefliche Antwort zugesandt werde.

2. Von den in einem Gebäude oder in einem Shop beschäftigten Kollegen ist ein Mann oder ein Komite zu ernennen, welches mit den Arbeitgebern über die Forderung Rücksprache zu nehmen und der Union zu berichten hat, ob die Arbeitgeber geneigt sind, die Forderung zu bewilligen oder nicht.

3. Veranlaßt Eure Lokal-Union oder den District-Council, wo ein solcher besteht, ein aus drei guten, beachtlichen Mitgliedern bestehendes Konferenz-Komite zu erwählen, um diejenigen Arbeitgeber zu besuchen, welche sich weigern, die Forderung zu bewilligen, oder das Zirkular oder Schreiben nicht beantwortet haben. Dieses Komite sollte aus guten, im Gewerke allgemein geachteten Arbeitern gebildet werden, welches alle Versuche machen soll, die Streitfrage gütlich zu schlichten. Das Komite sollte weise und in männlicher und würdevoller Weise vorgehen und sich nicht durch prahlerische Redensarten verblüffen lassen. Seid höflich und nicht überhebend; gebraucht jedes ehrliche Mittel, um den Arbeitgeber nachgiebig zu stimmen, und besucht jeden derselben persönlich. Wo ein Arbeitgeber-Berband besteht, unterhandelt mit demselben; vergeßt aber nicht, auch die Arbeitgeber zu besuchen, welche diesem Verbande nicht angehören, und unterhandelt auch mit ihnen. Wenn eine Forderung aus mehreren Punkten besteht, und Ihr findet, daß die Durchsetzung aller derselben zu einem Ausstände führen würde, so laßt einige derselben fallen, um die anderen durchsetzen zu können und einen Ausstand zu verhüten.

4. Wenn dieses Vorgehen nicht zu dem gewünschten Resultate führt, so wendet Euch zu geeigneter Zeit, und ehe Ihr in einen Ausstand tretet, an die General-Office, damit dieselbe einen Abgesandten nach dem betreffenden Orte beordern kann, um die Streitfrage womöglich zu schlichten. Es hat sich nämlich oft gezeigt, daß Arbeitgeber eine Unterhandlung mit einem Vertreter der Organisations-Behörde der Unterhandlung mit einem Vertreter der lokalen Organisation, aus persönlichen und anderen Gründen, vorziehen und letzterem wenig Aufmerksamkeit schenken. Oder es kommt vor, daß sich die unterhandelnden Personen einer Lokalität bei den Arbeitgebern mißliebig gemacht haben, und es bedarf eines Vermittlers, um beide Parteien näher zu bringen.

5. Habt Acht darauf, daß die in den vorhergehenden vier Punkten enthaltenen Instruktionen ausgeführt werden, ehe Ihr einen Ausstand anordnet, welcher übrigens nur durch Zweidrittel Majorität, bei geheimer Abstimmung, geschehen kann.

6. Im Falle eines Ausstandes, sollte ein aus fünf beachtlichen Mitgliedern zusammengefügtes Komite seitens der hieran oder an einem Lockout beteiligten Mitglieder ernannt werden. Dieses Komite sollte regelmäßig tägliche Sitzungen abhalten und einen Vorsitzenden, einen Sekretär und einen Schatzmeister einsetzen. Der Sekretär dieses Komitees muß dem General-Sekretär regelmäßige Situations-Berichte zufenden.

7. Die am Ausstande oder Lockout beteiligten Mitglieder müssen sich zweimal täglich, Morgens und Nachmittags, zum Namensaufruf stellen. Allgemeine Versammlungen sollten am Vormittage jeden Tages abgehalten werden, zu welchen gute ansässige Redner zugezogen werden sollten, um durch Ansprachen die Ausstehenden zu ermutigen.

8. Wachtposten sollten auf jedem Bahnhofe oder an anderen Eingängen der Stadt oder des Ortes aufgestellt und solche nach jeder Arbeitsstelle beordert werden, wo unsere Leute die Arbeit niedergelegt haben. Diese Wachtposten sollten sich in den Schranken des Civil-Gesetzes halten, jede Ruhestörung vermeiden und jeden Abend oder, wenn nötig, öfter, auf dem Hauptquartier Bericht erstatten.

9. Unterhaltet freundschaftliche Beziehungen mit den Berichterstatte der Presse, den Stadt-Behörden und der Polizei-Mannschaft, um Euch deren Wohlwollen während des Konfliktes zu sichern.

Alle weitere Auskunft werden die Unterzeichneten bereitwilligst erteilen.

Mit brüderlichem Gruß,

William D. Huber, G. P.

Indossirt seitens des General-Executiv-Board am 26. März 1892.

Besteht auf der Festsetzung eines Minimal-Lohnes!

Hätte man es in den Gewerks-Organisationen nur mit größeren Städten oder länger bestehenden und erfahrenen Lokal-Vereinen zu thun, so wäre es höchst überflüssig, die Wichtigkeit und Nothwendigkeit der Festsetzung eines Minimal-Lohnes zu erörtern oder in Frage zu stellen. Ältere Gewerksvereine sind sich längst über die Nothwendigkeit der Festsetzung eines Minimal-Lohnbetrages, welcher nicht nur einem Theile, sondern allen Gewerksangehörigen zugänglich und erlangbar ist, einig. Sie bestehen auf der Anerkennung eines Minimal-Lohnes, unter dem zu arbeiten jedem Mitgliede untersagt, den jedoch zu übersteigen jedem Mitgliede gestattet ist.

In kleineren Städten und Orten hingegen wird dieser Frage noch nicht die Wichtigkeit beigelegt, die ihr gebührt; und wenn wir in Betracht ziehen, daß mit dem großen Anwachsen unserer Brüderschaft uns tausende neuer Mitglieder zugeströmt, hunderte von Orten erst neuerdings für die Organisation gewonnen wurden, in denen man kaum begonnen hat, das Wesen und die Bestrebungen der gewerkschaftlichen Organisation zu begreifen, so dürften wir einen Fingerzeig zur Anwendung bei bevorstehenden Lohnkämpfen als wohl angebracht und nothwendig erachten.

Der Redakteur eines Fachorgans ist mit den Vorgängen innerhalb der betreffenden Organisation, insofern sich diese auf Forderungen für günstigere Arbeits-Bedingungen beziehen, wohl vertraut, und so machen auch wir die Wahrnehmung, daß erstens seitens vieler Arbeitgeber noch immer der Versuch gemacht wird, die Vereinbarung eines Minimal-Lohnes zu hintertreiben, und zweitens, daß diese Versuche seitens unserer Mitglieder zuweilen ein gewisses Entgegenkommen finden, anstatt denselben den energischsten Widerstand entgegenzusetzen. Besonders in den neu eroberten Gebieten finden wir, daß sich die Arbeitgeber anfangs beharrlich weigern, einen Minimal-Lohn anzuerkennen, aber dafür ein Lohnklassen-System, d. h. die Einteilung ihrer Arbeiter in verschiedene Lohnklassen, in Vorschlag bringen. Sie erklären, daß sie den tüchtigeren, leistungsfähigeren Arbeitern die Lohnerhöhung gewähren könnten; die weniger leistungsfähigen jedoch, behaupten sie, seien den erhöhten Lohn nicht werth und sollten sich daher mit den alten Löhnen begnügen. Es wird auch seitens der Arbeitgeber sehr häufig eine solche Einteilung in drei oder mehr Klassen verlangt, und dies in der offenbaren Absicht, sich für den, den höher gestellten Klassen zugemessenen Lohnzuschlag an der niedrigst gestellten Klasse schadloß zu halten.

Wir haben an dieser Stelle schon öfters betont, daß wir es dem Arbeitgeber nicht verübeln dürfen, wenn er seine Interessen zu wahren sucht und dabei seine Zuflucht zu allen möglichen Schachzügen nimmt. Um so mehr aber müssen wir es den Arbeitern verübeln, wenn sie nicht das Gleiche thun, bei Lohnabmachungen nicht auf der Hut, und nicht ebenso sehr wie der Arbeitgeber auf die Wahrung ihrer eigenen Interessen bedacht sind. Die einfache Tatsache, daß ein Arbeitgeber die Einführung eines Lohnklassen-Systems befürwortet, sollte allein schon genügen, den Arbeitern die Verwerflichkeit dieses Systems vorzudemonstrieren. Oder wäre wirklich Jemand so naiv, anzunehmen, daß eine Vereinbarung, in welcher der Arbeitgeber seinen Vortheil erblickt, auch zugleich den Arbeitern zum Vortheil gereichen könne? Zur Zeit, als die Gewerksorganisationen noch nicht genügend erstarkt waren, um sich dem Lohnklassen-System mit Erfolg zu widersetzen und gezwungen waren, sich demselben zu unterwerfen, hat sich dasselbe als eine höchst verdammenswerthe Institution erwiesen. In jedem Falle, wo dieses System Anwendung fand, oder wo und wann immer sich Arbeiter zu dessen Einführung verleiten ließen, hatten sie es bitter zu bereuen, weil dadurch Zwietracht unter ihnen gesät und Neid und Eifersucht wachgerufen wurden. Es gab Veranlassung zu unaufhörlichen Klagen und Scheerereien in den Gewerksorganisationen und verhinderte deren Aufbau zu einer starken, schutz- und kampffähigen Organisation. Auch erwies es sich, daß bei der Einteilung der Klassen die bedeutend größere Anzahl der Arbeiter in die niedrigste Klasse rekrutirt und nur einige Wenige, meist zweifelhaft Bevorzugte, der oder den höheren Klassen zugetheilt, und somit die vermeintlich errungene Lohnerhöhung belanglos wurde.

Heute, wo der Industrie-Betrieb fast allgemein in den Händen von Personen liegt, die in dem betreffenden Industriezweige keine technische Ausbildung genossen haben, die, wie man zu sagen pflegt, von dem Geschäft nichts verstehen, heute, wo die Abschätzung der Leistungsfähigkeit und Geschicklichkeit der Arbeiter entweder ebenso inkompetenten Superintendents oder Vormännern überlassen ist, die oft bei dieser Abschätzung von unlauteren Motiven geleitet werden, wäre die demoralisierende Wirkung des Lohnklassen-Systems um so größer und unaussprechlicher.

Daß diese Leistungsfähigkeit und Geschicklichkeit unter den Arbeitern eine verschiedene ist, steht ja fest; wir behaupten aber, und der Nachweis ist leicht zu erbringen, daß bei heutiger entwickelter Industrie und ausgedehnter Arbeitsstellung auch dem weniger fähigen oder geschickten Arbeiter eine Beschäftigung zugewiesen werden kann, bei welcher er seine geringeren Fähigkeiten zum Vortheile des Arbeitgebers verwerthen kann, und die ihn zum festgesetzten Minimal-Lohn berechtigt. Dem fähigeren Arbeiter wird durch die Festsetzung eines Minimal-Lohnes die Aussicht, höhere Bezahlung zu erlangen, nicht getrübt; gerade die allgemeine Lohnerhöhung, die dadurch stattfindet, giebt ihm größere Berechtigung zu höheren Anforderungen, und wird ihm dabei seitens der Organisation der bestmögliche Vorstoß geleistet.

Die gewerkschaftlichen Bestrebungen sind ja gerade deshalb so edle und segensreiche, weil sie, von dem Geiste der Brüderlichkeit durchdrungen, dem Schutze und dem Wohle der Gesamtheit geweiht sind und dem Schwachen im Kampfe um eine menschenwürdige Existenz in erster Linie unter die Arme greift.

Von diesem Geiste, dem wahren Union-Geiste, beseelt, sagte schon am 17. September 1886 der derzeitige Executiv-Board unserer Brüderschaft folgenden Beschluß:

„Die Einteilung des Lohnes in verschiedene Klassen wirkt demoralisierend auf das Union-Prinzip und die Wohlfahrt des Gewerkes, und keine Lokal-Union soll das Lohnklassen-System einführen oder gutheißen.“

Auf diesen Beschluß, dessen Nichtbefolgung unter Umständen einer Gesetzes-Verletzung gleichkommen kann, machen wir zum Schlusse alle unsere Mitglieder und besonders die jüngst gegründeten Lokal-Unions aufmerk-

sam. Wir möchten ihnen dessen strikte Befolgung zu ihrem eigenen Wohl und Besten dringend an's Herz legen. Besteht auf der Festsetzung eines Minimal-Lohnes!

Maschinen-Spezialisten.

Der Geheime Commerzienrath Goldberger, der vom deutschen Kaiser nach Amerika geschickt worden war, die ökonomischen Verhältnisse des Landes zu studiren, hat seine Eindrücke in einer Reihe von Aufsätzen unter dem Titel „Das Land der unbegrenzten Möglichkeiten“ niedergelegt.

Besondere Bewunderung hat ihn, dem deutschen Großindustriellen, die raffinierte Arbeit-Vertheilung entlockt, wie sie hier zu Lande betrieben wird. Wo es möglich ist, die Arbeit in einzelne Handgriffe zu zerlegen, schreibt er, da wird der einzelne Handgriff zum Beruf gemacht, weil damit eine Uebung gewonnen wird, die eine größere Sicherheit in diesem Handgriff giebt und seine häufigere Wiederholung in einem bestimmten Zeitmaße zuläßt.

Er hat sich über den Nutzen amerikanischer Arbeitsweise durch einen für ihn maßgebenden Industrie-Hauptling, den Leiter der Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Compagnie zu Pittsburg unterrichten lassen, der dem wißbegierigen Fremdling Aufklärung und Belehrung zugleich mit folgenden Worten erteilte:

„Der große Erfolg des amerikanischen Wettbewerbes beruht zum wesentlichen Theil in der Spezialisierung der Arbeitsgebiete und vor Allem in der nothwendigen Spezialisierung der Arbeiter, denen wir doch ganz andere Löhne zahlen als Sie da drüben! Unsere Arbeiter bleiben in der gleichen Werkstätte, an derselben Drehbank, an demselben Kran, an derselben Maschine; sie werden nie von einer Abtheilung in die andere geschickt, sie werden immer zu der gleichen Arbeit verwendet. So gewinnen sie an der Stelle, an der sie stehen, eine ungewöhnliche Fertigkeit — sie werden Spezialisten in ihrem Fach, in dem Bereiche ihrer Arbeit, und leisten durch die jahrelang bethätigte Uebung quantitativ und qualitativ in acht Stunden vielleicht mehr als ein Arbeiter drüben in der doppelten Zeit! So fallen die höheren Löhne für uns gar nicht in die Waagschale!“

Der Mann ist vollständig im Rechte mit seinen Bemerkungen, soweit er vom Nutzen der amerikanischen Arbeitsmethode für den Unternehmer und vom Werthe des Maschinen-Spezialisten redet.

Der Gewinn ist hier ein ganz anderer als in dem schläfrigen Europa, wo der Arbeiter noch nicht völlig auf einen einzigen Handgriff dressirt ist. Daß bei der einförmigen, Tag für Tag, Jahr für Jahr wiederholten Anwendung eines Griffes, einer Drehung, eines Stoßes der Geist frühzeitig abstumpft und auch der Körper in kurzer Zeit stumpf und krank wird, braucht den Fabrikanten nicht weiter zu kümmern. Arbeiter-Material ist in Hülle und Fülle vorhanden. Abgenutztes Menschenfleisch kann viel sorgloser auf die Straße geworfen werden, als abgenutzte Maschinen zum alten Eisen. „Wer nicht mehr im vollen Umfang zu arbeiten vermag — selbst wenn er im gleichen Betriebe alt geworden ist — muß gehen; rücksichtslos erhält er seinen Laufpaß; er hat jüngeren Kräften zu weichen, die arbeitsfähiger sind. So erfordert es das Interesse des Geschäftes, und etwas anderes darf nicht in Frage kommen. Hilf Dir selbst, so heißt es auch hier. Wir haben gute Löhne und Honorare gezahlt — davon hätte genügend zurückgelegt und für Alters- und Lebensversicherungsbeträgen verwendet werden können.“

Rückhaltlos, ohne Phrase und Beschönigung, sprechen die amerikanischen Großkapitalisten es in Worten und Thaten aus, daß der Geschäftsgewinn Alles, der ihnen dazu verhelfende Lohnarbeiter nichts bedeutet. Mag er an der Maschine selbst zur Maschine, mag er in wenigen Jahren stumpf und dumm werden! Um so besser! Dann gewöhnt er sich ganz das widerspenstige Denken ab, dann gehorcht er mechanisch wie die Maschine.

Der Geheime Commerzienrath Goldberger aber, der die Industrie-Stätten Amerika's aufgesucht hat, um zu beobachten und zu lernen, ist sicher voll hoher Befriedigung in die Heimath zurückgekehrt. Werthvolle Rathschläge bringt er mit. Wenn Ihr Deutschland wirklich zum Musterindustriestaat erheben wollt, wird er dem lauschenden Chor der Unternehmer zuzuhören, dann ahmt wieder einmal den Amerikanern nach, dann macht wie sie aus euren Arbeitern Maschinen- und Handgriff-Spezialisten! — Chicagoer Vorbote.

Die soziale Seite des Streiks.

Der Streik ist kein so moderner wirtschaftlicher Begriff, wenn wir die Uebersetzung des englischen Wortes „Strike“ mit Arbeitseinstellung gelten lassen.

Arbeitseinstellungen zur Erreichung besserer Arbeitsbedingungen sind schon im 14. Jahrhundert nachzuweisen. 1475 errangen die Blechschmiedegesellen von Nürnberg einen Sieg über ihre Meister durch Einstellen der Arbeit.

Aus Gesell und Meister entwickelte sich der Proletarier oder Lohnarbeiter und der Kapitalist.

Der Meister wurde zum Fabrikanten und Kapitalisten durch Lohnverkürzungen und Arbeitszeitverlängerung.

Der Geselle stemmte sich dagegen und kämpfte um Lohnerhöhung und Arbeitszeitverkürzung.

Diese Charakterzüge zeigen auch die modernen Streikbewegungen; es sind zumeist Arbeitseinstellungen, um günstigere Arbeitsbedingungen zu erzwingen.

Auf diesem Gebiet vollzieht sich nun ein Umwandlungsprozeß. Im Kampfe zwischen Kapital und Arbeit erscheint ein durchaus neuer, moderner Zug: der Kampf um soziale Gleichheit! — Denker, die sich mit dem Studium der Erscheinung des Kampfes zwischen Arbeiter und Arbeitgeber befaßten, erkannten, daß die Lohn- und Arbeitszeitveränderung an den Beziehungen zwischen Arbeit und Kapital nichts ändern, daß dieser Kampf nur dann dauernden Erfolg für die Arbeit aufweist, wenn die auf wirtschaftlichem Gebiete errungenen Vortheile sozial verwerthet werden; dieser Kampf muß so lange dauern, als die soziale Ungleichheit dauert.

Alle Erscheinungen auf dem Gebiete des Streiks, die in die soziale Sphäre hinüberspielen, sind modern.

Die Streikenden begnügen sich nicht mehr damit, zu verlangen so viel Arbeitsstunden weniger, so viel Mark Lohn mehr; sie verlangen Weiter- oder Wiederbeschäftigung ihrer Führer, Anerkennung ihrer Organisation; sie streben überhaupt danach, im Kampfe als gleichberechtigt anerkannt zu werden.

Dieses Auftreten von sozialen Zügen geht Hand in Hand mit dem Erwachen des sozialen Bewußtseins, d. h. der Erkenntnis, daß die Interessen der Arbeiter aller Länder gemeinsam sind.

So wie sich diese Erkenntnis ausbreitet, so weitet sich der Streik der räumlichen Ausdehnung nach und vertieft sich der sozialen Seite nach.

Die zuerst örtlich und wirtschaftlich beschränkten Streiks eines Faches oder einer Gewerkschaft dehnen sich aus, um zuerst wirtschaftlich die gesamte Arbeiterschaft eines Gewerkes desselben Landes mit hinein-zuziehen, treten später mit sozialen Forderungen auf und umschließen die gesamte organisierte Arbeiterschaft eines Landes.

So entwickelt sich diese Bewegung der Arbeiterschaft immer mehr und immer weitere Kreise ziehend, bis sie sich in neuester Zeit zur Idee, zuerst des nationalen und dann des internationalen Generalstreiks entwickelt hat.

Wohl erst nur in der Idee, aber in richtiger Erkenntnis der Sachlage, denn, man mag sagen was man will, die letzte Schlacht, die Entscheidung, d. h. die soziale Gleichheit, wird und muß durch den internationalen Generalstreik gewonnen werden.

Alles was auf diesem Gebiete geschieht, bewußt oder unbewußt, geschieht zur Vorbereitung dieser einen, dieser letzten Schlacht. So mancher, sogar viele werden lächeln über diesen Traum, diese Utopie. Ich meinerseits lache über dieses Lächeln, denn ein gründliches Studium der Geschichte des Streikes, die Betrachtung seiner schnellen und riesigen Ausbreitung in unserer Zeit, die Beobachtung, wie rasch die Arbeiter die Wohlthat der gemeinsamen Handlungsweise erfahren, dies und noch vieles mehr beweist, daß der internationale Generalstreik durchaus kein Traum, keine Utopie ist und in sehr greifbarer Form dem Denker sich darstellt. Um noch ein weiteres anzuführen, weise ich auf den Feind selbst hin, d. h. auf den Kapitalismus. Der erkennt gar wohl die für ihn gefährliche Macht der sich ausbreitenden Idee des internationalen Generalstreiks; er trifft auch demgemäß seine Vorkehrungen, denn auch Kartell und Truß haben nicht nur wirtschaftliche Bedeutung, sondern auch soziale.

Sie sind Kampfmittel zur Erhaltung der sozialen Ungleichheit, leisten denselben Dienst wie die mittelalterlichen Raubnester — Burgen genannt — der Herren Raubritter; sie dienen auch als Zufluchtsstätte und gelten als uneinnehmbar für die ansturmenden Massen. — Und wahrlich, die Kapitalisten im Besitze von Geld, d. h. Waffen, Munition, Mundvorrath und Menschen, können eine lange, sehr lange Belagerung aushalten, können Sturm auf Sturm abschlagen. Das im Kartell und Truß international organisierte Kapital wird eher Lohn erhöhen, Arbeitszeit verkürzen, als soziale Vortheile gewähren, oder wie sie es nennen, sich etwas abzuwaschen von dem Recht der freien Bestimmung, laut welcher sie es für gut befindet, organisierte Arbeiter so lange auszusperrn, bis deren Organisation gesprengt ist.

Sie wissen, der international organisierte Arbeiter führt ihre Forderung, entwaffnet sie, entzieht ihnen Munition, Mundvorrath und Menschen — durch den internationalen Generalstreik.

Noch umtoben uns die wilden Wogen des Nationalhaders, noch stehen Millionen Uniformirte in Waffen, um auf einen Wink den Bruder jenseits der Grenze zu morden, noch gehen Grenzpfähle quer über die Schädel des Volkes und quer über die Landstraße; doch trotzdem nur ein kleines Häuflein Muthiger die Fahne der Internationale hochhält, gehört ihr die Zukunft.

Zunft oder Industrie-Verband.

Die heutigen Formen des wirtschaftlichen Kampfes weisen gegen früher große Veränderungen auf. Die einzelnen Kämpfe waren mehr isolirt, zogen nicht so große Unternehmer- und Arbeiterkreise in Mitleidenschaft, wie heute. Beginn jetzt ein Ringen zwischen Kapital und Arbeit, so werden davon in den meisten Fällen eine ganze Reihe von Branchen und Arbeitszweigen betroffen. Zum Beispiel ein Ausstand der Arbeiter im Verkehrs- und Fracht-Betrieb kann die industriellen Betriebe der verschiedensten Art im weiten Umkreise stillstehen lassen.

Diese Veränderungen haben natürlich auch auf die Taktik des wirtschaftlichen Kampfes bedeutenden Einfluß ausgeübt. Durch jeden größeren Ausstand fühlt sich nicht nur mehr der einzelne Unternehmer bedroht; der Kapitalismus als Ganzes fühlt sich angegriffen. Ob auf kapitalistischer Seite nachgegeben oder hartnäckig weiter gekämpft werden soll, wird nicht im Bureau des Einzelkapitalisten entschieden. Viele kombinierte Kapital-Interessen wirken dabei mit. Auf der Börse, wo sich diese Interessen wie in einem Brennpunkt vereinigen, werden wahrscheinlich, soweit die kapitalistische Seite in Betracht kommt, mehr Streiks entschieden, wie in den Comptoirs der Unternehmer, in deren Betrieben der Strike ausgebrochen ist. Kurz, die Schlachtlinie ist auf der feindlichen Seite breiter und länger geworden.

Die Schlachtlinie der Arbeiter sollte es auch werden. Die proletarische Kampf-Gesellschaft muß ihre Grenzen ausdehnen, wenn sie dem Gegner gewachsen sein will. Darum ist der Gewerkschafts-Bewegung nichts schädlicher, als jene inneren Berufs-Abgrenzungen, zünftlerischen Streitigkeiten, die theilen und zerstören, anstatt zu vereinen und zu verbrüdern.

Chicagoer Arbeiterzeitung.

Ein Streik der Berliner Zimmerleute im Jahre 1735.

Aus dem Jahre 1735 berichtet eine Urkunde über einen Streik der Zimmerer in Berlin, die unter gefürztem Lohn eine Stunde länger arbeiten sollten. „Und, ohnerachtet sie vom Präsidenten Neuendorff zur Ruhe angewiesen und ihnen Nomine Regis (in des Königs Namen) Angedeutet worden, daß die Widerspenstigen an Leib und Leben gestraft werden sollten, haben sie sich dennoch danach nicht richten wollen, sondern wie man zwei von denen Redels-Führern durch die Wache in Arrest bringen wollen, haben sie selbige nicht lassen, sondern alle mit in die Wache gehen wollen und die Wache dergestalt insultrirt, daß sie genöthigt gewesen, die Bayonette aufzustechen, um die Leute abzuhalten, wobei aber einige bei weiterem Eindrängen hart verwundet worden sind. Wobei Magistratus sich obligirt gesehen, heimlich vom Rathhause zu gehen, weil sie befürchtet, sie möchten ihres Lebens nicht sicher sein. Hier auf sind alle Bursche in Arrest genommen und sollen Zweg davon, welche am meisten an solchem Aufstand schuld, nächstens auf des Königs darüber eingekommene Ordre gehangen werden. Den 13. dito Sind obgedachte Maurer- und Zimmergesellen anderweit zu Rathhause vernommen und welche arbeiten wollen, losgelassen, die anderen aber trumm doppelt zusammen in denen Gefängnissen geschlossen worden.“

Diese Maßregeln halfen nichts, die Zimmerleute verließen einfach Berlin. Um das zu verhindern, schuf der König eine echte und rechte Vorläuferin der Zuchtshausvorlage. In einer Ordonnanz vom 23. Februar 1736 heißt es:

„Die entwichenen Maurer- und Zimmerleute sind weither ebenmäßig anzuhalten und in Haft zu nehmen. Ferner damit dem weglaufen der Maurer- und Zimmerleute aus unseren Residenzen desto mehr gesteuert und gewahrt werde, so sollen alle diejenigen, so zu Austragung Vorschub thun, und sie verleiten, nach Ermessung der Obrigkeit, unter welcher sie unmittelbar gefessen, mit Gefängnis oder Geld bestraft werden.“

Schließlich wurden die bei den Soldaten dienenden Zimmerleute bei den Arbeiten verwendet.

Mitgliederzahlen aus deutschen Gewerkschaften.

Aus den Gewerkschaftsabrechnungen vom vierten Quartal 1902 theilen wir folgende Mitgliederzahlen mit: Der Zimmererverband schloß mit 22,811 Mitgliedern ab (gegen 24,161 im Mittel des Jahres 1901); der Schuhmacherverband mit 23,419 Mitgliedern, darunter 2,637 weiblichen (gegen 19,585 resp.

1,773 im Jahre 1901); der Fleischerverband mit 1,395 Mitgliedern (1,464); der Bureauangestelltenverband mit 386 Mitgliedern (323).

Von diesen vier Gewerkschaften hat der Schuhmacherverband eine allerdings bedeutende Zunahme zu verzeichnen — um 3,834 Mitglieder; der Bureauangestelltenverband hat um 64 Mitglieder zugenommen. Die übrigen Verbände haben abgenommen; die Zimmerer um 1,340, die Fleischer um 69 Mitglieder. Insgesamt berechnet, ist auch hier ein ganz ansehnliches Mehr an Mitgliedern zu verzeichnen.

Der Verband der Zimmerleute hatte am Schluß des Jahres einen Vermögensbestand von 289,806.90 Mk. Außer diesem Betrage befinden sich in Händen der verschiedenen Zweigvereine noch größere Reservefondbestände.

Frühere wirtschaftliche Krisen waren auch in Sachsen regelmäßig von einem starken Mitgliederverlust der Arbeiter-Organisationen begleitet. Es zeugt von der Erstarkung des Organisationsgedankens, daß während der gegenwärtigen Krise entgegengesetzte Erfahrungen gemacht sind. So haben von 38 Dresdener Gewerkschaften im vorigen Jahre neun etwa 300 Mitglieder verloren, 29 aber einen Mitgliederzuwachs von 3,178 zu verzeichnen. Einzelne Gewerkschaften, wie die Zimmerer, Maurer und Maler, haben ihre Mitgliederzahl verdoppelt, andere haben Hunderte gewonnen. Insgesamt hatten 38 Gewerkschaften am Schluß des Jahres 16,525 Mitglieder.

Einen großartigen Aufschwung nahm die Berliner Metallarbeiter-Organisation (Filiale des deutschen Metallarbeiterbundes). Die Mitgliederzahl ist im Laufe des Jahres 1902 von 22,374 auf 30,664 angewachsen, hat also um 8,290 zugenommen. Da der Andrang zur Organisation auch in den Monaten Januar und Februar dieses Jahres ein bedeutender war, so ist begründete Aussicht vorhanden, in absehbarer Zeit alle organisationsfähigen Metallarbeiter dem Verbande zuzuführen. An Streikunterstützung wurden rund eine Viertel Million Mark ausbezahlt, an Arbeitslosen-Unterstützung 89,551.72 Mark. Die Jahres-Einnahmen und Ausgaben der Hauptkasse bilanzirten in der Summe von 385,141.88 Mark, die Lokalkasse weist einen Bestand von 136,495.39 Mk. auf. Die letzte General-Versammlung mußte vertagt werden, weil das größte Lokal Berlins die herbeigeströmten Mitglieder massen nicht fassen konnte. Es ist wichtig, zu wissen, daß die Zeitung des Metallarbeiterverbandes seinen großartigen Fortschritt der eingeführten Arbeitslosen-Unterstützung zuschreibt! Als der Verband 1899 diese Unterstützung berieth, prophezeiten ihm viele Mitglieder den Ruin, da die Arbeitslosen-Unterstützung die Mitglieder abschrecken würde. Aber statt dessen sind Zehntausende gewonnen; der Verband hat heute ungefähr 120,000 Mitglieder.

Im Verband der Bäcker ist laut Jahresbericht 1902 die Mitgliederzahl von 4,651 (1901) auf 4,760 gestiegen. Dies sind die Durchschnittszahlen für das ganze Jahr; im vierten Quartal 1902 betrug die Mitgliederzahl 4,897. Seit dem Jahre 1895 wurden insgesamt 25,310 Mitglieder aufgenommen, im Berichtsjahre 3,714. Der Wechsel war also ungeheuer groß. Die Gesamtsumme, incl. 9,918.16 Mk. Kassenbestand, belief sich auf 79,571.24 Mk., die Gesamtausgabe auf 47,123.17 Mk. Der Ueberschuß hat sich also gegen das Vorjahr um 22,529.91 Mk. erhöht.

Alle Rechte und Vortheile, die der Lohnarbeiter von der heutigen Gesellschaft verlangt, müssen durch Kampf und Opfer erungen werden.

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to the will of God we sincerely mourn the death of our brother and friend and extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family in their hour of sorrow; and be it further

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days; that a copy of these resolutions, properly engrossed, be presented to the family of our deceased brother; that a page of our minute book be left blank to his memory, and a copy of these resolutions be sent to the city papers and to our official journal, THE CARPENTER, for publication.

JNO. A. PENWELL,
A. T. LANG,
T. D. CHANDLER, } Committee.

LOCAL UNION 489, Canon City, Col.
Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom to remove from our midst our esteemed and beloved brother, Hezekiah Tucker; and

Whereas, The deceased brother was a member in good standing in our brotherhood, a good citizen, upright and industrious, and having the respect and good will of all who knew him; therefore be it

Resolved, That while bowing to the will of Him who doeth all things well we deeply regret the death of our friend and brother, and tender to the bereaved family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in their sorrow and affliction, and that our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days; and be it

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our minute book as a tribute of respect, and a copy presented to the family of our deceased brother, and that a copy be furnished the Union Labor News, also a copy to our official journal, THE CARPENTER, for publication.

B. E. EVANS, R. S.

LOCAL UNION 1148, Grant's Pass, Ore.
Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to remove from our midst our esteemed brother, Thomas Hood; and

Whereas, We deeply regret his death, as we lose in him a good member, one who was respected and esteemed by all who knew him; therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family and their relations; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the bereaved family; that the charter of our union be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days; that a page of our minutes be set aside for these resolutions and a copy sent to our official journal for publication.

D. R. CLAPERDT,
M. F. SHAW,
W. H. KENNEY, } Committee.

LOCAL UNION 613, Jamaica, N. Y.
Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His infinite wisdom to call from earth the esteemed wife of our beloved brother, Rudolph Kester; and

Whereas, The members of this local union deeply feel the sad affliction thus brought on our brother and family; therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend our profound sympathy to the bereaved husband and his family in this their hour of sad affliction, and may a kind Providence look in mercy upon them; and be it

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the bereaved family and that they be spread on our minutes and a copy sent to THE CARPENTER for publication.

RICHARD GIBSON,
ARNOLD KASTNER,
EDWARD FLANIGAN, } Committee.

LOCAL UNION 440, Buffalo, N. Y.
Whereas, It has been the will of the Great Builder of the Universe to call from us our beloved brother, John La Fleur; his work is done, he toils with us no more, nor does he meet with us in the interest of unionism, with which he was a hearty sympathizer; therefore be it

Resolved, That while we humbly submit to the will of God we sincerely regret the death of our brother, and tender to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy; and be it further

Resolved, That a page of our minute book be set apart for these resolutions as a tribute of respect to the memory of our departed brother; that a copy be presented to his family, a copy be sent to our official journal, THE CARPENTER, for publication, and that our charter be draped for thirty days.

CHRISTIAN MOSER,
JAS. E. NEIL,
JNO. DITZEL, } Committee.

LOCAL UNION 116, Bay City, Mich.

Whereas, it has pleased the Supreme Ruler of the Universe to take from us our beloved brother, Harrison Whery; and

Whereas, We deeply deplore his death, as we lose in him a good member, one who was respected and esteemed by all who knew him; therefore be it

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to his family and relatives; and be it further

Resolved, That our charter be draped for thirty days; that a copy of these resolutions be presented to the afflicted family; that these resolutions be entered on our minutes; and a copy of same be forwarded to our official journal; THE CARPENTER, for publication.

J. R. ROTH,
J. P. INGLIS,
S. HABOURSHAW, } Committee.

LOCAL UNION 176, Newport, R. I.

Whereas, Almighty God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to take unto Himself our beloved brother, Harry Hart; and

Whereas, Local Union 176 feels the loss of an earnest worker and an upright man; therefore be it

Resolved, That while we bow to the will of the Supreme Ruler of the Universe we deeply regret the loss of our brother, and extend to his bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the family of the deceased brother; that they be spread on our minutes and a copy be forwarded to our official journal, THE CARPENTER, for publication.

P. J. KEELY,
R. B. SCOTT,
W. W. YOUNG, } Committee.

UNION LOCAL 511, Roswell, N. Mexico.

Whereas, Our brother, L. B. Goddard, has passed over the dark river of death and, although he had been with us only about two months, we all felt that he was a true union man, worthy of our respect. We hope that the Almighty will deal lightly with his transgressions and consider only his good deeds.

Resolved, That our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days, a token of respect, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to THE CARPENTER, for publication.

M. M. WOODRUFF,
W. T. JONES,
H. B. SLAKBY, } Committee.

This series of Fred T. Hodgson's new works are to-day the approved and most helpful set of practical builders' "educators" published. They have been tried and found by architects, contractors, carpenters and builders to be efficient "aids" for advancement and thoroughly reliable for daily consultation as books of reference, covering as they do thousands of "self-help-points" necessary for all workers of wood.

The books are positively up-to-date and the "Carpenter" most heartily recommends them to everyone as the most valuable series of books for self instruction published in the world on the subjects treated.

THIS OFFER WILL EXPIRE WHEN THE 5,000 SETS ARE SOLD. AFTER THAT, THE BOOKS CAN ONLY BE HAD AT THE RETAIL PRICES.

Roof Framing

By
G. D. Inskip

This Work is specially prepared and written for the Mechanic. By the use of tables he can compute any length of Rafter, Hip or Valley, with ease and accuracy, from $\frac{1}{4}$ of an inch to 150 feet. It is in two volumes. Vol. I is handsomely illustrated with diagrams, conveying to the mind of the reader the practical way of cutting Roof Members. It takes in all manner of Pitches, Degrees and Minutes, or any possible Plan of Roof, and gives all measurements full size. Scale measurements are dispensed with, and the steel square is used only as a bevel and is of no moment in acquiring lengths and intersections.

VALDOSTA, GA.—We have a splendid little Union of white carpenters here, and we are now making an effort to organize the colored, with indications of success.

BRUNSWICK, GA.—The two Local Unions here are holding their own very well. The schedule of hours and wages established is rigidly observed, and is as good as in any other place in the State of Georgia.

ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA.—Local Union 864 is in a very good condition, indeed, and has about all the competent carpenters enrolled as members. We have made much progress in organizing this city in general within the past year; many unions have been organized that have not held charters for the last ten years.

BOCKCHITO, I. T.—Work is rather slack here at present, the slackness being due to a great extent to bad roads and bad weather. However, we expect a revival of business and plenty of work next spring and summer. Our local union is in existence but two months, but during this short space of time we have gained ten new members.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Work is picking up here somewhat, and the outlook for the coming season has become more encouraging. Local Union 72 has received six applications at their first March meeting and initiated one candidate. Local Union 231 held a very successful open meeting and entertainment on March 13. It was found necessary to procure a larger hall to accommodate all the members, their families and friends in attendance, and everybody had a pleasant time.

OTTUMWA, IA.—Our local union is making gains that are a credit and encouraging to our membership; the brothers are getting in closer touch with each other every day. On March 7th we had Bro. Sidney Kent, the general organizer, with us, when our membership enjoyed a most excellent address. We were so impressed with Bro. Kent's sound arguments that we prevailed upon him to visit us again. We have now arranged for an open meeting with Bro. Kent as speaker, and the members of Local Union 767 are making preparations to pack the house on this occasion to its utmost capacity.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Trade is a little duller than it has been, not that the volume of work has materially decreased, but because there is a large influx of men from other points. There are quite a number of idle carpenters in town, and the supply is greater than the demand. The Unions are in good shape, taking in new members every meeting night.

MALONE, N. Y.—Local Union 1274 is very much alive and working for an improvement in trade conditions. Wages are low here and our contractors hard-headed and not easy to deal with. Hence we anticipate trouble this spring, and would request carpenters to give this place a wide berth. Work is dull here and will apparently continue all spring and summer.

STRATFORD, ONT., CAN.—The visit of Bro. Glass, of Buffalo, who was sent on here by our G. P., has been the means of increasing our membership. Through Bro. Glass's efforts we also gained an increase in pay and the recognition of our union by the employers. We trust that by another year we shall be in a position to make further demands for shorter hours and another advance in wages.

Stay Away From These Places

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Having made a demand on our employers for better conditions, we would request all carpenters, mill workers and cabinetmakers to keep away from this city until after May 4th next, when we expect to have our demand granted.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Local Union 350 is in a thriving condition, and the new local union is also getting along finely. As far as work is concerned, however, we must state that it is rather dull this season; we are eagerly looking for a revival of business.

SAN ANGELO, TEX.—Our Local Union, being organized but four months, is still in its infancy; nevertheless we are pushing ahead the best we know how. We have made a demand on our employers, and work being somewhat slack and more than enough carpenters here to do it, it would certainly not pay any newcomers to look for a job. You will hear from us again after our trouble is over and we have gained a firmer foothold.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Three years ago Local Union 426 of this city started out with 18 charter members, and to-day, by the zealous and energetic efforts of our members, we have built up our Union to a membership of 925 in good standing, and more to come.

PENSACOLA, FLA.—Business here has been and is still very dull, and as a result a large number of union men are out of employment. The real estate agents give preference to non-union labor and have their work done for almost nothing. Carpenters are requested to stay away from this place until further notice.

NEW ORANGE, N. J.—Work is very slack here at present, but we have good prospects for plenty of it as soon as the weather permits. All competent mechanics are members of our Union, which is getting along nicely. The eight-hour system being in operation here, you will please add New Orange to the eight-hour list.

BRADFORD, PA.—The differences existing here between the building craft and the contractors being as yet unsettled, and this fact having a tendency to slacken the work, probably all through spring and summer, carpenters would be wise in remaining away. Should the difficulties be overcome, we will give due notice through the columns of this journal.

GARDNER, MASS.—Almost all the union men here are idle, with a few scabs working in their places. The contractors are very stubborn and persistently refuse to grant our demands. We would warn all carpenters not to come to this city until such time when the employers have been brought to terms, which we trust will occur as soon as the season opens up.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—Expecting trouble to arrive on account of a demand for an advance in wages we are making on the bosses, we would request all carpenters to stay away from this city and vicinity during April and May. Should we effect a settlement on May 1st, when we expect a new scale to become operative, or any date thereafter, we shall give due notice of the fact through the columns of our journal.

AMARILLO, TEX.—There being a surplus of men here at present, and work very scarce, we would advise all carpenters to stay away from this locality until conditions have improved.

BROOKHAVEN, MISS.—Work is exceedingly dull here at present, owing to continuous heavy rains characteristic of the climatic condition of this section of the country. Quite a number of our men are idle, and we would advise carpenters going to this locality to postpone the trip until times have brightened up.

JERSEY SHORE, PA.—There is a likelihood of trouble accruing from a demand made by Local Union 1064 upon the contractors for adoption of the nine-hour workday, and it would be well for brothers of the craft to remain away from this place until a settlement has been reached, due notice of which will be given in this journal.

WILBERTON, I. T.—Local Union 1276 is for the last two months continuously receiving inquiries from brothers in different States as to trade conditions in this town, and we deem it now our duty to notify all carpenters, through our official journal, that work is dull here this season. There are no buildings going up at present, except Coal Company buildings, which are being done by carpenters in constant employ of the company. Prospects for work in the coming spring and summer season are fairly good.

SAN BERNARDINO, CAL.—We are comparatively a young union and had a tedious struggle to hold our own; still, we have been doing fairly well. Trade has been very good here for some time past, but at present work is slacking up considerably and the influx of men from the east is greater than ever before. The inevitable result is a surplus of labor and a difficulty in securing employment. Neither are the prospects for the future as bright as we would wish them to be. While at present we must advise brothers to stay from this city, we hope that in the near future we may be able to say as we have in the past, "Come to us, brothers, we are short-handed."

Dallas (Tex.) Lock-Out Still On

Our lock-out, which begun on January 19th, is still on as hard as ever, and we would warn all men to stay away from our city and thereby help us to win our fight, forced upon us by the Builders' Exchange on the above date.

S. LOTZENHISER, Sec. Lock-out Com.

Localities Where Work Is Dull

Carpenters are requested to stay away from the following places. Owing to trade movements, building depression and other causes, work is dull:

New York City.	Pittsburg, Pa.
St. Louis, Mo.	Galveston, Tex.
Nashville, Tenn.	Jasper, Ala.
Jonesboro, Ark.	Chester, Ill.
Canon City, Okla.	Jacksonville, Fla.
Columbia, S. C.	New Orleans, La.
Greenville, Tex.	Waynesville, N. C.
Sharon, Pa.	Ardmore, Ind. Ter.
Norfolk, Va.	Terrell, Tex.
Brantford, Ont.	Tampa, Fla.
Haywood, Cal.	Binghamton, N. Y.
Helena, Mont.	Memphis, Tenn.
Sheffield, Ala.	Lampasas, Tex.
Richmond, Va.	Divernon, Ill.
San Antonio, Tex.	Kewanee, Ill.
Corsicana, Tex.	Salt Lake City, Utah.
Los Angeles, Cal.	Cheyenne, Wyo.
Birmingham, Ala.	East Chicago, Ind.
Miami, Fla.	Newark, N. J.
Mason City, Ia.	Newton, N. J.
Tuxedo, N. Y.	Portland, Ore.
Buffalo, N. Y.	Albuquerque, N. Mex.
Fort Worth, Tex.	Boswell, New Mex.
San Francisco, Cal.	Rome, N. Y.
Malone, N. Y.	Amarillo, Tex.
Philadelphia, Pa.

The Strike of To-day.

It is useless to talk of harmony between labor and capital when capitalists as a class possess privileges under the laws which laborers do not. A never ceasing struggle against encroachments is absolutely necessary on the part of labor to preserve what freedom and comfort has been secured. The lines are being closer drawn. People are fast arraying themselves on one side or the other. A strike is no longer an idle affair. It is an encounter in which definite issues are involved, decided stands are taken, desperate measures resolved upon. No one concerned is neutral or wavering, and the great public takes active part in the contest.—Lizzie M. Holmes.

The Northern Awning Supply Co. Discontinues Business

The parties known as the Northern Awning Supply Co., of Toluca, Ill., have discontinued business, and request all carpenters and friends to not send any more orders for carpenter's aprons, as they will not be received. Several orders received by the company have been returned unclaimed, and a few orders left unfilled on account of incorrectness of address. Any person that has not received his goods or money refunded will please send full address to D. J. Farley, Box 99, Toluca, Ill.

Homideau Bros. Declared Unfair

The firm of L. Homideau Brothers of Queens Borough, N. Y., being antagonistic to organized labor, and refusing to pay union wages and work union hours, has been placed on the unfair list by our Local Unions of that locality. As this concern is competing with fair employers, to the detriment of both employers and employes, their material should be discriminated against by union men everywhere.

You cannot be a good union man if you neglect to pay your dues. But you may pay dues promptly and still be a poor union man. The union needs you—your personal presence and advice and vote and work—more than it needs your dues. You owe it both.

It is a good rule to set aside a certain time in each week for reading serious books and magazines. With two hours' real reading each week an astonishing amount can be learned in a year.

Movements for Better Conditions

LOCAL UNION 476, NEW YORK CITY (MILL).—At a recent meeting we unanimously adopted a resolution to the effect that no man working on woodworking machinery shall receive less pay than his predecessor. This resolution, having been indorsed by the District Council, is now embodied in our trade rules and has become a law.

LOCAL UNION 668, PALO ALTO, CAL.—By a vote cast by our Local Union Sec. 2 of our working rules has been amended so as to read as follows: The minimum rate of wages shall be $4.00 per day. Our By-Laws, as heretofore in force, provided for a scale of $3.50 per day. We shall give our employers due notice of this change in our working rules, which is to take effect on June 1, 1903.

LOCAL UNION 876, FRONTENAC, KANS.—We have decided to make a demand on the contractors for a minimum scale of $3.00 per day of eight hours, or 37½ cents per hour, excepting members who are disabled and those 50 years of age, who may be permitted to work for $2.70 per day. Our present wages are 31¼ cents per hour and those paid to disabled members, or those over 60 years of age, are 27½ cents per hour.

LOCAL UNION 406, BETHLEHEM, PA.—Our demands, to take effect on May 1st, are as follows: Nine hours shall constitute a day's work at the same rate of wages paid for ten hours in 1902. Payments of wages shall be weekly. The contractors in this vicinity being very stubborn, and only one-half of the carpenters in this city belonging to the Union, we have decided to start out easy until we have gained a firmer foothold.

LOCAL UNION 458, LAWRENCE, KANS.—Prospects for the coming season being favorable, and the time apparently opportune, we have notified our contractors that at the expiration of our present contract on May 1st we shall expect an advance of 5 cents per hour over our prevailing scale of wages, which is from 25 to 30 cents per hour. All surrounding cities pay from 30 to 35 cents per hour, and we don't think we should stay behind them, as far as a rate of wages is concerned, or in any other respect.

LOCAL UNION 725, BOWLING GREEN, KY.—At a regular meeting of this Union the following trade rules were adopted, to go into effect May 1, 1903, and remain in force until May 1, 1904, in Bowling Green and vicinity within a radius of six miles:

SECTION 1. Nine hours shall constitute a day's work, between the hours of 7:00 A. M. and 5:00 P. M., for the six working days. The compensation shall be the same as paid in 1902. Time and one-half shall be paid for all overtime, double time shall be paid for work on Sundays, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving and Christmas day, but no work shall be done on Labor Day, which is the first Monday in September.

SEC. 2. No member of Union No. 725 shall be allowed to work with a non-union man more than one week without securing his application for membership.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of the employer to furnish ice water to drink on all jobs, in mills, buildings, etc.; also to convey tools to and from jobs without cost to employes.

SEC. 4. Each employe shall be paid in full once each week.

LOCAL UNION 1312, SAN ANGELO, TEX.—We have served notice on the contractors that on and after April 1st we demand nine hours at the same rate of pay we are now receiving. Prospects being fairly good for the coming season, and having 90 per cent. of the carpenters within our ranks, we do not anticipate much trouble in getting our demands.

LOCAL UNION 1156, POINT PLEASANT, N. J.—The carpenters of this district, comprising Sea Girt, Manasquan, Brielle, Point Pleasant and Bay Head, are demanding a minimum rate of wages of $3.00 per day, to become effective on April 1, 1903. We would ask all brothers to stay away from this vicinity until our movement has been brought to a successful issue.

LOCAL UNION 1348, BROOKHAVEN, MISS.—There is a movement on foot for the securing of the nine-hour day with pay for ten hours, or $2.25 per day. We expect the new schedule to become effective in a few months. Our local union was organized last November and thus still very young, but indications point to a very successful union before long as we are continuously taking in new members.

LOCAL UNION 1060, SPOKANE, WASH.—This Local Union has entered into a movement to secure the nine-hour work-day for mill workers who are still working ten hours per day at a rate of wages ranging from $2.00 to $3.00. Mill men here are compelled to subscribe to a disability insurance feature to the amount of from $20.00 to $50.00 per year; they are paid monthly, the firm holding back the first ten days' pay. Consequently, they have become very much dissatisfied with these conditions, and it is to be hoped that their reasonable and just demand will be granted without having to resort to severe measures.

BRONX BOROUGH, N. Y., DISTRICT COUNCIL.—This body has sent the following demands in circular form to the employers of carpenters in the borough of Bronx, city of Mount Vernon, Bronxville, Tuckahoe and vicinity:

We hereby notify you that on and after May 4th, 1903, the minimum wages for carpenters in the above mentioned district shall be as follows:

In the borough of Bronx, $4.00 per day for eight hours, or fifty cents per hour.

In the city of Mount Vernon, Bronxville, Tuckahoe and vicinity, $3.76 per day for eight hours, or forty-seven cents per hour.

Wages to be paid weekly on or before 12 o'clock noon, Saturday.

Working hours to be between 8 A. M. and 5 P. M.

No work under any condition to be executed between the hours of 12 o'clock noon and 5 P. M., Saturday.

Overtime and work on Sunday or legal holidays to be paid for at the rate of double time.

Only one apprentice allowed to every ten mechanics employed.

These demands do not apply to men while working in the mills.

Successful Trade Movements

LEE, MASS.—We have gained the eight-hour day on April 1st. Please list us as an eight-hour town.

ST. MARY'S, PA.—On January 28th we obtained the nine-hour day and an advance in wages of 3 cents per hour, making our wages now $2.52 per day. Employers and employes are satisfied with the new conditions, and our Union is now placed on a sound basis.

PLYMOUTH, PA.—The controversy with our employers has been settled. We have received the eight-hour work day and our scale will henceforth be 30 cents an hour. This agreement was reached with the contractors after being out but two days, and our membership is elated over the victory.

WILKES BARRE, PA.—Our strike, inaugurated in the latter part of January, has been formally and officially declared off. We have gained an advance in wages of 35c. per day, or a minimum scale of $2.60 per day for eight hours. The contractors have also agreed to the observation of most of our trade rules submitted to them as early as December last.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—At a joint session of our committee and the Builders' Exchange the demands of the carpenters were granted in their entirety, and we are now entitled to a place among the eight-hour cities. The demand for eight hours for mill hands, however, we were unable to enforce at this time. Our minimum scale of wages will now be 35 cents an hour.

WINFIELD, KANS.—We have been organized as recently as July, 1902, and though in existence only eight months, we have been victorious in our demand for the nine-hour day. Encouraged by this victory, the retail clerks are now getting in line, and the painters and stonemasons are ready for organization. The union carpenters are masters of the situation in their trade and hold the best jobs.

BOCKCHITO, I. T.—Since the formation of our local union, in December, 1902, we have had a rough road to travel in our strife for better conditions. Nevertheless we have secured the nine-hour day; our minimum scale of wages is 25 cents an hour. The craft here is well pleased with the success Local Union 1357 is meeting with so far, while the contractors offer but little opposition at present, and everything appears O. K.

Hammond, Ind., Pushing Ahead

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

There is quiet a stir among the trades in this locality, and the carpenters are not the only ones who made a move for eight hours and an advance in wages. Similar demands have been made by most all other crafts, of which we have twenty-seven pretty well organized and represented in the Trades and Labor Council. We have also a Building Trades and a District Council, composed of representatives of our own trade, including Local Union 1110, East Chicago, and Local Union 1370, Indiana Harbor, this town being situated within the East Chicago limits. During the short space of time we are organized we have raised our wages 100 per cent. Those of the employers most friendly to organized labor are Mr. Parker and Mr. Read, with whom no one can obtain employment unless he is in possession of a good working card.

The opera house, just completed, of which Mr. Towl is the owner, has been a scab job all through, and no man of principle will patronize his performances.

Local Union 599 held a very successful annual entertainment on February 14th, where the main features were a ladies' nailing contest and a sawing contest with saws manufactured by four different firms. Henry Diston's saw was the first winner for time and smoothness of cut, and Atkins' saw the next. The two brothers who used the saws in this contest were made presents of them when it was over.

We claim that Hammond is the best organized city in the State of Indiana. We are pushing right along and keep pace with the progress of times.

Hammond, Ind. Local Union 599.

Want Better Attendance

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER.

Local Union 886 having been organized eighteen months and not having contributed anything as yet for the columns of our official journal, we write to let you know that organized labor in this section of the country is pushing to the front. We have one or two contractors here with whom the building trades had some difficulty, but since the business men and citizens of our new city have learned that union contractors and mechanics are always reliable they pay little attention to parties who made themselves obnoxious to union labor.

We are nicely fixed as regards meeting facilities and accommodations; our local union has bought and paid for the house in which our meeting hall is located. We have as nice a set of members as you may find anywhere; but, alas! their interest in union affairs is sadly lacking and indifference seems to have gained the upper hand with them. As a result our meetings are very slimly attended; especially our trustees make themselves very conspicuous by their continuous absence. We would, therefore, call on our members through this medium to take new personal interest in all matters pertaining to our union and to attend our meetings more regularly. We ought not to be slack in these matters. We should bear in mind that the object of our organization is one that concerns each and every one of us. Single-handed we are unable to better our condition, but banded together and working harmoniously together in our union we shall accomplish results by which all will be benefited.

We trust that these utterances will be taken heed of by our membership and our meetings henceforth show that they have not been made in vain.

As work is rather slack here at present we would advise carpenters to turn their way to other quarters until further notice. Yours fraternally,

JOHN S. MITCHELL, R. S.
Dalhart, Texas. Local Union 886.

Let Us Build a Carpenters' Home

Colorado Springs, Col., Feb. 28, '03.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

DEAR SIR—In our beautiful city of Colorado Springs we have the National Union Printers' Home, which is an ornament to the city, and is admired by all who have ever visited it. Every year our city is visited by thousands of people from all parts of the United States and they have great praise for the Printers' Home and the manner in which it is supported and conducted. To my mind, the only thing which prevents it from being an ideal home is that there is no provision made for the wife of the printer, who has labored side by side with him and, perhaps, has shared adverse fortune with him. Not long after the building of this Home it occurred to me that all trades unions should have just such a place for their indigent workmen. It would not be a very heavy burden for the union carpenters to undertake to erect a similar building. In the United States we have 137,000 union carpenters, and by assessing each member 50 cents per quarter, or $2.00 per year, the Brotherhood could realize the sum of $274,000 without working a hardship on any one. Would not this be a sufficient sum to build a neat home? To assess each member 10 cents monthly would amount to $13,700 per month, a sum sufficient to support and maintain it nicely. I mention Colorado Springs as a site, because it is situated in the most healthful region of the country. Without a doubt, we would get liberal donations, perhaps a site; for there are wealthy contractors throughout the United States who would, doubtless, be glad to contribute liberally toward the furnishing of this home. Perhaps it could be furnished entirely by donations. At least, let us try it. Now, I make this plea, not from any selfish motive (for I hope I may never be an inmate), but in behalf of all indigent union carpenters and their wives. To be an ideal home it should include the wife. Had it not been for the wives, perhaps many of the strikes would not have been so successful. She gave her husband encouragement and was willing to put the living down to the barest necessities of life, so that the husband might use his means to take part in the different strikes, thereby gaining a victory, higher wages and shorter hours. So I think that the wife should have a place with her husband. Let them not be separated; she will prove herself very useful about the Home.

I thought the best way to get this before the different Unions at one time would be to have it published in THE CARPENTER. Will not the carpenters please talk to their wives about it and get them interested? I would like to have a letter from the wife of one carpenter from every Union in the United States, so that we may exchange ideas. My husband is a charter member of L. U. 515, and I feel very sure that this Union will most heartily endorse the ideas given here.

Yours most respectfully,
MRS. IDA NELSON,
220 S. Cascade Ave., Colorado Springs, Col.

The Pacific States No Eldorado

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Please allow me space in the journal for a few words on a subject of great importance to brothers and mechanics in general. We would warn any man who may happen to read advertisements in eastern papers setting forth that men are wanted, conditions fair, and business booming on the Pacific coast.

There is no sign of a boom here whatever; and we can recall many instances where men who had placed faith in the advertisements had, as a consequence, to go through very sad experiences; instances where these fake ads. were even the cause of heartrending tragedies. Many a poor man, impressed by the false statements of the eastern papers, said to himself: "Now, I have labored all these years and saved nothing, why should I keep on doing so when there is an opportunity to better my condition and that of my family by shifting quarters to the Pacific coast, where work is plenty and wages high? These cities and towns are growing up rapidly, people are prospering and many have made a fortune." He determines to buy a ticket, and comes along, thinking that he himself being an honest man the parties from where the ads. emanated are likewise, and that he will find an abundance of work and good pay. But, alas! he finds himself sadly disappointed, finding ten men to each job and the cost of living considerably higher than in the east.

He is compelled to go from one place to another in vain search of employment, and finally the hard-earned dollars he brought along are gone and his resources are exhausted. To save himself from starvation he has to work in a lemon ranch or in a raisin vineyard for the pittance of $20 per month. Then, when it is too late, he realizes that he has been buncoed outright and that the Pacific coast is nothing near the Eldorado he dreamed of when reading the statements in the eastern papers.

The steerers, the land-sharks, who want to sell tracts of land at inflated values, and the railroad companies are of course materially benefited by the influx of men and are constantly devising schemes tending to the stimulation of this influx. The Builders' Exchanges out here are likewise an unscrupulous lot, playing into the hands of the railroad companies and land-sharks with a view of inducing large numbers of mechanics to come out here to increase the supply and by these means force wages down.

The foregoing is written by order and approved by Local Union 810, of San Diego, with the intention to safeguard the members of the U. B. against hardship and distress which will surely be in store for them should they pay no heed to this warning. Fraternally yours,

JAMES McCORMACK,
San Diego, Cal. Local Union 810.

An Appeal From the Metal Mechanics

TO ORGANIZED LABOR AND ITS FRIENDS:

We wish to call your attention to a matter in which all organized labor is interested. We will do so as briefly as possible.

In the city of Fremont, Ohio, there are three companies, two engaged in the manufacture of shears, knives and razors, and the other engaged in the manufacture of general novelties. The first two are known as the Claus Shear Company, (sometimes called by the Trust name, The International Shear Company), and the Jackson Knife and Shear Company. The third is known as the Herbrand Manufacturing Company.

The men employed in these factories, desiring to form a union for the purpose of assisting their fellow-workmen throughout the country, asked for organizers, and on or about the 5th day of January last, a charter was issued to a local union of Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers and Brass Workers, and a charter was issued to a local of the International Association of Allied Metal Mechanics. On the 15th of January these three companies, evidently by a pre-arranged plan, simultaneously discharged all of the officers of these newly-instituted locals, and on the 17th of the same month, each and every union man of these three factories were locked out.

These men had made no demand upon the three companies. They had raised no protest, had expressed no discontent, had asked for no increase in pay; or reduction of hours of labor.

Congressman-elect Jackson, one of the largest owners in the Jackson Company, was elected to his office by the workmen of his district. Throughout his campaign he had expressed himself as in favor of unionism, and affiliating with any lawful labor organization.

Every effort has been made by the international officers of the two internationals represented to bring about a satisfactory settlement of all differences; but their efforts to accomplish this much-desired end, have met with contemptuous refusals by the officers of the above-named companies.

It, therefore, becomes necessary for us to adopt such means as seem to be advisable in the interest of true unionism.

We are firmly convinced that these men were discharged contrary to the laws of the State of Ohio, and for no other reason than that they were members of a labor union. We are further convinced that the Claus Mfg. Company, composed principally of John and Henry Claus, were the instigators and propagators of this entire scheme. It appears to us that these companies, and especially the Claus Company, engaged, as they are, in the manufacture of goods used, in a great part, by union men, should be brought to an account for the manner in which they are attempting to crush the very men who make the demand for their products and upon whom they are depending for their customers, viz.: Barbers, Garment Workers, Paper Hangers and Tailors. You can help us.

What we want you to do.

1st. Please present this communication and read it at the next meeting of your local.

2nd. Please authorize your secretary to write a letter, under the seal of your local union, and address to the above-named companies, informing them that as union men, you cannot and will not purchase, and will use your influence with your friends, not to purchase shears, razors, knives and goods manufactured by them, unless they make proper adjustment of the difficulties with their employees.

3rd. Please appoint a committee to present this circular to the hardware dealers of your city, and request them to write a letter to the said companies, stating that they cannot use their goods while they are unfair to union labor, and request your local dealers not to purchase, sell nor handle shears, knives, nor razors, manufactured by said firms, and that if they will put in a line of union-made, or fair goods, you will assist in creating a demand for them.

4th. In order that we may be able to contest the legality of the actions of these companies, and bring them to justice for their actions, and assist these men, who have refused to betray the principle of unionism and go back into those factories as non-union men, and that we may be able to better provide them with the necessities of life, we ask you to give us your moral and financial support. All monies so donated will be distributed pro rata between the men belonging to the Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers and Brass Workers, and the International Association of Allied Mechanics. All monies should be sent to Charles Brockman, 1250 Liberty St., Fremont, Ohio, and notify Geo. B. Buchanan, 421 Valentine Bldg., Toledo, Ohio.

By doing as we ask you will assist us in convincing these three companies of the great power and influence of organized labor, and force them to acknowledge the right of workmen to associate themselves in labor organizations.

Fraternally yours,

JOHN MULHOLLAND, Int. Pres.
GEO. B. BUCHANAN, Int. Sec.-Treas.

LEAVE all prejudices and personal animosities outside the door of the union hall. Be man enough to know your enemy's virtues and your friend's faults, and to vote for or with your enemy or against your friend when your calm judgment tells you that the welfare of the union will be served by your so doing.

Diningroom Mantel

THE mantel here illustrated is a neat and attractive, as well as a practical design, being particularly appropriate for a dining-room on account of the closet which forms the upper portion of it. Another recommendation is that it is easily made and inexpensive. It may be constructed of one-inch material in either hard or soft wood, according to the taste of the maker. The tiling may be of the regulation glazed tile or an imitation made of wood blocked off with small V-shaped grooves and enameled. The doors are of leaded glass, fastened in by small beads. There are two shelves on which to set silver, glassware or china. The top of the closet and the shelf underneath it are convenient and appropriate places for pieces of fancy bric-a-brac. The mantel can be made to fit chimney breast or may be set against the wall. It should be made from measurements to suit the size of the room, height of walls, etc., where it is intended to go. J. S. BALLARD.

Mensuration

BY G. D. INSKIP.

WHEN a form is broader at one end than the other, proceed with the following rule: To the square of the product of the length and narrow end add twice the continual product of these quantities, viz.: the length, the difference between the breadths of the ends, and the area of the part required to be cut off, extract the square root of the sum; from the result deduct the product of the length and narrow end, and divide the remainder by the difference between the breadths of the ends.

Let A-D-E-C be the shape of board or any material, and we wish to cut 60 square inches from the smaller end; A-D equals 3 inches, C-E 6 inches, A-B 20 inches.

To the square of the product of the length, A-B, and the narrow end, A-D; thus: A-D=3, A-B=20; $3 \times 20 = 60$, the product; this squared it $60 \times 60 = 3,600$. To this add twice the continual product of these quantities, viz.: the length, the difference between the breadths of the ends, and the area to be cut off:

$$\begin{array}{r} \text{Narrow end} = 3 \\ \text{Length} = 20 \\ \hline 60 \text{ product.} \\ \text{The area} = 60 \end{array}$$

$$\begin{array}{r} 3,600 \text{ continual product.} \\ \text{Multiplied by } 2 \\ \hline 7,200 \text{ twice contin. product} \\ \text{To this product we add the above product:} \\ 7,200 \\ 3,600 \\ \hline 10,800 \\ \text{We extract the square root of 10,800:} \\ \begin{array}{r} 1 \overline{)10800} \overline{)103.92} \\ 1 \overline{)1} \\ \hline 203 \overline{)0800} \\ 3 \overline{)609} \\ \hline 2069 \overline{)19100} \\ 9 \overline{)18621} \\ \hline 20782 \overline{)47900} \\ \hline 41564 \end{array} \end{array}$$

We have a result of 103.92. From this deduct the product of the length and narrow end and divide the remainder by the difference between the breadths of the ends. The length is 20 x 3, the narrow end, or 60.

$$\begin{array}{r} 103.92 \\ \text{Subtract } 60 \\ \hline 43.92 \end{array}$$

Divide this by the difference between the ends, that is $$\begin{array}{r} 3 \overline{)43.92} \\ \hline 14.64 \end{array}$$ is the required distance to cut off that will have an area of 60 square inches.

Let us take the same example and cut the figure in two equal areas, or 45 square inches: A-D x A-B = $3 \times 20 = 60$; $60 \times 60 = 3,600$.

$$\begin{array}{r} \text{Narrow end} = 3 \\ \text{Length} = 20 \\ \hline 60 \text{ product.} \\ \text{The area} = 45 \\ \hline 300 \\ 240 \\ \hline 2700 \text{ continual product.} \\ \text{Multiplied by } 2 \\ \hline 5400 \\ \text{Adding } 3600 \\ \hline 9000 \end{array}$$

The square root is 94.86:

$$\begin{array}{r} \text{Subtract } 3 \times 20 = 94.86 \\ \hline 60 \\ 3 \overline{)34.86} \\ \hline 11.62 \end{array}$$ the required distance.

Labor's Decalogue

BY G. EDMONSTON.

First General President of the U. B. of C. and J. of A.

I.

Thou shalt join a union of thy craft and have no other unions before it.

II.

The meetings thereof thou shalt attend and pay thy tithes with regularity. Thou shalt not appeal from the decision of the chair in a capitious spirit.

III.

"Thou shalt not take thy neighbor's job."

IV.

Thou shalt not labor more than eight hours for one day's work, nor on the Sabbath, except as provided in the law.

V.

Thou shalt not hire out thy offspring of tender years. "Poverty and shame shall be unto him that refuseth instruction to his children."

VI.

Clothe not the wife of thy bosom in mean apparel lest it be a testimony against thee.

VII.

Thou shalt not live in a hovel, or feed on the husk that the swine doth eat. Take thou not alms from the unrighteous.

VIII.

Waste not thy substance in riotous living, but place thy shekels in a good building association, and borrow not. Therein lieth the secret of success.

IX.

Honor the female sex, for on this rock rests the strength of the nation.

X.

Mind your own business.

The World's Lumber King

Thomas B. Walker, who has been investigating Pacific Coast forests for many years, has returned to Minneapolis after an absence of six months, the holder of enough timber lands to give him the title of lumber king of the world. Mr. Walker now owns the largest tracts of pine timber possessed by any person or firm in the country. In Northwestern California he has purchased standing timber tracts which will last for manufacture sixty years. A 200-mile railroad will be built through the tract. Mr. Walker's time will be devoted to development of this timber land.

In an interview Mr. Walker said that he had at last completed the work started some four or five years ago. He is now owner of a very large tract of timber land in Northwestern California, and intends to put in a railroad to haul out the lumber and supply the country, which is largely devoted to grazing cattle and sheep in the uplands, and to grain and fruit growing in the valleys. The timber is sugar and white pine and is the best that grows in any spot in the world.

Even if the timber which Mr. Walker has purchased did not exist the country is settled to an extent that would warrant the construction of a railroad through it, and vice versa, if the country was not settled, the timber alone would make a railroad a profitable venture. In this way it will be possible to conduct the affairs of the railroad without competition.

At Fall River Mills is a steady water power, with a minimum equivalent to 8,000 horsepower. The fall is about 80 feet, with a variance of only six inches a year in volume. Other towns in the locality are Berne Valley, Jittsville, Beaver Aden, Alluris and Lake View. The railroad will extend from Oregon road in the Sacramento Valley to Lake View. The construction will be comparatively easy for a mountain road. It can be built on a 2 per cent grade, at a slight cost, and on a 1½ per cent grade with a little more expenditure of money and time. For carrying lumber there will be a downhill haul which will simplify the question of transportation to a great degree, as there will be nothing but local freight to be hauled uphill. The building of sawmills will begin at once.—Minneapolis Journal.

Equality

BY S. J. KENT

PROBABLY more than ten thousand orators proclaim throughout the length and breadth of the land, on every recurring 4th of July and on divers other occasions, that here in these United States, as no where else on earth, do we enjoy social and political equality; and while this is true in theory, it is far from true in practice. The average wage worker will stamp his feet and clap his hands when you tell him that he is the equal of the President of the United States or of Rockefeller or Morgan—but does he really believe it? Watch him and see. How deferential he is to the boss! If the banker or the way-up politician should notice him, how he would stammer and stutter and blush like a school-boy to think that he had been noticed! The fact is that the average wage-worker, by his everyday demeanor, shows that down deep in his heart he does not consider that he is the social or political equal of the banker, the professional man, the speculator, the capitalist or the boss. He wears the badge of slavery just as surely as did the serfs of old. On the job or in the shop let the boss speak to him and he almost jumps out of his skin. He is full of animal courage, but let the boss order him to climb a steeple, even though he risk his life, risk leaving his family destitute, will he not cheerfully obey? In exchange for a mere pittance he will work in the deadly mine and run risks with an abandon that shows that he, like the capitalist, considers flesh and blood a very cheap commodity. You have only to beat the tom-toms and cry patriotism and he will leave his little ones and verily court death before a battery of rapid-fire guns. But let the corporations place a notice on the factory door to the effect that he give up his American and God-given right to belong to an association for mutual help and he will quail and shiver and shake as if he had the ague. He has an abundance of animal courage, but is sadly short on that higher quality known as moral courage. In the labor movement we are constantly speaking of the emancipation of the wage-workers. Do we mean to infer that the manual worker is a slave? Have we not boasted year in and year out of our freedom? Yet the fact remains that the manual workers, as a class, are anything but free men. The only essential difference between the freeman and the slave is the right to be a party to the terms under which he labors. Under the system of chattel slavery the slave performed coerced labor—he was forced to work whether he wanted to or not. The freeman's toil must be voluntary. Whenever his employer fixes his hours of labor or his compensation for the same without his full approval and voluntary consent, then he is a slave, and no amount of sophistry can make him a freeman. Even to-day he is a child, a weakling, a dependent. His eyes are on the ground, he lacks ambition, he is full of prejudices, his horizon is narrow. Should his fellow wage-worker seek by force of character to forge to the front he would pull him back again. He boasts of equality before the law, yet should his brother carpenter aspire to be governor of the State he would not only ridicule him, but would fail to vote for him. Would he not say, "Why, he is only a common carpenter," and, instead, support some jack-leg lawyer? How many times I hear that expression, "only a common carpenter." It is because the carpenter considers himself common that the world says amen.

There is an old saying that "the world respects the man who respects himself." This is well illustrated on the school ground. Take the boy who is unwilling to stand up for his rights and his fellow boys will tyrannize over him and treat him with contempt. On the other hand, the boy that asserts himself is always respected. Men are but boys of a larger growth. The labor movement is not only intended to emancipate the workers from the tyranny of capitalism but from the narrow, bigoted egotism of themselves. Let them divest themselves of these pretences and get down to facts. The carpenter, along with other tradesmen, is common. He considers himself so. Not respecting himself, nobody else has done so. The Scripture says, "The Lord helps those who help themselves."

Whenever the wage-workers determine to look upward, determine to be men; whenever they learn to lean upon themselves rather than upon industrial and political bosses, then will they attain social and political equality and not before.

Organize and Educate

THE present age has produced a multitude of wordy advocates of education, but the man of action has not yet appeared to free the slaves of ignorance, and loose the shackles of the masses now in darkness.

Free schools have diffused their benediction through the land, and those who would have received the blessing. But what of the class who refuse to benefit by these advantages?

For them the bliss of ignorance lies in the utter unconsciousness of any need for improvement. "What was good enough for my father, is good enough for me. I have got along without edicashun, and my boy and girl don't need none!"

Poverty is no excuse for the degradation of ignorance. Progress marks the times' advancement. The past century was grand in achievement and prolific in opportunity; then we may safely anticipate wonderful probabilities for the future.

Naturally, the prosperous element of society in every nation requires service from those in humbler walks of life, and we notice the supply from the source always exceeds the demand. It is from the surplus of such population—the idle, ignorant, beggarly element—that recruits in crime are furnished.

Content with ignorance, not realizing any deficiency, "hewers of wood and drawers of water," aiming no higher than to obtain the crude necessities of existence, they know nothing of the refinements of cultivation, consequently unfitted to enjoy them, because they have no ambition for better things.

They continue to marry and give in marriage, multiplying and replenishing a pauperized mass of illiterate and generally incompetent, indifferent laborers.

Unionism is handicapped by this element. Organization has done much for labor, but has much to correct and overcome from the obstacles before and the drawbacks behind the movement.

In this day of "Trusts" self-preservation requires thought and action, and labor realizes the philosophy of unionism. It is also beginning to agitate the subject and emphasize the necessity of education.

For the advancement of the best interests of those who most need a changed order of conditions, universal education is necessary.

Organized labor is strong enough to legislate to that end, until every State in the United States has compulsory education, books and schools free for all. Through prayer and perseverance "Labor conquers all things," and deserves the righteous reward of the best life has to offer. Carnegie is quoted as saying, "The man who dies rich, dies disgraced."—There are thousands of worthy subjects to benefit by the surplus wealth of every philanthropist who has disgraced himself by accumulating a fortune while suffering humanity lives in degradation and dies in pitiful want on all sides. Many prosper by the cause that brings adversity to others, seeing their own brothers and sisters destitute and depending on the charity of public institutions, that they may gather riches for themselves.

There is small hope for any helpful suggestions from this eager rush of money-getters, for if conditions were changed to uplift and improve the masses, all surplus wealth would naturally become more diffused, and the few would have the chances lessened, in proportion, for accumulating fortunes.

Once let the "poor but honest" man make up his mind that he is not quite "smart" enough; that if education is good for the prosperous, it must be good for the poor; let the toiling masses determine to be educated, and this country will soon experience a mighty change for the better.

Let the philanthropist and humanitarian go down among the ambitious and striving "middle class," thence down—to the depths of poverty and ignorance—and there may be found through each grade material in abundance on which to operate. Ignorance should meet with compassion, rather than contempt, for it is the fruit of circumstances.

Where now the average illiterate resents culture in another, he should be taught to emulate rather than to despise. He should be educated, not to hate the beauty, refinement and culture that has become a necessity in another's home. We should raise him to a desire for mental development and educate him to a capacity of enjoyment and relish of improvement.

The anarchist is the natural product of unnatural conditions.

Educate all the children in America, and the twentieth century will show a solution to the problem of "labor troubles" that will prove eminently satisfactory to all classes. One generation of liberal education would do more to eradicate anarchy, avert the conflicts and disturbances that are becoming so frequent, and harmonize the relations between capital and labor, than all forces combined can ever accomplish.

If idleness, luxury and dissipation are conducive to degeneracy among the wealthy, what can the hopeless lethargy be called that is produced by generations of inbred ignorance, poverty and toil?

Knowledge is to the mental what food is to the physical powers, and starvation affects development in either line.

"Learning is not an instinct, but an acquisition." Develop the natural abilities and cultivate the Divine spark that dwells in every immortal soul; give the weak and wicked something to do; educate and improve the species, and every particle of influence against evil will weigh in proportion for the betterment of humanity.

History repeats itself in the rise and progress of nations. The trend of oppression and the resulting spirit of resentment aroused is toward ultimate revolution.

Discontent is fermenting, though well directed by organization, may result in good for those who most need better conditions. Timely education will stimulate the discouraged energies and promote peace and prosperity among the masses who labor.

How much better to prevent disease than to attempt to cure a well developed case! Individuals lead, the masses follow; then the men and women of energy, endowed with mind to direct and heart to sympathize, must assume the responsibility the extremity of the times imposes.

Organization and education are the guardian angels of the people, to raise the majority of the next generation from the dense gloom of ignorance and semi-pauperism to the fair level of prosperity and enlightenment; to uplift, improve and equip for fair competition in life's struggles, and enrich with the priceless wealth of wisdom.

The Bible says, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." When once the desire for education takes sufficient hold on the masses, the disadvantages of poverty, mediocre intellect, weak bodies—nothing can prevent the tendency toward improvement.

We think and write on this subject, but are far from "despising correction," and ready to co-operate with any practical plan by which organization may become a blessing to humanity.

A Model Union

I wish, through the columns of the CARPENTER, to compliment Local No. 151, of Long Branch, for the good attendance at their meetings, and the creditable manner in which they conduct their business. I had the pleasure of attending their meeting on Saturday evening, March 28th, unexpected by them and myself also. I have attended the meetings of many locals in the past few years and will say that I have never seen one so nicely managed as Local 151, especially during the initiation ceremony. The old fashioned ode was sung with an organ accompaniment—and the boys of Local No. 151 certainly knew how to sing it. It created an impression on the candidate that will never be forgotten. It is the opinion of many that a labor organization differs from other societies, and that when a member goes to the local meeting he goes to kick about something, while in the other societies that he may belong to such a thing would never enter his mind. My impression of Local No. 151 is that if the other locals would pattern after them and bear in mind that they should be just as polite in a union meeting as they are in any other society they would soon have a larger attendance at their meetings and at the same time create a more brotherly feeling among each other. Local No. 151 is a union the U. B. may feel proud of.

Fraternally yours,

ASHTON L. BEEGLE,

Newark, N. J.

Too Much Cheap Labor

The Business Men's Association of Norfolk, Va., recently held a meeting and appointed a committee which is to make arrangements for importing cheap white labor in the interest of private enterprises, and thus still further aggravate the deplorable conditions existing at present in that city. One-half of the mechanics of Norfolk are idle, many of them being destitute for want of sufficient employment. Wages in the building trades are low, and have not been increased since 1899. Carpenters and all building craftsmen are warned not to come to Norfolk for some time to come. Do not heed the assertions of unscrupulous business men that additional help is needed to conduct their industries.

Instructions How to Push Trade Demands and Conduct Strikes, or to Manage in Case of Lockouts

1. Send out your trade demands in circular or letter form to every carpenter, contractor or builder in your locality. Ask them to return a written answer to Recording Secretary, whose address should be stated in the communication to the employers.

2. Have one man or a committee of the journeymen in each shop, or on each job, interview the employer, and report to the employer, and report to the Union whether the employer is favorable or not to granting the demands.

3. Let your Local, or the District Council, if you have one, appoint a Committee of Conference of three good, careful men to wait on the Contractors and such Bosses as do not answer or who refuse the demands. This committee should be men who are good mechanics and who are generally respected in the trade. The committee should make every endeavor to effect a settlement without a strike. The committee should act shrewdly and be good natured and gentlemanly. It should not rely on "bluff," or display an arrogant, bullying manner. Be courteous and fair, and use every honorable means to conciliate the employers. Visit each one individually, but where there is an Exchange or Association of Builders, deal through that body with the contractors belonging to it; but don't forget the Bosses outside of it must also be visited and consulted. If you have several points in your demands and can't get all without having to strike, then concede some points to gain the others and avoid a strike.

4. If this plan does not succeed, then, in due time, before entering on the strike, call on the general office to deputize some one to proceed to your locality and see what adjustment can be effected. For oftentimes employers will deal with a representative of the general organization where, for personal or other reasons, they will give little attention to the local men; or it may be that the local men have antagonized the contractors, and it requires some one to act as Mediator to bring both parties together.

5. Remember the above four points should be heeded before a strike is ordered. And it furthermore requires a two-third vote of the members by secret ballot to order a strike.

6. In case of a strike or lockout, a committee of five careful men should be elected by the men on strike or lockout. This committee should hold regular meetings each day. It should have a Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer. The Secretary should report regularly to the General Office as to the situation of affairs.

7. The men out on strike or lockout should answer roll call twice a day—mornings and afternoons. Strike meetings should be held once each day—every morning. Have good local speakers address these meetings if you can, so as to encourage the men.

8. Pickets should be sent to stand at each railroad depot or other place of entry into the city. Pickets should be sent to guard each job or shop where the men have quit. Pickets should keep within the civil law, avoid violence or breach of the peace. Men should report every evening at local headquarters or oftener if necessary.

9. Keep on friendly terms with reporters and representatives of the Press, also with the police and City authorities, and the public, so as to have their good will during the trouble.

Any further information will be readily furnished by writing to the undersigned. Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM D. HUBER,
General President.

FRANK DUFFY,
General Secretary.

We All Have a Cross to Bear

MRS. SADA BALLARD

My friend, you say you're discouraged;
Of trouble, you've had your share—
Why, man alive! look about you,
We all have a cross to bear!

You find that friendship is fleeting,
And love you declare a snare,
Of all you are most unhappy—
But all have a cross to bear.

Your boss is a stingy tyrant
And careless of your welfare—
Perhaps in the business world
He has his own cross to bear.

You're sure that your richer neighbor
Knows not a sorrow or care—
Don't forget his crippled daughter,
Indeed, he's a cross to bear.

There's the young couple over the way,
With their skies so brightly fair—
They're a small mound in God's acre,
Ys, they have a cross to bear.

No use, my friend, to cite others,
The truth to you I declare—
Under the sun there's never one
Who has not a cross to bear.

Comments on the Appointment of a Colored Organizer.

WM. D. HUBER, General President C. & J. of A.:

My Dear Sir and Brother—We wish to express our disapproval in regard to organizing the negro carpenter into our craft.

The reasons of our objections are that it places the negro on an equality, and as southern people our standing on negro equalization has been from time to time thoroughly demonstrated. We cannot entertain the idea of complying with the oath we take if the negro is admitted to our brotherhood. We fail to understand the advancement of our carpenter trade by educating the negro to take our place. To be candid, we believe the negro was created solely for surveying land with a "jackass."

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN P. KISER,
CHAS. RUCKER,
R. C. GENTRY,
Committee.

TALUCA, ILL., Feb. 25.

W. D. HUBER, General President B. of C. J. of A.:

Dear Sir and Brother—In reading over our journal I came across the article entitled "Appointment of a Colored Organizer," which was a wise and needful appointment; and I will say the kickers against such an appointment must not be men of very broad views; besides, I don't think they have traveled far. The writer, on two occasions, has had to take a step down and work under a colored foreman after teaching him the trade, because the white boss thought he could use the colored man where he couldn't use the white man, and on each occasion I have felt sorry for myself and sorry for my colored brother, and I have ardently longed for the day when the colored carpenter and the white carpenter could be united in one mind, with the same object in view, and say to the white boss, "We are freemen, not slaves any longer, and we want you to respect us as such, as our labor is equal to your capital."

D. I. FARLEY, L. U. 807.

TalUCA, Ill.

BROTHER DUFFY:

I see in January journal where President Huber has appointed a negro organizer for the south. I think the southern people have had enough of this kind of rot. The President of the United States has made himself very unpopular with the south by entertaining negroes, and appointing them to positions above their stations. It seems that the northern people have a very peculiar idea of the negro problem, and if they want to solve their destiny they should have their negro organizers to cover the territory they were appointed in, for this is a white man's country and I believe our motto is "Our country, may she ever be right," but right or wrong, the southern man knows the negro from infancy—he will not do to trust, educated or uneducated. Of course there are exceptions, but, generally speaking, the more illiterate he is the better negro you have. I know this from twenty-five years' experience with them; and if the president of this grand body proposes to send a negro south to organize the ignorant negroes and poor white trash, it is time the more enlightened southern people take some action, and if there is not white men enough in this country to run our affairs, we might send off and get a Chinaman or a Portorican. It is useless for any one to think that the African will ever be placed on the same social scale as the Anglo-Saxon.

I organized Union 873 July 18, 1901, and I am very sorry to know that the white men of the south are so scarce that the president of as grand a body, known as the C. & J. of America, has to appoint a negro to organize the south. Why in Texas don't you keep your negroes and let them organize the north? We have all the negroes we want here. If the northern people will let the south and the negro alone he will work out his own destiny. He claims the north freed him. Well, perhaps they did, but that is all they did; the south has raised him, fed him, clothed him and educated him.

This organization must not become a mercenary affair, but strictly a brotherhood; and when the negro is brought on a social level that he can sit in the lodge, room and debate such questions as may be brought up, why should he be denied the privilege to sit in the white man's parlor, and Mrs. Burgess and Mrs. McGinty discuss the gossip of the previous sewing society? Listen, did you ever think of it? Now, if he is allowed one, why should he be denied the other?

These are my sentiments and the sentiments of every southern man south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Yours fraternally,

W. P. PRIDGEON, R. S.

LAMPASAS, TEXAS, Feb. 20, 1903.

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

You no doubt will be surprised to have a communication from our small Lodge, but we think the time has come for all to say something in regard to negro organizing Local Unions, we here in our order are of the same mind.

They have and should have a perfect right to organize their Local Unions, their constitution to be the same as ours, their by-laws as suits them, so as not to conflict with union principles and union rules. They to be governed by our General President in all things pertaining their welfare and interests. Yet, for best results, in our opinion, is for them to have their Local Unions exclusively to themselves and composed of their own color and soliciting only their own as members. By so doing, would he not be bettering his condition, both financially and otherwise? They have their own schools, their own churches, and other orders to themselves, and why not their Local Unions? If they can manage them with the assistance of the white people at the helm to guide them when they go wrong, why can't they do likewise in the U. B.? We here in our order are of the same mind. Let them be to themselves, now and hereafter. We could assist them just the same, with better—yes, far better results. Brother workers and all union men, we would be glad to hear from you through the columns of THE CARPENTER.

LOCAL UNION 140 C. & J. OF A.

Editor of THE CARPENTER:

Dear Sir—The members of Local Union 887, of Hampton, Va., have read with a great deal of interest and disappointment the article on page three of the January issue of THE CARPENTER, entitled "Appointment of a Colored Organizer." While impressed with the conservatism that apparently characterizes this article, we feel confident that there is a lack of appreciation on the part of those members of the United Brotherhood whose sentiments are voiced in this article, and we make this statement notwithstanding the "deliberations at our New York and Atlanta conventions on this subject." We disagree most strenuously with the appeals which, it is stated, were made by delegates representing southern labor unions at these conventions, if these appeals set forth the necessity of organizing negro carpenters and elevating them to the standing of the whites. So deep in the blood of every southern man is the appreciation of the chasm that exists between the white and colored races that there is no need to ever fear the competition of the disorganized colored carpenter.

This article, analyzed, says that because of the black carpenter with the white, it is a matter of self-defense for the white union that the negro carpenter should be organized into a union. There can be no other motive which we appreciate, which might have actuated southern representatives in insisting upon organizing unions, other than that of competition, as indicated.

The individual negro carpenter works for less than the individual white carpenter, for the reason that he is unable to acquire the perfection in his trade of which the white carpenter is capable, and the property-owner of the south, whose money is invested in the improvement of his real estate by the construction and repair of his buildings, fully and thoroughly appreciates this lacking on the part of the colored carpenter. True, there are some white property-owners who employ so-called negro carpenters for the purpose of making minor repairs or constructing minor outbuildings, but by far the greater portion, in fact so great a portion that we safely say all, of the property owners in the south so fully appreciate the racial distinction, as well as the relative abilities of the races to do mechanical work, that there is, in our judgment, absolutely no fear of the negro ever becoming actually a competitor of the white carpenter in the Southern States. We, therefore, conclude that it is unnecessary, in order to avoid competition, that the colored mechanics should be organized. Having disposed, to our own satisfaction at least, of the question of the necessity of organizing the negro in order to dispose of him as a competitor, we are presented with the next proposition: Is it desirable? On the first point, as to the necessity, we believe those of us who belong to the local unions of the south are the best, and should be left the only judges, as it is but logical that we should be the best judges of the wants and necessities of our section. On the second point, as to the desirability of negro unions, there may be differences of opinion, on account of the different environments in the north and in the south respectively, but here, again, we think it but right that it should be admitted that we are the best judges. We regard it as extremely undesirable, as the purpose of our unions is to encourage social affiliation and association among the members; and in the halls of the union we come closely in contact one with another, not only in matters of trade, but on a social footing also. The admission of the negro on such a footing will only result in the disruption of organized labor in the south among the whites. Strive as he may, the white man who is born in the south, or even those who come into our midst, and become acquainted with our surroundings, revolt voluntarily and involuntarily from a close and intimate association with the negro. To permit them to be organized can only result in placing them on the same footing, so far as our meetings are concerned, with the white. This, we repeat, is revolting, and to such an extent is it revolting that, if persisted in, the local unions in the south will become disintegrated.

The article referred to quoted the words of Wendell Phillips. Theoretically, the doctrines of this great advocate of the negro may or may not be true, but practically, it is of absolutely no avail. The doctrines of Wendell Phillips will never be digested by a southern white man.

It is to be regretted that the negro problem, which is causing so much debate and argument in social and political circles, should be forced into the field of labor.

It is because of our loyalty to organized labor that we endeavor to reply, feebly though it be, to the article referred to, but it cannot be demonstrated to our satisfaction that we should in our own interest refrain from entering our protest against Organizer Burgess continuing the work delegated to him, and we would earnestly impress upon the officials of the union, especially upon the General President, that they are endeavoring to overcome a feeling which they might term antipathy, or which they might term prejudice, but a feeling which is a part of the bone, flesh and blood of every southern man, regardless of his social stratum, and regardless of his profession or trade.

Some Comments of the Labor Press

THE NEGRO AND THE LABOR UNIONS, "The Carpenter," a journal published at Indianapolis, Ind., representing the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, contains, in its January number, an article from the pen of Frank Duffy, general secretary of the organization, in which is announced that Brother Burgess, of Birmingham, Ala., a negro, has been appointed by the general president as organizer for the Southern States. The appointment has created some uneasiness and the general office is flooded with letters cautioning the negro organizer not to organize white men.

The general secretary replies to these complaints by referring to the fact that it was the sense of both the recent conventions at New York and Atlanta that the negro carpenters should be elevated to the same standing with his white brethren. The non-union negro carpenter works longer and receives smaller pay and hence he is standing menace to the hours and wages of the Brotherhood. So, Mr. Duffy reasons that the negro carpenter, in fact every other class of colored craftsmen, must be accepted on equal terms and be made to share the benefits of the organization. He insists that Brother Burgess has not only the right to organize colored men, but that the laws of the Brotherhood do not debar him from organizing white men also.

He speaks nobly of the Grand Brotherhood banded together for the purpose of elevating the condition of the entire craft without regard to color or creed. All through the article the sentiments expressed are brave and manly.

As much as education and economy can do to solve the negro problem there is another phase to it which this article of Mr. Duffy's makes apparent; that is the labor or wage condition. It is useless to read homilies on thrift and morality to under-paid labor. The negro in the South must first learn to enhance what he has, that is his capacity to labor, which is his capital, and when he learns its value as the Northern labor has done, the road to wealth and education is much more easily travelled.

More and more the brotherhoods are opening their doors to him and telling him to step in. The labor leaders know that without the negro their organizations are lop-sided and their movements necessarily failures, and the negro can see that as a laborer he must ally himself with his white brother, or remain as he now is in the South, the poorest paid laborer in the world.—St. Louis Advance.

The March number of the official journal of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers contains a reproduction of our article, "The Appointment of a Colored Organizer," and in the same number a correspondent of Birmingham, Ala., has the following to say on the question:

The next great question that must be dealt with sooner or later, and in my opinion, of vital importance to the south, is the much talked of negro problem in our own business. First, we have to admit that the negro is here and there are many negro painters as well as other mechanics. The next thing we have to admit is that there are many white people who prefer the negro workman to the white. Then the question is: what is to be done? We must take a broad, intelligent view of the question.

I believe the only solution is to organize them. Give them charters to themselves. Start them out right and I honestly believe they will remain right, for they will weed out the unqualified. The question with a great many is, will he make a good union man? I see no reason why he should not.

He has in the past and is at present demonstrating the fact that he is a good union man.

Anyone who will study the character of the negro, will agree that he will stick to his union. So let us give this our earnest consideration and make our minds up to organize them for our own self-protection, as well as to better their condition.

Fraternally,
A SOUTHERNER.

To Perplexed Trade Unionists

To the Editor of THE CARPENTER:

The present status of the labor movement in this the metropolis of New England certainly presents an amusing, but withal, an instructive spectacle.

Dramatists at different times have blessed the race by teaching through tragedies its own shortcomings, but now and then mankind has been immensely benefited by individuals whose genius has pierced, through the medium of satire and comedy, the sham hypocrisy and vanities of their fellow men.

If there are such minds abroad in the land they could find ample display for that talent under such a subject as, "How we may keep politics out of trade unions by trade unions going into politics."

Back in the eighties the writer, then an unsophisticated and innocent youth, began to imbibe a great deal of the nonsense and very little of the wisdom that at that time appertained to the "agitate, educate and organize" proposition that then stalked throughout the land and which was retailed by such worthies as Gompers, McPiel, McGuire and Foster, together with stars of more or less receding magnitude.

Those who, like myself, attended those meetings can recall in their memories the "Eight hours for work, the night for what you will," etc.; "Reduce the hours and set the other man to work"; "Twill give us a chance to educate ourselves." These were among the leading phrases that made the welkin ring in the old days and which do now perhaps where the woodbine twineth but not where granite sidewalks and twenty-story buildings attest the march of industry.

Some may query, now that we have these things, why is it we are still so badly off?

Men light their pathways, present and future, by the torch of experience. This may, in a measure, account for the change of front "organized labor" has taken here and elsewhere the past two or three years.

We have been taught that our industrial wrongs and afflictions could be righted by craftsmen and others joining their respective trade unions. The new idea is a negation of this. It is still, with many, a debatable question. There are a few who believe that the trade unions are all right, only the theories that underlie the movement are wrong; that they treat as fundamental that which is superficial, grasping for the shadow of things instead of the substance.

The comedy which is being played on Beacon Hill, Boston, shows one faction of trade union leaders striving to guide the political expression of the unions in the interest of the Democratic party, an instrument of capitalism, by agitating constitutional amendments in behalf of the initiative and referendum, proportional representation, etc.

The other element, known in this State as the Socialist party, advocating government ownership of public utilities and municipal ownership of coal yards.

The labor question is a political question. All political action is the reflex of our economic condition. That being the case a correct conception on our part demands a knowledge of economics, the principles underlying government and a thorough understanding of where our class interests lay.

Knowing this, we will not fall into the traps that at present lurk in this as well as other localities.

The Ethics of Trades Unions

BY GABRIEL EDMONSTON,

First Gen'l Pres't of the U. B. of C. & J. of A.

THE necessity of national unions of each craft has been so fully demonstrated by actual experience that it would now be useless labor to set forth their many advantages. When their numbers had multiplied, and a federation was the logical outcome, the serious task was attempted of outlining a broad policy based upon the soundest qualifications of citizenship; also to establish relations between the national trades unions grounded on mutuality of interests along certain well-defined lines.

"The Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada" was organized at Pittsburgh, September 15-18, 1881, by one hundred and seven representatives of organized bodies of workmen. This august body went so hurriedly about the task they had undertaken that in the first year it became almost lifeless.* The declaration of principles and platform then adopted, with but a single exception, were good, as far as they went, but seemed to be cut too short to fit the space they were to occupy.

†Autonomy of trades guaranteed.

‡Eight-hour workday established.

The breach between employer and employee was at that time steadily growing wider. This was owing to the independence of the American workmen and the ready facilities of supplying his place from a glutted labor market. The improvements in labor-saving machinery, unrestricted immigration and the lack of cohesion between the national unions were potent agencies wholly in favor of the employer and against the workmen. These were felt to be serious obstacles to any marked progress of the workers. It then remained for the fourth and fifth annual sessions to inject new vigor into an almost pulseless patient. The fourth session committed the Federation to the daring step of establishing the eight-hour workday, not by an imperial edict, or by a legislative concession from the ruling class, but by inherent right of self-sustaining manhood. The utility of the Federation as a representative body was thereby firmly established in the mind of even the dullest workman. It also disarmed the opponents among the trades unionists of their strongest plea, which was the cost of maintaining a federation without any apparent advantages.

Who will now say that the eight-hour workday, established in this manner, is not far better than by legislative enactment subject to repeal or the adverse decisions of courts? A petition to concede a prescriptive right implies a menial position; a demand as by an inherent right is of a master spirit and loses no self-respect. How far will the impress of that action of the Federation be felt by future generations of workmen when similar obstacles are to be met and overcome?

The fifth annual session, held at Washington, D. C., December 8, 1885, took another step forward as the dominant factor in labor reform. It amended the Constitution by guaranteeing to each national union the autonomy of its trade. § The significance of this addition to the Constitution reduced to its lowest terms is: There can be only one national union of any one trade recognized by the American Federation of Labor throughout its entire jurisdiction. This then became, and is still, the fundamental law that can in no instance be violated without impairing the value of the whole. There is no supreme court to pass on the constitutionality of any act of the Federation in violation of its fundamental law. For this reason the obligation on the delegates at their annual sessions becomes imperative to strictly observe all of its provisions or to repeal such as may be proven impracticable and valueless. And it is also equally as imperative for the Executive Council to enforce them. If this amendment to the Constitution, adopted at the fifth annual session, had been found to work any injury to the labor movement, it should have been stricken out at New Orleans. A grave mistake of a former session remedied at the proper time is the only wise course and serves but to increase the confidence of its constituency in its purpose to do the right thing, but persisted in to cover up a former irregularity, must arouse suspicion and opposition.

Article II, Section 2, reads: "The establishment of national and international trades unions based upon a strict recognition of the autonomy of each trade and the promotion and advancement of such bodies." A motion to repeal this section I am confident will never command a respectable vote at any future session of the American Federation of Labor. If, then, this section forms an important item in the federative compact, it establishes a duty between the national unions to guard the welfare of other trades as well as their own. This duty is put into practice daily between members of the various trades. I will give but a single example as an illustration. There are forty-three national unions which have adopted labels to distinguish union-made goods from non-union-made goods. The value of these labels to the trades using them depends on the loyal duty of members of other national unions. The endorsement of a label by a union not using the same device is an implied treaty written between the lines of the endorsement. For instance, the Brotherhood of Carpenters have endorsed the blue label of the cigarmakers, the device of the allied printing trades, as well as the other labels presented to them. Does this give us any claim on the label unions for their moral support when we may need it? If this support is refused, does the treaty still stand, like a jug handle, all on one side?

Allow me to cite one instance where the ethics of trade unions have been violated, and note the results. The admission of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters into the American Federation of Labor in 1890 was contrary to Section 2 of Article II above quoted. When their credentials were presented they should have been promptly ruled out of order. They have never been legally a component part of the Federation. The Amalgamated Society of Carpenters, with its headquarters in Manchester, England, as a component part of the American Federation of Labor is a solecism that would puzzle Mr. Dooley to explain to his friend, Mr. Hennessy. That society is not composed of British subjects, as might be supposed; in fact, I think it can be shown that a larger number of the latter are now members of the Brotherhood of Carpenters. When the Knights of Labor began to disintegrate the ranks of the Amalgamated Society began to show a marked increase in numbers, as well as the Brotherhood. I think I then may be safe in saying that this English organization is largely composed of Americans who, for reasons of their own, refuse to owe any allegiance to the national union of their own country. They number less than four thousand in the whole of the United States and Canada, and have no moral right to oppose the one hundred and thirty thousand of their own craft animated by a national spirit, whether they are native born or Americans by adoption. The position the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters must occupy on this side would be entirely at variance with the prestige of that order as it is now conducted in England.

It is a well established fact that the bosses always depend on a weak minority to defeat the objects of the larger number of organized workmen. The temptation to earn the good will of the bosses is in proportion to the need of the smaller number for assistance in maintaining themselves as an organization. This tends strongly towards disorganization, and is not trades unionism in any sense of its meaning. A little girl of four once asked her mother why the new sister was baptized. Her mother told her that it was to make a good child of her. The little Miss went out and told her playmates that "the new baby was baptized, but it didn't work, for she is just as bad as she was before." Similar services were performed on the Amalgamated Society at New York in 1890, but it didn't work; they are just as bad as they were prior to the time when they held aloof from the American Federation of Labor, undetermined whether to address their prayer to the Deity or to the Devil. The only manly course now open to them is to become a part of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters, as suggested by the New Orleans convention.

Much dissatisfaction was expressed at the Atlanta convention of the Brotherhood, and it was suggested that we withdraw from the American Federation of Labor in case they refused to annul the charter of the Amalgamated Society. Allow me to say in concluding that it is my opinion that the Brotherhood should not make this serious mistake. Fight it out under the banner of the American Federation of Labor, and the Brotherhood will eventually succeed to the entire satisfaction of all of its members.

The Democracy of Labor

BY HAL SCRIVER

It is the fashion of the capitalist and their newspaper spokesmen and of many sycophantic preachers and college professors to represent the trade unions as something like the monastic orders of the middle ages, in which every member was bound by oath, under the severest penalties, to obey the arbitrary commands of his superiors. They talk of the tyranny of the leaders who compel the rank and file, against their will, to go on strike or to observe a boycott. Let me quote, for instance, from a book published only last year, "The Rights of Man," by Rt. Rev. Lynn Abbott, Beecher's successor in Plymouth Church and now editor of The Outlook. On page 299 Dr. Abbott says:

"Trade unions are ruled over generally by a directory scarcely less absolute than that which governed the Revolutionists in the day of Mirabeau" [Dr. Abbott is a little rusty on his French history, apparently, and perhaps confuses Mirabeau with Danton], "which meets in secret, demands implicit obedience to its orders, and forces obedience to them by industrial excommunication, and sometimes by open violence and assault."

Of course this reverend gentleman was not wilfully lying. He had probably never even read the constitution of a single trade union or more than carelessly glanced at the pages of a union journal. He is not very much to blame for being uninformed, but he is deeply culpable for lending the authority of his reputation for learning and of his social standing to an unmitigated falsehood by writing confidently on a subject of which he knew next to nothing.

But there are others who cannot plead even the poor excuse of ignorance. When a hundred and fifty thousand coal miners struck and stayed out for six weeks nearly every capitalist editor in the land expressly or by implication informed his readers that the men went out unwillingly; that they were forced out and kept out by John Mitchell and a few of his associates who held this great army of men to obedience by the threat of physical violence. This monstrously ridiculous lie was gravely uttered and repeated with all cunning variation of phrase by men who had every means of knowing, and who actually did know, the real state of affairs. Nor in regard to that strike only. As I write the same thing is being said of the trolley men's strike in Waterbury. The same thing is said of every strike that commands public attention.

Of course it is easy to see the motive for this wilful, systematic and complete perversion of the truth. The capitalists wish to have the farmers, the middle-class people, and the unorganized workman regard the unions with suspicion and hatred, so that it will be the harder for unions to gain new members or obtain financial aid in time of trouble, so that it shall be easier for the capitalists to get scabs to break strikes, and so that "public opinion" shall uphold the capitalist and the government in mustering armed guards, police, militia, or federal troops to intimidate and, if necessary, murder strikers. That is a very natural desire on their part. They give the word and editors, correspondents, and reporters write what their masters want. The preachers and college professors, secluded as they are from the real life of the world and trained to think and repeat the thoughts of "respectable society," echo the falsehood and instill its poison into the minds of the young. Even the public schools, in many cases, and more especially the private or endowed trade schools, are perverted to the same end.

Of course every union man knows that these representations are absurdly and maliciously false. Perhaps not many union members realize how false they are.

I suppose it is safe to say that the labor movement—including, besides the trade unions, various other workingmen's societies more or less closely connected with them—is the highest and most nearly perfect embodiment of the principles of democracy, of collective self-government, that the world has ever seen. In saying this I do not except even those two classic types of democracy, the Athenian republic, the Swiss cantons, the old New England town meeting. The old New England town or Swiss canton was so primitive, and its affairs so simple and easy to deal with, and in general it had so little outside interference to overcome, that its tasks, and therefore its achievements, were not comparable with those of the modern trade union. The Athenian democracy rested on a sub-stratum of slaves and unenfranchised aliens, and the free citizens had ample time to ponder and discuss their public affairs. The number of Athenian citizens was far less than the membership of our International Typographical Union or Cigar Makers' International Union, to say nothing of the Brotherhood of Carpenters or the United Mine Workers; and in many other respects the problem of self-government was simpler and easier for Athens than for any of our great trade organizations.

Of nearly all trade unions it may be said that they practice equal and universal suffrage, without distinction of race, color, religion or sex; that all members are eligible to office; that their laws are made by representative bodies, elected directly by the membership on an equal apportionment, and that these laws are generally subject to approval or rejection by the referendum; that the executive officers are chosen for short terms by direct popular vote; that important measures, such as the declaration of a strike, can be decided only by direct vote of the membership or by delegate bodies elected for the occasion and subject to instruction by their constituents; that free speech prevails; that members contribute equally or in close proportion to their earnings to the common expenses, and that all have equal right to the protection and the benefits of the organization.

These unions consist of tens of thousands or even hundreds of thousands of members, widely scattered geographically, in many cases including people speaking different languages, and in all cases including people of widely different national character and habits and religious beliefs. They carry on a contest against closely, secretly, and oligarchically organized opponents with the advantage of enormously greater wealth, more leisure, more education, and great legal privileges. This contest involves on the side of the trade union a constant demand for personal sacrifice by the members, often of sacrifice by the majority for the immediate protection of a very few—and a sacrifice, not of luxuries, but of the comforts, often of the very necessities, of life. Again, the problems with which they deal are so complex, the conditions differing so greatly in different places or in different branches of a single trade, and changing so rapidly besides, that it is extremely difficult for any member to understand even the immediate needs of his union outside of his special circle, and often the immediate interests of members of the same trade in different branches or localities seem to conflict gravely. If we then go on to consider the relations of different trades we find the problems growing still more complex. And, finally, the misinformation purposely given out by the capitalists, who control the principal means of communication, adds enormously to all these difficulties.

It seems to me, as a student of history and of social science, that the careful and thoughtful observer, realizing the task at which the labor organizations are engaged and the manifold handicaps which they bear, must be more and more surprised the more closely he studies the subject, not that they make so many blunders and failures, but that they make so few. He must realize that here the principles of democracy are being put to the severest test and that here is the greatest school of democracy, teaching and training men to govern themselves. And he must be struck with admiration to see how well those principles are standing the test, how quickly and how thoroughly that great lesson is being learned.

I have said only that the labor movement is the most perfect embodiment of democratic principles the world has yet seen—not, by any means, that it is perfect. Its imperfections are many and great—imperfections in the organization as such, and in the spirit and conduct of the members. Those imperfections it is the duty of every honest union man frankly to recognize and to aid in setting right. Of them, or some of them, we may speak at another time. We need not fear to face them, for the progress we have thus far made justified us in looking to the future with absolute confidence in our own united wisdom and strength.

Majority or Minority

WHEN the champions of money herald perverted conclusions and ultimatums, through the public press, in an effort to educate the public along prenicious lines, it is the duty of those who represent the interests of labor, progress and the welfare of communities at large, to expose the fallacy of their arguments and prevent the working people, at least, from drifting into a general acceptance of glittering and high sounding statements that upon the face seem to bear a plausible appearance but which, when analyzed and sifted, are found to be devoid of merit or value and which, like rotten fabric, fall to pieces.

Dr. Abbott, the ministerial patriot and champion of Democratic rights says "the whole power of the State should be brought to bear in support of the right of the individual to work when and where he pleases," and Prof. Elliot, of Harvard, says the scab is "a good type of the American hero." This sounds like Fourth of July pyrotechnics but, if we examine the history of Republics, we find that the welfare of the majority has always obtained precedence over the welfare of the individual. A more Democratic doctrine was never promulgated in a republican government.

Under the law of primogeniture the rights of the Republic must have been born before the rights of the individual and no law can set aside the welfare of the majority for the welfare of the individual. In the early Roman Republic the query propounded was, Lex majorum versus Liberum arbitrium, the law or will of the majority vs. the will of the individual, and the answer to that query was that laws should be made for the greatest good of the greatest number.

Since that period of time there has been a never ceasing effort on the part of those who arrogate to themselves Divine rights, to establish the individual above the community. The wage earners of the world are uniting and organizing for an equitable portion of the product of their labor and to protect themselves against the greed and avarice of monopoly. The fruits of their efforts are shared by the community in which they dwell, and the general condition of the community is gauged by the condition of the wage earners.

Civilization and its colleague education are dependent upon the domestic and industrial conditions of the masses. To stob these elevating and progressive forces would result in a degenerating process. No one doubts that the tendency of organized labor is toward general advancement. Shall the progress and upward tendency be hampered or restrained by alleged individual rights?

Republics have never been known to recognize the rights of the individual above the welfare of the government, and the government is de facto the people. To argue that the individual has the right to clog the wheels of progress and prevent the betterment of social and industrial conditions of the masses, is to argue the supremacy of the individual over the body of the people. The argument is untenable in a Democratic government—Demos, the people; kratein, to rule.

Shorter work days and higher wage scales is the thermometer of twentieth century progress; it has risen many degrees since the foundation of our Republic. Would any power except greed or benighted ignorance turn it back to the zero point? The learned gentleman of Harvard College is facetious—he uses the force of irony to make the contrast striking between the hero and the scab, and reminds us of the withering irony of Job, when he said: "No doubt that ye are the people and wisdom will die with ye." The kodak gives us a silhouette of the strike breaker sneaking through the shadows 'till he reaches the part of his prison yard where he crouches to his work under the protection of the military power.

And this is the hero.

The statement of the N. Y. Divine, who postulates the duty of the State, is most refreshing. He argues that the domestic welfare of a thousand men, with all dependencies is of less importance to the State than the safety and interests of an individual. He holds that bloodshed and chaos would be better in the interest of the individual than peace, progress and good domestic conditions in the interests of the many. This may be the ecclesiastical analysis of the situation but it is not Democratic logic. We may deplore the ignorance and abhor the folly of the strike breaker, yet we should wrap the mantle of charity around him and save him from himself as well as from doing an injury to the wage-workers at large.

What Some People Think of Trades Unions

BY FRANK DUFFY.

They say. What say they? Let them say.

SOME men go to extreme measures to make themselves popular in the eyes of their fellow-men, and even resort to unscrupulous devices to attain that end. Recently Mr. Parry, President of the National Manufacturers' Association, in a speech delivered at Chicago, Ill., severely criticised labor organizations and denounced them as institutions dangerous to the safety and perpetuation of the commonwealth.

From the trend of his remarks it was plain to be seen that he has no love for trades unionists, their friends and supporters, and especially their leaders. All came in for a scoring alike; all were lashed by the same fiery tongue as anarchists, socialists and thugs; all were denounced by him as persons unsuited and unfit for American citizenship.

In this enlightened and educated age it is quite evident that Mr. Parry is very ignorant on one of the most vital questions that faces the American public at the present time: The right to live and exist as free men. Although the negro has been freed from slavery, Mr. Parry still believes in the slavery of the white man. If it is wrong to ask for better conditions under which to work; if it is wrong to ask for a better wage than that which we are receiving, or for a shorter workday; if it is wrong to band ourselves together in trades unions for mutual protection, higher ideals and better education; if it is wrong to invest our few hard-earned cents in an organization that holds out the hand of friendship and assistance to us in times of sickness, depression or death, then, and not till then, is it time for Mr. Parry and his followers to lambast us.

Trades unions, with their workings, teachings, desires, intentions, objects and aims, have been thoroughly investigated from time to time by men of all classes—politically, religiously, fraternally—and not in one instance have they been reported as "dangerous institutions that should be suppressed;" and yet we are told by one single individual, who never went to the trouble to investigate, that we are "dangerous" and that our trades unions are a "menace" to the commonwealth. Like Baalam's ass, he likes to hear himself bray.

Irrespective of the sayings of Mr. Parry, I say to the trades unionists: Go right ahead with the good work in which you are engaged. You are doing more for the emancipation of the working man; more for the relief of our women workers; more for the freedom and education of the children; more for the protection of the home, than ever Mr. Parry dreamed of.

It is not the few who make a country or its people—it is the many.

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay.
Princes and lords may flourish or may fade—
A breath can make them, as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country's pride,
When once destroyed, can never be supplied."

DON'T be a "knocker." That is only an infinitesimal degree less shameful than being a toady. Neither flatter nor court flattery; dare to speak of other men's faults when the common good demands it, but otherwise be silent on that subject; and be always a little more ready to endure unjust criticism than to criticize others unjustly. In the long run, the man who follows this counsel will be liked and trusted and respected.

Comite-Bericht

über die bezüglich der Jurisdiktionsfrage mit dem Comite der Amalgamated Woodworkers gepflogenen Verhandlungen.

Das Comite der B. B., bestehend aus G. J. Bohnen, L. U. 476, New York; J. H. Potts, L. U. 33, Boston, Mass.; J. H. Clark, L. U. 964, Philadelphia; J. H. Brower, L. U. 363, Elgin, Ill., und A. Fuelle, L. U. 47, St. Louis, versammelte sich am 23. Februar, am Tage vor dem Zusammentritt des Gesamt-Comites, in der General-Office und beschloß, sich in der Jurisdiktionsfrage streng an die Bestimmungen der Sectionen 61 und 62 der revidirten General-Constitution zu halten.

Am 24. Februar traten die beiderseitigen Comites im Occidental Hotel, Indianapolis, in Berathung. Die Vertreter der Amalgamated Woodworkers waren: Thomas J. Kidd, R. Braunschweig, G. F. Sebelein, E. D. Mulcahey und Geo. Guntner.

Es stellte sich sofort heraus, daß sich die Meinungen in der vorliegenden Frage schroff gegenüber standen, und man vereinbarte deshalb, daß eine erste Person als Schiedsrichter zugezogen werden solle, um zugleich als Vorsitzender zu fungieren.

Da es Ihrem Comite darum zu thun war, ein wahrheitsgetreues und unverfälschtes Protokoll der Verhandlungen zu erhalten, machten wir den Vertretern der Woodworkers den Vorschlag, gemeinschaftlich einen Stenographen anzustellen. Dieser Vorschlag wurde jedoch von den Woodworkers zurückgewiesen, und jede Seite engagierte einen Stenographen für sich allein.

Die Am. Woodworkers unterbreiteten folgende Candidaten-Liste zur Wahl eines Schiedsrichters:

G. S. Barrow, E. A. Agard, W. D. Mahon, D. Blad, E. D. Sherman, M. Donnelly, D. Krepling, W. Klapetzky, L. J. Downey, H. G. Call, E. J. Lynch, W. Penje und M. Higgins.

Wir selbst schlugen Folgende vor:

W. B. Wilson, Jas. Hatch, L. D. Nichols, C. Dold, M. Barnes, J. L. Feltman, M. Taylor, J. B. Dempsey, C. M. Beatty, J. Shopp, M. S. Hayes und C. M. Edley.

Gegen Mr. S. Hayes und C. M. Edley wurde seitens der Woodworkers entschieden Einwand erhoben, und Ihr Comite zog deshalb diese Namen zurück und setzte an deren Stelle die Namen von G. J. Keegan und Samuel Parks.

In der Abstimmung wurde es sofort klar, daß keiner unserer Candidaten auch nur eine Stimme der Woodworkers erhalten würde; sie stimmten einmüthig gegen jeden derselben, was uns veranlaßte, dieselbe Methode zu beobachten, damit im Falle der Nicht-Einigung auf einen Candidaten die Ernennung eines ersten Mannes als Schiedsrichter Samuel Gompers zufalle und die ganze Verhandlung zur Sache der A. F. of L. gemacht werde. Nachdem beide Listen erschöpft und nur noch P. J. Downey von Albany, N. Y., und Samuel Parks von New York im Felde standen, stimmte einer unserer Delegaten irrtümlichweise für Downey und wurde der letztere somit als Schiedsrichter erwählt.

Downey wurde von seiner Wahl verständigt und erschien Freitag Vormittags am 27. Februar. Das gemeinschaftliche Comite trat alsdann im Occidental Hotel in Berathung.

Es wurde vereinbart, die Protokolle der beiden Stenographen vor Annahme derselben einem Vergleiche aus, und wenn nöthig, einer Correctur zu unterziehen. Es wurde ferner vereinbart, die Sitzungen so lange auszudehnen, bis alles Beweismaterial unterbreitet ist und daß dann der Schiedsrichter seine Entscheidung abgebe; daß nur durch Beweismaterial erhärtete Thatsachen als solche gelten, und keine Vertagung eintreten soll, bis der Schiedsrichter sein Urtheil gefällt und daselbe dem Protokoll einverleibt werden kann. Es wurde ferner beschloffen, daß jede Seite seinen Stenographen abhole, die Bezahlung des Schiedsrichters aber seitens der A. F. of L. geschehen solle, da diese die Einsetzung des Comites veranlaßt habe.

Das Comite schritt hierauf zur Entgegennahme von Beweismaterial in der eigentlichen, wie oben bezeichneten, Frage. Das vollständige Protokoll über die Verhandlungen und die wörtlichen Aussagen sind diesem Berichte beigelegt; es ist nicht notwendig, dieselben hier zu wiederholen, und wir beschränken uns auf eine kurze Uebersicht derselben.

Ihr Comite wurde aufgefordert, mit dem Beweismaterial, daß die Am. Woodworkers eine rivalisirende Organisation sei, die sich viele Uebergänge in die Jurisdiktion der B. B. zu Schulden kommen lasse, zu beginnen, und wir wiesen mittels unserer Constitution nach, daß unsere B. B. seit 1886 Jurisdiktion über Shop- und Maschinen-Holzarbeiter, Cabinetmakers u. s. w. beansprucht habe.

Da die Am. Woodworkers behaupteten, über diese Zweige des Holzarbeiterfaches ebenfalls Jurisdiktion zu haben, verlangten wir von ihnen den Nachweis, daß sie diese Jurisdiktion rechtmäßig erlangt und ihnen diese rechtmäßig zukomme.

Dieser Nachweis, wie ihn die Am. Woodworkers dem Vorsitzenden unterbreiteten, bestand in der Behauptung, daß die Convention der B. B., welche 1894 in Indianapolis stattfand, der Internationalen Holz-Maschinenarbeiter-Union diese Jurisdiktion durch Vertrag übertragen habe. Als wir Einsicht in den angeblichen Vertrag verlangten, mußten die Am. Woodworkers zugeben, daß ein formeller, von ihrer Organisation unterzeichneter Vertrag nicht bestünde. Sie machten dann geltend, daß die Int. Machine Woodworkers' Union schon seit deren Gründung in 1890 Jurisdiktion über Maschinenarbeiter und die Int. Möbelarbeiter-Union schon seit deren Gründung in 1873 Jurisdiktion über Tischler und andere Shop-Arbeiter gehabt, und daß durch die Verschmelzung beider Organisationen in 1895 diese Jurisdiktion auf die neue Organisation, die Am. Woodworkers, übergegangen sei. Sie machten ferner geltend, daß im Jahre 1897 ein neuer Vertrag in obigem Sinne mit dem G. E. B. der B. B. und den Am. Woodworkers eingegangen worden sei.

In der Widerlegung dieser Angaben wies Ihr Comite nach, daß die Int. Machine Woodworkers' Union zur Zeit ihrer Gründung in 1890 keinen Charter der A. F. of L. besaß, weil P. J. McGuire gegen dessen Ertheilung Protest einlegte und ein Charter erst gewährt wurde, nachdem der Protest zurückgezogen und Thomas J. Kidd dem G. E. B. der B. B. die Versicherung gegeben hatte, daß seine Union keine Jurisdiktion über Maschinen-Arbeiter, die in unserem Gewerbe betheilig sind, beanspruche, oder sich Uebergänge in diese Jurisdiktion erlauben werde. Wir wiesen ferner nach, daß laut der gedruckten Verhandlungen der Indianapolis Convention der B. B. in 1894 letztere niemals beabsichtigt hatte, einen Vertrag mit der Int. Machine Woodworkers' Union einzugehen, indem der angebliche Vertrag nur in einem Berichte des Organisations-Comites und dessen Ansichten in der Angelegenheit bestand, welcher Bericht zwar angenommen, aber nachträglich durch einen Beschluß, welcher allen Tischlern, Framern und Holz-Maschinenarbeitern, die im Carpenter-Gewerbe beschäftigt sind, Aufnahme gewährte, wieder null und nichtig gemacht wurde. Also, daß die Thatsache, daß Thomas J. Kidd vor dem G. E. B. erschien und um Jurisdiktion und Aufnahme-recht der Maschinen- und Shop-Arbeiter in seine Organisation nachsuchte, ein klarer Beweis sei, daß seine Union diese Jurisdiktion nicht besaß.

Ihr Comite erklärte ferner, daß wenn unsere Indianapolis Convention wirklich die Absicht gehabt hätte, der Jurisdiktion über diese Gewerkszweige zu entgehen, es nothwendig gewesen wäre, die Constitution dahin zu amendiren, daß Specialisten in diesen Fächern die Mitgliedschaft in der B. B. verweigert ist, und es hätte eine Abstimmung über ein derartiges Amendement vorgenommen werden müssen; und da diese nicht stattfand, sei dies ein Beweis, daß keinerlei Vertrag eingegangen wurde. Daß dies nicht der Fall war, bewies außerdem das Zugeständniß Thomas J. Kidd's, daß kein unterzeichneter Vertrag bestünde, und ihm nur eine einschlägliche persönliche Mittheilung seitens P. J. McGuire's in der Vorhalle des Hotel English in Indianapolis gemacht wurde.

Ihr Comite wies ferner auf Grund des von den Am. Woodworkers gelieferten Beweismaterials darauf hin, daß was die Jurisdiktion der Int. Möbelarbeiter betreffe, dieselbe seit ihrer Gründung in 1873 laut vorliegender Constitution nur Jurisdiktion über in der Möbel-Fabrikation betheiligte Tischler und Maschinenarbeiter beanspruchte, und daß der Verschmelzungsakt letzterer Organisation mit der Int. Machine Woodworkers' Union der neuen Organisation nicht eine Jurisdiktion zuweisen könne, welche keine von beiden vor der Verschmelzung besaß, sondern daß durch die Verschmelzung alle Verträge, welche zwischen einer der beiden Organisationen und einer anderen bestanden, null und nichtig geworden seien.

Kein Vertrag könne das Ende einer Organisation überleben; es seien denn in einem Vertrage spezielle Bestimmungen für einen derartigen Fall getroffen.

Wir wiesen ferner darauf hin, daß die Am. Woodworkers seit ihrer Gründung darnach gestrebt haben, einen Vertrag mit der B. B. einzugehen, und daß aus ihrem eigenen Beweismaterial hervorgehe, daß ein Vertrag nicht bestünde und der mit dem G. E. B. der B. B. angeblich eingegangene nicht ausgeführt wurde. Die Am. Woodworkers gaben sogar zu, daß der von ihnen der B. B. unter-breitete Vertrag niemals von derselben ratifiziert wurde.

Wir wiesen ferner nach, daß jeder Vertrag oder jede Vereinbarung, welche mit den National-Behörden getroffen worden sein möge, durch unsere New Yorker Convention in 1898 außer Kraft gesetzt wurde; daß selbst wenn unsere Indianapolis Convention Zugeständnisse an die Int. Machine Woodworkers' Union gemacht hätte, dieselben nur bis zur Verschmelzung derselben mit der Int. Möbelarbeiter-Union im Spätjahre 1895 Wirkungskraft gehabt haben könne, und daß die Am. Woodworkers öfters und vor der Verschmelzung darauf aufmerksam gemacht wurde, daß kein nachweisbarer Vertrag bestehe und die B. B. seit ihrer Gründung im Jahre 1881 unangefochtene Jurisdiktion über alle ihre Gewerkszweige ausgeübt habe.

Allen Fragen, unbrüderliche Handlungsweise der Am. Woodworkers betreffend, wie Jurisdiktions-Uebergänge, Arbeiten unter dem Lohne und Einnahme unserer Blöße während Ausständen, wurden die Einverleibung in das Beweismaterial verweigert, mit der Begründung, daß es lediglich die Aufgabe des Comites sei, die Grenzlinien der Jurisdiktion beider in Frage kommenden Organisationen festzustellen, und es unmöglich sei, über Jurisdiktions-Uebergänge zu urtheilen, so lange die Jurisdiktion selbst noch nicht festgelegt sei.

Während der Einreichung und Entgegennahme des Beweismaterials wurde der Vorsitzende, Downey, ernstlich krank und mußte sich am 5. März nach seinem Hotel begeben, und das Comite war gezwungen, sich bis zu Downey's Genesung, Montag Vormittag, 9. März, zu vertagen.

Nachdem am 11. März, Mittags, alles Beweismaterial eingelaufen und die Verhandlungen zum Schluß gekommen waren, vertagte sich das Comite, um dem Vorsitzenden Zeit zu geben, seine Entscheidung abzufassen, um auf Verlangen desselben wieder zusammenzutreten.

Wir machen hier darauf aufmerksam, daß, entgegen der bei Beginn der Verhandlungen getroffenen Vereinbarung, der Vorsitzende, P. J. Downey, die Stadt verließ, ohne im Besitze eines Exemplars des stenographischen Protokolls über die Schluß-Verhandlungen zu sein. Bei seiner Rückkehr war er mit einer Pausch-Abchrift seines Schiedsrichterspruches versehen. Er war also zu einer Entscheidung gelangt, ohne die beiderseitigen Schluß-Argumente in Erwägung gezogen zu haben. Wir machen ferner darauf aufmerksam, daß Delegat Bohnen dem Schiedsrichter und Vorsitzenden, Downey, neunzehn verschiedene Fragen vorlegte, über welche wir das Urtheil Downey's anriefen, daß aber diese Fragen sämmtlich von ihm ignoriert wurden.

Die Vertreter der Am. Woodworkers behaupteten freiz und fest, daß ein Carpenter ein minderfähiger Handwerker sei, ein Sägen- und Beil-Mann, wie sie erklärten, und daß die Mitglieder der B. B. nicht fähig seien, erster Klasse Fensterrahmen, Thüren oder Begleitungsgegenstände herzustellen; daß sie nicht zu förmlichen oder die Zubereitung von Beim verständen, und daß alles, was sie zu thun im Stande und ihnen zu thun erlaubt werden solle, sei das Aufstellen der Trim-Arbeit in den Bauten oder die Herstellung von Scheunen oder anderer Holzbauten. Sie stellten die unumwundene Behauptung auf, daß ein Carpenter nicht fähig sei, Shop-Arbeit zu verrichten; daß die Verrichtung solcher Arbeit Leute größter Geschicklichkeit erfordere, wie sie den Am. Woodworkers und den Möbelarbeitern angehörten. Doch könne vielleicht der B. B. Jurisdiktion über Reparatur-Werkstätten, zur Reparatur von Fensterrahmen, Thüren und anderen Begleitungsgegenständen nicht als Carpenterarbeit betrachtet werden können, und die B. B. über keine Fabriken, Shopp oder Sägemühlen, die derartige Material herstellen, Kontrolle habe.
